The leaders of organized labor are makeing an attempt to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

We wonder if anyone has been buying The Crookston Times, to say that newspapers are bought that support a candidate for governor that is not being pushed by McKenzie?.

Politics promises to be rather warm up at Bemidji during the next year. A newspaper war is on tap, which will cause the little flurry between Russia and Japan to sink into oblivion.

The flour mill strike in Minneapolis will have the affect of throwing a large number of good men out of employment, at fair wages. When they get ready to go back to work they will find an-other man in their place.

There was not much trouble of orgenized labor strikes for higher wages and shorter hours under the last Democratic adminestration, as the laboring men were mostly all busy, looking for free soup and any job at any price.

Crookston Journal; Speaking of the opening to settlement of the Red Lake lands to be held November 10, the warroad commowelth gives credit as follows;

A great deal of credit and thanks is due in Congressman Steenerson for bringing the matter before the department so forcibly and with such excellent results It seems as if the surveyors and land classifiers have been jumping over one another since Congressman Steenerson took the matter in hand.

A GOOD CAMPAIGN.

Hon. F. M. Eddy is makeing a a campaign for the nomination for governor that has compelled his opponents to admit that he means business and is going after the big plum in earnest. He has no opponents, up to the present time that have nerve enough to come out and say that they would like to be governor of Minnesota, or where they stand on some of the questious of vital interest to the people of this state. Eddy indorses the adminestration of Gov. Van Sant, which has been satisfactory to the majority of the people, particulary on the question of the merging of railroads, and he is the only one of the candidates that have been mentioned that has had the courage to come out aud say, where he is at, and what be is for or against. Can't it be possiable that some of the other candidates that have been mentioned for this importent position are afraid to declare their views on state issues, for fear of looseing corporation backing?.

Eddy is gaining stength every day with the masses of the people, and if he keeps up his present pace he will be more eisily elected by the party, and by a larger majority than any other candidate they could nominate at the next state convention.

Kentucky Shooting Affrays.

An exchange said that the highest tribute ever paid to a Kentucky marksmanship was the remark of Judge Parker of the Lexington circuit court, who said: "If every spot where a man has fallen by the bands of violence in this city were marked by a cross Lexington would resemble a city of the dead as much as a city of the living, as much a cemetery as a town."

Money Well Expended.

Each year about $50,000 is expended in sprinkling the streets of London with sand, to prevent horses from slipping.

DESERTED HIS FAMILY.

Crookston Journal: John Mickelson well known among Morden Woodmen in the vally as an organizer of lodges of that order has deserted his wife and four children at Thief River Falls, and the neighbors are supporting them. He has contributed but $16 to their support during the past nine months and that was used to pay the interest on a mortgage on their home.

Last week Mrs, Mickelson received a letter from her husband and it told her not to look for any more support from him, and that he would never return to live with her again.

Are There 400 Languages?

It is said that the New Testament is printed in 400 languages. A high authority declares that there are only 204 literary languages in the whole British empire.

Remembered Old Employes.

On his silver wedding anniversary Charles J. Swanson, a Minneapolis manufacturer, gave to each of nine of his employes who had been with him for twenty years a deed for forty acres of improved land in Anoka county. The total value of the gifts was $5,500.

Cattle Shippers Lose Little.

Out of the 12,000 head of cattle shipped by one firm from Montreal to Liverpool this season, the loss was less than one per thousand.

The Glory of the Great.

As the stars are the glory of the sky, so great men are the glory of their country, yea, of the whole earth. The hearts of great men are the stars of earth; and doubtless when one looks down from above our planet these hearts are seen to send forth a silvery light just like the stars of heaven.—Heinrich Heine.

Cosmopolitan London.

It is said that there are more Irishmen in London than there are in Dublin, more Scotchmen than in Edinburgh, that half of Soho is French, and the whole of Saffron hill Italian.

Appreciated His Mercies.

Bishop Wilberforce used to tell a story of a greedy clergyman who, when asked to say grace, looked anxiously to see if there were champagne glasses on the table. If there were be began: "Bountiful Jehovah!" But if he saw only claret glasses, he said: "We are not worthy of the least of thy mercies."

Will Work Much Hardship.

The recent closing of the various convents in France, it is learned, will cause the industry and art of lacemaking to die out. This charming and profitable work was fostered chiefly in religious institutions where the nuns were past mistresses in the art and the peasant girls of the neighborhood were pupils.

A CROWDED CITY.

To Walk In Constantinople Is Like a Fierce Struggle.

To walk in Constantinople is like a fierce and active struggle. One should look at once before, behind and underneath one's feet. Some danger or disgust is always threatening. I never walked up the steep road which leads from the bridge to Pera without the feeling that I was fighting my way through a hostile city. A horn blows furiously, and a black man runs up the hill, clearing the way before the dashing and struggling horses of the tram. At the same moment a cab drives at full speed down the hill, and the horses set their feet on the pavement. In front of you a man balances slices of offal on a long pole across his shoulder. They dangle before and behind. He swings cheerfully with his burden through the crowd. A Kurd, stooping under a weight higher than himself, follows, step by step, behind you. Your feet slip in slushy mud and catch on the cobbles or in the gaps of the road.

A dog with a red wound behind his ear and a long strip of mangy skin on his back lies asleep in the middle of the pavement. You step into the road to avoid the dogs and the hamals, and wheels and horses are upon you. You step back into the midst of the dogs and the hamals. As you stand aside for a moment a beggar with a handless arm rounded into a stump and a woman with her face eaten away in the cavity of the hood which she draws back before you appear suddenly, filling what had seemed the only alley of escape. The sun soaks down into the narrow street. The smell of the mud rises up into your nostrils, mingled with those unknown smells which in Constantinople seem to ooze upward out of the ground and steam outward from every door and window and pour out of every alley and rise like a cloud out of the breath and sweat and foulness of the people.—Arthur Symons in Harper's Magazine

Caught at Last.

"Sir!" cried Mr. Pecksniff indignantly. "How dare you accuse me of such things? My reputation, sir, is spotless."

"Your reputation may be, sir," replied the detective, "but you're not. We spotted you some time ago."—Exchange.

It is always safe to learn even from our enemies; never safe to instruct even our friends.—Colton.

Here Lies Our Husband.

In New London, Conn., is a lot containing five graves, those of a man and his four wives. The women's form four sides of a square, and the man's is in the center, while the inscriptions are as follows:

My IV. wife.

My I. wife.
Our Husband.
My II. wife.

My III. wife.

As Mamma Did.

"Oh, you dreadful hippogriff," said a small Miss Malaprop to the brother with whom she had been having a wordy battle. "Smoke out your own eye before you poke out your brother's," she went on indignantly in fine assumption of the manner of her mother, who not long before had quoted the Scriptural mandate about the mote and the beam to emphasize some nursery homily.

Remarkable Clover Stalk.

Miss Emma Doney of Powder valley, Pennsylvania, recently found a remarkable clover stalk, having fourteen stems, twenty-seven of them having four leaves each and seventeen being five-leaved. During the summer she gathered 101 four-leaved clover stalks, nineteen with five leaves and one with the exceptional number of six leaves.

Blessings of the Railroad.

"The new railroad has been a great blessing to us," says a rural exchange. "In less than six weeks we got enough damages out of it to build a town hall and grade the cemetery. A few more enterprises of this kind, and our town will rise to heights undreamed of in the history of new settlements!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Fighters for Humanity.

Every important step in the progress of civilization has come from those who for humanity and the world's benefit were willing to fight battles and become unpopular; but their memory remains, and the bell of every steamer that plows the waters of the Potomac is tolled while passing the tomb of Washington.—George T. Angell.

Tablet Unveiled.

A tablet was unveiled recently at the Devil's hole in the Niagara gorge to mark the spot where, on Sept. 14, 1763, occurred the massacre of a large body of British soldiers by Seneca Indians.

Shame on the Young Men.

Count up the men you know and see how many of them are bachelors. Then place a long mark to the credit of that heroic old codger in Connecticut who has just been married for the thirteenth time. He is 89 years old and his latest venture is a girl of 22. Shame on the young men who are shirking their duty.—Buffalo Express

Convict Sues Prison Doctor.

Miss Braddon's Three Fads.

Miss Braddon divides her affections equally between books, old china and dogs. In her beautiful home at Richmond there is one white paneled room, the walls of which are completely hung with china plates of every conceivable pattern.

Good Haul of Sharks.

An immense shark was caught lately by the marines of his majesty's guardship Urgent at Port Royal, Jamaica. It was so big that the most stalwart seaman aboard could have passed through its mouth without touching the teeth. No fewer than forty-three young ones, all alive and kicking, were found in the mother's stomach.

Overzealous Employe.

Two printed forms valued at one farthing were lost recently at Baku, on the Transcaucasian railway, and the station master had telegrams sent to every station in the Russian empire to ask if they had been seen anywhere. The company has since had to pay telegraph charges amounting to nearly $10,000, and the overzealous official is now out of employment.

Ancestors of Rousseau.

Prof. Eugene Ritter of Geneva has written a book on two female ancestors of Rousseau, Mme. Bourgeois and Mme. Durant. Mme. Bourgeois was so quarrelsome and eccentric that, when nearly 60 years old, she was brought before the courts charged with being a witch, tortured and banished from Geneva. Mme. Durant maltreated her chambermaid, who thereupon committed suicide by jumping into the Rhone.

Glory.

Glory is but a transient dream that gives color to a sleep bespangled with illusions of greatness; a mirage, glittering, but unsubstantiol, hovering above the oasis in the desert of life at whose fountain many a weory traveler would quench his burning thirst that he may press on to grander heights. It beckons os on to where the broed light ploys on countless graves of those once called greot, but oow forgotten, upon whose gravestone is chiseled the mocking phrose, "Sic transit gloria mundi." How often does the victor, speot ond worn, look around for the loureis ond the peace he has earned, only to find the bubble borsted, the colors foded.—Roanoke

The Originator.

Southern Europe.

A traveler writes: "I hove often been struck by the eose with which people in southern Europe ere amused. In Paris 100,000 people go out to Longchomps for the Grand Prix race, and half o million people go out and line the roods on their return to see them come back. In Rome at the feast of the "Divino Amore" 5,000 people go out on the Campagna to o spot where once stood o temple to Venus ond hold o picnic, while 50,000 go oot end line the Appion way to see them return. In Madrid this peculiarity is aven more marked. On the Puerta del Sol about e thousend people stand around and do nothing outdoors, while crowds of people sit indoors or lean from balconies to watch them do it. And in Seville the idle rich sit in clubs and cafes on the Sierpes to watch the lower classes walk by, while the lower classes welk by to wetch the idle rich sitting in the clubs and cafes on the Sierpes."

How to Press Sleeves.

In pressing sleeves, which is the bane of the amateur's life, keep a wooden rolling pin for that purpose alone. Insert in the sleeve, and the pressing of seoms and wrists also is as easily done os though it were a flat surface. Cover pin with flannel. Keep a heavy piece of flonnel to lay over the ironing board when pressing wool goods. This prevents the shiny coats so objectionable in a finished garment.

Burmese Girls.

The Burmese girl begins smoking when she is obout three years of oge. A group of schoolgirls in Mondaloy will sit in a circle passing around the cigarette, just as Americon girls would pass round the bag of caramels. It isn't a weedy little thing two inches long and the thickness that the Burmese girl smokes. It is a whacking big cheroot, nearly a foot long and weighing about three-quarters of a poond.

Nine National Capitals.

How many readers could tell off the number of national capitals this country's congress has sat in and give the names? Not many probably. Yet there have been nine of them—Washington; Baltimore and Annapolis, in Maryland; Trenton ond Princeton, in New Jersey; Philadelphia, Lancaster and York, in Pennsylvania, and New York city.—National Magazine.

Swearing to Excess.

A cricket club in the south of Scotland, which has evidently found that the use of lurid language doesn't add to the amenities of play, has passed the following bylaw:

"Any member swearing to excess may be expelled."

I have not heard whether the club committee has yet arrived at a definition of "moderate swearing." The attempt to find one to meet all cases is likely to result in language both "painful and free."—Glasgow Times.

How to Care For Jewels.

People who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to dampness, says Home Notes. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting. Don't forget this when near the fire if you happen to wear an opal ring.

Prosperity leads often to ambition, and ambition to disappointment.

EYE TO EYE.

"And they shall see eye to eye when the Lord shall turn again to Zion."

Blessed promise of a golden day,
Checkered by no blasts of blinding sorrow,
Clear and all-cheering as the sun's bright ray,
Telling to-night the comfort of to-morrow.
All carking cares forever take their flight,
Tear-shadowed eyes, by love wiped ever dry,
When we shall pass the goal of earth's dark night
And scan the future undimmed, eye to eye.

Blessed hope, which, like a golden anchor,
Binding the soul to that fair world on high,
Where neither rust nor earth's corroding canker
Touches the treasure far beyond the sky;
O'er all the storms of life securely riding,
Fearing them not as they go sweeping by,
Safe in His dear pavilion there abiding,
We'll find our loved ones, and see eye to eye.

Blessed truth that comes to cheer our sadness,
Lifting us up above earth's petty care,
Bringing us joy and hope and peace and gladness,
Where once we knew but grief and dark despair,
Shining with steady glow, to light our tired feet
Treading the thorny path that we decry,
Ending whene'er we gain that blest retreat,
Where truth triumphant we see, eye to eye.

Blessed faith, from God the glorious Giver,
Blessed promise to the human soul,
Blessed peace that like a mighty river
Comes now to nourish and sustain the whole.
Blessed faith that lifts the misty curtain,
Blessed hope that holds where treasures lie,
Blessed truth that makes things hoped for certain,
May we soon know and see them eye to eye.

He Believed in Signs

"WHAT rot," said Mr. Thompkins, standing still and gazing at the front door of a house he was passing.

"Come, dear," said Mrs. Thompkins, nervously. "We shall be late."

"Why don't people try to be sensible if not coherent?" went on Mr. Thompkins, gazing steadfastly at the door.

"What is the matter?" asked Mrs. Thompkins.

"Look at that sign above the bell," said Mr. Thompkins, pointing majestically.

Mrs. Thompkins looked. There was a small brass plate above the electrical button at one side of the door. The plate said:

"Ring the bell."

"Well," said Mrs. Thompkins. "Well?"

"Well," repeated her liege. "Merciful heavens, woman, are you, too, utterly devoid of brains?"

"No-o, I think not," replied Mrs. Thompkins, doubtfully. "Still, I don't see what you are objecting to."

"Remain here," said Mr. Thompkins. "It is no use to waste explanations upon you. I will show you, if you will but listen to what I object. And I commence forthwith with a crusade I have long contemplated."

Mr. Thompkins moved majestically up the steps of the house and proceeded to ring the bell again and again. A housemaid came to the door and asked what he wanted. Mr. Thompkins paid no attention to her and continued to ring the bell. The housemaid disappeared and returned with her mistress.

"What do you want?" demanded the woman.

"Nothing," said Mr. Thompkins, and he again jingled the bell.

"Why are you standing there ringing my bell?" asked the woman, looking down the street to see if there were any policemen near by who could take the lunatic in charge.

"I am ringing the bell," said Mr. Thompkins, "because the little brass sign above the bell commands me to. I was passing the house and I saw the words here, 'Ring the bell.' Although it is causing me a good deal of inconvenience, I obey." And Mr. Thompkins continued to push the button.

"But," said the woman in a tone of voice which plainly showed she was following the injunction to always humor crazy people, "if you do not wish to see anyone in my household why do you stand there and ring the bell?"

"And why, if I do not wish to see anyone in your household," said Mr. Thompkins, "should a brass sign be displayed commanding me to ring the bell?"

"You are not commanded to ring my bell."

"The brass sign, madam, says: 'Ring the bell.' The phrase is apparently addressed to all who pass this way. If you wish to command only those who have business at this house to ring the bell then change the phraseology of the sign and do not leave it so worded that it appeals as a command to all who pass this way."

"I wish my husband were home," snapped the woman. "He would kick you off those steps."

"That depends," returned Mr. Thompkins, politely. "Anyhow, I have explained this matter to you, and if you do not institute a reform the fault is not mine. Good day."

"Idiot," hissed the woman.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompkins resumed their walk downtown. Mrs. Thompkins had gloomy forebodings. She saw that her liege had started out to institute a reform and he would not rest until he encountered disaster.

They entered an art-store, where Mrs. Thompkins wished to look at some picture frames. The next she heard from Mr. Thompkins he was standing in front of the cashier's desk.

"The suburban train No. 445, which is due to leave our station at 9:23 a. m., did not leave until 9:33 this morning," said Mr. Thompkins.

"This is an art store and not a railroad depot," said the cashier, stiffly.

"The cook did not get home until one o'clock this morning," continued Mr. Thompkins, "and as a result breakfast was half an hour late."

The cashier motioned convulsively for the proprietor of the store to come to her rescue. The proprietor walked up. Mr. Thompkins turned to him and said:

"The elevators throughout the building worked badly yesterday, and the janitor on our floor did not sweep the corridors."

"Where do you think you are?" asked the proprietor, gently. "Don't you want to come back in my office and lie down on the sofa for awhile?"

Mr. Thompkins pointed to a placard that hung in front of the cashier's desk. It said:

"Make All Complaints Here."

"I am making all the complaints I can think of," he said, pleasantly. "The telephone in our house—"

"That sign," said the proprietor, stiffly, "refers, of course, to complaints in regard to our employes or to other matters concerned with this store."

"Then," returned Mr. Thompkins, "might I ask why doesn't the sign so specify?"

"Every fool ought to know that," said the proprietor, sourly.

"Ah, yes," said Mr. Thompkins. "Every fool ought to. But, just the same, you have no right to object if anyone follows the instructions you have here given and makes all complaints as requested. You have no right to command people to make complaints unless you are prepared to hear them. I would suggest that you immediately change the phraseology of that sign."

Mrs. Thompkins and the proprietor managed to get Mr. Thompkins outside. But he was so worked up over his crusade by this time that Mrs. Thompkins was only counting the minutes until the catastrophe occurred. Mrs. Thompkins in her desire to make her liege forget his crusade led him into a department store. They had no sooner got inside than Mr. Thompkins made a dash for a district messenger call box, where there was a sign displayed:

DISTRICT MESSENGER CALL BOX.
PULL BUTTON CLEAR DOWN AND LET GO.

Mr. Thompkins pulled down the button and let it go, and then as soon as it was back in its original position pulled it down again. He stood in front of the box working the button as fast as it would work. Soon a uniformed messenger boy appeared and shoved a book and pencil into Mr. Thompkins' hands.

"Whachyouwant?" he demanded.

"Not a thing," said Mr. Thompkins, pleasantly, again pulling down the button.

"What did yer call a messenger fer, then?" demanded the boy.

"Because the sign over this box requested me to do so," replied Mr. Thompkins.

"Ah, yer nutty," said the wrathful messenger. "Git me way over here an' nothin' doin'."

Another messenger boy appeared and behind him another, and the face of still one more appeared at the door. The first boy eagerly called to the later arrivals to approach.

"De ole guy is batts," he whispered, hoarsely, "clean dippy."

"Say, mister," said the first boy to Mr. Thompkins, "if you got enuff messenger boys here an' don't want nothin', w'y cut it out."

"There is nothing specified here as to how many times I must pull this button down," said Mr. Thompkins. "It merely commands me to pull the button and, as I understand it, to keep on pulling it indefinitely."

"Gee," said one of the messenger boys. "Say, he's wearin' out de battery on dat box. De manager will chew his ear off, an' he's got all de boys in de office over here, too. Say, back pedle, old man, you've had fun enuff."

Mr. Thompkins only smiled and continued pulling down the button. The first messenger boy made a rush and butted Mr. Thompkins in the stomach. Another boy took him in the back. He went down with a crash and women in the store screamed and clerks and floorwalkers came rushing up as the messenger boys piled enthusiastically on top of Mr. Thompkins, and one of them grabbed him by the ears and bumped his head on the floor. Mrs. Thompkins tried to fight them off with her parasol, but a clerk restrained her. Finally a policeman appeared and dragged Mr. Thompkins away from the messenger boys. Mr. Thompkins attempted to tell his story, but the boys insisted on telling theirs first.

"Go on, all of you," said the policeman. "You boys bustle back to where you belong, and here, lady, you'd better take this husband of yours back home. He oughten ter git too far from the house. You talk about obeying signs, mister," he continued, addressing Mr. Thompkins. "Keep it up. There's a sign out there that's just intended for you." He pointed to a sign which read: "Take cars here."

"But—" began Mr. Thompkins, feebly.

"Go on, now," said the policeman. "That's your sign. You're so gay about doin' everything signs say, you do what that one says. You take the car right there, and do it quick, or I'll run you in."

And Mr. Thompkins obeyed.—Chicago Tribune.

To Rid City of Beggars.

Police Commissioner Greene, of New York city, has announced that by an arrangement with the Charity Organization society all professional beggars and vagrants arrested hereafter will have their pictures taken for a gallery to be kept at the society rooms. An organized effort will be made to rid the city of the beggars, the worst class of whom are said to have formed themselves into a society known as "Yeggmen."

ADMIRAL SCHLEY ENDORSES PE-RU-NA.

Pe-ru-na Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio:
Gentlemen:---"I can cheerfully say that Mrs. Schley has taken Pe-ru-na and I believe with good effect."--W. S. SCHLEY---Washington, D. C.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY, one of the foremost, notable heroes of the Nineteenth Century. A name that starts terror in the heart of every Spaniard. A man of steady nerve, clear head, undaunted courage and prompt decision.

Approached by a friend recently, his opinion was asked as to the efficacy of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy. Without the slightest hesitation he gave this remedy his endorsement. It appeared on later conversation that Peruna has been used in his family, where it is a favorite remedy.

Such endorsements serve to indicate the wonderful hold that Peruna has upon the minds of the American people. It is out of the question that so great and famous a man as Admiral Schley could have any other reason for giving his endorsement to Peruna than his positive conviction that the remedy is all that he says it is.

The fact is Peruna has overcome all opposition and has won its way to the hearts of the people. The natural timidity which so many people have felt about giving endorsements to any remedy is giving way. Gratitude and a desire to help others has inspired thousands of people to give public testimonials for Peruna who heretofore would not have consented to such publicity.

Never before in the annals of medicine has it happened that so many men of national and international reputation have been willing to give unqualified and public endorsements to a proprietary remedy. No amount of advertising could have accomplished such a result. Peruna has won on its own merits. Peruna cures catarrh of whatever phase or location in the human body. This is why it receives so many notable and unique endorsements.

Address The Peruna Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, Ohio, for free literature on catarrh.

REASSURING.

She Expected to Be in the Same "Fix" Herself and Could Therefore Sympathize.

A middle-aged man and his wife decided to take a trip to Washington, and as it was the beginning of the season, they both invested in some new clothes for the journey. Their grown-up children made fun of their "new" appearance, but it was not until they were safely settled in their seats and opened their bags that they discovered the joke that had been played upon them, relates the New York Times.

One of their offspring had filled both satchels with rice, and, on taking out what they needed, the tiny grains were scattered broadcast.

Of course there was at once an amused smile on every one's face, and the mother felt herself getting redder than she had ever been in her life before, and was made no more comfortable when a fat German woman opposite leaned over and said quite audibly:

"Ach—never mind. I'm a vidder vomen now, but this time next week I'll be in the same fix myself."

Still Another Case.

Franksville, Wis., Oct. 12th.—Many remarkable cures have been reported from all over the country, but there is one right here in Franksville which is certainly worth publishing, and which has not as yet been given to the public.

Mrs. Louis Markison of this place had been a sick woman for quite a long time and could not find anything to give her any help. She suffered all the painful symptoms of what is generally known as female weakness. Every woman who reads her story will understand these distressing conditions which combine to make the lives of many women one long burden of weakness and suffering.

Mrs. Markison chanced one day to hear of a new remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, that was said to be a splendid medicine for women's weakness. She determined to try some and soon found herself getting better. She kept on with the pills and was cured. Speaking of her case Mrs. Markison says:—"I can and do praise Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for female weakness. They are the best medicine I have ever known, and have done me a great deal of good."

Cheaper Than Staying at Home.

The man who wishes to locate in the Southwest this fall has little excuse for staying at home, so far as railroad rates are concerned. The Santa Fe announces very low one-way second-class rates to California—$33 from Chicago, $25 from Kansas City, $30 from St. Louis, and proportionate reductions from the East generally. These tickets are on sale every day until November 30. They are being availed of by those wishing to settle in the San Joaquin and other great valleys of California, likewise Arizona passengers. The same line also offers a rate of about half fare, plus $2, one-way or round-trip, to the Southwest generally, the first and third Tuesdays of each month; the last semimonthly excursion filled every available car. On October 20 a special bargain-counter round-trip home-seekers' rate is advertised for $20 from Chicago, and $15 from Kansas City to central and eastern Texas and to Oklahoma, also $5 higher to Pecos Valley, of New Mexico.

The mere sightseer will be more interested in the excursions to Los Angeles and San Francisco that are booked on the Santa Fe the latter part of October, account American Bankers' Association. The rate then, out and back, will be $62.50 from Chicago, $50 from Kansas City, and similarly reduced from other points. Anyone may go who has the price in his pocketbook. Special parties will take in the Grand Canyon of Arizona, on the way, and will be personally escorted. Those wishing to try an ocean voyage can extend their trip by Oceanic line steamer from San Francisco to Hawaii and enjoy a week's outing in the isles of peace.

A Low Rate to Texas.

October 20th only, the M., K. & T. R'y will have on sale tickets from St. Louis, Hannibal and Kansas City to Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory at rate of $15.00 for the round trip, final limit November 10th. Rate of $18.00 will also apply from Cincinnati, $20.00 from Chicago. No one can afford to miss this opportunity of seeing the great southwestern country in the fullness of its glory and prosperity. International Live Stock Exposition.

Chicago is beginning to consider means for making the International Live Stock Exposition, to be held this fall, better than any ever held. Over $33,000,000 of live stock was handled at the Union Stock Yards last year, almost three hundred thousand carloads of live stock being received at the Chicago market during this period. This makes the city one of the greatest live stock centers in the world.

The International Live Stock Exposition has been an educational agency of the greatest value to those who have visited the show in recent years from the cattle ranges and feeding grounds of the west. These sources of supply are placed within easy reach of the city by such trunk lines of railway as the Chicago & North-Western, which brings to Chicago each year 70,000 carloads of live stock, raised and fed in the territory it reaches. The people living in this rich agricultural region, tributary to Chicago, are evincing each year more interest in the betterment of their stock. The exhibition at the Union Stock Yards during the International Exposition this fall will be one of the most notable ever seen, and its chief value will be along educational lines, looking to the improving of breeds and raising of standards, which means just so much more money in the pockets of the producer.

Full particulars as to the program of the International together with announcement of low railway rates via The North-Western Line will appear later.

Luck is important. But for luck, the fool might never have any money to part with.—Puck.

Cheap Excursion to the South.

On Oct. 20th the Kansas City Southern Ry. (Port Arthur Route) will run a cheap excursion from Kansas City and all stations in Missouri and Kansas to Lake Charles, Shreveport, Beaumont and Port Arthur. The rate for the round trip will be $15, limited to 21 days from date of sale, good to stop over on going trip at all points en route, provided final destination is reached inside of 15 days from date of sale. This exceptionally low rate, together with liberal stopover privileges allowed, should insure a great crowd, especially in view of the fact that this is the most delightful season of the year to visit the Southland. Similar low rates will probably be placed in effect from points north and east of Kansas City: Ask your ticket agent.

Every effort will be made by the Company to secure the safety and comfort of its patrons. All inquiries relative to desirable locations to visit or other information will be cheerfully furnished. WEST BRANCH, MICH.—"Doan's Kidney Pills hit the case, which was an unusual desire to urinate—had to get up five or six times of a night. I think diabetes was well underway, the feet and ankles swelled. There was an intense pain in the back, the heat of which would feel like putting one's hand up to a lamp chimney. I have used the free trial and two full boxes of Doan's Pills with the satisfaction of feeling that I am cured. They are the remedy par excellence."

SOME DIPLOMATIC CHANGES

Interesting Figures from the Morgue of the Post Office Department—Stupendous Tasks Performed by Some Government Officials.

Washington.—Over at the post office department there is a place called the Morgue. That is the eminently appropriate name commonly applied to the dead letter office—the destination of all the letters that go astray in the mails.

A Race for Life.

Few people have an adequate conception of the amount of business that is transacted in this establishment; but the annual report of First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, the official keeper of the Morgue, contains some interesting information. It appears that during the year just closed no less than 10,156,146 pieces of mail found their way into the dead house. That was 854,795 more pieces than were reported during the previous year—35,000 a day year in and year out, and the number constantly increasing.

A little over one-thirtieth of this number was delivered unopened. That means that the skilled clerks in the office succeeded in deciphering more than 300,000 apparently unintelligible addresses and starting them safely on their way again.

The clerks found $48,634 in money in misdirected letters which were opened, and drafts, checks and money orders representing a face value of $1,493,563. Some of this money was finally delivered to the persons for whom it was intended, but the larger portion went to swell the postal receipts.

To handle this business there are 135 clerks, and some of them are marvels in the skill with which they can decipher writing that apparently has no meaning. The most skilful of all of them is a woman who draws a salary of $1,800 a year. There are few chirographical enigmas which she cannot master.

Mourns the Loss of Herbert.

In the unexpected death of Sir Michael Herbert Washington loses the most charming diplomat who has ever been detailed to represent a foreign country here as an ambassador.

Sir Michael Herbert.

Sir Michael had been in Washington as the British ambassador less than a year, and yet he had won a popularity that amounted to affection. He was gentle, cultured, magnetic, and fascinating in manner. Although an Englishman to the finger tips, he had yet an instinctive understanding of American ways and a sympathy with Yankee idiosyncrasies which gained for him a cordial regard everywhere he went.

Perhaps the fact that he was married to an American wife had something to do with it, but that was not all, Sir Michael was genuinely, heartily, spontaneously, sympathetic and kindly. It is hardly conceivable that Great Britain can send another ambassador here who can win so high a place in so short a time. It is only a little more than a year since Sir Julian Pauncefote disappeared from the scene after thirteen years of service in Washington, and there were many men who thought that sturdy old English squire had made a record which could never be equalled; but Sir Michael was already on the road to winning a place in Washington which even Sir Julian never occupied.

Diplomatic Changes.

Diplomatic Washington is also to lose Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador.

A Diplomat of Distinction.

Count Cassini has been here several years, and he has the reputation of being one of the most accomplished diplomats in Europe; but somehow or other he has always had the ill fortune to be mixed up in a fuss in every capital to which he is assigned. At Peking he is credited with having stirred up the troubles which finally resulted in the grievous diplomatic tangle of three years ago in connection with the Boxer uprising. He is held responsible also for much of the ill feeling which grew out of the Kishineff affair last summer.

The count is a man of striking personal appearance and of great accomplishments, but it is no secret that the state department would not grieve greatly if the Russian government were to decide that his services would be of greater value to the empire elsewhere.

It is of great importance that Russia should be represented here during the next few years by an ambassador who thoroughly understands the United States, and who can make himself personally acceptable to the powers with whom he is forced to come in contact. Our relations with Russia are becoming year by year more complicated, and they contain possibilities of international trouble unless they are handled with consummate skill. The Russian ministers of the czar realize this as well as our own secretary of state, and we may expect to see Count Cassini succeeded by somebody of infinite tact and diplomatic astuteness.

Cortelyou's Success.

One of the most notable things in Washington recently has been the success with which Secretary Cortelyou has managed to get the new department of commerce and labor into effective running order.

Frank H. Hitchcock.

It was a far more complicated task than it could have seemed to an outsider who was not familiar with the routine of administration in government departments, and for that reason Mr. Cortelyou will probably never receive the full credit which belongs to him for what he has done. He has taken a great many bureaus and independent divisions belonging to various departments or perhaps standing by themselves, and he has amalgamated them into the new department, lopping off superfluities, adjusting jurisdictions and fixing relative responsibilities.

It is doubtful whether anybody could have come in from the outside and succeeded in this. It is due to Secretary Cortelyou's intimate acquaintance with all government departments and with administrative routine gained while in the post office department and at the white house that it has been possible to bring order out of chaos. It is doubtful, too, whether he could have done it if he had not been fortunate enough to select at the very beginning a chief clerk who is almost as much a master of administrative detail as Cortelyou himself.

Frank H. Hitchcock, who has been the secretary's right hand man in this preliminary work, and who has been compelled to attend to the greater part of the detail of the reorganization, is a young Harvard graduate, who made a great reputation as a statistician in the agricultural department before Cortelyou picked him up.

Valuable Army Officer.

A quiet, modest, keen-witted army officer who is doing a great work without fuss or feathers is Lieut. Col. Clarence R. Edwards, the chief of the bureau of insular affairs in the war department.

Col. Edwards.

Col. Edwards has been at the head of the bureau of insular affairs ever since it was created as an outgrowth of the war with Spain, and under him it has developed into one of the most important bureaus of the government. There are times when the work that falls to his lot would be worthy of a cabinet officer, and he has never yet failed to meet every emergency as it arose.

Col. Edwards is a young man. He was graduated at West Point in 1883, and he has seen service in Cuba and the Philippines. He has the head of a veteran and the manners of a prince of the blood. To see him at work one would not imagine that he had a serious problem to consider or any task of consequence to complete, and yet he is continually deciding knotty questions and accomplishing important results. He has to be familiar with problems of currency and the tariff as related to the Philippine islands and with every other detail of colonial administration. He is in effect a secretary of the treasury, a secretary of state, a secretary of agriculture and attorney general for the Philippines rolled into one. All the publications for the Philippines pass through his hands. He presides over a bureau of statistics and a general information bureau. He has charge of the records and the archives containing the papers which have been brought from the Philippines from time to time. In short, he is the representative in Washington of the Philippine government.

LOUIS A. COOLIDGE.

ROUND ABOUT THE STATE.

Bert Stafford, a guest at the Sherman hotel, St. Paul, narrowly escaped death from asphyxiation in room No. 13. When he was discovered in bed, unconscious, in the morning, the room was full of gas.

B. B. Sheffield, D. W. Grant and A. Blodgett, Jr., of Faribault, and L. Peavey, of Owatonna, have purchased the Security bank at Ellendale. The capital stock will be increased from $10,000 to $25,000.

Five head of cattle were killed by lightning during an electrical storm at Rothsay. The cattle were huddled together in a pasture on George Ackerman's farm, and all fell in a bunch.

The football game between the universities of Minnesota and Wisconsin, scheduled for Milwaukee on Thanksgiving Day, will be played in Madison.

A verdict for the sum of one cent was returned in favor of Dwight and Arthur Jackson against the Northern Pacific railroad for alleged false imprisonment in connection with a train robbery near Sand Point, Idaho.

Mrs. Mary Musolf of Gnesen township, near Duluth, died at the age of 101 years. She has been a widow twelve years and leaves three sons, twenty grand and six great grand children.

A terrific wind damaged buildings and other property in the south part of Wells.

The skeleton of William McKee, a horseman who came to Duluth about eleven years ago, was found in the woods near Knife River, and a mystery of ten years' standing as to his disappearance is cleared up.

Ole Anderson, a 17-year-old farm boy, near Mankato, discharged the contents of a shotgun into his left hip while hunting ducks.

The resignation of John M. Finley, president of the International Union of Flour and Cereal Mill Employes, which came as a result of the strike, was accepted by the general executive board.

Scores of families are threatened by the high waters of the Mississippi, which is rapidly coming up and surrounding the houses on the west side flats of St. Paul.

Nicholas Franciscus, an old resident, died at LeSueur. He completed a large wooden cross which he designed to have erected as a memorial over his grave.

Fifty thousand trout fry have been put into the streams tributary to the Root river, and 50,000 smaller ones are being fed in tanks at Preston preparatory to planting.

Maplewood Inn, a summer hotel on the Milwaukee line to Lake Minnetonka, not far from Breezy Point, was completely destroyed by fire.

Five Chinamen were baptized and received into the St. Vincent Catholic church, St. Paul.

A. A. Buck, president of the Mapleton village council, has resigned, and Martin Schimmele has been elected to succeed him.

Lorenzo S. Bryant, one of the oldest conductors in the employ of the Chicago Great Western railroad, committed suicide at his home, 142 South Robert street, St. Paul, by drinking carbolic acid.

George F. Moulton, a grain commission merchant of Minneapolis, has been indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury on a charge of offering a bribe.

Articles of incorporation of the Junior Pioneers' association of Ramsey county were filed with the secretary of state. The incorporators are the officers of the organization.

Jesse Reid, Ray Barber and Frank Robinson, prisoners in the county jail, at Austin, made an unsuccessful attempt to escape. It is said that Reid set fire to the building and through this means hoped to free himself and other prisoners.

The mangled body of August Bellinger, a soldier at Fort Snelling, was found lying on the Great Western railroad tracks near the Mendota ferry.

It is announced that C. S. Mellen, president of the Northern Pacific, will retire from the office Nov. 1. Soon after that he is expected to succeed Judge Hall as the chief executive of the New Haven.

Lake Harriet is to have a magnificent pavilion to cost $30,000. The street railway company will supply a portion of the funds and the Minneapolis Retail Dealers' association will obtain the remainder, the park board to repay the money at its convenience.

Since Sept. 15, twenty-two new elevators have been put into operation in Minnesota. Aside from these, numberless large and small elevators have reported installing new and modern grain-handling machinery, which will greatly increase their capacities, and other important improvements have been made.

A human skeleton has been found in the woods near Knife River, seven miles down the shore from Two Harbors. It was partially buried in the mud, and a few remnants of clothing were hanging to the bones. No clue as to its identity is known.

T.H. Bjoin of Crookston, who has been promised the next republican nomination for sheriff, was doing business here yesterday.—McIntosh Times.

That's a good promise, and now all it is necessary for Mr. Bjoin to do is to secure enough votes at the next primary election to fulfill it, and then beat the democratic nominee, at the general election, and he will be the next sheriff of Polk county.

It would not be safe for a man from a civilized state to visit South Carolina at this season of the year. The northern man is accustomed to putting his hands in his pockets on a cool day, and if he should forget and put his hands into his pocket down in that country some of Governor Tillmans followers might take a notion to exicute him and call it justifiable homicide.

Governor Tillman. of South Carolina has been licensed by the courts of that state to shoot any citizine down in cold blood, who does not agree with his political views, and is caught on the street with his hands in his pockets. No trial of what civilization calls a murderer would be necessary, as a trascript from his trial and aquitial for the murder of editor Gonzales would be sufficient to give any trial court, or grand jury to understand, that Tillman had license to shoot any man, caught in South Carolina with his hands in his pockets.

Otter Tail county will have eventually to consider the question of division, and the Soo road to be run through the eastern part thereof is a moveing factor in the case, as it will develop a number of new towns. The distance to the county seat is too great, and the facilities for getting to Fergus Falls too fiew.

Crooksten Journal.

The Crookston papers are quite ready to sympathize with the Otter Tail county people, who are a long distace from Fergus Falls, but they do not consider it is too great a distance for an eastern Polk county farmer to go 75 miles to Crookston.

Business Principles.

Dolly—So Simpkins, the cashier of the bank, proposed to you last night.

Polly—Yes; and I promised to marry him.

"Did he ask your father's permission?"

"Yes; he said he would ask papa to indorse my promissory note."

Not His Kind.

"Would you die for me?" she asked dreamily.

"Oh, say," he retorted in a matter of fact way, "if you haven't any more ambition than to be looking for dead ones you're not the girl for me!"—Chicago Post.

Changed His Mind.

Naggsby—I thought you were never going to work for those people again.

Waggsby—I did say so, but since that time they have decided that I might come back.—Baltimore American.

Natural History.

Pupil—Bees live in a hive, but they call it a cellar, for it is full of cells. Bees also make honey. They make it fine by combing it with a fine honeycomb.—New York Times.

A Common Weakness.

Dr. Joseph Le Conte was an authority, recognized by the world at large, on the science of vision. One day he was showing a class how to detect the blind spot in the human eye. He took two coins and held them, one in each hand, before him on the table.

"Look at both of these steadily," said he, "and gradually move them in opposite directions. Presently they will pass beyond the range of vision. That is due to the blind spot. Continue the movement, and the coins will again emerge to view."

Then the philosopher and naturalist had his little joke. "You can experiment for yourself at home," said he. "But if you are unsuccessful try some other object instead of a coin. Some people have no blind spot for money."

DUCKS WERE DECEITFUL.

Ingenious Fraud Practiced by the Heathen Chinee.

The ingenuity of the Chinaman is wonderful, surpassing at times the belief of his European and American brothers. A striking instance of it, not unmixed with guile, was brought to light recently during the trading transactions of two foreigners at Boone Road market.

This husband and wife, having decided that duck should figure on the menu of the day, went the round of the market in search of a fat, plump, well flavored bird.

After awhile two were purchased. They were beautifully dressed ducks, young, fat, plump, and promised to show up well at the evening table.

When the domestic pair got home the lady chanced to puncture one of the birds with a sharp knife, and it collapsed like a toy balloon. The other, subjected to similar treatment, followed suit. Their erstwhile inflated bodies became flat and bony, and mere ghosts of the ducks that had been bought.

Investigation showed that a thin piece of wire had been fastened round the birds' necks and elsewhere, and everything pointed to the conclusion that the ducks had been blown up with a bicycle pump.

How the ducks had been drawn and then made to stand the strain of the air pump is evidently an oriental trade secret.

When the young couple again go shopping for ducks they will take a skewer along with them.—Shanghai Times.

Stewed Snapper.

"Stewed snapper," said the proprietor of a restaurant that makes a specialty of the toothsome dish, "is almost as distinctively Philadelphian as scrapple and pepper pot. Prepared by the same formula as terrapin, with a liberal seasoning of sherry, snapper is quite as palatable as the diamond back, provided the meat comes from a young turtle. In fact, I defy any one but an epicure to tell the difference. The snappers that come to Philadelphia are mostly caught in the muddy bottomed creeks that flow into the Delaware up the Jersey side, and just now they are coming in very plentifully. The snapper is a difficult catch to handle, but the Jerseymen know how to turn the trick and get them to market alive. They run in weight from four pounds all the way up to forty pounds, the smaller ones being naturally more tender and consequently better meat. Some few are shipped to Trenton and New York, but most of them come to Philadelphia."—Philadelphia Record.

Jewels on an Idol.

The jewels of an Indian idol must be worth stealing if many of those remarkably hideous images possess such valuable head ornaments as one made for the idol Parthasathy, in the Triplicane temple at Madras. The ornament is worth some 50,000 rupees and is made of sovereign gold studded with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, the largest emerald being valued at 1,000 rupees and the biggest ruby and diamond at 800 rupees apiece.

Pull.

The doctor was sanguine.

"We're going to pull you through!" quoth he.

"By the leg?" querulously demanded the patient, a sordid man, whose soul, even in that extreme moment, brooded on the matter of expense.—Puck.

Professional.

"Are you blind by nature?" asked the charitably inclined citizen.

"No, sir," candidly replied the beggar. "I'm blind by profession."

THE WORD MELODRAMA.

It Has Drifted From Its Derivation and Original Significance.

Nowadays "melodrama" is in general use as denoting a purely sensational play, with an all but impossible hero, heroine and villain among the characters represented. Formerly the word kept more closely in its signification to actual derivation. "Melodrama" is compounded of the Greek words melos, a song, and drama, an action, a play, and was applied to two sorts of performances when it first came into use.

It signified a play, generally of the romantic school, in which the dialogue was frequently relieved by music, sometimes of an incidental and sometimes of a purely dramatic character. On the strength of his "Pygmalion" J. J. Rousseau is credited with the invention of this style. Some of the so called English operas of the older school, such as the once famous "Beggar's Opera" and the once popular "No Song, No Supper," are in reality true melodramas.

In the second place "melodrama" was applied to a peculiar kind of theatrical composition in which the actor recited his part in an ordinary speaking voice, while the orchestra played a more or less elaborate accompaniment appropriate to the situation and calculated to bring its salient features into the highest possible relief. The merit of the invention of this description of melodrama belongs to George Benda, who used it with striking effect in his "Ariadne auf Naxos," produced at Gotha in 1774.—London Globe.

The Ordeals of a Doctor.

It is often claimed by outsiders that having a profession dulls a woman's sympathies, but I cannot believe that this is true in the practice of medicine, where one side of the work is so immeasurably sad. I have seen a baby that came after fifteen years of waiting and hoping and was rejoiced over daily and hourly for a wonderful year suddenly struck down and gasp its little life out in a day with pneumonia. These are the times when it hurts to be a doctor, to find that all the knowledge that you possess, all the skill at your command, is as so much chaff before the wind. To have a woman cling to you, begging you to save her baby, is an ordeal to which no human being can grow callous. You must feel as though the brand of Cain were upon you when, with all your efforts, you cannot save the little life. Not years nor experience can lighten hours such as these.—Everybody's Magazine.

Storms of Old England.

In the year 944 in London alone 1,500 houses were blown down; in October, 1091, a great number of churches and 500 houses were destroyed; in 1235 it thundered for fifteen days consecutively. The dreadful night during which Cromwell's spirit passed has formed a theme for poet and partisan. And the great storm that "o'er pale Britannia passed" in November, 1703, the most terrible in British annals, also has its enduring record in poetry. It did damage in London to the amount of £2,000,000; over 8,000 people were drowned in floods in various parts of the country; twelve men-of-war, with over 1,800 men on board, went down in sight of land, and the Eddystone lighthouse, along with Winstanley, its inventor, was swept away.

The famous Maelstrom whirlpool is four geographical miles in diameter.

VERY LENGTHY SHAVES.

Razor Travels Many Miles Over the Average Man's Face.

The distance a man shaves in an average lifetime, or the distance the razor travels over his face, will be a surprise to most people. From a multitude of examples an average measurement around the chin from ear to ear is found to be twelve and one-half inches. From where the beard starts on the throat to the chin and thence to the edge of the upper lip is four and one-half inches. You must reckon that it is necessary to give two strokes of the razor to each inch or fraction of an inch in order to cover all the surface and go over each section of the face twice in order to secure a clean surface.

So, multiplying the number of strokes by the number of times the razor is passed over the entire face, you get the figure 4, and four times the two above mentioned measurements gives you the figures 50 and 18 respectively, which, added together, produce 68. Therefore the average man, whether dark or fair, shaves 64 inches every twenty-four hours. With these figures we arrive at the result that every man wearing only a mustache shaves 2,068 feet 4 inches per year. Taking, then, the average life at seventy years and that the fair man starts shaving at eighteen and the dark man a year earlier, or at seventeen, we have the following result: That a fair man, if he lives till he is seventy, will shave in the course of his life 20 miles 650 yards 4 inches. The dark man, if he lives till he is seventy, will shave in the course of his life 20 miles 1,340 yards 1 foot 8 inches.—Kansas City Independent.

The Foot Astray.

William F. Cody was once relating a story which concerned an Indian who had met with an accident in a Buffalo Bill show. It was necessary to amputate the Indian's leg, and in the description of this operation Cody was interrupted frequently by a young doctor who injected technical and medical terms into the straight vernacular of the scout. He was irritated, but ignored the doctor. "A few days after the operation," continued the narrator, "the Indian learned that his leg had been buried. With a whoop he leaped from his bed and jumped upon the doctor with both feet."

"Jumped with both feet after an operation?" shouted the doctor, exulting in his exposure of the great scout's absurd story.

"I said upon the doctor with both feet,'" explained Cody, "in order to distinguish him from the other hospital physician, who had only one foot, having put the other into people's affairs so often that he lost it."

The Way Home.

When the bishop of Truro, Dr. Gott, was dean of Worcester his absent mindedness was so notorious that he earned for himself the sobriquet of "Dean For-Gott."

On one occasion he had invited some friends to dine with him. On their arrival a short time before the dinner hour, he suggested that in the interval of waiting his friends would perhaps like to walk through the grounds.

After spending about a quarter of an hour in admiring the flowers, shrubs and greenhouses they suddenly came upon a door in the garden wall.

"Ah!" said the dean to his astonished guests. "This will be a much nearer way for you to go home than by going back to the front!" And, forgetting his invitation, he opened the door and bowed them out.

An Offensive Cravat.

A good story of Whistler and his peculiarities is told in the Free Lance. A gentleman went to Whistler with a letter of introduction and sent up his card with the letter. The servant presently brought down the card with a note in pencil on it—"Who is the greatest painter?" The visitor promptly wrote "Whistler" and was immediately shown upstairs. An amusing scene followed, arising out of the fact that the visitor was wearing a red necktie. Whistler declared it interfered with the color scheme of his room and "put him off" a picture he was painting in quite a different "key." Finally he obliged him to take off the offending cravat before he would condescend to exchange another word with him.

Lucky Man.

In crossing the ocean a father and son both became very seasick. The father recovered quickly, but the son was so exhausted with the attack that he sank into a state of apathy, from which it seemed impossible to arouse him.

The steamer physician, thinking he would try a sudden shock, said: "I have bad news for you. Your father is dead!"

The son, raising his expressionless eyes to the doctor, replied, "Lucky man!"

Getting Up Early.

"I can't get up early," said a wealthy gentleman to his doctor.

"Oh, yes, you can," was the reply, "if you will only follow my advice. What is your usual hour of rising?"

"Nine o'clock."

"Well, get up half an hour later every day, and in the course of a month you will find yourself up at 4 in the morning."

Misers.

"Did you ever notice that almost all the misers mentioned in the papers are single men?" asked Mr. Watts.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Watts. "Married misers are too common to be worth mentioning."

Everything comes to him who waits, but this doesn't include books that have been borrowed.

LETTER WRITING.

Its Decline as an Art Caused by the Modern Newspaper.

The wonderful development of the newspaper may be looked upon as a very potent factor in the decline of letter writing as an art. The latter no longer can be regarded as primarily the carrier of news. The expression of one's opinion about great contemporary events is indeed still left to the letter, but how much of an incentive to friendly correspondence is lost by the fact that every part of the world knows of important happenings almost simultaneously is not to be lightly estimated, says Gunton's Magazine. The stimulus to writing that comes from having "news" to impart is done away with, and it is not always that even the gifted letter writer can afford to lose that incitant. It is only the correspondent par excellence who knows how to attain the perfection of his art by writing delightfully of nothing, if indeed that may be called nothing which affords him a means for the employment of his delicate perceptions. For the saving quality of the genuine letter is in the ability of its author to put himself into it. If he writes about trivial things he does it with a grace of interest that disguises the triviality. He must not make his little fishes talk like whales, but he should, as Goldsmith himself knew how to do, make his letters of perpetual interest because of the aptness of their style to the simplicity of their thought.

The Delights of Nudity.

I cling to that perhaps fanciful theory that no primitive instinct of man is altogether lost. It is modified, amplified, refined; that is all. With all our culture we are barbarians still. Man is a clothed savage. And now and again he delights in doffing the clothing and returning heartily to savagery. How delightful the feel of the briny breeze and the boisterous wave on the bare pelt! Mr. Edward Carpenter rails at the, I think, eleven layers of clothing that intervene between our skins and the airs of heaven. Walt Whitman reveled in his nude sun bath. What a treat, too, sometimes to get away from the multicoursed dinner and to bite downright audibly into simple food in the fresh air and to lap water noisily from the brook! Well, walking perhaps is the primal instinct, ancient as Eden, where the Lord God walked in the garden in the cool of the day. And if my theory is correct walking will persist till in recovered paradise man walks with his Maker again. No mechanical contrivance for locomotion will extirpate the tribe of tourists, of those who walk from love of walking.—Arnold Haultain in Atlantic.

Such Birds Come High.

There used to be in a store on Ninth avenue, New York, a very valuable canary whose owner and teacher, the wife of the German proprietor, refused an offer of $500 for it. Sometimes as one entered the place there came from a corner in the rear a liquid peal of music so sweet and high and clear that it sounded like a piccolo without the metallic shrillness of that instrument. In a small wicker cage a black and yellow canary waltzed round and round, never quiet, and as it danced it sang the air of "Lauterbach" from beginning to end without a false quantity, without missing or changing a note. When the solo was finished the bird whisked up to its perch, trilled an improvisation and then began the melody again, breaking off in the middle, warbling a little in self willed fashion and then finishing the air. It was a beautiful and unique performance.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Smoking in Banks.

In every bank in New York there is a rule against smoking, and it is doubtful if any depositor or visitor ever saw a coil of tobacco smoke sifting through the atmosphere in the big counting houses—that is, no visitor who is excluded from the building promptly when the bank closes. But if the curious could squeeze their way through those closed portals in the afternoon they would be treated to a very different sight.

The rules against smoking in all the big banks of the city apply only during banking hours. After the doors are closed and locked one can transform himself into a human volcano with perfect freedom—and he does. And "he" is legion.—New York Times.

A Personal Bill of Fare.

A squire of Andover once hired a brother of Patrick, who was in his employ. The terms were made with Pat before his brother's arrival, and the following conversation ensued:

Squire—I'll pay your brother one fifty a day, Patrick.

Patrick (bowing and smiling)—Yis, sor; yis, sor; and will he ate himself, or will ye ate him, sor?

The squire thought that Dennis had better eat himself.—Lippincott's.

Cause For Joy.

Methuselah was asked if time did not hang heavily on his hands.

"Not at all," he replied. "I do so enjoy watching my relatives wait to come into my money."

Making a new will, he went off to board with his great-great-great-grand nephew.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Blind Swimmer's Straight Steering.

It is a standing puzzle that all blind swimmers are able to hold an almost perfectly straight course for very considerable distances, though no more guidance is given to them than some species of call or whistle coming from the winning goal. A blind man, in fact, desiring to go in a straight line possesses the curious power of being able to do so almost exactly. A provincial mayor instituted a series of contests in an open lake between blind men and ordinary ones of about equal skill and strength, and the result was marvelous so far as the straight steering of the blind was concerned.—London Chronicle.

Moths and Butterflies.

Butterflies are active in the day and fold their wings together when they settle. Their antennæ end in clubs. The fore and hind wings never hook together. The chrysalis is angular and not inclosed in a cocoon or silken case.

Moths, on the other hand, are usually active in the dusk or at night and do not fold their wings together on settling. The feelers are very various in shape, but rarely clubbed. The fore and hind wings are generally fastened together during flight by a "hook and eye" arrangement. The chrysalis is not angular and is inclosed in some sort of case or cocoon.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

Mark Twain's Pretty Compliment.

Mark Twain was standing in a crowded street car, hanging to a strap. As the car swung around a corner the strap broke, dumping him into the lap of a well-dressed woman. The humorist arose and bowed. "Madam," said he, "this is the first time the street car company ever conferred a favor on me."

Garrick's Witty Rebuke.

Sterne was said to treat his wife badly. Prosing to Garrick one day about conjugal love and that sort of thing, he remarked that a man who behaved unkindly to his wife deserved to have his house burned over his head. "If you think so," said Garrick, "I hope your house is insured."

Will Work Much Hardship.

The recent closing of the various convents in France, it is learned, will cause the industry and art of lacemaking to die out. Cold Tea?

According to the Kennebec Journal, a man who traveled over the Damariscotta fair ground, after the crowd had left, picked up 213 bottles ranging in capacity from a half pint up to two quarts. The paper fails to state what the bottles originally contained, but it is easy to surmise.

How to Care For Jewels.

People who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to damp, says Home Notes. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting. Don't forget this when near the fire if you happen to wear an opal ring.

Hard To Bear.

J. W. Walls, Superintendent of Streets of Lebanon, Kentucky, living on East Main Street in that city, says:

"With my nightly rest broken, owing to irregularities of the kidneys, suffering intensely from severe pains in the small of my back and through the kidneys, and annoyed by painful passages of abnormal secretions, life was anything but pleasant for me. No amount of doctoring relieved this condition, and for the reason that nothing seemed to give me even temporary relief, I became about discouraged. One day I noticed in the newspapers the case of a man who was afflicted as I was and was cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. His words of praise for this remedy were so sincere that on the strength of his statement I went to the Hugh Murrey Drug Co.'s store and got a box. I found that the medicine was exactly as powerful a kidney remedy as represented. I experienced quick and lasting relief. Doan's Kidney pills will prove a blessing to all sufferers from kidney disorders who will give them a fair trial."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Walls will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price 50 cents per box.

HARVEST TIME AT HOME.

Somehow, when business has a lull about this time of year,
My thoughts take their vacation back among the scenes once dear.
I stray about the harvest fields where long and long ago
I watched the cereal ocean in its golden ripples flow,
While now and then upon some blade a tired reaper bore
The sunbeams flashed and then went out like thoughts recalled no more.

As faint as falling echoes of a signal far at sea,
The clink of scythes and whetlock come in rhythmic harmony;
Among the brooding hills near by, in evening shadows dim,
One would not start to catch a glimpse of winging seraphim;
For sweet the ways with tinkling bells
where browsing cattle roam,
And all of nature hints of Heaven in harvest time at home.

How pleasant then the journey home along the country road,
Where larkspur blooms beside the fence like knots of lovers glowed—
Now listening to the whip-poor-will beyond a darkling field,
Or tarrying where the berries tempt—a shower of wine congealed;
And long before we reached the gate to hear the watch-dog's bark,
And see the distant windows gleam like blossoms of the dark.

It seems so long since those old years—so long indeed, that I
Now wonder that a time could be without a sob or sigh,
And yet, enough do I recall to vow that in the end—
When the no more and evermore in death's twilight shall blend—
It would suffice to know that life beyond the gathering gloam
Would really prove as care free as—the harvest time at home.

The Wooing of "Buster"

Tale of a Maid's Way With a Man

BIRDS of a feather may flock together, but they do not always fall in love with each other. As a rule, it takes birds not of a feather to do that. At any rate this was the case with Miss Christobel Merlin and Peter Tunston; and yet, so different were they that the whole affair seemed altogether hopeless up to the time that Miss Merlin's catboat came between them. It is strange that anything coming between two people who love each other should bring them together, yet this may happen if the wind be in the right direction.

At Sandheaps, where Miss Merlin's father had a cottage, and where Miss Merlin, with her diminutive catboat, had learned to be one of the best sailors among the summer contingent, there had been a lack of visitors owing to bad weather, and the hotel, usually crowded, looked lonesome up to the first of July, when the guests all seemed to come at once. And among them came Peter, or, as his class familiarly called him, "Buster."

They met at a Saturday evening hop. He was brought up and introduced by Christobel's cousin, Jack. He bowed awkwardly.

"May I have this dance?" he muttered.

"With pleasure," she replied.

In a moment they were whirling around the room, or, rather, they were trying to whirl, for Tunston, with his 180 pounds, was not the best dancer in the world.

After awhile they stopped.

"I'm not much of a dancer," he observed, apologetically.

His partner tried to smile.

"Never mind," she said; "we will sit it out."

They strolled on the piazza, where the wind from the ocean, cool and refreshing, fanned their cheeks. The contrast between them was striking. Tunston, heavy, clumsy, almost a giant, towered above his slight, ethereal companion, whose delicate, classical, sensitive face could express every shade of meaning.

She looked up at him half shyly, even in the semi-darkness. His stature awed her. She knew instinctively that he was everything she was not, and the thought made her love him. As for Tunston, he could not have described his feelings if he had tried. Self-analysis with him was an unknown quality. He only knew that he felt uncomfortable.

"I'm a beastly dancer," he half stammered, as they sat down. "I never tackle it if I can help it, but Jack said that—"

"Said," she repeated, "that I was dying to dance, I suppose. Well, Jack doesn't know everything. How do you like it here?"

"Bully beach. Good surf—seems like a decent sort of place," said Tunston.

"Do you sail?"

"Not much. I play ball a good deal in the spring and fall, water polo in the winter, and in the summer—well, these dinky little boats don't appeal to me."

She smiled.

"That's what I've got—a dinky little boat."

He colored.

"Oh—beg your pardon. I didn't know it."

"Don't apologize. It's all right. I can understand how you feel. But I enjoy it hugely. Papa got me my boat last year, and I go sailing in it every day."

"Alone?"

"Oh, yes. That's the fun."

The propriety of a young man going sailing with a young girl alone in a small boat has often been discussed, and probably never will be determined. It is all right, of course, to take a girl for a long stroll up the beach when the elder people are having their afternoon nap and where there are plenty of sheltering rocks, though the prudes sniff even at this. But to go out in a boat alone with a young man, at the mercy of sea and wind and tide, is quite a different matter.

Miss Merlin's father might have objected to such a proceeding, had he not such confidence in his daughter's judgment and her sailing powers. As for Miss Merlin, she was more or less above such things; American to the core, she believed in doing as she pleased—and generally she did it.

At the end of a week she felt that she had no more power over this great fellow than when he had first come into her ken. She knew that she loved him, and in some subtle way it was conveyed to her that he must love her; yet all her arts were in vain. They had walked the beach; they had plunged into the surf together; they had sat on the piazza for hours. And after each one of these tete-a-tetes Tunston found himself alone, discomforted, uncertain.

"Hang it, old chap!" he said to himself, "I wish I could keep away from that girl. I'm gone on her, sure, and the worst of it is she doesn't care a hang for me; I know it. If I told her I loved her, she'd guy the life out of me."

One morning, after one of these interviews, when the wind blew fresh from the southwest, Miss Merlin approached him on the bathing beach.

"Don't you want to go for a sail?" she said. "The boat is at the end of the wharf now."

Tunston submitted. In a few moments they were sitting in a boat.

"Make fast those halliards," ordered Miss Merlin, as she grasped the tiller. "Now cast off!"

The breeze caught the sail, and they were away.

It was a strange sensation for Tunston. For the first time in his life he felt thoroughly cowed. This frail cockleshell that almost with a movement of his body he could overturn, was not to his liking.

"I wouldn't go too far out," he said.

"No, I'm not," smiled Miss Merlin, as she eased off the sheet. "I'm going to run along the shore. Sit more in the middle, please."

Running before the wind, the boat righted itself, and they bowled along merrily.

"How do you like it?" asked Miss Merlin. "I'll be the captain and you'll be the first mate."

"Pretty good," said Tunston. "But I suppose I ought to be the captain and you the first mate. I don't like to have anyone else do the work."

In the distance was a steam launch that had grown nearer and nearer.

Miss Merlin, with her eye upon it, now suddenly hauled in the main sheet and brought the boat up into the wind. The effect was apparent, for the wind, which had been increasing, was now quite strong.

And then something happened—so suddenly, to Tunston, that it was all over before he had a chance to move. A puff came over the water, the boat went lower and lower and in an instant she capsized, leaving them both floundering in the ocean.

Tunston dove, and, coming up on the other side, put one arm around the captain, while with his other he reached out and grabbed the centerboard.

In another moment he had worked his way toward the bow. The steam launch seemed miles away.

"Are you all right?" he said, as they recovered their breath.

She clung to him desperately.

"Don't let me go!" she cried.

"Don't be afraid," he replied.

He kept his arm around her, with the roar of water in his ears, and, conscious of his superb strength, he felt a sense of exultation.

Somehow, as he saw her look into his eyes, he realized the truth.

"I love you," he said. "If we get out of this all right, will you—will you—?"

"Yes," she replied, and clung to him closer than ever.

And then the steam launch rescued them.

The next night they sat together on the piazza. Her head was on his shoulder. Her hand was in his. He looked off into the dark, distant waters.

"I'm glad that thing happened," he said. "Why, if it hadn't happened I might have gone away without knowing. I never should have had the courage to ask you, because, somehow, while you said nice things to me, I thought you were only playing with me. It was only when I saw that look in your eyes that I felt, after all, you might love me. Dearest little one, what a lucky accident that was!"

She looked up suddenly.

"Peter, dear," she replied, "will you forgive me?"

"Forgive you!" he repeated. "For what?"

She smiled.

"Didn't you know," she said, "that wasn't an accident? I capsized the boat on purpose."—Town Topics.

Targets Like Men in Battle.

An extensive system of targets that fire with blank cartridges upon a firing line using real cartridges was tested the other day on the drill grounds in Berlin of the Queen Elizabeth regiment, Grenadier guards. The targets, which are shaped like the bodies and heads of men armed with rifles, machine guns, and artillery, appear and disappear at the will of the commanding officer on touching a button. The trials are adapted to instill composure in the firing line.

He Was Sitting.

"I hear that Jawkins called you a fool at the club the other night. How could you stand that?"

Jinks—I didn't stand it.

"That's right; I suppose you made him apologize?"

"Er—well—the fact is, when he called me a fool, I called him another, and immediately I found myself sitting on the floor. So nobody can say that I stood it."—London Tit-Bits.

CHAIN OF SUGGESTION.

One Barber After the Other Had an Idea to Offer the Pertinacious Customer.

"A man up in my country had a melancholy experience," declared Senator Frye, of Maine. "This man determined to get a shave every other day and to let every barber cut his hair who suggested it. At the end of a week three different barbers had intimated that the hair needed trimming and were told to 'go ahead and trim.' As the hair was now beyond the trimming stage, the fourth barber's advice, 'that clipping would be beneficial,' was accepted. 'Now,' thought the man, 'the next barber will be satisfied that when I say "shave," I mean "shave" and nothing more.' Yet when the fifth barber mentioned 'singeing' he permitted his closely-cropped hair to be singed. The sixth night was on a Saturday. He went to still another barber, now satisfied that when he said 'shave' no barber would have the temerity to hint at an attempt to reduce the length of his hair.

"'Did you ever try Dr. Comeup's hair restorer?' questioned the barber as he took up a bottle."

"The Indians had a quicker way of getting at a man's scalp than these barbers," commented Senator Chandler.

"Yes," said the Maine statesman, "but we are living under modern, not ancient barbarism."

For a Bad Back.

Sahrs, Montana, Oct. 19th.—A great many men in this neighborhood used to complain of pains in the back, but now scarcely one can be found who has any such trouble.

Mr. Gottlieb Mill is largely responsible for the improvement, for it was he who first of all found the remedy for this Backache. He has recommended it to all his friends and neighbors, and in every case it has had wonderful success.

Mr. Mill says:—

"For many years I had been troubled with my Kidneys and pains in the small of my back. I tried many medicines but did not derive any benefit until last fall, when I bought a dozen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using them a few days I began to improve, my back quit aching and I felt better and stronger all around.

"I will keep them in the house right along, for in my opinion they are the best medicine in the market to-day, and if my back should bother me again, I will use nothing else."

Never Again.

Biway—Use an alarm clock nowadays?

Jigsup—No; never tried one but once.

"How was that?"

"Well, you see, the first time it went off I didn't exactly know what it was, and so I said: 'O, for heaven's sake, Maria, shut up!' Maria happened to be awake, and—well, that is how it was."—Stray Stories.

REMINISCENCES OF CHICAGO'S EARLY DAYS.

How the First Freight Was Shipped to the City By Rail.

"As a live stock market, Chicago stands second to none," said a well-known dealer. "The figures for 1902 show that almost eight million head of sheep, over four million hogs, a hundred thousand horses, a quarter million calves and three million cattle were brought to the Chicago market last year by the big railroads that reach out, like The Chicago & Northwestern, into the cattle ranges and feeding grounds all over the west. The reports show 278,100 carloads of live stock received here in 1902—quite a growth for the 55 years since the first shipment."

The stockman ruminated a moment. "That first shipment was queer, now, wasn't it?" he continued. "Did you see that little account of it in the papers the other day? Young Millican Hunt, now over 80 years old, had started across the prairies to market with a sled load of hogs and when he got across the Des Plaines River he found there was no snow on which to draw his pigs the rest of the journey.

"That was in '48, the year the Galena road, now The Chicago & Northwestern, built its first ten miles; and young Hunt made a dicker with the crew of a construction train, loaded his porkers on the train, and rode into Chicago triumphant, behind the little old 'Pioneer.'

"Was you ever out to the Field Columbian Museum?" he continued. "Well, you should go out there some day and see that old locomotive. She stands for a good deal from Chicago's point of view.—Brought in the first load of live stock, and the day the road was opened and the Mayor and the big men of the town were trying the novelty of a ride on the first regular train, she pulled the first rail shipment of grain into town.

"They tell me, now," he went on, "that last year that load of hogs had grown to over 65,000 carloads of live stock brought into Chicago over The Northwestern Line alone, and instead of one wagon load of wheat The Northwestern brought over 30,000,000 bushels of grain to the city."

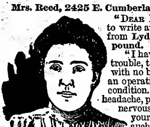
Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—MRS. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Reed, 2425 E. Cumberland St., Philadelphia, Pa., says:



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you the good I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have been a great sufferer with female trouble, trying different doctors and medicines with no benefit. Two years ago I went under an operation, and it left me in a very weak condition. I had stomach trouble, backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, and was very nervous; in fact, I ached all over. I find yours is the only medicine that reaches such troubles, and would cheerfully recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all suffering women."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition. If in doubt, write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., as thousands do. Her advice is free and helpful.

No other medicine for women in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

HON. ALFRED LYTTELTON.

After some delay Premier Balfour has appointed a new British secretary for the colonies, to succeed Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, in the person of Hon. Alfred Lyttelton, who is a man of acknowledged ability and a good speaker, but who has had no ministerial experience whatever. He is, in fact, better known as a cricketer than as a politician, both at home and in the colonies. He was always an enthusiastic cricketer, and has taken several teams on colonial tours. He was also for 15 years the champion tennis player of England, and has won international football honors. He is related to Mr. Balfour by marriage.

WELLS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Large Areas in That Country Are Without Surface Water—Government Boring Plant Kept Busy.

Over large areas in South Africa the surface is streamless, and hence without a visible water supply. By boring to no great depth, though, the desired article can almost invariably be found, says the New York Tribune. An engineer in the public works department of the Cape government says that in the last five years the authorities have made 2,000 boreholes at an average cost of £50 each, and at least three-fourths of these have produced water in satisfactory quantities, the daily output from such wells now being about 28,000,000 gallons. The Transvaal government has also appointed an expert to study local possibilities.

These facts are naturally of interest to manufacturers of well-boring plants, who are already doing a considerable business with South Africa, and who may expect to see that business multiplied many times over during the next few years. During 1898, 1899 and 1900 applications for the use of Cape government drills averaged about 500 annually, and at present, so largely have these applications increased, no fewer than half a hundred drills are in constant operation, and the government is said to have booked sufficient work to keep the existing plant fully occupied for at least three years, and further applications will therefore have to be met by large increases of plant, and by extensive private enterprise in the same direction.

The Grape Cure.

The grape cure at Wiesbaden has for a long time been an important feature of the autumn season at that famous health resort. The worth of the cure lies in the high per cent. of sugar in the fruit, grapes being from 24 to 50 per cent. sugar, with important elements of acid and water.

Bullet's Swift Flight.

A shell from a 12-inch gun makes its flight nine miles in 42 seconds.

A NOBLE RED MAN.

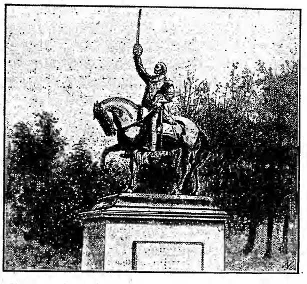
Crazy Snake, Leader of Ketoowah Indians, Wants Uncle Sam to Enforce Old Treaty.

Chitto Harjo, known as Crazy Snake, leader of the Ketoowah band of Creek Indians, has announced that he will go to Washington to have an interview with President Roosevelt, says the Kansas City Journal. Crazy Snake has the distinction of being the last Indian in the United States rebellious enough for Uncle Sam to order several companies of regulars out to keep him within bounds. This happened two years ago, when he declared war against the government, and since that time he has served a term in prison for rebellion. When the council of war was held near Tahlequah last week each tribe named a delegate to go with Crazy Snake to Washington. They are adherents of the old treaty of 1832, which provided that the Indians should hold their lands in common, according to the old tribal laws, as long as "water and grass grows." The old warrior and the delegates named to accompany him cannot speak English, and an interpreter will be necessary in order for them to make their wishes known to the president. They will ask him to enforce the treaty of 1832.

Buying a Home in Denmark.

Any sober, reliable farm laborer in Denmark, who has saved one-tenth the mortgage value of the little farm he covets—this value not to exceed $1,100—can buy the land by borrowing the other nine-tenths from a government fund. He gives a mortgage on which he pays three per cent. After five years he also pays one per cent. additional toward wiping out half his debt. When this half has been paid he pays 3½ per cent. on the remainder until he owns the land. A cooperative dairy buys his cream and returns to him the skimmed milk for his hogs. The latter go to the cooperative bacon factory, and the local branch of a cooperative egg exporting house receives his eggs.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT FOR CHICAGO.



The statue of George Washington, which the South Park commissioners intend to erect at the Grand boulevard entrance to Washington park, at Chicago, will be a beautiful bronze figure, costing $50,000. The base, a massive granite block, will cost $11,000, and it is estimated that the changes in the roadway which will be necessitated by the work will cost $9,000. The park itself will be extended into the drive at Grand boulevard for a short distance, with trees and shrubs inclosing an open space where the statue will stand. The sculptor is Daniel C. French. Bids for the pedestal are now being considered

The 10,of November will be a busy day for the U.S.land office at Crookston,turning out them little slips of paper that makes a homesteader rejoice,until he returns to his claim and finds it occupied by a man with a family of children and six or eight cows.

It seems that there is a large number of newspapers in the old 7th district that are doing a good deal of undue hustling to ind a candidate for governor, that may be in the position of Tomkin's colt,that swam the river and died from thirst,after the next state convention.

Elections will be held in elev n states next Tuesday.The following states will elelct full state tickets. Massechusetts, Rhode Island,Maryland,Ohio,Kentucky Iowa,and Mississippi. There has been a strong campaign made in all of these states, and we can tell something about their vote two years from now after Tuesdays election,

Investigation by an agent of the government has disclosed great imposition upon the naturalizatio laws in most of the large cities. In view of this fact President Roosyelt will recommend in his forthcoming message to Congress some changes in the laws for the natueralization of aliens. One is that only federal courts shall be permitted to confer naturalization, and that the laws shall provide for the appointment of an examining committee by the court to ascertain the applicent's record and eligibility. The change would be a good one though it might occasionally inconvenience some. It would cut out the foriegn Anarchists who come to this country and become citizns for the sole purpose of protection from this government when they return to Europe to engage in their king killing practices,

Making a Will.

Always call in a lawyer to make a will. If one cannot be procured then write your wishes in the simplest words you can. Never try to use what you may consider "legal terms." Few persons realize how difficult it is to make a will. A classic example is the celebrated Lord St. Leonards, at one time lord chancellor of England. He was the foremost conveyancer of his day; and yet when he died an informal will was found in his coat pocket, hurriedly written when he was at the point of death. This will occupied the courts for years and served "to point a moral and adorn a tale."

Comforting.

A man who had buried three wives took to himself a fourth lately, and, as is wont in Lancashire, the pair went for a walk one Sunday afternoon. On the way they called at the cemetery where the three former wives reposed in the one grave. The new wife read the inscriptions with some interest, but her feelings may well be imagined when she came to the usual text from the Scriptures." If fan, "Be ye also ready."—London Standard.

Speaking and Stopping.

The knowledge of when to sit down is invaluable to public speakers and to their audiences. Perhaps the best plan is to secure a candid friend who will pull you down by your coattails. A man "on his legs" is one with whom time gallops; he has spoken for half an hour, and to him it seems but five minutes. The excitement of the brain suggests new and ever new ideals, and the extemporary talker in the pulpit or after a public dinner flounders in pursuit of these will-o'-the-wisps through swamps and thickets of bad grammar haunted by the anacoluthon and other fearful wild fowl. In the pulpit there is no man to pull the preacher down, and many are his "two words more, my brethren." After public dinners a bored audience begins to talk and laugh; but these symptoms of disapproval are not marked by the self absorbed public speaker. In short, the knowledge of when to sit down is rare and hard to acquire.—Longman's.

The one eternal lesson for us all is how better we can love.—Henry Drummond.

No Difference.

Young Criminal Lawyer—I have arranged to have the prisoner's wife and babies sit in front of the jury and weep all through the trial. Do you think it advisable to pick bachelors or married men for the jury?

Old Criminal Lawyer—Oh, it doesn't make a particle of difference. If bachelors they will sympathize with the woman and babies, and if married men they will sympathize with the prisoner.

Largest Hanging Bell.

What is perhaps the largest hanging bell in the world is to be seen in Mandalay. This is the Mingun bell, on the right bank of the Irawadi, almost opposite the city of Mandalay. This immense bell measures as follows: Height to crown, 12 feet; diameter at the lip, 16 feet 3 inches; thickness of metal, from 6 to 12 inches. It weighs about eighty tons and is suspended on three massive round beams of teak, placed horizontally the one over the other, their ends resting on two pillars of enormous size, composed of masonry and large upright teak posts. This bell was cast at the end of the eighteenth century under the superintendence of the reigning king.

A Horse's Strength.

The average weight of a horse is 1,000 pounds; his strength is equivalent to that of five men. In a horse mill moving at three feet per second, track twenty-five feet diameter, he exerts with the machine the power of four and a half horses. The greatest amount a horse can pull in a horizontal line is 900 pounds, but he can only do this momentarily; in continued exertion probably half of this is the limit.

The Sacred Plants of the Druids.

The Druids held many plants sacred, as, for instance, vervain, selago, mistletoe, and among trees the oak and the rowan. There is, I think, no serious doubt as to the identity of any of these except the second (selago), which is generally thought to be the club-moss. Oak mistletoe is certainly rare, and that may have been the reason why it had an especially sacred character, but it does exist.

Theory Versus Practice.

"Medical science has reached the point," boasted the optimistic young doctor, "that for a patient to die we must take out his heart and kill it with a club."

On his way home he caught a cold and for the next three weeks made every one miserable listening to his symptoms.

An Easy Order.

Glory.

Glory is but a transient dream that gives color to a sleep bespangled with illusions of greatness; a mirage, glittering, but unsubstantial, hovering above the oasis in the desert of life in whose fountain many a weary traveler would quench his burning thirst that he may press on to grander heights. It beckons us on to where the broad light plays on countless graves of those once called great, but now forgotten, upon whose gravestone is chiseled the mocking phrase, "Sic transit gloria mundi." How often does the victor, spent and worn, look around for the laurels and the peace he has earned, only to find the bubble bursted, the colors faded.—[illegible]

A Common Weakness.

Dr. Joseph Le Conte was an authority, recognized by the world at large, on the science of vision. One day he was showing a class how to detect the blind spot in the human eye. He took two coins and held them, one in each hand, before him on the table.

"Look at both of these steadily," said he, "and gradually move them in opposite directions. Presently they will pass beyond the range of vision. That is due to the blind spot. Continue the movement, and the coins will again emerge to view."

Then the philosopher and naturalist had his little joke. "You can experiment for yourself at home," said he. "But if you are unsuccessful try some other object instead of a coin. Some people have no blind spot for money."

Southern Europe.

A traveler writes: "I have often been struck by the ease with which people in southern Europe are amused. In Paris 100,000 people go out to Longchamps for the Grand Prix race, and half a million people go out and line the roads on their return to see them come back. In Rome at the feast of the 'Divino Amore' 5,000 people go out on the Campagna to a spot where once stood a temple to Venus and hold a picnic, while 50,000 go out and line the Appian way to see them return. In Madrid this peculiarity is even more marked. On the Puerta del Sol about a thousand people stand around and do nothing outdoors, while crowds of people sit indoors or lean from balconies to watch them do it. And in Seville the idle rich sit in clubs and cafes on the Sierpes to watch the lower classes walk by, while the lower classes walk by to watch the idle rich sitting in the clubs and cafes on the Sierpes."

How to Press Sleeves.

In pressing sleeves, which is the bane of the amateur's life, keep a wooden rolling pin for that purpose alone. Insert in the sleeve and the pressing of seams and wrists also is as easily done as though it were a flat surface. Cover pin with flannel. Keep a heavy piece of flannel to lay over the ironing board when pressing wool goods. This prevents the shiny spots so objectionable in a finished garment.

NOT IN THE BIBLE.

Quotations Popularly Attributed to the Good Book.

"There are a number of sentences not in the Bible which everybody thinks are there," said a clergyman. "The chief of these sentences is, 'He tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.' You would search the Bible pretty thoroughly before you would find that sentence in it. Where you would find it would be in Sterne's 'Sentimental Journey.'

"Sterne gets a good deal of praise for the origination of this sentence, but it was originated, as a matter of fact, before he was born. In a collection of French proverbs published in 1594 we find, 'Dieu mesure le vent a la brebis tondue.' That convicts Sterne of plagiarism.

"'In the midst of life we are in death.' Everybody thinks that is in the Bible. It isn't, though. It is in the burial service.

"'That he who runs may read.' This is another sentence supposed, wrongly, to be Biblical. It is not Biblical, though the Bible has something very like it—namely: 'That he may run that readeth.'

"'Prone to sin as the sparks fly upward.' The Bible nowhere contains those words.

"'A nation shall be born in a day.' The nearest thing to that in the Good Book is, 'Shall a nation be born at once?'"

South America in 1000 B. C.

The greater the number of the succeeding phases of civilization the more even must be the average length of each and this resemble the general length of human periods. It is to be seen that the two central European periods, those of Hallstadt and of La Tene, together embrace about a thousand years, an average of 500 for each. The cultured periods of Egypt may be even longer.

The development of Peruvian civilization, accepting on the average five successive periods, would result in a stratification of cultures representing between 2,000 and 3,000 years. About the year 1000 B. C., at the time when Solomon built his temple, the early Americans in Peru reared their mighty structures to the glory of a creator god. Civilization in America would beyond all doubt have worked itself up to a high plane at some time and might have accomplished alone a peculiar but certainly brilliant development without the intervention of European civilization.—Professor Max Uhle in Harper's Magazine.

Effect of Rain Upon Animals.

"The effects of a rainy day upon animals of a zoo," said a keeper the other day, "are as interesting to watch as anything I know in connection with a collection of beasts. Now, that big wolf over there just revels in a rainy day and skips about as gay as you please. All the wolves are the same. Rain cheers them up. But the lions are different. They fret and fume and growl and snarl unless you give them an extra allowance of meat or a big pan of warm milk. Then they will sleep, but a rainy day seems to get on the nerves of a lion or any of the cat family. Snakes are kept in just a certain temperature all the time, and you would think that the damp air would never reach them. Perhaps it doesn't, but I have always noticed that all the reptiles are active and cheerful, if a reptile can be said to be cheerful, when it rains."—Tit-Bits.

He Had a Daughter.

"You have a daughter, have you not, sir?" said a minister to an old gentleman with whom he had formed a casual acquaintance as a fellow passenger.

The old gentleman essayed to answer, but the question had strangely affected him.

"I beg your pardon," said the minister, "if I have thoughtlessly awakened in your mind recollections of a painful nature. The world is full of sorrow, sir, and perhaps my question recalls to your memory a fair, beautiful girl whose blossoming young life had withered in its bloom. Am I right, sir?"

"No, not exactly," replied the old gentleman sadly. "I have five unmarried darters, mister, an' the youngest of the lot is twenty-eight years old."

The Teacher's Fault.

Teacher—Why, Freddy, how did you get those black and blue welts on your arm?

Scholar—Them's your fault, teacher.

Teacher—My fault? What do you mean?

Scholar (sobbing reminiscently)—Why, you told me it was a poor rule that didn't work both ways. So when I went home I took pa's new two foot rule that doubles up on a hinge and bent it back till it worked both ways, and then pa said I'd broken the joints, and he went and got his razor strop.

Having a Hard Time.

"Here I've been running for years," said the hall clock, "and I haven't moved an inch. I wouldn't mind that so much, but every evening about 8:30 the young lady of the family turns me back because she says I'm too fast, and then in the morning the old man comes along and grumbles because I'm too slow."

Fancy Work.

"Does your wife do much fancy work?"

"Fancy work? She won't even let a porous plaster come into the house without crocheting a red border round it and running a yellow ribbon through the holes."

A Hampered Ambition.

"That boy says his only ambition is to make a living without working."

"What are his parents going to do for him?"

"Make a politician out of him."—Detroit Free Press.

MEXICAN HOUSES.

Little Wood Used In Them, and They Are Practically Fireproof.

There is o minimum of wood used for house construction in the cities of Mexico, and there is obsolutely nothing to burn except what furnishings the houses may contain. The walls are solidly built of stone and brick or in the less costly structures of adobes, which are thickly plastered inside and out with mortar or stucco. The floors are of brick, stone or tiles, while the roofs are of brick laid in mortar or in some citios of semicylindrical cloy tiles. Many roofs are arched with brick laid flat, not on edge, and it is morvelous how slight a curve some of these arches have. Yet they support heavy weights and have lasted through centuries.

Flat roofs are supported by a by a inch hewn pine joists placed eight inches apart. These joists are often twenty feet in length. The doors are heavy, hanging upon ornamented wrought strap hinges and secured by strong, handmade locks, which have remarkably large complicated keys. Practically the only wood used in construction is for the doors and joists which support the roof. The church roofs are invariably of brick arches, usually several arches in each. There are no such fire traps in Mexico as those mansard roofs of French and American cities or the frail dwellings of China or the universal wooden structures which have made fire insurance so great a burden in the United States and which cause so grent and continuous expenditures for fire protection.—Arboriculture.

Discontent With Work.

That there is much discontent with work among the so called middle classes in America is due in lorge part to the pampering of children, to the supplying of their natural and artificial wants and to the sentimentol idea that "their day of toil will come soon enough." In general, work is not a curse, but a blessing, e positive means of grace. One can hardly begin too early to impress upon children lessons of self help by tasks appropriate to their age and forces and to beget in them scorn of idleness ond of dependence on others. To do this is to make them happy through the self respect that comes with the realization of power and thus to approximate Tennyson's gool of mon, "Self reverence, self knowledge, self control."—Century.

Two Views of the Bells.

A clergyman on his way to church one Sunday morning pulled up to rebuke on angler. "Don't you hear the bells summoning you to church?" he asked. The fishermon put his inquiring hand to his ear. Encouraged, the clergymon repented the question. But once again the fisherman asked for a repetition, ond then ogoin, and even yet again. Flushing from overmuch bawling, the porson was about to proceed on his way when the fisherman spoke. "Very sorry, guv'nor," he said, "but them bloomin' bells makes such an infernel clatter that I can't hear a word you soys."—London Globe.

How a Dying Man Feels.

Numerous experiments mode in hospitals and upon heroic scientists who have permitted tests to be made upon themselves right down to the moment of death warront these conclusions: Thot a dying man may he burned with red hot irons and yet not feel the least pain; that consciousness may remoin in the dying almost to the moment of actual dissolution, but that most people generally lose the power of thought long before death; that in cases of death where there seems to be extreme suffering, with writhing and spasms, such phenomena are generolly due to reflex musculnr action; also that fear weokens the muscular system and hastens death, while the reverse may prolong life.

Enemies at a Social Function.

Mrs. Lowe, wife of Robert Lowe, afterword Viscount Sherbrook, wos e tremendous partisan whenever her husband was concerned. After the reform bill of 1867 Disraeli and the Lowes made no pretense to any mutual liking. At o dinner once at Lady Waldegrave's the guests had all paired off till only Disraeli and Mrs. Lowe were left. With his inscrutable smile and complete appreciotion of the humor of the situation, Disraeli bowed ond extended his arm, "I suppose there's no help for it, Mrs. Lowe," when both burst into hearty laughter.

Slightly Confused.

"What nonsense that man talks!" remarked Senator Sorghum as the department visitor closed the door.

"Whot did he say?"

"Something obout a profit being without honor somewhere or other. I want to go on record os soying that there isn't a country on the map where a profit is not held in high esteem."—Washington Star.

The Schoolmaster.

I do not know in recent times a more stirring answer than that of Lacordaire, the femous Dominican, to the court of peers in France, who asked him what his profession was, when he replied simply, "A schoolmaster," unless it be the answer of his friend, the Comte de Montalembert, the noblest specimen, I sometimes think, of the modern French laity, to the same question: "A schoolmaster and o peer of France." Nay, it was but the other day that a learned and humble mon of science, who will live in history as having declared that he had "no time to make money," began his will with the modest words, so great in their modesty, "I, Louis Agassiz teacher."—Contemporary Review.

The Essential Thing.

The primary class in Sunday school was listening to a lesson on potience. This, according to the Boston Herald, was what came of it, at least in the minds of the more literal minded children:

The topic had been carefully explained, and as an aid to understanding the teocher had given each pupil a card bearing the picture of e boy fishing.

"Even pleasure," said she, "requires the oxercise of patience. See the boy fishing. He must sit ond wait and wait. He must be patient."

Having trented the subject very fully, she hegan with tho simplest, most practical question:

"And now con any little boy tell me what we need most when wo go fishing?" The answer was shouted with one voice:

"Bait!"

The Catalaptic Trance.

It cannot be doubted that in numerous cases of cataleptic trance the apparently lifeless patient hos been acquainted with all the arrangements being made for his interment. Several instances are recorded in which, although the body presented every eppearance of deeth, the patient was conscious of everything going on aronnd him, but absolutely unable to raise a limb or in any way communicate with those near his bed.

How to Care For Jewels.

People who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to damp, says Home Notes. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting. Don't forget this when near the fire if you happen to wear an opal ring.

Prosperity leads often to ambition, and ambition to disappointment.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal, and so I told him that I would not undergo it. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of your Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, so I kept taking it for ten weeks, and at the end of that time I was cured. Gracia's Choice

By HOWARD DEVINE

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

THE expected had happened, and Gracia was as badly perplexed as though she had not known it was coming. Truth be told, she had not expected it would come so dramatically and in a way to call for so decisive an answer. She knew that both boys were desperately in love with her, and that the declaration was only a matter of time; but how in the name of prophecy was she to guess that events would so shape themselves that she would receive both declarations at once and be compelled to deliver her answer in the presence of both suitors.

But that was just the way it did happen. It was just after graduation, and real life was about to begin for all three. They had been great friends—all three of them—but both lads had made no secret of their great admiration of the black-eyed, jaunty little beauty, and it had been evident for some time that the three-cornered friendship would not last very long.

And on this moonlight evening, after the graduation exercises had taken place, each of the lads had been eager to see Gracia home. Each suspecting the intentions of the other, had refused to concede the point, and, as a consequence, both had walked home with her.

And there, on the velvety lawn before the little white cottage where she lived, the climax had come. David had precipitated it—David with his level gray eyes and square jaw and sturdy, conscientious ways. When it had become evident that neither of the young men proposed to go away and leave the other a chance to make his declaration, David, having made up his mind to propose on that particular night, made a stand and declared himself.

"I guess we all understand the situation," he said, in his quiet, determined way. "I sought an opportunity to say something to Gracia alone. Evidently Paul had the same thing in view. Inasmuch as neither of us will let the other have the advantage of a first opportunity, we may as well accept the situation and plead our suits in the open. Gracia, what I wanted to see you for, was to tell you that I love you—you know that already—and to ask you to wait for me to get established in business, and then to marry me. This is not a very sentimental way to propose to a girl you love, but it seems the only way under the circumstances."

He paused and glanced defiantly at Paul. The latter's olive skin paled a trifle, and his brown eyes took on the introspective expression so characteristic to them.

"And I, Gracia, wanted an opportunity to say the same thing to you," he said. "It is hard to say just what I want to say under these circumstances, but if you promise yourself to me, there is nothing I will not do to make you happy."

He looked into her eyes with that confident, self-poised expression which had made him so forceful throughout his school life.

A great red spot burned in either cheek of the girl, and her perplexity showed plainly in her wrinkled brow. Suddenly she threw out a hand to each of the lads, impulsively.

"Oh, you do not know how honored I feel," she exclaimed. "I am going to say something awfully honest—and so bad that it may make both of you hate me; but as you have been honest with me, and between yourselves, I am going to be equally honest with you. I like you both, you know that; and it would be awfully hard to choose between you. But I am much more mercenary and cold-blooded than either of you believe or deserve. I have lived all my life so far in comparative poverty. I love all the nice things of the world. I do not want love in a cottage. I am tired of cottages, anyway. If you still want me after what I have said, and am going to say, I will wait five years, and then I will marry the whichever of you can give most abundantly the nice things of the world. I know how awfully bad it sounds, but I do not feel exactly as though I was selling myself to mammon, because really I have thought a great deal about both of you, and I do not know how to choose between you. So we will put it wholly on the ground of material success—if you both are willing."

"Agreed," responded Paul, eagerly, without an instant's hesitation, carrying the hand he held to his lips passionately.

David looked long and earnestly into the eyes of the girl and still longer into the shadows of the lawn.

"And you will be absolutely fair and honest in the matter, in all its phases?" he said, finally.

"Absolutely," she replied, her color deepening.

"And at the end of five years from tonight, whichever of us two brings you the biggest income you will marry regardless of any other consideration?"

"I will," she replied.

"Agreed," replied David, his great jaw setting with that determination which had been so often the precursor of victory in the classroom and on the campus.

The next day the battle began in earnest. Neither of the young men had much of a start, so far as their parents were concerned, but both were well connected. As a consequence, both were offered positions with the Imperial Insurance company at $60 per month to start. This was easily the greatest institution of the town, and offered the greatest possibilities for advancement. David accepted the offer quietly but promptly. Paul asked for a week to figure it over. At the end of the week he went to the office of the manager and thanked him for the offer, but declined it, saying he had some other plans. The town was aghast. Positions with the Imperial were so eagerly sought and so highly prized by the young men of the town that the idea of refusing one seemed almost an evidence of insanity—especially when a young man had powerful friends on the board of directors and high in the management. At the worst, it was a life job, as there were never any radical changes in the Imperial. The town put down a big black mark against Paul.

It ran along about a year, during which David made a record for himself at the Imperial by his energetic, conscientious and intelligent work. Already recognition had come to him, and he had been promoted from a mere clerkship to a position carrying with it some responsibility. In the meantime, Paul did nothing except read the papers and smoke a favorite meerschaum.

Something over a year after David had gone to work for the Imperial the street railway company of the city was attempting to build a new line to a certain park. It was necessary to have the consent of a majority of the frontage, and there was sufficient opposition in certain quarters to prevent this. One day the president of the street railway company was surprised to receive a call from Paul Rider.

"How much is it worth to you to get that Riverside line through?" asked Paul.

"It is worth a great deal. Why?" responded the president.

"I have figured out a route where the frontage consent can be obtained," replied Paul.

"Let me see it?" demanded the president.

"Not until a price is fixed," replied Paul, coldly.

"But it is undoubtedly too long and involved, and besides maybe the frontage consent could not be gained."

"How much will you give me if the route I suggest is feasible and I get the frontage consent?" asked Paul.

"A thousand dollars," replied the president.

Paul reached for his hat and started for the door.

"Wait a minute," said the president, detaining him.

The upshot of it was that Paul was promised $3,000 if his route was adopted and he obtained the frontage consents. The minute he unfolded it the president gave a cry of delight. That evening Paul began to see the property owners, and in less than a week had the entire deal fixed up.

A new telephone company came along and wanted a franchise. Remembering Paul's turn for a street railway company the promoter sent for Paul to help them fix routes and obtain a franchise.

"How much is there in it for me?" asked Paul.

"Ten dollars a day and expenses," replied the promoter.

"Twenty-five," replied Paul.

And $25 it was when the conversation was over. It took three months to finish the work.

"Well," remarked Paul, to himself one day, "I may have wasted a bit of time, but I am getting more money in a month now than Dave gets in six."

A few months later Paul went to the president of the Imperial Insurance company, and sat in the same chair where he had sat when he refused the position.

"This company owns the Havlin tract of land in the South end," he said.

"We do," replied the president. "Took it on a foreclosure of a mortgage."

"It's dead property," suggested Paul.

"It is," replied the president.

"What will you give me if I will arrange a deal to locate a furniture factory employing 1,500 men on the land—you, of course, to donate the site and give the owners of the factory say 20 lots as an inducement to locate.

The president figured a bit and replied: "Two thousand dollars."

"One thousand and every fifth lot," replied Paul.

It was finally agreed that Paul should have $2,000 and every tenth lot. The deal was concluded in a month, and within six months the great buildings were erected and homes were springing up all over the hitherto deserted tract.

The railroads built spurs to the new manufacturing center, and the street railway built a line tapping it.

There was a great rush to buy property in the vicinity where property had advanced from $100 an acre to $300 and $350 a lot. Then it appeared that Paul Rider owned all the property about, either in fee or by option. He was good natured, however, and willingly let go of tract after tract, but always at a good profit, and retaining the choicest pieces, where there were promises of business streets. The town went land crazy, and gradually Paul sold out almost entirely, retaining only a few choice corners, but piling tens of thousands of dollars in the bank.

In the meantime David was doing well and advancing. Four years after he entered the employ of the insurance company he was made manager of the agency department at $3,000 a year.

One day after the land boom had flattened out, the president of the Imperial sent for Paul and said:

"I want a man at the head of our investment department who is up to modern methods. We have been a little slow. How much do you want to take charge?"

"Ten thousand a year and the privilege of handling my own affairs as I go along."

"Ten thousand!" gasped the president. "Why, that's all I draw. We are only paying Jacobs $3,000."

"I think I can be worth as much to the company as you," replied Paul. "If not, keep Jacobs."

There were several directors' meetings and Paul's terms were accepted. And so Paul won the prize, and Gracia married him—and a lovely church wedding it was. And her wedding present was a $50,000 house. And it might be added, they lived together very happily and comfortably.

P. S.—There is no moral to this story.

A PROMINENT CHURCH WORKER SAYS SHE OWES HER LIFE TO PE-RU-NA.

DOCTORS PRESCRIPTIONS FAILED TO RELIEVE

Mrs. Hattie LaFountain

Mrs. Hattie La Fountain, Treas. Protected Home Circle and Catholic Ladies of Ohio, writes from Galion, O., as follows:

"After my first child was born I suffered for several months with bearing down pains accompanied by dreadful headaches. I was afraid my health was ruined for life, and felt very downcast about it. One day when a friend was visiting me she told me of Peruna and what it had done for her when she suffered with irregular menstruation. My husband procured a bottle the same evening and I began to take it daily according to directions. Before the first bottle was used I was entirely well, and you certainly have one grateful woman's blessing. I have also advised my friends to use it." MRS. HATTIE LA FOUNTAIN.

Secretary Woman's State Federation Says: "Pe-ru-na Does More Than is Claimed for it."

Mrs. Julia M. Brown, Secretary of the Woman's State Federation of California, writes from 131½ Fifth St., Los Angeles, Cal., as follows:

"I have never known of any patent medicine which did what it professed to do except Peruna. This remedy does much more than it claims, and while I have never advocated any medicine I feel that it is but justice to speak a good word for it because I have found it to be such a rare exception.

"I have known several women who were little better than physical wrecks, mothers who dragged out a miserable, painful existence, but were made well and strong through the use of Peruna. I have known of cases of chronic catarrh which were cured in a short time, when a dozen different remedies had been experimented with and without good results. I use it myself when I feel nervous and worn out, and I have always found that the results were most satisfactory." JULIA M. BROWN.

HER GREAT FORTUNE.

A Woman Saved From Life-Long Misery and Made Happy and Useful.

A woman confined to the house for several years with a chronic female derangement had finally given up hope of being cured.

She had tried physician after physician, and remedy after remedy, without any permanent improvement.

Her treatment had cost her husband who was a poor man, hundreds of dollars. They had been obliged to deny themselves many comforts of life in order to get money enough to pay the physicians.

The woman had become weak, nervous and wretched, and scarcely able to keep out of her bed. Her children were growing up neglected and ragged, because of the want of a mother's care. Her husband was becoming discouraged and broken down with overwork.

Picking up the paper one day she happened to read an item which contained the news that Dr. Hartman would treat such cases free of charge by letter. She immediately wrote the doctor describing her case, and giving him all her symptoms.

She soon received a letter telling her exactly what to do, and what medicines and appliances to get. She began the treatment (the principal remedy being Peruna) at once, and in a few weeks she was well and strong again, able to do her own work.

This offer of free home treatment to women is still open to all who may need the services of this eminent physician. All letters applying for treatment will be promptly answered, and be held strictly confidential.

Miss Annie Hoben, Post Pocahontas of Yemessee Council of Red Men (Women's Branch), writes from 872 Eighth Ave., New York:

"Three months ago I was troubled with backache and a troublesome heaviness about the stomach. Sleep brought me no rest for it was a restless sleep. The doctor said my nervous system was out of order, but his prescriptions didn't seem to relieve me. I was told that Peruna was good for building up the nervous system. After using it for two months I know now that it is. I want to say that it made a new woman of me. The torturing symptoms have all disappeared and I feel myself again. Peruna did me more good than all the other medicines I have taken."

ANNIE HOBAN.

Miss Mamie Powell, Lake Charles, Louisiana, writes:

"I sincerely believe that Peruna is woman's best friend, for it has certainly been that to me. I had had headaches, backaches and other aches every month for a long time, but shortly after I began taking Peruna this was a thing of the past, and I have good reason to be grateful. I take a bottle every spring and fall now, and that keeps my health perfect, and I certainly am more robust now than I have been before and am weighing more. I do not think any one will be disappointed in the results obtained from the use of Peruna."

MISS MAMIE POWELL.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Tommy's Essay on Preachers.

The following essay by a youthful boarding school boy throws quite a new and interesting light on church dignitaries: "There are three kinds of clergymen bishups rectors and curats. the bishups tell the rectors to work and the curats have to do it. Curat is a thin married man but when he is a rector he gets fuller and can preech longer sermons and becums a good man, we should allways rispect a curat because sum day he may becum a rector and we must allways pity those who are low down in the world. any of us may becum misfortunate so we must not hit a man with a stone."—Chicago Chronicle.

Almost Human.

"The porcupine may not be a desirable associate," said the coon, "yet he has his good points."

"True," replied the fox, "but he is apt to be an awful flatterer."

"Flatterer!" echoed the coon.

"Yes," answered the fox, "he is apt to send one away with a stuck-up feeling."—Chicago Daily News.

The McBride Case Again.

St. John, Kan., Oct. 26.—Mr. and Mrs William McBride and Jesse L. Limes, M. D., have gone before Mr. George E. Moore, Notary Public, and have sworn and subscribed to written statements confirming the story of the awful illness and subsequent cure of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. McBride.

Dr. Limes is particularly emphatic in his statement, and there does not now seem to be any room for doubt as to the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills, and nothing else, saved the little boy.

He was so bad that he had Epileptic spells which seized him with increasing frequency. He was semi-paralyzed in the right side, and his mind was badly affected.

In their sworn statement, Mr. and Mrs. McBride say:

"The very day we began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills our boy had twenty-seven of these Epileptic spells or fits. In less than a week he ceased having them entirely."

The case has caused a great sensation in the neighborhood. The sworn statements have confirmed the whole story.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

New Armory in St. Paul.

Though there are many larger and more expensive armories in this country than the now one now being built at St. Paul for the commands of the Minnesota National Guard stationed in that city, there are few if any that offers more convenience in arrangement.

The building, when completed, is to furnish quarters for all the National Guard troops of St. Paul which consist of four companies of infantry, one battery of artillery and one company of engineers. The basement of the building is so arranged that the battery can drive into it with their guns.

The building is 182 by 150 feet. The drill hall, which is back of the main structure, but of the same height, is 140 by 120 feet. The roof of this portion of the building is supported by steel trusses, leaving the floor space absolutely clear. A gallery runs entirely around the drill floor. That portion of the building fronting on Exchange street is four stories high, and contains the company quarters, and headquarters offices. There will be general lounging rooms, library, reception rooms, etc.

The basement contains gun rooms, in which the pieces of the artillery will each have their compartment, and harness rooms so arranged that each set will be kept separate and in condition for immediate use.

In the basement will also be found a complete rifle range, 120 feet long, and the gymnasium. The latter will be one of the most complete in the city. It will be 18 feet high and will have a complete equipment. Baths are attached and in addition a big swimming pool. Rooms are also provided in the basement for the storage of everything of a bulky nature belonging to the companies, such as camp equipment, etc.

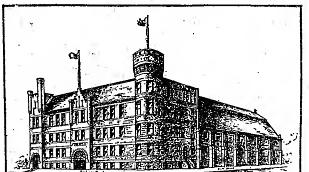
The third floor contains a banquet room and dancing floor, both of which are commodious. The entire building is fireproof with the exception of the floors and window casings. Such will be the St. Paul armory when completed next March.

Work on the new armory was started last spring when, through the efforts of Maj. George Lambert and the local armory board, the council was induced to issue $99,000 in bonds for the construction of the building. The basement and foundation calling as they did for the removal of a solid mass of hard blue stone from over a quarter of a block for a depth of 18 feet, was a stupendous and expensive task, and was only completed a few weeks ago, when work on the superstructure was begun. The building of the superstructure is now in progress. It will be constructed entirely of red sandstone, and this will be supplemented by an interior lining of limestone up to the top of the first floor, and brick the remainder of the distance.

The building up to date has cost the city $99,000, but at least $50,000 more will be necessary before the structure is completed in accordance with the plans. Out of the $99,000 was paid nearly $25,000 for additional ground, and this has also been supplemented by quite an advance in the cost of construction over what the armory board figured when it first planned the structure.

Up to last spring the National Guard companies in St. Paul were housed in the wooden structure that held forth where the new armory is now being built, but it was entirely inadequate. Repeated efforts to secure a new building met with failure and it was only when Maj. Lambert and others of the armory board asked the aid of the state that the new structure was finally obtained.

Maj. Lambert who is secretary of the local armory board, has been indefatigable in his efforts to secure the new armory, and it was largely through him that the law authorizing the bond issue was passed and the consent of the council to an issue of the bonds obtained.



NEW ARMORY BEING BUILT IN ST. PAUL, MINN.

Buried by Sand.

Russell Anderson, aged 3 years, Helen Anderson aged 5 years and Lucy Keogan, aged five years, three St. Paul children, were smothered in a sandpit near their homes at Ohio and George streets, St. Paul.

Near the Anderson home is a sand bank and for several months the children have been in the habit of playing there. In the morning the three tots went to the bank and nothing more was seen of them until their bodies were found at night. When they did not return home at noon the parents thought that they were with neighbors and no alarm was felt until 3 o'clock when the police were notified.

The place where the children were killed was an excavation only a few feet deep but a quantity of sand projecting over the excavation broke loose and fell upon them, burying them beneath two feet of earth. No one saw the accident.

Exceeded Authority.

Attorney General W. B. Douglas filed an opinion with State Auditor S. G. Iverson that the last legislature exceded its authority in providing that horses afflicted with glanders shall be appraised by the state live stock sanitary board without taking into consideration the fact that they are in a diseased condition. Mr. Douglas holds that the legislature had no right to provide that the board pay more than the actual value of the horses, and that in arriving at the actual value the appraisers must consider the fact that the animals are diseased.

The live stock sanitary board has killed many horses afflicted with glanders, and the state auditor has received several claims for three-fourths of the amount of the appraised value of the animals in accordance with chapter 141 of the laws of 1903.

Improved Capacity.

W. W. P. McConnell is planning to re-organize the state dairy and food commission so that the work of the department will be in closer touch with Minnesota farmers, and the production of milk and cream in the state will be increased.

The department will be organized into branches covering inspection of creameries and cheese factories, supervision of herds and barns, scoring of butter, testing of the productiveness of cows, special assistance to milk producers and buttermakrs and analysis and inspection of food. One man will be placed at the head of each branch and will devote his time to it. Heretofor the same man has often inspected food and creameries.

Assessed Valuation.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson has computed the exact figures on the total assessed valuation of personal property in Minnesota. It is $156,583,197, $19,343,133 more than in 1902. This increase is nearly twice as much as the increase in any other two years in the history of the state. The next largest increase was made in 1901, when the valuation was $10,361,130 more than in 1900. The year 1902 has third place, the valuation being $6,437,293 more than the previous year.

News Notes.

The big Hill steamers will be in service early next year.

John Anderson, an insane man in the county jail at Minneapolis, thinks he is successor to General Nelson A. Miles.

Vigilance on the part of the St. Paul police prevented the sporting element of that city from pulling off an exciting dog fight there Sunday afternoon. The fight was scheduled to take place on Midway Heights, Merriam Park, and the promoters of the affair supposed that everything was on the quiet.

A shrill, earpiercing whistle, blown by compressed air, is to be used together with the unmusical gong on the rolling stock of the Twin City Rapid Transit company. The company is now equipping some of the cars in Minneapolis with the whistle.

John C. Kruger, superintendent of the Simmons flouring mill at Red Wing, had half his foot cut off and his leg crushed by a freight car.

ROUND ABOUT THE STATE.

President Elliott of the Northern Pacific arrives in St. Paul.

The reformatory at St. Cloud is filled almost to its capacity.

Willie Bailey, 530 Collins street, St. Paul, is bitten by an ugly bulldog.

During October 1,085 children were admitted to the Minneapolis public schools making the total enrollment 37,509.

Hal Parker was found guilty of bigamy in the Ramsey county district court and sentenced to three years at the Stillwater penitentiary.

The Northern Pacific announces two dividends aggregating two per cent, bringing the dividends for the calendar year up to seven per cent.

P. A. Henning, residing at Aspelund recently sold 100 pounds of ginseng seed which he raised on his farm. The seed brought him $96 a pound.

J. J. Dwyer, president of the St. Paul water board was arrested charged with doing plumbing work in the St. Paul public library without a license.

O. L. Anderson, residing in Belvedere, accidentally shot himself in the forehead with a small caliber rifle. He may recover, tho likely to lose his sight.

The Minneapolis Union Depot company is sick of search warrants and hereafter will allow game wardens to search baggage in its premises without warrants.

Joseph Hifferman, a switchman of the Omaha railroad, was killed by being struck by a light Milwaukee engine in the yards under the Wabasha bridge, St. Paul.

A railroad laborer's body has been found on a creek bank near Judson. It is supposed he was insane, wandered away and was drowned. His name is unknown.

The United States life saving crew at Grand Marais rescued six men and one woman from the barge Loveland, which was wrecked on the shore near there by a furious gale.

The new electric light plant at Pelican Rapids is a success, the streets and business houses were lighted for the first time amid the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles.

Carl Swan, a 16-year-old boy of Minneapolis was found guilty in police court of taking $5 from David Lindbald, and was sentenced to a term in the state training school at Red Wing.

Three hold-up men, who were planning to "operate" on a Great Northern freight train, were captured by Brakeman Hogan at Coon Creek, but escaped before being turned over to the police.

George W. Pierce, the Buffalo millionaire, who was arrested at Morris for hunting without a license, and who appealed to State Agent Fullerton, paid his fine and costs, amounting to over $57.

The final contest for choosing the men to debate against the University of Iowa was held at the University and the following men were selected: Raymond P. Chase, Isaac W. Choate and John C. Devaney.

Mrs. C. N. Knight, wife of an old resident of this city, committed suicide at Brown's Valley by taking carbolic acid while temporarily insane. Brooding over the death of a child is given as the cause.

Twenty-six dairy cows, most of them from a dairy farm in Fridley, were killed at the Golden Valley abattoir after being condemned for tuberculosis by Dr. A. A. Keyes, the city veterinarian.

William O'Brien, a delegate from Faribault to the recent horseshoers' convention at St. Paul, died in St. Joseph's hospital from the effects of a fall he received on the streets of St. Paul about a week ago.

The breeding stable of Andrew Carlson at St. Paul, valued at $3,000, burned. Two horses perished in the flames. Stanley B, a stallion with a record of 2:16¼, valued at $3,000, and King Grover, valued at $1,500.

Four saloonkeepers of Minneapolis were arraigned in police court charged with violation of the liquor laws. Three of them were charged with selling liquor to minors and one of them with selling adulterated whisky.

Peter Wohlford, a well known farmer of Pipestone county, was this afternoon adjudged insane and will be at once committed to the hospital at St. Peter. He is 31 and has been a resident of this county many years.

Pearl J. Haynes of Minneapolis has brought suit against the street car company for $2,100 damages for injuries to health, alleged to have been contracted through a cold caught on a wet night when she was carried past her destination.

The question of issuing $12,000 in city bonds for the purpose of constructing a waterworks system will be submitted to a vote at the city election Nov. 3 at Red Lake Falls. If the bonds carry work will be commenced early in the spring.

Is it settled that R.G. Dunn, is to be nominated by acclamation for our next governor?.

The Twin City papers are kept busy trying to pick some plausible objection to the re-election of certain members of the supreme court, says the Crookston Journal. We are of the opinion that it would not be much trouble to find a plausible objection to their re-election if some of the desisions that they have rendered, as law and equity was taken into consideration, but of course they are satisfactory to Crookston, but they are the only ones that needs to do any worrying, for fear the Twin City papers will make any harmful changes in the supreme court of the state of Minnesota.

DUCKS WERE DECEITFUL.

Ingenious Fraud Practiced by the Heathen Chinee.

The ingenuity of the Chinaman is wonderful, surpassing at times the belief of his European and American brothers. A striking instance of it, not unmixed with guile, was brought to light recently during the trading transactions of two foreigners at Boona Road market.

This husband and wife, having decided that duck should figure on the menu of the day, went the round of the market in search of a fat, plump, well flavored bird.

After awhile two were purchased. They were beautifully dressed ducks, young, but plump, and promised to show up well at the evening table.

When the domestic pair got home the lady chanced to puncture one of the birds with a sharp knife, and it collapsed like a toy balloon. The other, subjected to similar treatment, followed suit. Their erstwhile inflated bodies became flat and bony and mere ghosts of the ducks that had been bought.

Investigation showed that a thin piece of wire had been fastened round the birds' necks and elsewhere, and everything pointed to the conclusion that the ducks had been blown up with a bicycle pump.

How the ducks had been drawn and then made to stand the strain of the air pump is evidently an oriental trade secret.

When the young couple again go shopping for ducks they will take a skewer along with them.—Shanghai Times.

Stewed Snapper.

"Stewed snapper," said the proprietor of a restaurant that makes a specialty of the toothsome dish, "is almost as distinctively Philadelphian as scrapple and pepper pot. Prepared by the same formula as terrapin, with a liberal seasoning of sherry, snapper is quite as palatable as the diamond back, provided the meat comes from a young turtle. In fact, I defy any one but an epicure to tell the difference. The snappers that come to Philadelphia are mostly caught in the muddy bottomed creeks that flow into the Delaware up the Jersey side, and just now they are coming in very plentifully. The snapper is a difficult catch to handle, but the Jerseymen know how to turn the trick and get them to market alive. They run in weight from four pounds all the way up to forty pounds, the smaller ones being naturally more tender and consequently better meat. Some few are shipped to Trenton and New York, but most of them come to Philadelphia."—Philadelphia Record.

Making a Will.

Always call in a lawyer to make a will. If one cannot be procured then write your wishes in the simplest words you can. Never try to use what you may consider "legal terms." Few persons realize how difficult it is to make a will. A classic example is the celebrated Lord St. Leonards, at one time lord chancellor of England. He was the foremost conveyancer of his day, and yet when he died an informal will was found in his coat pocket, hurriedly written when he was at the point of death. This will occupied the courts for years and served "to point a moral and adorn a tale."

Comforting.

A man who had buried three wives took to himself a fourth lately, and, as is wont in Lancashire, the pair went for a walk one Sunday afternoon. On the way they called at the cemetery where the three former wives reposed in the one grave. The new wife read the inscriptions with some interest, but her feelings may well be imagined when she came to the usual text from the Scriptures. It ran, "Be ye also ready."—London Standard.

A Horse's Strength.

The average weight of a horse is 1,000 pounds; his strength is equivalent to that of five men. In a horse mill moving at three feet per second, track twenty-five feet diameter, he exerts with the machine the power of four and a half horses. The greatest amount a horse can pull in a horizontal line is 900 pounds, but he can only do this momentarily; in continued exertion probably half of this is the limit.

The Sacred Plants of the Druids.

The Druids held many plants sacred, as, for instance, vervein, selago, mistletoe, and among trees the oak and the rowan. There is, I think, no serious doubt as to the identity of any of these except the second (selago), which is generally thought to be the club moss. Oak mistletoe is certainly rare, and that may have been the reason why it had an especially sacred character, but it does exist.

The Ordeals of a Doctor.

It is often claimed by outsiders that having a profession dulls a woman's sympathies, but I cannot believe that this is true in the practice of medicine, where one side of the work is so immeasurably sad. I have seen a baby that came after fifteen years of waiting and hoping and was rejoiced over daily and hourly for a wonderful year suddenly struck down and gasp its little life out in a day with pneumonia. These are the times when it hurts to be a doctor, to find that all the knowledge that you possess, all the skill at your command, is as so much chaff before the wind. To have a woman cling to you, begging you to save her baby, is an ordeal to which no human being can grow callous. You must feel as though the brand of Cain were upon you when, with all your efforts, you cannot save the little life. Not years nor experience can lighten hours such as these.—Everybody's Magazine.

Storms of Old England.

In the year 944 in London alone 1,500 houses were blown down; in October, 1091, a great number of churches and 500 houses were destroyed; in 1235 it thundered for fifteen days consecutively. The dreadful night during which Cromwell's spirit passed has formed a theme for poet and partisan. And the great storm that "o'er pale Britannia passed" in November, 1703, the most terrible in British annals, also has its enduring record in poetry. It did damage in London to the amount of £2,000,000; over 8,000 people were drowned in floods in various parts of the country, twelve men-of-war, with over 1,800 men on board, went down in sight of land, and the Eddystone lighthouse, along with Winstanley, its inventor, was swept away.

Jewels on an Idol.

The jewels of an Indian idol must be worth stealing if many of those remarkably hideous images possess such valuable head ornaments as one made for the idol Parthasathy, in the Triplicane temple at Madras. The ornament is worth some 50,000 rupees and is made of sovereign gold studded with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, the largest emerald being valued at 4,000 rupees and the biggest ruby and diamond at 800 rupees apiece.

LETTER WRITING.

Its Decline as an Art Caused by the Modern Newspaper.

The wonderful development of the newspaper may be looked upon as a very potent factor in the decline of letter writing as an art. The letter no longer can be regarded as primarily the carrier of news. The expression of one's opinion about great contemporary events is indeed still left to the latter, but how much of an incentive to friendly correspondence is lost by the fact that every part of the world knows of important happenings almost simultaneously is not to be lightly estimated, says Gunton's Magazine. The stimulus to writing that comes from having "news" to impart is done away with, and it is not always that even the gifted letter writer can afford to lose that incitant. It is only the correspondent par excellence who knows how to attain the perfection of his art by writing delightfully on nothing, if indeed that may be called nothing which affords him a means for the employment of his delicate perceptions. For the saving quality of the genuine letter is in the ability of its author to put himself into it. If he writes about trivial things he does it with a grace of interest that disguises the triviality. He must not make his little fishes talk like whales, but he should, as Goldsmith himself knew how to do, make his letters of perpetual interest because of the aptness of their style to the simplicity of their thought.

The Delights of Nudity.

I cling to that perhaps fanciful theory that no primitive instinct of man is altogether lost. It is modified, amplified, refined; that is all. With all our culture we are barbarians still. Man is a clothed savage. And now and again he delights in doffing the clothing and returning heartily to savagery. How delightful the feel of the briny breeze and the boisterous wave on the bare pelt! Mr. Edward Carpenter rails at the, I think, eleven layers of clothing that intervene between our skins and the airs of heaven. Walt Whitman reveled in his nude sun bath. What a treat, too, sometimes to get away from the multicoursed dinner and to bite downright audibly into simple food in the fresh air and to lap water noisily from the brook! Well, walking perhaps is the primal instinct, ancient as Eden, where the Lord God walked in the garden in the cool of the day. And if my theory is correct walking will persist till in recovered paradise man walks with his Maker again. No mechanical contrivances for locomotion will extirpate the tribe of tourists, of those who walk from love of walking.—Arnold Haultain in Atlantic.

Such Birds Come High.

There used to be in a store on Ninth avenue, New York, a very valuable canary whose owner and teacher, the wife of the German proprietor, refused an offer of $500 for it. Sometimes as one entered the place there came from a corner in the rear a liquid peal of music so sweet and high and clear that it sounded like a piccolo without the metallic shrillness of that instrument. In a small wicker cage a black and yellow canary waltzed round and round, never quiet, and as it danced it sang the air of "Lauterbach" from beginning to end without a false quantity, without missing or changing a note. When the solo was finished the bird whisked up to its perch, trilled an improvisation and then began the melody again, breaking off in the middle, warbling a little in self willed fashion and then finishing the air. It was a beautiful and unique performance.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Smoking in Banks.

In every bank in New York there is a rule against smoking, and it is doubtful if any depositor or visitor ever saw a coil of tobacco smoke sifting through the atmosphere in the big counting houses—that is, no visitor who is excluded from the building promptly when the bank closes. But if the curious could squeeze their way through those closed portals in the afternoon they would be treated to a very different sight.

The rules against smoking in all the big banks of the city apply only during banking hours. After the doors are closed and locked one can transform himself into a human volcano with perfect freedom—and he does. And "he" is legion.—New York Times.

A Personal Bill of Fare.

A squire of Andover once hired a brother of Patrick, who was in his employ. The terms were made with Pat before his brother's arrival, and the following conversation ensued:

Squire—I'll pay your brother one fifty a day, Patrick.

Patrick (bowing and smiling)—Yis, sor; yis, sor; and will he ate himself or will ye ate him, sor?

The squire thought that Dennis had better eat himself.—Lippincott's.

The Way Home.

When the bishop of Truro, Dr. Gott, was dean of Worcester his absent mindedness was so notorious that he earned for himself the sobriquet of "Dean For-Gott."

On one occasion he had invited some friends to dine with him. On their arrival, a short time before the dinner hour, he suggested that in the interval of waiting his friends would perhaps like to walk through the grounds.

After spending about a quarter of an hour in admiring the flowers, shrubs and greenhouses they suddenly came upon a door in the garden wall.

"Ah!" said the dean to his astonished guests. "This will be a much nearer way for you to go home than by going back to the front!" And, forgetting his invitation, he opened the door and bowed them out.

Minister Resembles Fitzsimmons.

Rev. Richard Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal church in Washington, in general appearance, looks like an exact duplicate of "Bob" Fitzsimmons, the prize fighter. The illusion disappears as soon as the reverend gentleman takes off his hat, for his head is not at all arranged on the cocoanut plan adopted by nature in modeling the latter pugilist.

How to Whiten the Hands.

A small, wide mouthed jar such as jelly or jam comes in should be placed near the sink in the bath room to hold the odds and ends of soap, and when it is three-fourths full it can be filled with boiling water. Add a little glycerin and the juice of a lemon, and you have a "soap jelly" which will soften and whiten the hands beautifully. This jelly is easily prepared and offers a good way to use up the odds and ends of soap which is within the possibilities even of those who do the lightest kind of housekeeping.

How to Prevent Shutters Rattling.

A rattling shutter frequently can be tightened so as to keep silent by the simple expedient of driving in a match or toothpick where the slat is loosened. If the slats rattle, a large spool pushed under the rod, that goes through the middle will hold them still.

How to Chop Parsley.

If the parsley is wet, dry it thoroughly with a towel. Then pick the leaves from the stems, gather the leaves closely between the thumb and two fingers, press tightly and hold on a board. With a sharp pointed knife cut through the parsley as close to the fingers as possible. In this way each stroke of the knife does the work completely, the parsley is minced fine and evenly and does not have to be gone over again.

A little ammonia in a few teaspoonfuls of alcohol is excellent to sponge silk dresses that have grown shiny or rusty, as well as to take out spots. A silk, particularly a black, becomes almost like new when so sponged.

Jewels on an Idol.

The jewels of an Indian idol must be worth stealing if many of those remarkably hideous images possess such valuable head ornaments as the one made for the idol Parthasathy, in the Triplicane temple at Madras. The ornament is worth some 50,000 rupees and is made of sovereign gold studded with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, the largest emerald being valued at 1,000 rupees and the biggest ruby and diamond at 800 rupees apiece.

Glory.

Glory is but a transient dream that gives color to a sleep bespangled with illusions of greatness; a mirage, glittering but unsubstantial, hovering above the oasis in the desert of life at whose fountain many a weary traveler would quench his burning thirst that he may press on to grander heights. It beckons us on to where the broad light plays on countless graves of those once called great, but now forgotten, upon whose gravestone is chiseled the mocking phrase, "Sic transit gloria mundi." How often does the victor, spent and worn, look around for the laurels and the peace he has earned, only to find the bubble bursted, the colors faded.—Hattlicke

Largest Hanging Bell.

What is perhaps the largest hanging bell in the world is to be seen in Mandalay. This is the Mingun bell, on the right bank of the Irawadi, almost opposite the city of Mandalay. This immense bell measures as follows. Height to crown, 12 feet; diameter at the lip, 16 feet 3 inches; thickness of metal, from 6 to 12 inches. It weighs about eighty tons and is suspended on three massive round beams of teak placed horizontally the one over the other, their ends resting on two pillars of enormous size, composed of masonry and large upright teak posts. This bell was cast at the end of the eighteenth century under the superintendence of the reigning king.

Flour and Teeth.

A valuable letter from a correspondent drew attention to an important and admitted cause of the national degeneration of physique which we have striven to emphasize in these columns. The roller mill has undoubtedly diminished the dietetic value of our bread. The entire wheat grain is of value—the husk (which is a valuable intestinal stimulant); the brown exterior and the white central core. Except for certain invalids white bread is an indefensible absurdity. Better is brown bread, consisting of all but the husk, and best is a whole meal bread, assuming such to be obtainable. The deficiency of salts in white bread is unquestionably related to the deterioration—also familiar to our readers—in the national teeth. We may illustrate this by an argument from Sir Thomas Lauder Brunton. "Why has America the cleverest dentists?" Answer: "Because she has the best flour mill makers." The better the mill is, the finer the flour, the poorer the bread, the worse the teeth and the better the dentists. Perfectly simple!—London Chronicle.

DOGS IN FICTION.

Parts They Have Played in the Great English Novels.

Although it may be conceded that among the animals of fiction the horse holds first place, the part played by dogs, especially in modern literature, is very large and important. The pages of many famous novels have presented us with members of the canine race as carefully drawn and as lovingly delineated as any of the human characters introduced. Not infrequently the role of hero or heroine is doubled with, or wholly supported by, a dog. And in numberless instances it is the intervention, conscious or unconscious, of a dog upon which the whole plot turns. As might be expected, it is among the works of such novelists as are specially noted as dog lovers that the finest and most frequent descriptions of their four footed friends are to be found, and naturally Sir Walter Scott, well known for his extreme attachment to dogs, heads the list.

Big dogs are Scott's special favorites, and his noblest example is Sir Kenneth's hound Rosval, who bears an all important part in the plot of "The Talisman." Rosval is described as a large staghound of splendid proportions and great sagacity, who shares his master's watch on St. George's Mount beside the banner of England, above the camp of the crusaders. Tempted by woman's guile, the knight forsakes his post for a short space, leaving Rosval to guard the flag. A base attack is made in his absence, and Kenneth returns to find the flag gone and its faithful defender wounded apparently to death in its defense. Kenneth's remorse for the violation of the English banner is scarcely more keen than his grief over the dog, who wags his tail and licks his master's hand even in the agonies of death. It is a most touching scene, drawn by a master hand, and the reader's satisfaction is not less than the knight's is represented to be when the Arabian physician Saladin, disguised, appears opportunely, and by his timely ministration saves the hound, who lives to identify his till then unknown assailant by dragging him bodily from his horse. In "Ivanhoe," Gurth, the swineherd, possesses a noteworthy dog, Fangs by name, "a rugged, wolfish looking dog, a sort of lurcher, half mastiff, half greyhound," who assists his master in the care of his refractory charges, is wounded by Cedric the Saxon, and whose adventures are carried on throughout the book.

Dickens was a dog lover, and possessed several dear canine friends. It is recorded in his biographies how greatly moved he was on one occasion by the sympathetic concern evinced by two of his favorites, Turk and Linda, when during a walk he was suddenly struck with lameness.

Thackeray, however, makes little use or mention of dogs. George Eliot also lays no great stress upon them.

A Faithful Servant.

Carlyle told once of a lawsuit pending in Scotland affecting the succession to a great estate of which he had known something. The case depended on a family secret known only to one old servant, who refused to reveal it. A kirk minister was sent to tell her she must speak on peril of her soul. "Peril of my saul!" she said. "And would ye put the honor of an auld Scottish family in competition with the saul of a poor creature like me?"

The Schoolmaster.

I do not know in recent times a more stirring answer than that of Lacordaire, the famous Dominican, to the court of peers in France, who asked him what his profession was, when he replied simply, "A schoolmaster," unless it be the answer of his friend, the Comte de Montalembert, the noblest specimen, I sometimes think, of the modern French laity, to the same question: "A schoolmaster and a peer of France." Nay, it was but the other day that a learned and humble man of science, who will live in history as having declared that he had "no time to make money," began his will with the modest words, so great in their modesty, "I, Louis Agassiz, teacher."—Contemporary Review.

The Essential Thing.

The primary class in Sunday school was listening to a lesson on patience. This, according to the Boston Herald, was what came of it, at least in the minds of the more literal minded children:

The topic had been carefully explained, and as an aid to understanding the teacher had given each pupil a card bearing the picture of a boy fishing.

"Even pleasure," said she, "require the exercise of patience. See the boy fishing. He must sit and wait and wait. He must be patient."

Having treated the subject very fully she began with the simplest, most practical question:

"And now can any little boy tell me what we need most when we go fishing?" The answer was shouted with one voice:

"Bait!"

The Cataleptic Trance.

It cannot be doubted that in numerous cases of cataleptic trance the apparently lifeless patient has been acquainted with all the arrangements being made for his interment. Several instances are recorded in which, although the body presented every appearance of death, the patient was conscious of everything going on around him, but absolutely unable to raise a limb or in any way communicate with those near his bed.

How to Care For Jewels.

People who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to damp, says Home Notes. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting. Don't forget this when near the fire if you happen to wear an opal ring.

Kentucky Senator Had to Keep in Line with the Soft Drinks.

When it comes to story telling, Congressman Samuel L. Powers, of Newton, can hold his own with any of them. The other night he related one which was much appreciated by those who heard it, says the Boston Post. The story is about Senators Blackburn and Fairbanks and Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. When the latter first came to Washington Senator Blackburn had some business with the secretary, and while in the office met Senator Fairbanks. After the business was concluded Senator Blackburn invited the other two out to have a libation, and they accepted.

All hands lined up against the bar of the Riggs house. Turning to Secretary Shaw, Senator Blackburn said: "What will you have, Mr. Secretary?" "Well, I guess I'll have a glass of lemonade," was the reply. The gentleman from Kentucky then turned to Senator Fairbanks and said: "And what will you have, senator?" "I'll have a glass of Moxie," was the reply. The bartender leaned over the counter and said to Senator Blackburn: "And what's yours, senator?" "Oh," said the distinguished gentleman from the blue grass state, "I guess I'll have a piece of squash pie."

Money in Shoes.—Shoe Dealer—"It won't pay me to handle these shoes on such a small margin." The Teacher Won.

Hinton, Ky., Nov. 2.—For over two years, two of the best physicians in this part of the State have been treating Mr. E. J. Thompson, a popular local school teacher, for Diabetes. They told him that but little could be done to help him. He made up his mind to try a new remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and says:—

"They saved me when the doctors held out no hope. I took, in all, about ten boxes. I will always praise Dodd's Kidney Pills for the great good they have done for me."

Many people, and some physicians, still persist in the belief that Diabetes is an incurable disease. Our teacher, Mr. Thompson, says it is curable, for Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him after two good physicians had treated him for two years without success.

A remedy that will cure Diabetes will surely cure any case of Kidney Trouble.

Books She Admired Most.

When Tolstoi was in the Crimea recently a rich American arrived in his yacht with a party of friends and asked permission to call on the great Russian. Leave was granted on condition that Tolstoi, who was quite weak from illness, should not be troubled with talk. One woman visitor could not restrain her conversational propensity, but said in gushing tones: "Leo Tolstoi, all your noble writings have influenced my life, but the one which taught me most was—"

Here she forgot the name of the book and Tolstoi asked, insinuatingly: "Was it 'The Dead Souls?'"

"Yes, yes," was the eager reply.

"Ah," observed Tolstoi, "Gogol wrote that book, not I."

Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C. S. A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ills peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I had used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, MRS. ROSA ADAMS, 819 12th St., Louisville, Ky."

Any women who are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, general debility, and nervous prostration, should know there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No other medicine for women has received such wide-spread and unqualified indorsement. No other medicine has such a record of female cures.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am very pleased to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for womb and ovarian difficulties from which I have been a sufferer for years. It was the only medicine which was at all beneficial, and within a week after I started to use it, there was a great change in my feelings and looks. I used it for a little over three months, and at the end of that time I suffered no pain at the menstrual period, nor was I troubled with those distressing pains which compelled me to go to bed, and I have not had a headache since. This is nearly a year ago. I always keep a bottle on hand, and take a few doses every week, for I find that it tones up the system and keeps me feeling strong, and I never have that tired out feeling any more.

"I certainly think that every woman ought to try this grand medicine, for it would prove its worth. Yours very truly, MISS ELSIE DANFORTH, 203 De Soto St., Memphis, Tenn."

HAD IT ALL DOWN PAT.

Benedict Smiled When the Young Man Told How He Would Manage a Wife.

It's an easy thing to manage a wife, some men think—before they have tried. One of these exceedingly wise ones was telling a man of experience how he would go about it, relates an exchange.

"Yes," he said, "I've got it all down pat, I have, and I'd like to see a woman get the best of me."

The married man smiled.

"I've got a scheme rigged up which is going to work like a charm," the single man continued, "and I don't very well see how my wife is going to get around it. You see, I don't want to hire a girl, because I don't think a home should be marred by the presence of a third party—and a comparative stranger at that. I want to have a home where I can go in the kitchen and help with the cooking. I want to carry up the coal and get up in the morning and light the fire. I want a home where I can feel at home and not have a servant going around doing what my wife and I should do.

"So, when we are married and the servant problem comes up and my wife says she wants to keep a servant I'm going to say that we can keep a girl on that one condition—that I myself shall attend personally to all the ordering of meals and general housekeeping. Now, the first thing a woman thinks about when she's married is keeping house, and I know that my wife-to-be will say, 'What am I to do?' Then I'll up and tell her that all she has to do will be to look pretty and attractive for me; that I never want to hear her say that she is too tired to go anywhere. That will make her feel like a doll, and I know women—they like to feel that they're of some kind of use."

The married man smiled.

"Another scheme I have discovered is also bound to work," the single man went on, "and the fact that women are never ready on time has made me think of it. Some evening when we are going to the theater I'm going to tell my wife to be ready promptly at 7:30 o'clock. Of course she couldn't be ready until long after eight o'clock, and when she says sweetly, 'I'm ready, dear,' then I'm going to get up and say, 'All right, love, sit down and wait until I shave.' About three times of that will have her ready on time, all right. Oh, I've got a lot of good ideas cooked up to make things go the way I want them to."

The married man smiled.

A PUMPKIN PIE.

The Secret of Success in Making the Real Old-Fashioned Article.

Some time ago "our club" gave a pie festival and, of course, invited husbands and brothers as usual. One of the members who had been noted for her fine custards of all kinds furnished a perfect pumpkin pie. She was urged for a recipe, but insisted there was nothing unusual in her formula; until asked why the pumpkin custard didn't break into cracks in the baking, her answer was: "Use more eggs and less pumpkin." And this is the secret of success with pumpkin, apple or sweet potato custards, says a household authority.

When "mother used to make" them she took her time in cooking the pumpkin. Deep colored pumpkins were considered best. The pumpkin was cut up and the seeds taken out. The slices were pared and cut into smaller pieces, put into a sauce pan with but little water and cooked slowly till tender, then set on the back of the stove where it wouldn't burn and slowly cooked, stirring often until the moisture was dried out. The pumpkin looked dark and rich when it was pressed through a colander.

To three cupfuls of the prepared pumpkin, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, the yolks and whites of five eggs beaten separately, a pinch of salt, one tablespoonful each of ginger and cinnamon and one quart of milk. Beat all together till well mixed and foamy and bake in a moderately slow oven till a wooden toothpick inserted comes out clean. If the pastry is not baked enough to leave the pan readily it must remain in the oven for a short time to finish.

Quince Custard.

Pare, core and slice two quinces and two apples. Cover with one pint cold water and simmer gently until the fruit is perfectly tender, then strain. Return the juice to the fire, and add three-fourths cup granulated sugar. Beat together eight eggs, reserving the whites of two. Pour the fruit mixture gradually over the eggs, return to the fire in a double boiler, and cook until thick like custard. Place a macaroon which has been soaked in cherry sirup in the bottom of as many custard cups as will be required, and when the custard is quite cold pour it into the cups. Heap on top of each a meringue made with the whites of the two eggs and three tablespoons powdered sugar.—Farm and Home.

Rice Cakes.

Add a tablespoon of melted butter to two cups of cold boiled rice and beat up a little. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add one cup of milk, a tablespoon of sugar, a level teaspoon of salt, the rice and butter and when all are well beaten stir in two cups of flour in which two level teaspoons of baking powder are sifted, and when this is mixed fold in carefully the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in hot greased muffin pans filled about two-thirds full.—Detroit Free Press.

How a Farmer was freed from Misery

WORTHY of a higher recommendation than I can find words to express."

This is what Mr. J. H. Plangman (of Sherman, Tex.) says of Doan's Kidney Pills. He tells his experience in the following words: He says, "Sometime in September I was taken with a dull aching pain across the small of my back, directly over the kidneys. I paid small attention to this at first, thinking it would pass off. But instead of getting better it became worse and in a short time the pain centered through my left hip and down my left leg as far as the knee." This is precisely what kidney trouble will do with the body.

pain across the small of the back

It does not always show itself at first, but appears just in this way, when some unusual movement or action brings sharp pains and exhaustive aches, telling of sick kidneys.

So Mr. Plangman's experience bore this out. Continuing, he says: "I did not know the cause of the trouble, but I am led to believe now that it was first brought about by jumping in and out of the wagon and in some way I may have strained my back.

"I was constantly growing worse," he continues, "and I became very much alarmed about my condition. I knew that something had to be done or serious results were sure to follow. I went to a specialist here in Sherman, and underwent a rigid examination."

Then he relates how the doctor told him that it was a serious case, but that he could cure him for fifty dollars. However, necessity knows no law and Mr. Plangman paid half down and took the treatment and followed it faithfully for four weeks.

Naturally, he thought that he would soon be rid of the trouble, but in spite of the doctoring he goes on to add, "I was in such misery that it was almost impossible for me to do my work."

"It was at this juncture that Doan's Kidney Pills came to my notice and I procured some from the drug store of C. E. Craycroft. I used these pills according to directions and to my surprise I was considerably relieved on the second day and in a short time completely cured."

. . . .

This is the universal experience of those who have been sufferers from Kidney trouble and who have been fortunate enough to test the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills.

There is nothing wonderful or magical about this remedy, it simply does the work by direct action on the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only and this accounts for their speedy and certain action.

Pain through my left hip

Early indications of kidney trouble come from two sources, the back and the bladder. The back becomes weak and lame because the kidneys are sick, and relief from backache can only be complete when the kidneys are set right.

Irritation of the bladder shows that the kidneys are out of order. Delay in prompt attention often causes serious complication.

I thought I had strained my back

Relieve and cure sick kidneys and ward off dangerous diabetes, dreaded dropsy and Bright's disease, by using Doan's Kidney Pills.

They begin by healing the delicate membranes and reducing any inflammation of the kidneys, and thus making the action of the kidneys regular and natural.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs, rheumatism and dropsy signs vanish.

They correct urine with brick-dust sediment, high-colored, excessive, pain in passing, dribbling, frequency. Doan's Kidney Pills dissolve and remove calculi and gravel. Relieve heart palpitation, sleeplessness, headache, nervousness.

AN ERRAND TO DO.

Traveler Asked to Stop in Texas on His Way from Chicago to New York.

One brother is a rich merchant in the Straits settlement on the Malay peninsula. The other brother was, until a few weeks ago, the cook in a cheap restaurant on South Clark street, says the Chicago Tribune.

The merchant sent to the cook a draft for sufficient money to pay his expenses out to Asia, and the cook gave up his job and started for his brother's home. The interesting thing about the whole incident is the letter, written by the wealthy merchant, which accompanied the draft.

In the first place the draft was made payable in New York.

"I send you the money in a draft payable in New York," wrote the brother from far-off Asia. "You can go over and get it cashed there. On the way I wish you would stop at Texas and see brother Thomas. I haven't heard from him for two years now, and I'd like to know how he's getting along."

Sold by the Shock.

A farmer went on a visit to a friend. After dinner the husbandman requested to be shown round the town.

After visiting several places, they finally reached the electric lighting works.

"What d'ye call this place, Dad?" queried the farmer.

"This is called the electric plant," was the reply.

"Plant! What do they grow?"

"They grow currents."

"How do they sell 'em—by the bushel?"

"They don't sell 'em by the bushel; they sell 'em by the shock."—Stray Stories.

COMING OF CONGRESS

Timely and Interesting Gossip of the Nation's Law-Makers.

PLACE OF SENATOR SPOONER

He Is Bound to Occupy a Prominent Place in the Special Session—The Settlement of Just and Unjust Claims.

Washington.—Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, has bought a summer place away up in the tip of New Hampshire. It is in the wilds of the town of Pittsburg, which occupies all of the bulge in New Hampshire that extends north of Vermont boundary and which is very much the largest town in the state territorially.

A Landed Proprietor

The place is 600 acres of woodland with a farmhouse; there are no neighbors within five miles and the land is worth less than $10 an acre.

He bought the place so as to be out of the world for a little while every summer, but he has had the liveliest kind of a time denying the rumors that have gone out about it. In the first place it was announced that he had bought the entire town, which would have made him a landed proprietor with 250,000 acres in his possession. Then it was declared that he was going to establish a game preserve, and he received letters from all over the United States, at the rate of half a dozen a day, offering him all sorts of animals and birds to stock his place with and making all sorts of offers. The thing got to be a nuisance.

As a matter of fact the senator's estate is about as modest an affair as anybody could ask for. His live stock consists of two cows and one horse and he keeps a hired man. When he looks out of his window just after the first frosts come in early September he sees miles and miles of the most beautiful forest colors to be found in the world, and in the midst of such delights he loafs and invites his soul.

The senator has one of the most beautiful places imaginable at Madison, Wis. If it were only a little farther out of the world he would never think of living anywhere else even for a few weeks in the summer.

Position of Senator Spooner.

Senator Spooner is bound to play a very conspicuous part in the congress which meets the second Monday in November. All the legislation that is likely to come up is just of the kind that he is especially interested in and in regard to which he has already done important work. The Cuban reciprocity legislation which will take up so much of the special session grows out of the Platt amendment which he had much to do with and which he helped Senator Platt to frame. Sooner or later congress is sure to take up the question of the Panama canal, which is now being handled by the administration in accordance with the terms of the Spooner act passed last winter. Another question that will disturb the serenity of legislation will be that of the coastwise trade of the Philippines, a question arising under the Philippine government act which Spooner had much to do with perfecting.

A Spooner Compromise

In short, there is hardly any question that can come up without touching Spooner at some point, for more than any other man in the senate it has been his fortune to have drawn bills which became enacted and which settled great legislative problems.

Spooner is believed by many to be the most useful man in the senate. He is called in more frequently than any other senator to unravel snarls of legislation and he has never yet failed to furnish some compromise that would meet the difficulty. Yet Spooner is not by nature a compromiser. He is dashing, eloquent and pugnacious, and he is the hardest proposition to tackle in congress when it comes to a rough and tumble debate. He is always good natured, never loses his temper, even in the hottest of scraps, and has never yet been worsted in a parliamentary wrangle. Tillman, of South Carolina, is his favorite game, because Tillman always loses his head.

With the Coming of Congress.

Now that congress is coming back to Washington hope again animates the breasts of the army of hangers-on about the capitol who live from year to year in the never-dying expectation that some time or other they are going to have the rights which they have claimed.

The Claimant Who Wins

There is nothing more pathetic anywhere, wrecks of manhood who haunt the corridors of the house and senate waiting for the justice that will never be theirs. Once in a while congress grants a claim. Generally the congressional favors are bestowed on the least worthy. That seems a hard thing to say, but it is true nevertheless. It has got to be so that the most meritorious claims are those which can command the least influential support. Seediness and merit too often go together. The cases that go through are those which are championed by prosperous attorneys who have a close acquaintance with the men who control legislation.

Not long ago a noted lobbyist died in Washington. He had no occupation except the railroading of bills through congress. He was a coarse, ignorant, vulgar creature, whose principal characteristics were a capacity for making money and a genius for displaying it. Yet this man had among his close companions all but a few of the most conspicuous members of the lower house. He had weekly dinners at his house, which contained one of the finest dining rooms in the city. At these dinners a certain group of representatives were always present. They came early and stayed late. When Tom Reed left congress and it was time to choose a successor it was found that every man who was in the list of those mentioned was among the lobbyist's most constant guests. He never lost one of his cases.

Just Claims Laid By.

On the other hand there was old Billy McGarahan, who trudged the corridors of the capitol for a generation with a claim which was as just as the moral law. Everybody knew that it was just, but it was for so large an amount and old Billy had been at it so long that congress got in the habit of ignoring it. The bill passed the house several times. But never but once did it pass both house and senate in the same congress. When finally it passed both house and senate it was promptly vetoed by President Harrison in a message in which he said: "It has not been possible for me to make such an examination of the history of Mr. McGarahan's claims as would be necessary to form an intelligent judgment as to its merits and just extent." And all the bill did was to submit the title of poor old Billy's land grant to the court of private land claims. He was justly entitled to millions and he died a year or two later in the charity ward of a hospital fighting cheerfully up to the last.

The Usual Fate

That is not the worst of it. Congress not only refuses to submit to the court of claims, created for the purpose, claims which cannot be adjudicated in any other way; but in cases which have been passed upon by the court of claims it refuses to act. Claims involving millions of dollars which the court of claims has passed awarding fixed sums to claimants still remain unsatisfied, because congress refuses to make the necessary appropriations, while the claimants to whom the money is legally due are living in Washington in poverty and often distress.

There is no creditor quite so merciless as the United States government and no debtor quite so unscrupulous.

ALARM WATCHES.

The newest thing in alarm timepieces is an alarm watch, says the New York Sun. It looks like an ordinary watch, but has a gong in its interior.

You set it at the hour you want it to go off, and wind it just as you would an alarm clock, and it goes off at the time set with a clatter of astonishing vigor and volume of sound, when the size of the mechanism is considered. The alarm watch may be used to serve the usual purpose of an alarm clock, the man carrying it as a watch by day, setting it and winding it as an alarm, and placing it perhaps on a chair at his bedside or under his pillow at night. It is carried by travelers as an ordinary watch, to be used, besides, as an alarm clock to wake them up to catch trains; and it may be used as a reminder of an engagement by day.

They are not expensive, these alarm watches, a stemwinder in a gun metal case costing eight dollars.

Not for Him.

Uncle John—So you're going to school now. And do you love your teacher.

Willie (age seven)—Oh, pshaw! She's too old fur me.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The police force of Crookston is certainly a credit to that city, as was demonstrated on last Tuesday morning at six o'clock, when the rush was made for positions near the land office door with three hundred people located at different points making a rush for positions. It certainly places the police force in a position to use good judgment to prevent a riot.

RUSH IS ABATING.

Some of the scenes of yesterday were repeated down at the land office this morning, when the time came to commence business. The situation was not so strenuous, however, as fewer people were in the lobby waiting. The anxious ones were admitted in squads of four, as was the practice yesterday, and as in most instances, the land sought had been taken yesterday, the work of disposing of the bunch was done at a rapid rate

In all 225 entries were made in the two days, and nearly 200 were rejected. The morning mails brought the papers from the U. S. commissioners at various points. B. F. Brown, of Bagley, sent in 59 applications, out of which but 14 were accepted, as the land had alrerdy been taken. Parties at Thief River Falls and near there sent in 74 sets of papers, of which but 17 were listed on the books. A hundred filings are expected to reach here from the Rainy river country to-night.

The contests have commenced to come in and from appearances there will be at least 50 filed by the close of business tonight.

Cough Gently.

Few people know how to cough properly. In fact, it never occurs to the ordinary individual that there are a right way and a wrong way of doing it. Yet it is a matter of no small importance. If every sigh means a drop of blood out of the heart, as people say, every cough means some greater or less proportion of time knocked off one's life. Most people cough as loudly and forcibly as they can. Some chronic coughers seem a bit proud of the terrible noise they make. But it is a rather costly noise, for the simple reason that it tears and inflames the lungs.

The lungs consist of an extraordinarily delicate spongelike tissue, which sometimes gets inflamed and choked with phlegm. When we try to get rid of this substance we cough. But, obviously, if we remove it violently we must necessarily injure the delicate lung tissue. Therefore train yourself to cough as gently as possible. After a little practice you will find it quite easy to do so. In that way you will do a minimum of mischief to the lungs and add years to your life.

Plant Misers.

All leaf buds, whether underground or on the bare branches of winter, are plant savings put aside from the superfluity of summer against the proverbial rainy day. The starch of which such organisms consist is to the plant what his savings are to the prudent man, and the common potato is one of the greatest misers of the vegetable world in this respect, for almost the whole of the tuber is made up of starch food, left as a legacy to the young plants represented by the "eyes." This is true of all plants that grow from bulbs.

Some go farther, for they fill a savings bank in the shape of a taproot, which, if left undisturbed, grows larger year by year, to be drawn upon in seasons of drought when other means of subsistence are exhausted. Among these are primroses, carrots, beetroot and turnips, and with these three last this faculty of saving has been developed by man to make the plants a source of profit to himself.

Not Dangerous.

A New York clergyman, who was one of the guests at a beautiful seashore home, was asked to supply the pulpit one Sunday. He had done so the year before, during his visit, and the congregation had been large.

On Saturday afternoon, as he sat in his room, he heard two of the grooms talking as they returned to the stable after having delivered two riding horses at the front door.

"I don't know but I'll go to 'ear 'im at the hafternoon service," said one of them.

"There! I knew you'd come around," said the other in a tone of approval. "He's a well meaning man, and, as I told you, I've heard his twice, and what harm has it done me?"

Asked by the Duke of Somerset to define "the most desirable life," Disraeli answered, "A continued grand procession from manhood to the tomb."

A Cent.

A cent is a little thing, but in the aggregate it is mighty. We speak of the "copper cent," but it is not entirely copper. Its composition is 95 per cent copper, 3 per cent tin and 2 per cent zinc. That alloy is in reality bronze, and the official name of the cent is "bronze." There used to be a copper cent, but an act discontinuing its coinage was passed in 1857. For seven years (1857-64) we had a nickel cent and up to 1857 a copper half cent.

Sounded Like a Reproof.

A lady in passing up a church aisle caught her dress on a corner of a pew and tore it. As the process of tearing was very audible to the congregation the feelings of the lady may be imagined when at that moment the clergyman began the service by reading the sentence:

"Rend your hearts and not your garments."

Rooms to Let.

Maude—So Jack is engaged, is he? And is Lucy the bride to be?

Irene—No; she's the tried to be.

PROPER BREATHING.

INHALE THROUGH THE NOSTRILS, AND NOT THE MOUTH.

Normal Breathing Will Help Materially to Induce Perfect Development—Without Normal Breathing Such Development Is Impossible.

That nature intended man for all climates is unquestioned, but if man live other than nature intended he should be must be content with dire consequences so far as health is concerned. And why is it that certain individuals enjoy better health in certain climates than in others?

To my mind, the reason in a majority of cases is that they are mouth breathers and bear better the mild than the severe climate.

Who are afflicted with chronic nose throat and chest affections? The mouth breather always, and we will never stamp out such conditions as pulmonary tuberculosis, together with numerous other affections of the respiratory tract, until we, the human family, have learned to take every inspiration through the nose.

I have taken the liberty to divide mouth breathers into two classes, confirmed and moderate. The first breathes almost continually with open mouth. The second is not conscious that he breathes other than through the normal channels and will not admit that he does otherwise until you convince him such is the case. It is my custom to engage the doubting one in conversation or have him read for me, when he will be surprised to learn that he has spoken several sentences or read many paragraphs without once closing his mouth. He it is who, after lecturing or reading aloud or perhaps singing, is dry of mouth and husky of speech and wonders why.

Treatment: Restore the nose to as nearly a normal condition, physiologically speaking, as possible, and then insist upon your patient using it. So long as the spray, douche and solution treatment generally are patronized just so long will we fail to get good results, for, as Dr. Leland remarks, the nose wants air and not water.

Douching and spraying are contrary to nature and should never be practiced.

When the patient is a mouth breather through habit, and this may be determined by having him breathe first through one nostril and then through the other, it is my custom to order him to breathe forcibly through his nostrils at the rate of one respiration per second for ten seconds, this to constitute one exercise, to be repeated often, perhaps eight or ten times during the day. He will find that this more than compensates for his spray, for having used the spray in the morning he is "filled up," as he expresses it, long before noon. His nose he can exercise at will and thus keep it free. The exercise I prescribe for all patients during the process of repair following operations to be continued until they are confirmed nasal breathers. A mouth guard should be worn at night for a few weeks.

If we are going to cure nasal catarrh and other respiratory difficulties, the respiratory tract being freed of all obstructions and irritable areas, the patient must be taught to breathe normally.

Irritable areas are not always detected by the probe; therefore we cannot depend upon that method, but must note that these patches have a characteristic appearance. They are found not only in the nose, but oftentimes in the nasopharynx and pharynx as well and are of a pale, waterlogged appearance. They may be obliterated surgically or by cauterization, and if the nose thereafter is properly used like areas do not return. This may be said for all hypertrophic removals. To bring about a permanent patency of the eustachian tube the individual must become a nasal breather. Therefore it is absolutely essential to overcome or permanently improve most varieties of deafness and tinnitus aurium that the patient breathe through the nose at all times. The eustachian catheter is often harmful, acting as a mechanical irritant and thus assisting the progress of an already thickened and perhaps irritable membrane.

The dilatation of the cheeks of the patient and the inflation perhaps for the first few treatments of air medicated and thereafter with air in its purity, or Professor Politzer's method, the patient being careful between times to continue his breathing exercise, are vastly superior to other forms of inflation. Air is what the thickened eustachian orifice needs to return it to a normal state, and this applies to the thickened or collapsed eustachian tube and middle ear as well, also the accessory nasal cavities.

The oxygen treatment is familiar, but why use oxygen artificially when air breathed normally will supply it?

Your patient can go to a milder climate and breathe with open mouth and be benefited, but would it not be far better for him to remain at home, breathe through his nose and fully recover?

Commence with the babe. Make it a special point that it breathe through the nose. If it cannot know the reason why. Certainly if the Indian mother recognized the necessity and insisted that her babe breathe properly the civilized mother of today should. Follow it from babyhood to childhood. Impress the necessity upon it as a child, and, barring accident, it will never breathe otherwise. If it is found following an accident from a fall or blow that the nose is not free have the fault corrected. Normal breathing will help materially to bring about perfect development, and without normal breathing such development cannot be attained.—Medical Record.

The Bashi-bazouk.

Like each of the various clans of the Kurds, the bashi-bazouk can easily be distinguished by his costume. His shoes or "yemenys" (meaning leather) are red or black. His golflike stockings, which leave the knee exposed, are elaborately embroidered in black, his short Turkish trousers are of homespun, while about his waist is a short sash of wool or silk, surmounted by a leather belt in rich colors and embossed in red. This is divided into three or four sections, in which be keeps his revolver, his chibouk or pipe and his yataghan, always kept sharp. The bashibazouks never carry daggers, as the Circassians do. A cartridge box hangs from the side, as also a small silver snuffbox. They wear two jackets—the under one with short sleeves and the outside one with long. At the elbow is an opening in which they carry in a leather bag written quotations from the Koran as a talisman to protect them from the bullets of the adversary. About the neck is a chain of silver coins, from which is suspended a powder box.

Monte Carlo's Black List.

It is usually imagined that any one may enter the gambling saloons of Monte Carlo and try his or her luck at the tables where roulette, trente-et-quarante and baccarat are played. But the Prince of Monaco has made a rule that no resident in his "dominion" is to be allowed admission, and the privilege is consequently denied his "people."

The casino authorities decline admission on their own account to any person who on a previous occasion may have lost all his money at the tables and may have had to ask for financial assistance from them to procure a railway ticket for home.

To secure this money one goes to the office of the administration, which is at the top of a steep staircase, and after signing sundry documents the victim has to sit to a photographer. This photograph is preserved for future reference, and the man who is on this black list has very little chance of renewing acquaintance with the gilded saloons until he has repaid the debt.

Holding Up a Bank.

Perhaps the first Confederate bank raided by Union soldiers was one at Charleston, Va., as Milroy was making his way up the Shenandoah valley.

"Bumming" was in its infancy then, but a dozen of the fellows found themselves ahead of the army and resolved to strike for a big stake. They made a sudden attack on the town at daylight and then dashed in and made for the bank. They broke in the door with an ax, obliged the banker to unlock his safe and something like $600,000 was carried away as they retreated.

A day later they bundled up $100,000, strapped it on the back of an old lame mule and hired a farmer to deliver the "wealth" to General Milroy in person. Accompanying the money was a note, which advised the general to bribe the Confederates to keep ahead of him and do no fighting. As his military maneuvers had been checkmated right along and his reputation was under a cloud, it was a hard shot at him. The story got to Washington and was commented on by President Lincoln, and it has been asserted that the president's levity caused the general to tender his resignation.

Electrical Fishes.

The electrical fishes do not belong to any one class or group—some are found in fresh water, while others inhabit the sea. They possess two distinct types of electrical organs. One closely relates in structure to muscle, as found in the torpedo, gymnotus and skate, while the other presents more of the characters of the structure of a secreting gland, as illustrated by the electrical organ of the thunderfish. Both types are built upon a vast number of microscopical elements, each of which is supplied with a nerve fiber. These nerve fibers come from large nerves that originate in the nerve centers, brain or spinal cord, and in these centers are found special large nerve cells, with which the nerve fibers of the electric organs are connected and from which they spring. Yet the electricity is generated in the electric organ itself. In these animals there are specialized organs for the production of electricity on an economical basis far surpassing anything yet contrived by man.—American Inventor.

Prepared For the Worst.

Mr. Brown's enemies say that there is nothing else in the world he enjoys so much as finding fault and putting other people in the wrong. When engaged in this pleasing occupation, he loses all hold on a sense of humor, which is none too keen at other times.

Not long ago he and his wife were taking a trip through the White mountains, and at one place they were to be called at half past 5 in the morning to take an early train. Mr. Brown awakened first and after a glance at his watch fell back on his pillow with a groan that frightened his wife out of her slumbers.

"Here it is on the tick of half past 5," grumbled Mr. Brown in response to his wife's troubled questions, "and if they don't call us within five minutes we shan't have time enough to get dressed and eat breakfast. But it's no more than I expected."

Useless Purchases.

Two eminent French gentlemen, who were great friends, used to relate an amusing story of their impecunious days. Neither fame nor fortune had come to them, but they were always hopeful. The years had weighed heavily enough upon Jules, however, for him to have become entirely bald. One day Alphonse met him with a beaming countenance and cried gayly: "What do you think, Jules? I have been buying a strong box!" "Then, Alphonse," replied Jules firmly, "I shall buy a hairbrush!"

A Substitute Watch Crystal.

Did you ever smash your watch crystal just when you could not possibly replace it? When it happens again, shake out the broken glass, open the little rim that holds it—the bezel—lay over the face a piece of tissue paper and shut the bezel. This will save the hands from catching in things and not interfere with the going.

Thin Lips Better Than Thick.

In order to articulate well one must be able to move the lips with the greatest facility. A person with thick lips cannot move them quickly; there is too much of them, and the muscles which move them are clogged and have no fair chance of performing their work. Thin lips are easily worked, so as to allow the mouth to be quite free for the emission of the sounds that make words, and consequently the possessor of them can speak fluently. A mustache and a beard which covers the under lip to the mouth are both a hindrance to clear speaking. They impede the articulation in the same way as thick lips, and the words get partly lost.

The Ingenious Magpie.

The magpie is nothing if not ingenious. He always barricades his bulky nest with thorn branches, so that to plunder it is by no means an easy matter, but when circumstances oblige the "pie" to build in a low bush or hedge—an absence of lofty trees being a marked feature of some northern localities—he not only interlaces his home, but also the entire bush, in a most formidable manner. Nor does he stop here. To "make assurance doubly sure" he fashions a means of exit as well as an entrance to the castle, so that if disturbed he can slip out by his back door, as it were.

An Odd Gypsy Custom.

In Hungary, when the question of the baby's future comes up for discussion among the gypsies, there is no time wasted in argument. A blanket is held by the four corners and the baby is thrown into the air. If it comes down on its little stomach it is a sign that it is going to be a musician; if it falls on its back it is to be a thief, and the education of the child is begun as soon as possible in one of these two time honored professions.

Press On.

"Press on" solves the problem of all heroes. It is the rule by which to judge of all wonderful success and all triumphal marches to fortune and honor. It should be the motto of all—"Press on." Never despair. Never allow yourself to be discouraged, however stormy the heavens or dark the way or heavy the difficulties or repeated the failures.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

Artists' Anachronisms.

Some years ago there was exhibited in London a beautiful picture of an eighteenth century interior, perfect in every detail but one, for on a wall of the interior was a small picture of a very up to date locomotive, and in the same year the writer saw among the academy pictures a presentment of a cavalier, evidently waiting impatiently for his lady to keep the tryst, consulting a watch which would have done credit to a twentieth century watchmaker, while on another canvas a peninsular veteran, who was fighting his battles over again for the benefit of admiring rustics at the village inn, was wearing an unmistakable Victoria cross about forty years before this badge of valor came into existence.

In his magnificent picture in the Royal Exchange of scared Londoners escaping in boats from the horrors of the great fire of 1666 Stanhope Forbes introduced vessels of a type which, it is said, the Thames has never known, and another artist of repute armed the children of Israel with guns, presumably for self protection, while they were occupied in gathering manna.—Stray Stories.

Knew What He Was Doing.

The affability of a candidate for parliamentary honors has a great effect and many a vote is secured by reason of it. But it would seem that friendliness and affability are sometimes indulged in for quite a different reason when men are wooing a constituency. An incident in an east end [illegible] proved this. One of the candidates was extremely gushing, and the election agent, when in conversation with a keen supporter, said:

"It is a grand idea, that of Mr. [illegible]. He is not only not satisfied with shaking hands with the voters in the ordinary way, but whenever he meets one he grabs both hands and shakes them effusively."

"I see," said the supporter, "but don't you think [illegible] doing it?"

"Well, it may look [illegible]," replied the agent, "but Mr. [illegible] knows his business, and he knows that so long as he holds on to both of their hands his watch is safe."—London Tit-Bits.

A Striking Presentiment.

It is curious how future events are occasionally prefigured by some anticipatory token which, unlike presentiments and premonitory dreams, makes perhaps no impression at the time on those whom they concern.

Here is a striking example: One of Charles Dickens' sons, from some childish oddity of expression in his large, wondering eyes, was given by his father the very unique sobriquet of the "Ocean Specter," by which he was always called. The great novelist never knew of the weird significance his playfully bestowed appellation was to bear, for he himself had been nearly two years in his grave at the time his little "Ocean Specter," then a lieutenant in the royal navy, died and was buried at sea.

A Monument to Folly.

There stands on Chatham hill in England a colossal structure known as "Jezreel tower," which was erected some years ago by a religious sect, now extinct, called Jezreelites. Their leader preached a faith, which promised immortality to all its believers. Money flowed into its exchequers, and the Temple of Jezreel was begun "for the housing of 144,000 persons who were not to taste death." Before it was completed the faith of the Jezreelites received a double shock from the disappearance of their money and the death of their leader. But the great mass of bricks and iron still remains, a monument to latter day credulity.

A Pretty Compliment.

Sir William Harcourt, a political rival but still an admirer of Disraeli, once paid a pretty compliment to Lady Beaconsfield.

He was dining with the Disraelis and sat beside the hostess, who observed that he was looking at the picture of a lightly robed lady on the wall opposite and said, "It oughtn't to be allowed in here, but it is going to the Venus that Dizzy has up in his bedroom." "That I can well believe," replied he with a gallant bow. This was one of the rare occasions on which Disraeli smiled.—Meynell's Biography of Beaconsfield.

How to Care For Jewels.

People who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to damp, says Home Notes. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting. Don't forget this when near the fire if you happen to wear an opal ring.

Wise.

Though worth several millions, Hugh McLaughlin, the Brooklyn democratic boss, spends very little money on himself, his clothing at times being absolutely shabby. His chief lieutenant, James Shevlin, is a relative by marriage and a dealer in shoes, says a New York exchange. "Come over to my store," said Shevlin one day, "and get you a pair of good shoes made." The old man demurred at first, but finally consented and was measured for a fine pair. Shortly afterward he received a bill for $12, just about three times as much as he is accustomed to pay for footwear. He looked at the document gravely for a minute, wrote across the face of it: "Collect from Shevlin; he's responsible," remailed it to the sender and heard nothing more about the matter.

ART ENTHUSIASM.

It Did Beat All How Much Animation There Was in the Picture.

When the artist son of John Harper was a raw student his father was very much interested in his work. One day he saw a newly finished picture on the easel, relates the New York Times.

"Ah! that's fine," he burst out, "fine! There's lots of life, lots of animation in that, my boy. You've struck the right thing now—life and action."

"But, father, I don't understand what you mean."

"Why, that picture has action, movement in it. Look at those horses, rearing and tearing ahead, tugging at the reins—and their riders are standing up in their stirrups, shouting and waving their sabers over their heads—the whole picture is movement and animation. What is it—Napoleon's last charge at Waterloo?"

"No, father, that's your beet patch in a strong wind."

Chicago's First Railway Half Century.

Under the above heading the Railway Age, in referring to the recent centennial celebration of the city of Chicago, said:

The world had not heard of railways in 1803. It was about 25 years after the starting of Chicago before the first locomotive went into service in the United States. As early as 1836 a few far-seeing men among the pioneers in the country between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river determined that a railway ought to be built to Galena, an ambitious town in the lead mining regions, 150 miles to the northwest of this point. They secured a charter for the Galena & Chicago Union railroad, giving Galena the honor of precedence in the title, because it was the more important place. Why was it determined that the first railroad should start for Galena from this little town on Lake Michigan? Simply because there were a few men here of the railway building spirit. These men might have started a Chicago at some other point on the lake more attractive by nature than this. The pioneer railway was to determine the location of the greatest railway center in the world, and when William B. Ogden and his associates determined that here should be the starting point of the railway to unite Galena with the lake, they did the thing which made Chicago.

It was 12 years after the charter was granted before the first piece of road was completed. The panic of 1837 stopped the surveys, and construction was not begun until 1847, but on November 20, 1848, the Galena & Chicago Union Railroad ran its first train from Chicago west to Harlem, 10 miles. Within three years it had reached Elgin, 43 miles, and by 1854 had been extended to Freeport, 120 miles westerly from Chicago, where it stopped for good. The Galena road never reached Galena. The gap of 51 miles between Freeport and the original goal of its ambition was substantially filled by the construction of the Illinois Central on its way to Dubuque, and the Galena & Chicago Union company, having decided on a more direct line to the Mississippi river, built the "Dixon Air Line" from Turner Junction on the old road, 30 miles west of Chicago, on to the Mississippi, which was reached at the end of 1855. The pioneer road had built a branch, from Belvidere, Ill., into Wisconsin and was proposing an extension to the northwest when a competitor, under the name of the Chicago, St. Paul & Fond du Lac, began to build a road direct from Chicago into the same Wisconsin territory. That road became the Chicago & Northwestern, and its line now forms the Wisconsin division of the present company. In 1864 the Galena & Chicago Union Railroad company was consolidated with the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company and disappeared from the scene of action. In 1866 the Chicago & Northwestern absorbed the Chicago & Milwaukee and Milwaukee & Chicago railroad companies, which had built a line between the places named in their titles, and this was the origin of the Milwaukee division of the Northwestern road. The Chicago & Northwestern system and the entire railway system of the Northwest therefore, started in 1848 from the Galena & Chicago Union road, and it was fitting that to commemorate the inauguration of the tremendous interest to which Chicago owes so much the city should place in the wall of the modern Northwestern Railway station a tablet marking the site of the first railway depot in Chicago.

Which?

The president had an informal reception in his office recently and a number of visitors were presented to him. One lady introduced herself as from Jacksonville, Fla., and said: "Mr. President, I have come all this way just to see you. I have never seen a live president before." Mr. Roosevelt seemed much amused. "Well, well," he said. "I hope you don't feel disappointment now that you have seen one. Lots of people in these parts go all the way to Jacksonville to see a live alligator. I wonder which kind of a tourist feels the most sold."

BETHSAIDA.

A Tale of the Time of the Caesars—By Malcolm Dearborn, Author of "Lionel Ardon."

This story covers an interesting period, that of the brutal Tiberius Caesar and the trial and death of Christ. There are two scenes in which the Saviour figures, as he is being led to execution, and the effect his presence produces on the two chief personages of the story is graphically described.

The hero, Aristarchus, is a Roman noble of great wealth. His father, Petronius, has been doomed to death by order of Augustus Caesar, whom he had unintentionally offended. On his last night on earth, while Petronius was looking from the roof of his palace, he witnessed a strange light in the heavens. It rose, paused, vibrated, then slowly disappeared in its course towards Syria.

While he was still gazing at it, a slave approaches and announces to him the birth of a son. The Roman marvels, and at once associates the wondrous light in the heavens with the birth of his son. The light, of course, was the star of Bethlehem, proclaiming the birth of Christ, whose influence over Petronius' son makes up the main incidents of the story. That night Petronius dies by his own hand to avoid the ignominious death planned for him by Augustus.

Aristarchus, grown to manhood, becomes disgusted with the materialism and vapid luxury of Rome, and is, moreover, involved in a quarrel with Tiberius during one of the latter's drunken orgies. He flies Rome, and turns Eastward in his course. There he learns of the strange fame of the "Nazarene," whom he forwith desires to see. His wish is granted by a sight of Jesus as he is being led to execution. The effect upon the Roman is intense; its revolutionizes his whole life.

The heroine, Bethsaida, who gives name to the story, is a maiden of humble birth, but of strange character and commanding beauty. Her father has trained her to be a dancing girl at the court of Pilate. She, too, sees Christ as he is being led to death, and the effect wrought causes her to plan a flight from the influence of Pilate and his court.

Chance brings about a meeting between her and Aristarchus, and their mutual experiences in the encounter with Christ form a bond between the strangely assorted pair, whose training and environment had been so foreign to one another.

The alternate bursts of tyranny and kindliness that distinguish Pilate, whose love for his wife, Claudia, despite his infidelity to her, is his one saving trait, make an engaging study. Claudia herself will, doubtless, appeal to many readers as the most loveable character in the book. Her justice, religious sympathy and devotion are well depicted.

The tone of the book is that of unquestioning belief in the miraculous birth and mission of Christ.

IOWA'S BIG ONION CROPS.

Scott County Farmers Are Making Good Incomes Raising the Pungent Vegetable.

One of the greatest onion growing districts in the United States, often quoted as the greatest, is that which lies along the Iowa shore of the Mississippi river above here and has Davenport as its market and shipping point. The onion is known as the "Scott county orange," and is one of the main agricultural staples of this region. Just now it is being sent in carload after carload to St. Louis, the principal point of distribution over the south. There are some shipments to other southern points, even as far as New Orleans, but St. Louis is the great jobbing point to which the commission houses here consign. Chicago gets a fair slice of the crop, Cincinnati takes some and there are scattering shipments to other points, but St. Louis has long been the principal consignee.

The harvest has been on here several weeks, says a recent Davenport report. The crop is fine and, though the average is not as great this year as it has been in some past years, there appears now to be a total product here of 150 to 200 carloads, running about 600 bushels to the car. The quality is excellent this year and the market has held firmly around the price of 50 cents per bushel. Usually the price sags by this time, but this year it has held up well. The failure of the crop, in part or in whole, in other onion growing regions is understood to be the reason of this stiffness.

There is a tract in Ohio that grows good onions, and there is another in Nebrasko, about 40 miles west of Omaha, but the Scott county, Iowa, onion field has for 60 years been the big one, and one that could always reckoned upon. There have been very few failures here. The quality has fluctuated with the season, sunburn and rot appearing at times to do mischief, but usually the red onion of Scott county has been well at the top of the market. It has made more than one man rich in this part of the country, and it is paying big dividends this year.

There is no crop that a northern farmer can raise that means so much money to him as the onion. Unfortunately, the opportunities in that direction are few, for there is not much prime onion land in the country. When the Scott county tract was new, in the earliest '40's, it was no difficult thing to get 1,000 bushels from an acre of it. Nearly that yield has been gathered in recent years where the fields have been well maintained with fertilizers and cultivation. Five hundred and 600 bushels to the acre are more usual, but still higher yields are often got. There is a good deal of work in making the crop, cultivation being a large item, so it is reckoned that it takes $40 to $50 an acre to grow onions. In times of low prices the margin is reduced, but it is still large, except when a glut of onions lets the bottom quite out of the market. Once or twice within the lost 25 years onions here have been down to ten cents and even eight cents a bushel, with practically no sales at those prices, but the average has been far above those figures, and at a price that meant large returns.

There is more money in onions than in corn 20 times over, provided that the land is adapted to onion growing. A yield of 500 bushels to the acre at this year's prices has meant a profit of $200 or more per acre; and in those cases where the farmer and his family did the work, hiring nothing, they have absorbed the cost of cultivation and made just that much more. The best Scott county onion land is held at hundreds of dollars per acre and is rarely sold. It is usually farmed in fields of small or moderate size, but there are many small patches, tracts of an acre or two, or a fraction of an acre, that are made to yield astonishingly.

The crop is always shipped in gunny sacks, holding about two bushels, never in bulk. During the onion harvest here there are usually weeks when the streets are blocked by the wagons of the onion growers, waiting their chance to get to the warehouse, unloading or getting away. The steamers usually carry a good part of the shipments to St. Louis, though there is a very large balance that goes there by rail. In the colder weather all the shipments, of course, are made by rail.

There are always some growers who hold their crop of onions until well into the winter or even the spring. While there is a possibility of loss by freezing, and certainly some loss by rotting and always some shrinkage, there are now and then onion markets in the springtime that are simply golden in their chances of easy wealth for the man who has onions to sell. It was a recent affair here that a group of Scott county onion raisers held back their crop until the severe weather was past. The fall market had been about 35 cents a bushel. In the spring they got their onions off with no heavy shrinkage on their hands at a price around $1.25. There have been other years when the stock of late onions went still higher. It is believed that, notwithstanding the very good market this fall, a number of growers here will try to carry at least a part of their stock through to the next season, expecting that a firm price this fall cannot fail to bring a correspondingly higher figure next year.

Where the Saving Comes In.

Smith—Don't you consider the printing of the Congressional Record an unnecessary waste of money?

Jones—On the contrary I think it is a great saving. If all the speeches that are printed in the record were spoken at the capitol, we should have congress sitting all the year round, including nights and Sundays.—Boston Transcript.

That Is in the Case of a Young Lady Who Was a Scale Breaker.

He kneels at the feet of the heiress.

Now, in order to make plain what is to follow, let us state that the heiress weighs 300 pounds, says Judge. True love, however, we will concede for the sake of argument, knows no waist-lines. And no woman is ever so fat as her fortune. Therefore, to proceed, messieurs.

He kneels, as we have previously said, at the feet of the heiress.

"You are all the world to me!" he exclaims.

"What?" she pants. "You wretch! are you aware of the fact that the equator is the largest diameter of the world?"

In vain does he argue that the equator is an imaginary line. This only makes it worse.

Metaphorically, she sits down on him; metaphorically, he is crushed.

Has He Found It?

Polk, Ark., Nov. 9.—A remedy that will absolutely cure Rheumatism has been discovered by Mr. George Hiland of this place. Mr. Hiland is satisfied that the remedy he has used is a sure cure, for it cured him of a very serious case of Acute Rheumatism when he was so bad that he could not move. This is what he says:—

"I was troubled with what is called Acute Rheumatism in 1900. I was in such shape that I could not move without help. I was treated by a physician, who helped me some, but I was still in great pain when my wife saw Dodd's Kidney Pills advertised as a cure for Rheumatism. She insisted on my trying them, and I felt better after taking the first box. I continued, and now I am well and able to work all the time. I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills to be just what they are claimed to be, a perfect cure for Rheumatism."

Mr. Hiland's very positive statement seems to settle all doubt as to whether or not Rheumatism can be cured.

MARSHALL FIELD AND CO.'S WAREHOUSE MANAGER

Cured of Catarrh of Kidneys by Pe-ru-na.

HON. JOHN T. SHEAHAN, OF CHICAGO.

Hon. John T. Sheahan, who has been for seventeen years manager of Marshall Field & Co.'s wholesale warehouse, and is corporal 2d Regiment Infantry, I. N. G., writes the following letter from 3753 Indiana avenue, Flat Six, Chicago, Ill.:

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen—"Last summer I caught a cold which seemed to settle in my kidneys and affected them badly. I tried a couple of kidney remedies largely advertised, but they did not help me any. One of my foremen told me of the great help he had received in using Peruna in a similar case, and I at once procured some.

"It was indeed a blessing to me, as I am on my feet a large part of the day, and trouble such as I had affected me seriously, but four bottles of Peruna cured me entirely and I would not be without it for three months salary."—JOHN T. SHEAHAN.

Mr. Jacob Fleig writes from 44 Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.:

"I am now a new man at the age of seventy-five years, thanks to your wonderful remedy Peruna."—Jacob Fleig.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," may be either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victims.

At the appearance of the first symptom Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.

THE CIVIL SERVICE

Nearly Ten Years of Service for Commissioner Proctor.

AN UNPOPULAR DEPARTMENT

Where Democrats and Republicans Are the Best of Friends—A Red-Headed Congressman from Kansas—Other Gossip.

John R. Proctor

Washington.—John R. Proctor will celebrate next month the tenth anniversary of his appointment as civil service commissioner.

He has had an extraordinary record in that position. His term of service represents almost exactly one-half the life of the commission and he has survived republican and democratic administrations with equal facility. He has seen the entire personnel of the commission except himself change no less than four times since he has held the office of president. Eight commissioners have come and gone, beginning with Theodore Roosevelt and ending with James R. Garfield.

Curiously enough, Proctor was first appointed president of the commission on the recommendation of Mr. Roosevelt who was then nearing the end of his service and who proposed Proctor to President Cleveland as the best man to keep the commission going in a democratic administration along the lines laid down. Roosevelt and Cleveland were the only two men who knew anything about the appointment in advance, for Proctor was never much of a political factor. At the time he was state geologist of Kentucky, a place he had occupied for 13 years, and he was a member of the jury of awards for mines and mining at the Columbian exposition.

When Cleveland called him to Washington and told him what he wanted Proctor objected. "The only thing I am interested in," he said, "is the Appalachian mountains. This will take me away from that work."

"Oh, don't bother about that," said the president. "You won't have much to do here. Whenever you want to go away for a month or two, we can fix it up easily enough."

So Proctor accepted, but he hasn't yet been able to get away as Cleveland promised him.

Proctor and Roosevelt.

Two Chums

Mr. Proctor is a close personal friend of the president—a friendship which has continued now for many years.

It is true that he classes himself as a democrat, but his political leanings are not strong, and he voted for McKinley in 1896 and 1900. Besides he is an expansionist of a radical type, and on that point he is thoroughly in harmony with the president.

But politics aside, the president and the civil service commission are decidedly chummy. Proctor is at the white house about as much as he is at the commission. He is a great favorite with the children, as well as with the old folks, and, altogether, he is almost one of the family. He rides with the president oftener than anybody else, and that is one of the ties that bind the two together. He is a splendid horseman, with all the native Kentuckian's love for a fine animal. He is fond of outdoor sports of every kind, and although he is within a few months of 60, and served several years with the confederate army, he looks hardly a day older than the president, who is 15 years his junior. But a man who has been a soldier, a farmer, a geologist and a civil service commissioner keeps young by the force of circumstances.

A good many public men think that Proctor carries his civil service reform theories too far, and that he is too much enamored of the machinery of the system. But they know he is honest and pugnacious, and they respect him even while they disagree with him sometimes.

Civil Service Experiences.

New Rules While You Wait

The civil service commission once in awhile has an interesting experience. Newly elected senators and representatives generally come to Washington with a prejudice against the commission, and a quiet determination to wipe it off the face of the earth. They don't stay here long before they begin to realize that however unpopular that body may be the only thing to do is to grin and bear it. The civil service law never was popular with congress, and yet it has continued to wax strong in spite of its unpopularity.

The fighting aggressiveness, first of Commissioner Roosevelt and then of Commissioner Proctor, has had much to do with this. Even the most hardened opponent of the system could not withhold admiration from two such manly advocates.

Every little while the commission breaks out with a new set of regulations which prove a stumbling block for those in search of knowledge. That circumstance gives rise to some amusing experiences. Not long ago Senator Pettus, of Alabama, drifted into the commission's offices. Senator Pettus is the oldest man in congress, a hard-headed and able citizen with a keen sense of humor. He had a problem for Commissioner Proctor to solve. The commissioner explained it all out in great detail, while Pettus listened gravely. Finally Proctor asked him if it was perfectly clear.

"Yes," said the senator. "It is clear enough; but the trouble with your infernal commission is that whenever I come up here and get the rules down fine I don't have time to ride down in the elevator before you bring out a new set of regulations and I have to learn them all over again."

"I'm glad you spoke of that, senator," said the commissioner, gravely. "That elevator is old fashioned and we've been bothered about its slowness for a long time. I wish you would try to get an appropriation for a new one."

The old senator looked at the commissioner blankly for a minute. Then he turned and walked out of the room. "You people are altogether too much for me," he snorted as he disappeared through the door.

A Red-Headed Congressman.

VOTE FOR RED HEADS.
RED-HEAD CAMPAIGN.

Shouting for Red Heads

Victor Murdock is the handsome young fellow who has just been elected to congress from Kansas to represent the district left vacant by the promotion of Representative Long to the senate—the same district that held fame for a time as the home of Sockless Jerry Simpson.

Murdock is pretty sure to be pointed out in the house — first because he is young; second, because he is good looking, and third, on account of the peculiar manner of his election.

When Mr. Long retired from the house to become a senator young Mr. Murdock promptly announced himself as a candidate for the succession. It looked rather dubious at the start, for he was a new hand at it and not very well known in the district; but he hit on a scheme that proved a winner.

Murdock has a superb suit of red hair. There were 17 other candidates in the field, and one of them also had red hair. So Murdock went to him and struck a bargain. It was agreed that the two should make their canvass on the red-headed issue, and that at an opportune moment the weaker of the two should withdraw from the race in favor of the other. Murdock then set at it. He made a whirlwind campaign on the cry that the red-headed men ought to be represented in congress. He quoted statistics to show that one man out of ten had a red head, and that proportion did not hold in congress. He made an impregnable case on that issue, and the other red-headed man followed suit. The novelty of the canvass caught the fancy of the district, and when at the psychological moment the other, who was found to be the weaker, withdrew the momentum was so strong that Murdock won the nomination in a walk. Then he went into the campaign for election on the same issue, and won out again.

THE Gubernational race is warming up.

JUDGE COLLINS can not properly enter the gubernatorial race without running the risk of falling between two stools.

THE McIntosh Tribune under the new management of E. King, is improving in appearance with each issue. May it continue to prosper and receive the support due from the business men of McIntosh.

THE Minneapolis Sunday Tribune's colored supplement made a mistake in removing Mugsey the mischievous hoy from appearing weekly, if it is their desire to please the patrons of that excellent paper.

A MOVEMENT is being made by the butchers of Crookston to get the city council to pass an ordinance to prohibit the farmers from selling dressed beef in the city, but it will hardly go, as there is some good people in that city who are not in the butcher business. There is no good reason why a laboring man employed at a salary of $1,50 per day, with a family to support, should be compelled to pay 10 cents a pound for meat when he can buy it for five, just because he happens to live in Crookston.

HE WAS AT HOME.

J. F. Davis, the second filer for land Nov. 10th, has certainly got a good case to present to the land office in case of contest. Mr. Davis left his family on his claim, twenty miles north-east of Fosston, on which he has valuable improvements and went to Crookston and filed his homestead on the land at the first opportunity.

We quote the following from the second chapter of Genesis, which was the first law book:

And the Lord God said, it is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a help meet for him.

And out of the ground the Lord God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and brought them unto Adam to see what he would call them: and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof,

And Adam gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field; but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

And the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof;

And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man.

And Adam said, this is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called woman, because she was taken out of man.

Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

What better, honest intentions could a settler have to present to Uncle Sam that he wanted a home; first he builds a house and moves his family into it, improves his land and makes it his home for a number of years, and when the government opens it for homestead entry he leaves his family at home and goes to the U. S. Land Office and pays his $14.00 and files a homestead on it.

During his absence speculators may move dry-goods boxes on his homestead, dig holes in the ground, place logs accross each other and brake a few furrows. The wife is at home looking after the stock and family. The husband is at Crookston filing his homestead entry Who is entitled to this homestead? The family that have occupied and improved it for years, or the speculator who went on to it during the absence of the husband,

NEW RED LAKE BILL.

Congressman Steenerson has about completed a bill providing for the opening of the Red Lake Indian reservation and will soon introduce it.

It differs in many respects from the bill which passed congress at the last session, the most important feature being the inclusion of sections 16 and 36, which under the new bill will go to the Indians instead of the state for school purposes.

The bill will not provide for any payment to the Pembina Indians and will provide explicitly for the manner in which lands will be sold.

It is claimed that the Pembina tribe is strongly represented in Washington by some attorneys who have succeeded thus far in preventing the ratification of any treaty unless a stipulation for such payments are included.

The Red Lake Indians will consent to the Steenerson bill as drawn and have so stated to him.

The Pembina's, according to Mr. Steenerson's views, are not warranted in interfering with the Red Lake proposition, and if they have a legitimate claim he thinks they should submit it in some other way than to oppose the opening of Red Lake lands. The Pembina's and their counsel will find that Congressman Steenerson means business and that he will oppose any hold up methods which have been threatened.

Mr. Steenerson will probably introduce his bill during the special session.

CARPENTERS IN INDIA.

They Are Careless About Measurements, Tools and Time.

The chief faults of the Indian carpenter are his neglect of accurate measurement, his carelessness with regard to the efficiency of his tools and his lack of perception of the value of time as a factor in the execution of work. He has also to be taught to occupy his mind with the work in hand and as much as possible to exclude other subjects.

For example, the making of a jack plane involves the choice of the wood, considerations as to size, the angle of the blade and its cutting edge, the wedge and its holding power, the handle and finally the operation of planing. All these operations are capable of very simple explanation, and this exercise provokes an emulation among students while exercising their reasoning powers. No Indian workman buys a plane. He buys the blade and makes the rest, but he rarely makes it well. He buys a saw blade and makes the handle, and generally [illegible]. He spends the smallest possible sum on his outfit in spite of the extra labor the economy involves. He must therefore be taught to make as many labor saving tools as possible and to make them well. He has to be taught the use and repair of a grindstone and how to mount it in wood without metal fittings. The hard, tough woods so common in India make this an easy matter. The Indian has yet to be taught that grinding and whetting are two distinct operations, the first removing 99.9 per cent of the metal and the second producing the cutting edge in a few strokes. His saw is in such bad order that he cuts tenons, as a rule, with a mallet and chisel, and his ignorance of gauges renders him unable to make even twenty articles exactly alike. He rarely knows what size of nail or screw to use on a given job. His screw is always too small.—Cassier's Magazine.

APHORISMS.

Nothing ages like laziness.—Bulwer.

The innocent seldom find an uneasy pillow.—Cowper.

We can do nothing well without joy and a good conscience, which is the ground of joy.—Dibbes.

He that is ungrateful has no guilt but one. All other crimes may pass for virtues in him.—Young.

A word or nod from the good has more weight than the eloquent speeches of others.—Plutarch.

Kind words prevent a good deal of that perverseness which rough and imperious usage often produces in generous minds.—Locke.

An inquisitive man is a creature naturally very vacant of thought itself and therefore forced to apply to foreign assistance.—Steele.

The only way to make the mass of mankind see the beauty of justice is by showing them in pretty plain terms the consequence of injustice.—Sydney Smith.

The Young Writer.

No young writer in whom the literary aspiration is a passion need or really will be cowed by the array of mighty and expert antagonists in the arena whose names sound and resound so gloriously from the herald's trumpet in full volume re-enforced by past triumphs. Though a true and becoming modesty may well temper his ambition, it should in no degree suppress his ardent longing. These veterans, young aspirant, are indeed masters, but as such your exemplars. They also had their beginnings, hidden indeed, as used to be the sources of the Nile, "not permitted to be seen small," because they mastered their art before they exhibited as artists.—Harper's Magazine.

Thief Cleverness.

A magistrate's clerk has been known to have his tie pin stolen while in court, and one in Birmingham a few years ago lost his coat in the same way, but a more remarkable example perhaps of a thief's cleverness under the very eyes of the police was that of the burglar at Clerkenwell who managed to conceal two diamond rings while the police were searching him and passed one of them to his wife in the cell while the police were looking on. The rings were under his tongue, and one of them passed from his mouth to his wife's when he was kissing her goodby.—London Answers.

A Lasting Lesson.

"Didn't I tell you not to propose to me again?"

"You said something of the kind, but of course it made no impression on me."

"Oh, it didn't! Well, I'll give you a lesson now that you won't forget. You'll never propose to me again."

"What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to accept you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Buddhism.

Mrs. Dumm—I see a piece in the paper about some society people bein' interested in Buddhism. What's that?

Mrs. Dumber—Why, I guess that must be the doin's of these young society people that's called "buds."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Safest.

Sharpe — Yes, Parker invented the safest air ship ever heard of.

Wheelton—But it refused to fly. You couldn't get up on it.

"That's why I say it was the safest."

Success.

She—And what would you call a successful poet?

He—One who leaves money enough to bury him.—Judge.

A straight line is shortest in morals as well as in geometry.—Rahel.

How to Care For Jewels.

People who have jewels should remember that if turquoises are wetted they are apt to lose color. Pearls should be exposed to light and air as much as possible, but not to damp, says Home Notes. Opals must never be exposed to great heat or they may crack and fall from their setting. Don't forget this when near the fire if you happen to wear an opal ring.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

Prosperity leads often to ambition, and ambition to disappointment.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is medicine for your nerves.

It cures diseases of the internal organs, by giving tone to the nerves which make these organs work.

It is a novel theory—not of anatomy, but of treatment; first discovered by Dr. Miles, and since made use of by many wide-awake physicians, who appreciate its value in treating the sick.

If you are sick, we offer you a way to be made well—Dr. Miles' Nervine.

This medicine is a scientific cure for nerve disorders, such as Neuralgia, Headache, Loss of Memory, Sleeplessness, Spasms, Backache, St. Vitus' Dance, Epilepsy or Fits, Nervous Prostration, etc.

By toning up the nerves, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine will also cure those diseases of the internal organs due to a disordered nervous system.

Some of these are: Indigestion, Bilious Headache, Kidney Trouble, Chronic Constipation, Dropsy, Catarrh, Rheumatism, etc.

"My brother had nervous prostration, and was not expected to live. I prevailed upon him to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and now he has fully recovered. A Human Picture Book.

A remarkable case of tattooing came to light in Professor Hebra's lecture room in a hospital in Vienna some years ago. The man was the subject of a lecture, and one of the spectators at first mistook him for a bronze statue. He was tattooed from head to foot, and not a quarter of a square inch of his entire person was intact. The skin presented an appearance resembling the tracery of an exceedingly rich cashmere shawl. The coloring was done with indigo principally, with enough red inserted here and there to give it effect. His name was George Constantine, a Greek by birth, who with a band of robbers entered Chinese Tartary to commit depredations. The gang was captured, and this man, with others, was ordered by the ruler to be branded in this manner. On the palms of his hands letters were tattooed which explained that he was "the greatest rascal and thief in the world." It took three months to tattoo him, the indigo being pricked into the skin. The designs represented elephants, lions, tigers and birds, with letters worked in between. A couple of dragons ornamented his forehead. He said his body swelled up very much at the time and ever since had been sensitive to changes in the weather.

Gambling the Worst Vice.

Of all the vices to which men are addicted gambling is undoubtedly the worst. Gambling has a worse effect on the mind and conscience even than drink. The inveterate gambler cannot remain honest; he does not remain honest.

We talk earnestly to the young man with the gambling habit because many such young men are strong in ability and character and would render good service to the world if they could use their energies properly.

The gambling instinct is a perverted form of ambition, the most dangerous of human perversions. Every young man who has genuine strength should think about gambling from his own point of view, and his own pride should give him reasons for stopping.

If you want success in life you should want it as a result of your own efforts, not as the result of any accident. The gambling instinct is weak as well as vicious. It is self indulgent and contemptible; it represents the desire to get something for nothing.—New York Journal.

His Hobnailed Shoes.

A globe trotter whose shoe soles are always heavily studded with copper brads was asked why he wore them. He replied:

"To those simple brads alone I attribute my present good health. For years I was an invalid, subject to neuralgia, dyspepsia and headache. In traveling among the western Indians I finally concluded that their splendid good health was due to their going barefoot. And now I attain the same result and wear shoes. I believe the aches and pains civilization is heir to are due to the insulation of our bodies from mother earth. Electricity is the vitalizing constituent of our bodies. The globe is a mighty battery, continually generating and discharging electricity. I restored the broken connection with the battery with these brads, and the result was astonishing improvement in health."

He Ate His Own Words.

Not long ago the punishment for libel in Russia was the requirement that the libeler literally eat his own words. A man who published a small volume reflecting on the unlimited power of the sovereign was seized, tried in a summary way and condemned to consume the objectionable words. In one of the public streets the book was severed from its binding, the margins cut off, the leaves rolled up one by one and fed to the unfortunate author. A surgeon was in attendance to pronounce upon the number possible to give without endangering his life, but he is reported to have set the limit at something like 200.

Carried a Live Shark Ashore.

Jonathan Fowler, a Massachusetts fisherman, once walked out knee deep through the mud and filth of a seashore at low tide to a shark left by the retiring waters, shouldered it and brought it alive on his back to the shore. The shark weighed 500 pounds, quite a load, considering that it was not the most beautiful of articles and that the man had to wade through mud.

Fishing For Plunder.

A visitor to one of the hotels at Peking was awakened during the night by the noise caused by the fall of a roll of paper. Getting out of bed, he saw with astonishment a pole, to which was attached a fishing line, moving about the room, collecting various objects and removing them through the window. Upon going downstairs he was heard by the burglarious Chinaman outside to whom the rod belonged and who escaped, leaving his fishing line behind him.

Nature's Greatest Cure for Men and Women

Swamp-Root is the Most Perfect Healer and Natural Aid to the Kidneys, Liver and Bladder Ever Discovered.

"Swamp-Root Saved My Life."

A FARMER'S STRONG TESTIMONIAL.

I received promptly the sample bottle of your kidney remedy, Swamp-Root.

I had an awful pain in my back, over the kidneys, and had to urinate from four to seven times a night, often with smarting and burning. Brick dust would settle in the urine. I lost twenty pounds in two weeks and thought I would soon die. I took the first dose of your Swamp-Root in the evening at bed time, and was very much surprised; I had to urinate but once that night, and the second night I did not get up until morning. I have used three bottles of Swamp-Root and to-day am as well as ever.

I am a farmer and am working every day, and weigh 190 pounds, the same that I weighed before I was taken sick.

Gratefully yours,

Sec. F. A. & I. U. 504. T. S. APKER,

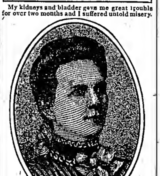
April 9th, 1903. Marsh Hill, Pa.

There comes a time to both men and women when sickness and poor health bring anxiety and trouble hard to bear; disappointment seems to follow every effort of physicians in our behalf, and remedies we try have little or no effect. In many such cases serious mistakes are made in doctoring, and not knowing what the disease is or what makes us sick. Kind nature warns us by certain symptoms, which are unmistakable evidence of danger, such as too frequent desire to urinate, scanty supply, scalding irritation, pain or dull ache in the back—they tell us in silence that our kidneys need doctoring. If neglected now, the disease advances until the face looks pale or sallow, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, feet swell, and sometimes the heart acts badly.

There is comfort in knowing that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in quickly relieving such troubles. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. In taking this wonderful new discovery Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect helper and gentle aid to the kidneys that has ever been discovered.

Swamp-Root a Blessing to Women.

My kidneys and bladder gave me great trouble for over two months and I suffered untold misery.



MRS. E. AUSTIN.

I became weak, emaciated and very much run down. I had great difficulty in retaining my urine, and was obliged to pass water very often night and day. After I had used a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, sent me on my request, I experienced relief and I immediately bought of my druggist two large bottles and continued taking it regularly. I am pleased to say that Swamp-Root cured me entirely. I can now stand on my feet all day without any bad symptoms whatever. Swamp-Root has proved a blessing to me.

Gratefully yours,

MRS. E. AUSTIN,

Those Flats.

The mother with her little ten-year-old daughter was returning to her tiny flat after a call on a friend who resided in a large house, with spacious grounds about it. As she neared the house she sighed and remarked to her little daughter:

"Dolly, when I come back home after visiting Mrs. Wallin I feel as if I had come back to live in a hat box."

Dolly gave a sigh exactly like her mother's and said, dismally:

"How does it happen I have never seen him in passing along here?"

THE MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

President Roosevelt on the Need of Legislation for the Cuban Republic.

WE ARE IN HONOR BOUND TO GIVE THE ISLAND TRADE ADVANTAGES

Says Proposed Reciprocal Arrangements Will Be to Our Advantage Also—The Whole People of the United States Will Be Benefited—Sees Danger in Failure.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The following is President Roosevelt's message to the extraordinary session of congress:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: I have convened the congress that it may consider the legislation necessary to put into operation the commercial treaty with Cuba, which was ratified by the senate at its last session and subsequently by the Cuban government. I deem such legislation demanded, not only by our interest, but by our honor. We cannot with propriety abandon the course upon which we have so wisely embarked. When the acceptance of the Platt amendment was required from Cuba by the action of congress of the United States, this government thereby definitely committed itself to the policy of treating Cuba as occupying a unique position as regards this country. It was provided that when the island became a free and independent republic she should stand in such close relations with us as in certain respects to come within our system of international policy; and it necessarily followed that she must also to a certain degree become included within the lines of our economic policy. Situated as Cuba is it would not be possible for this country to permit the strategic abuse of the plan by any foreign military power. It is for this reason that certain limitations have been imposed upon her financial policy and that naval stations have been conceded by her to the United States. The negotiations as to the details of these naval stations are on the eve of completion. They are so situated as to prevent any idea that there is the intention ever to use them against Cuba, or otherwise than for the protection of Cuba from the assaults of foreign foes, and for the better safeguarding of American interests in the waters south of us.

These interests have been largely increased by the consequences of the war with Spain, and will be still further increased by the building of the Isthmian canal. They are both military and economic. The granting to us by Cuba of the naval stations above alluded to is of the utmost importance from a military standpoint and is proof of the good faith with which Cuba is treating us. Cuba has made great progress since her independence was established. She has advanced steadily in every way. She already stands high among her sister republics of the new world. She is loyally observing her obligations to us; and she is entitled to like treatment by us.

The treaty submitted to you for approval secures to the United States economic advantages as great as those given to Cuba. Not an American interest is sacrificed. By the treaty a large Cuban market is secured to our producers. It is a market which lies at our doors, which is already large, which is capable of great expansion and which is especially important to the development of our export trade. It would be indeed short-sighted for us to refuse to take advantage of such opportunity and to force Cuba into making arrangements with other countries to our disadvantage.

This reciprocity treaty stands by itself. It is demanded on consideration of broad national policy as well as by our economic interest. It will do harm to no industry. It will benefit many industries. It is in the interest of our people as a whole, both because of its importance from the broad standpoint of international policy and because economically it intimately concerns us to develop and secure the rich Cuban market for our farmers, artisans, merchants and manufacturers. Finally, it is desirable as a guaranty of the good faith of our nation towards her young sister republic to the south, whose welfare must ever be closely bound with ours. We gave her liberty. We are knit to her by the memories of the blood and the courage of our soldiers who fought for her in war; by the memories of the wisdom and integrity of our administrators who saved her in peace and who started her so well on the difficult path of self-government. We must help her onward and upward; and in helping her we shall help ourselves.

The foregoing considerations caused the negotiation of the treaty with Cuba and its ratification by the senate. They now with equal force support the legislation by the congress which by the terms of the treaty is necessary to render it operative. A failure to enact such legislation would come perilously near a repudiation of the pledged faith of the nation.

I transmit herewith the treaty, as amended by the senate and ratified by the Cuban government.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Colombia's Protest.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary Hay, during a call at the white house Monday morning, placed in the hands of the president the Colombian protest against the course pursued by the Washington government on the isthmus and its attitude toward the new government of Panama.

ALUM, FLINT AND SULPHURIC ACID.

It is reported that in many localities houses are infested by peddlars trying to sell or introduce so-called "cheap" or low-priced baking powders, either directly or by an order upon a grocer. In most instances deception is used, and it is claimed that the article is a genuine baking powder and has all the merits of a pure article.

Housekeepers should be on their guard against this danger to their food. Alum powders are almost always low priced. But they are well known to be detrimental to health. In England and in some sections of this country their sale is prohibited by law. Congress has forbidden the sale of food containing alum in the District of Columbia. The highest authorities condemn their use. Dr. S. W. Johnson, for instance, Professor of Chemistry at Yale College, says: "Bread made with a baking powder containing alum must yield a soluble alumina salt with the gastric juice, and must, therefore, act as a poison."

It is well known that these so-called "cheap" goods are made from alum or the very cheapest materials. One of them was recently analyzed at Yale College and found to be one-quarter sharp pointed grains of ground flint. Others are filled with sulphuric acid, and salts of lead are also found in them.

In baking powders be sure to get a reputable well-known cream of tartar brand, and never buy from peddlers.

The Doctor's Statement.

St. John, Kans., Nov. 16th.—This town has a genuine sensation in the case of a little boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McBride. Dr. Limes, the attending physician, says:

"Scarlet Fever of a very malignant type brought this child very near to death and when the fever left him, he was semi-paralyzed in the right leg and right arm. He also lost hearing in his right ear and his mind was much affected.

"His parents tried another treatment for a time and when I was recalled I found that he was having spells very like Epilepsy and was very bad and gradually growing worse. I advised the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills and in a short time the child began to improve. Inside of a week the nervous spasms or epileptic seizures ceased altogether."

Mr. and Mrs. McBride have made a sworn statement of the facts and Dr. Jesse L. Limes has added his sworn statement saying that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else cured the fits.

JUDICIAL DIGNITY.

Was Maintained in This Instance At Cost to the Court of the Prisoner.

A certain squire of the city, who betrays his patriotism by presiding in a small office painted red, white and blue, had a case before him the other day which attracted an unusual crowd to the temple of justice. A young fellow was up before him, relates the Pittsburg Dispatch, on a charge of stealing brass, and his friends were out in full force to see that he got a fair show.

Before the case opened the noise and confusion became so great that his honor declared that the next man to indulge in any unusual outbreak would be ejected from the room. He had hardly ceased speaking when a young man shouted, at the same time waving his hat above his head:

"Hooray fur Squire Hooligan!"

"Put him out," roared the court, and in another instant the young man found himself being rushed to the door. Order having been restored once more, his honor ordered that the prisoner be brought before the bar for trial. The court officer hurriedly glanced about through the crowd and then a great light suddenly fell upon him.

"Can't do it your honor," he replied. "The young fellow you just put out was the prisoner."

Dish Washing in Winter.

Housekeepers naturally dread dish washing in winter, owing to the fact that it chaps the hands and renders them hard and rough. Much of the injury, however, results from the use of impure soap. If Ivory soap is used in washing dishes and the hands are carefully rinsed and dried, they will not chap.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Meets to Consider Reciprocity for Cuba and Other Affairs.

In the United States senate on the 16th bills were introduced for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as states. Several protests against Senator Smoot, of Utah, retaining his seat, were presented. In the house a bill was introduced making it a crime punishable by death to participate in the lynching of an alien, and resolutions were presented to amend the constitution so that the president of the United States shall hold his office during one term of six years, and shall not be eligible for another term, and to repeal the fifteenth amendment. The Cuban reciprocity bill was discussed.

The United States senate did not transact any business of importance on the 17th. In the house bills were introduced to place all trust made articles on the free list and making it the duty of the attorney general to bring proceedings to dissolve monopolies charging exorbitant prices for articles of necessity. Four hours were devoted to discussion of the Cuban bill.

Nothing of importance was done in the United States senate on the 18th. In the house the time was occupied in discussing the Cuban bill.

The United States senate on the 19th transacted no business in open session beyond the receipt of bills and petitions. The only incident of unusual character was the appearance of Carrie Nation. The house passed by a vote of 335 to 21 the bill to give effect to the Cuban reciprocity treaty, the opposition being about evenly divided between republicans and democrats.

DOMESTIC.

Charles Edmund Ross, a well known insurance man, was adjudged insane on the eve of his wedding day in Chicago.

Gus Olsen butchered his wife and two baby boys with a hatchet at Laramie, Wyo., and shot himself dead.

Fire destroyed the Polk county poorhouse at Tyron, N. C., and four inmates perished in the flames.

THE MASKERS

A NEW YORK THANKSGIVING DAY STORY

IT WAS not a typical Thanksgiving day, being so warm that no flake of snow was possible. Over all New York, from the Battery to Bronx, and beyond, the luminous pearl-gray mist hung, a ragged canopy, which in spots reached down to the moist street level.

When Carolyn Martin looked out, she of necessity looked up, and as the only opening in her tiny apartment was toward the sky, she saw nothing but a mass of gray fog. As she stood with her hand on the pulley of her skylight, a chorus of children's voices, now in laughter, now in snatch of song, came faintly from the street below.

As Carolyn knew that the lodger who occupied the top floor front had gone out, she stole to one of his windows. It was 11 o'clock, and the mounted police, as is their wont, had cleared West Seventy-second street of all traffic vehicles, to make ready for the carriages that later on throng this boulevard. Carolyn had risen late. The demands of the stomach are not as peremptory when one is quiet, and she had faced the fact, the night before, that she stood possessed of exactly 18 cents.

She Stole to One of His Windows.

It was still early for pleasure driving, so that the boulevard, for the moment, was given over to companies of gayly garbed maskers, who were ringing door-bells, and, in merry impertinence, accosting passers by. Through the silvery, silken mist they went caracoling, a broken tangle of bright color, as far as Carolyn could see, and she wondered, as many another newcomer to New York has done, as to this odd Thanksgiving day custom, which has a history that it is not the purpose of this narrative to relate.

The savor of the Thanksgiving dinner, in course of preparation below stairs, which was exclusive to the keeper of the house and her family, floated upward. As Carolyn stood looking out, the appetizing odors beat at the door of her demanding young stomach with tantalizing insistence.

The carriages were now beginning to pass, and, from one of them, she saw a shower of coin flung to a group of singing maskers. With quick resolve, she turned, went to her room, took the paints with which she eked out the little allowance her old uncle was able to send her, and in a few minutes had finished a dainty masque. She was a fragile little thing, and when she had donned a costume which she had worn at a fancy dress affair one never-to-be-forgotten evening when Dick had told her of his love, and tied about the loosened curls of her dark hair a fillet of gold-colored ribbon, she looked no more than a child.

She slipped softly down the stairs, and reached the outer door of the ground floor unobserved. A company of maskers went scurrying down the street like bright, wind-swept autumn leaves. Quickly she stepped in among them, and, seized with the abandon of the moment, she began to sing that rollicking little bird song, "The Robin." A passer halted and thrust a coin into her hand, remarking to his companion:

"That child has a wonderful voice." The half dollar insured a warm dinner, but what the man said of her voice was far more to her than a dinner, much as she wanted one. Her voice was now her hope, a hope which was leading her to struggle alone in a big city that has no time to succor those who fall, and where only the fittest survive.

An automobile drew up to the curb, and a young man sprang to the walk. Carolyn quickly raised her hand to adjust her masque, bringing into view an antique moonstone ring, on which was cut, in intaglio, a quaint and singularly beautiful head. As the man saw it he exclaimed:

"Carrol, it is you. What does this mean?"

"What right have you to ask?" Her words were brave, but her voice trembled.

"No right now, Carrol, save that of an old friend who has been looking for you everywhere, and is so glad to find you that he does not care what anything means," he said gently. They walked on, leaving the wandering maskers behind, to the entrance of the park.

"Let us sit here for a few minutes, Carrol, I have something I must say to you." She glanced at her costume.

"Never mind," he said, interpreting her look. "The first time I saw you in that dress we were very happy, and why did you leave me, Carrol, with only the little message that I was free?" She raised her eyes, limpid with unshed tears, and she answered:

"I did not want you to find me. Why did you look for me?"

"Because I love you, Carrol, and life is not worth living without you, but tell me, why did you go away as you did?" She hesitated a little, and then said, steadily:

She Began to Sing.

"When the bank failed, and I had nothing, your aunt came and told me that if you married me it would ruin your career, as she would disinherit you. She said what you should do was to marry Alice Gurry, and that she was sure you would, but for a notion that you were bound in honor to me."

"Just as I thought. But how could you go away, Carrol, without seeing me; without hearing what I had to say?"

"Dick, do you think I could spoil your life? What sort of love would that be? And I knew I might grow selfish and weak, if I saw you."

"You darling," he said, and pressed the slender fingers of the hand on which was the old moonstone ring until she winced. "Did you know," he continued, "that Mrs. Dempsey is not my aunt?"

"Not your aunt? Why, Dick, what do you mean?"

"Just this: she was adopted, but not legally, by my grandparents. When my mother died, shortly after I was born, she and her husband managed, by a series of clever frauds, to get hold of the property. No one knew about it but old Candes. Mrs. Dempsey paid her to keep mum, but when she knew she was going to die, money did not count, and she sent for me and told me the whole story.

"When the truth came out about Aunt Dell I made up my mind she had something to do with your going, and I set out to find you. I knew you were somewhere in New York, from Mabel—your uncle told her that, but said you told him not to give your address to anyone, so I made up my mind to just hunt till I found you. But, tell me, little girl, why you were pranking with the maskers? Was it just a lark?"

"How Could You Go Away, Carrol?"

"No, Dick, it wasn't; I wanted some money. I was hungry for a warm dinner."

"Great Scott, Carrol, you don't mean to say you are in want? To think of your being hungry."

"It isn't so bad, Dick. It's only this, Mr. Ferguson, the cashier where I sell the menu cards and other things I do, was away yesterday, and what Uncle Charles sends me did not get here as usual. I had a few cents for rolls, but it is Thanksgiving day, and I did want something else."

"Poor little song bird! Come, get off those togs, quick, and as soon as the auto can get us to the Holland we'll have a hang-up Thanksgiving dinner." And such a dinner as they had. Carolyn declared she had never tasted anything as good, and that never before had she been so truly thankful for a Thanksgiving dinner. Dick started out by saying they would be married in a month, which Carolyn thought was too soon, but when the dessert was brought in he had shortened the time to ten days.

When their dinner was over, they went out on Fifth avenue, vivid with light and life, and, crossing over to Twenty-ninth street, walked on past the quaint little church of the Transfiguration, where, as a college friend of Dick's was one of the assisting clergymen, they decided to be married.

It was a quiet, pretty high-noon wedding, and Dick's friend who officiated, and who performs a large proportion of the many marriages solemnized at this far-famed "Little Church Around the Corner," had he not belonged to this order of "White Friars," would have envied his old college chum his pretty, winsome little bride.

EAST Grand Forks is to air their municipal affair. We hope the wind won't blow from the west for a few weeks.

A change should be made in the office of state game warden before spring, as it is not a square deal to let one man eat all the ducks.

BARRY, the Dakota murderer, is again raising the insanity plea. If he is too insane to be hung, he is certainly too insane to be turned loose to butcher people.

HON. F. M. EDDY is steadily gaining strength as the candidate of the republican party for the next governor of Minnesota. As soon as a new candidate bobs up he is weighed and found wanting.

IN the National House of Representatives there are 236 lawyers, 63 business men and 17 farmers: in the Senate there are 61 lawyers, 15 business men and 3 farmers. There are only 21 foreign born legislators in both Houses. —McIntosh Tribune.

CARRIE NATION, has joined the army of cranks that want to give President Rosevelt advice how to run the government. She called at the white house last week to invite the President to go with her on a saloon smashing expedition, but Teddy said nay.

JUDGE COLLINS should step down from the Supreme Court bench and mingle with the common people before he becomes an active candidate for governor. The principle of his campaign thus far has been, hold what you have got and get more if you can.

THE Polk county farmers will meet at Crookston, December 10, to organize an association for mutual benefit. The farmers all over the state are beginning to see that in unity there is strength, and are getting together for the betterment of their conditions. There are great trusts extant, but when the farmers become convinced that they can accomplish much more by banding together they will make all the great concerns come to terms very short. Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Yes that will be a good movement, if they don't let the politicians get in among them and try to swing them into the democratic party, as they did with the Farmers Alliance.

THE old miners law has been adopted by some of the homesteaders on the school lands east of here. It used to be the custom in the mining country of the west before the government survey for the miners, to put signs on trees reading as follows: I claim 300 feet down this gulch for mining purposes, signed John Jones. At the lower end of the claims would be a sign reading I claim 300 feet up this gulch for mining purposes, signed John Jones. This law was recognized by all the miners and a man's claim was secure, but how it came to be practiced up here and by what attorney's advice we have not been able to find out, but it looks strange to be going through the timber and see a sign reading I claim this land as a homestead. We know of one man that has filed on a claim here that has been living on it for nearly three years with his family, and now on the back corners there are signs posted that other parties claim the lands. We wonder if the attorneys' that advise the putting up of these signs are so far out of date that they expect these contest cases to be tried under Miners laws, with a mixed audience for a jury.

THE Red River Valley is undergoing a transformation so far as the views of the farmers are concerned relative to the kinds of crops to be grown. The fact that men are peddling meat and vegetables on our streets, when but a few years since meats and vegetables were shipped into the valley, is indicative of such change. It is no longer wheat to the exclusion of all other crops. The farmer realizes that his prosperity depends upon having variety of crops so that if one fails or the price is low, he will have another crop to fill the breach. This trend of belief and practice among the farmers should be encouraged by every legitimate means.—Crookston Times.

Speaker Cannon has been consulting with leaders of the house this week about committee assignments and has practically determined upon some over which there have been contests. One place which will go to Minnesota, barring unforseen complications, is the vacancy on the interstate and foreign commerce committee, which will be filled by Representative Stevens of St. Paul.

Another important assignment will be that of Mr. Steenerson to the committee on post offices and post roads. Steenerson wanted to go to the judiciary committee, but there is only one vacancy and more than a dozen applicants and the place could not be given to a new member. The speaker is recasting the post office committee entirely and in looking for strong men selected Steenerson as one of them.—Crookston Journal of Nov. 20.

A Pauper Artist.

In a museum attached to two almshouses at Kirkleatham, England, is a wonderful carving of St. George and the dragon out of a single block of boxwood, the work of a poor prisoner, and it is valued at £2,000. It is said that this piece of carving was the cause of a wager being once laid in a dispute as to its entirety. To prove that the work was one single piece of carving it was plunged into a pot of boiling oil and allowed to remain for hours. All doubts were set at rest when it was withdrawn and found to be still complete. The prisoner who completed this marvelous piece of work used an ordinary penknife only.

Mrs. Bull—Well, well! Ain't it awful the number of strange diseases that's catched in school children.

THE QUALITY OF GENIUS.

Its Practical Absorption of a Man's Best Faculties.

To be a great lawyer is incompatible with being a great poet. Nevertheless, Shakespeare was fond of showing his little legal knowledge, and Bacon has written some verse. There have been writers of eminence, like Walter Scott and Thackeray, who were lawyers by profession, but they must have made law quite subordinate to literature, although some of them, like Walter Scott, have got money by following the law. Hoffman, the author of "The Pot of Gold" and other imaginative stories, was a man of genius who was also a judge or a magistrate. I think, however, that his legal duties sat lightly on him. His connection with the law seems somewhat similar to that of Walter Scott. It was neither absorbing nor permanent. Politicians turn to literature. Literary men like Chateaubriand and Lamartine have held high places as politicians, but they never were real statesmen and I should not call them men of great genius. A man of action may be great in more fields of action than one. Julius Cæsar and Napoleon Bonaparte were statesmen and generals, but they were not and could not be poets, though Julius Cæsar was a writer. Among the ancient Greeks and later Spaniards and Portuguese we find poets who were soldiers and even generals. They, however, were not wholly military. Only a part, and sometimes a small part, of their lives was spent in service. Horace's experience of war was very short, and, although he was a military tribune, he was not a distinguished soldier. A man may be excellent in more ways than one, but he cannot be a man of genius in two different ways. A few instances such as that of Sheridan, might be given which seem to be exceptions to the rule. I doubt whether they are so. The same inclination made Sheridan an orator and a writer of comedy.—Notes and Queries.

STEPS THAT BETRAY.

Steps that are quick are indicative of energy and agitation.

Tiptoe walking betrays surprise, curiosity, discretion or mystery.

Turned in toes are often found with preoccupied, absent minded persons.

The miser's walk is represented as stooping, noiseless, with short, nervous, anxious steps.

The proud step is slow and measured. The toes are conspicuously turned out, the legs straightened.

Slow steps, whether long or short, suggest a gentle or reflective state of mind, as the case may be.

The direction of the steps wavering and following every changing impulse of the mind inevitably betrays uncertainty, hesitation and indecision.

Obstinate people who in argument rely more on muscularity than on intellectual power rest the feet flatly and firmly on the ground, walking heavily and slowly, and stand with the legs firmly planted far apart.

Box Office Superstition.

A newspaper man was the second in line at the box office of one of the popular theaters on the opening night. The first man asked for four seats, and when he started to pay for them the man in the box office said:

"Oh, that's all right. There's no charge at all for those seats."

The man looked surprised, thanked the ticket manipulator and went on. Then the newspaper man had his turn, and he said:

"Please satisfy impertinent curiosity and tell me why you wouldn't take that man's money."

"Well," said the treasurer, "I expect you didn't notice that that man was cross-eyed. If I had sold him the first tickets we wouldn't have had a bit of luck through the whole engagement."—New York Times.

Wasp's Method of Attack.

Belt in his "Naturalist in Nicaragua" draws attention to the methods of attack used by different species of wasps. One accustomed to animals and not to men takes care to crawl down the outstanding hairs to the skin before inserting its sting, while others which live in the midst of human dwellings fly straight at a man's face. The first species, true to inherited instinct, when it attacks unfamiliar human beings attaches itself to their hair or their beards. But there must have been a time when the second species discovered that the face was the vulnerable part, and the discovery was the outcome of the action of brain.

Art Treasures.

"I understand you have a number of art treasures."

"Any number of 'em," answered Mr. Cumrox.

"By the way, how would you define an art treasure?"

"An art treasure, as nearly as I can figure it out, is something that is considered all the more valuable for being secondhand goods."—Washington Star.

Saw His Finish.

"Oh, oh," exclaimed Mrs. Naggs, "I've bitten off the end of my tongue!"

"Well, I certainly feel sorry for myself," rejoined the heartless Naggs. "Hereafter there will be no end to your tongue."—Buffalo News.

A Hardware Talk.

"Yes," said the nut to the ball; "it gave me a terrible wrench to part from him, but I knew it would be only a matter of a few days before he would bolt anyway."

Sweet Simplicity.

"Auntie, ought Bertie Wilson to have smiled so often at me in church?"

"No, dear. Where was he sitting?"

"Behind me."

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Contest business attended to at this office.

The Gully flouring mills grind feed on Fridays.

There has been no deer shot in this locality this season.

'Twill be better to take Mark's Lung Balsam than to wish you had.

Urcis LeBlanc has commenced cutting and skidding logs for his saw mill.

Collections, Contest caseses, and Notary Public work attended to, at this office.

Peter Grimstad of Kelso, N. D., is visiting friends in the vicinity of McIntosh this week.

A serious cutting affray. A big cut, and all kinds of cuts cured by Mark's Carbolic salve.

Don't freeze your ears! Buy one of these fine fur winter caps at Kronsohnable & Boldstad's.

A pretty face and a beautiful complextion always appears after using Mark's Sarsaparilla.

A large number of teams are passing through here on their way to the pinery east of here.

There is a time for all things, so it is said. Mark's Sarsaparilla is a good blood puiifier any time and every time.

Andrew Narveson, of McIntosh, came up last Friday and is running the engine at the mill for Richard Ohm.

H. O. Halverson went up to the Clearwater river country Tuesday, with lumber and supplyes for homesteader.

It is rumored that there will be some sensational cases bro'gh to the attention of the Grand Jury, from this township.

Kronschnable & Bolstad have a large and well selected stock of ladies and misses jackets which they are selling at bed rock prices.

A law suit is on tap over the possession of the Ask place in winsor township, in which E. A Schneider is plaintiff and Stephen singer defendant.

Mr. Stanly Casprio and Miss Werdnek Mislunka, were married at Lambert church on wednesday. A supper and wedding dance was given at Andrew Mislunka's in the evening.

Occasionally a country editor gets a good square meal, and we were one of the fortunate one's on Thanksgiving day, having eaten a portion of one of Richard Ohm's famous dinners.

Kronschnable & Bolstad have a large and well selected stock of overshoes and winter outfits for cold feet, which they are selling at lowest cash prices.

Do your homestead filing final proofs, contest, and other land office business, before Oswald A Brager U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota.

Fosston Minn.

I am not looking for any contests or trouble says Mr. Egeland, but I notice that there are some other parties that have commenced building on the lands, but for what purpose I do not know.

Martin Kilen, of the Postoffice Store at winsor, has a large and well selected stock of woolen goods of Grand Forks woolen mills manufacture which he invites you to look over and get prices on.

A contest filed against a homestead entry does not give the contestant authority to go upon the lands and cut and remove green timber, as the lands belong to the government until the department decides who is entitled to them.

Victor Nystrom of Hill river township, came up to mill on Wednesday, and made this office a plasant call. Mr. Nystrom says that this mill is not as near his place as the Fosston mill, but he finds it to his profit to come to the Gully Mill.

Ten ton of hay wanted. Enquire at this office.

Chas. Enquist is manufacturing bob-sleighs for sale.

John A. Bourman made a business trip to McIntosh, Tuesday.

Benhard Egeland and Ragnuald Thorson left for the pinery Tuesday moruing.

Last Sunday, snow fell to the depth of four inches, making a good start toward sleighing.

Nels M. Bolstad made a business trip to Crookston Monday, returning Wednesday.

A merry party of young people were out sleigh-riding, trying the new snow Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf, of Winsor, are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter.

Miss Sole Dore, traveling saleslady for McLane Manufacturing Co., was an overnight visitor at Gully, Tuesday.

Miss Emma Bakken, of Winsor, was a passenger on Wednesday's stage, on her way to Crookston, to visit her sister Maybelln.

The snow has drawn the frost out of the ground on the marshes north of here, making them unsafe for crossing with teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Strande, of Winsor, drove down to McIntosh to-day, where Mr Strande goes to make final proof on his homestead.

Martin Kilen, of the Postoffice Store at Winsor, invites you to look over his display of goods that is advertised in this week's issue of THE SUNBEAM.

Some one has commenced the practice of commiting private damage on the disputed school lands near here. Such acts should and will not receive the sanction of law abiding citizens.

Ingvold Wald has been employed by Kronshabla and Bolstad as clerk in their store. Mr. Wald was married last week to an estimable lady of Thief River Falls, and they will set up housekeep in Gully.

Israel Cabinaugh, of Winsor, met with a serious accident at the Lajambe sawmill last week, whereby he lost the first joint of one of his fingers.

We would not be surprised if some of the posting notice contest attornys advise their clients to post their notices hihher in the air than their opponents, and we may expect to see boards nailed up claiminiug lands in the top of the highest trees.

Nels Egeland, of Equality township, was an overnight visitor at Gully, Tuesday. Mr. Egeland has lived on sec. 36 of that township for a number of years, and has many valuable improvements on his farm. Nov. 10th he left his family at home and went to Crookston and filed his homestead on the lands.

The travel of homesteaders from Fosston and return, have kept the stage teams pretty well loaded the past two weeks. First, the people talk with the lawyers then come up and visit the land, then they go back and have another talk with the lawyers, and then come back and make another visit to the land, etc.

It is pretty difficult to write locals and news for a newspaper, when a prospective bridegroom can not tell you the name of his bride to be. An editor is good at guessing, but there is a limit to all things, and we draw the line on guessing the bride's name if the husband to be, can't remember it. But they got married last Tuesday and now he knows her name.

Thin Lips Better Than Thick.

In order to articulate well one must be able to move the lips with the greatest facility. A person with thick lips cannot move them quickly; there is too much of them, and the muscles which move them are clogged and have no fair chance of performing their work. Thin lips are easily worked, so as to allow the mouth to be quite free for the emission of the sounds that make words, and consequently the possessor of them can speak fluently. A mustache and a beard which covers the under lip to the mouth are both a hindrance to clear speaking. They impede the articulation in the same way as thick lips, and the words get partly lost.

The Ingenious Magpie.

The magpie is nothing if not ingenious. He always barricades his bulky nest with thorn branches, so that to plunder it is by no means an easy matter, but when circumstances oblige the "pie" to build in a low bush or hedge—an absence of lofty trees being a marked feature of some northern localities—he not only interlaces his home, but also the entire bush, in a most formidable manner. Nor does he stop here. To "make assurance doubly sure" he fashions a means of exit as well as an entrance to the castle, so that if disturbed he can slip out by his back door, as it were.

An Odd Gypsy Custom.

In Hungary, when the question of the baby's future comes up for discussion among the gypsies, there is no time wasted in argument. A blanket is held by the four corners and the baby is thrown into the air. If it comes down on its little stomach it is a sign that it is going to be a musician; if it falls on its back it is to be a thief, and the education of the child is begun as soon as possible in one of these two time honored professions.

Press On.

"Press on" solves the problem of all heroes. It is the rule by which to judge of all wonderful success and all triumphal marches to fortune and honor. It should be the motto of all—"Press on." Never despair. Never allow yourself to be discouraged, however stormy the heavens or dark the way or heavy the difficulties or repeated the failures.

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

If the first bottle does not help you, the druggist will refund your money.

TRACING THE LEAKS.

How Important Treasury Information Gained Outside Circulation.

"I have stopped talking to you fellows about the plans of this department," bluntly declared Secretary Shaw to a newspaper friend the other day, reports the Capital. "I know, of course, that I can trust you, but I have learned that it is better not to talk to anybody when I am maturing an important movement. Now, take this last refunding operation of the treasury, involving $20,000,000. Why, man, I said nothing to anybody about that, and still news of it leaked out before I was ready for it."

"How did it get out?" asked the newspaper man.

The keen, gray eyes of the secretary of the treasury twinkled. He screwed up his face until it looked like a funny mask.

"That's what I'd like to know," he said. "Do you know," he went on to say, "since I come to think it over, I do remember that I wrote one letter about it."

"To whom?" insisted the inquisitorial journalist.

"To the president, sir; to the president, sir," exclaimed Mr. Shaw, "but I clean forgot to tell him to say nothing about it."

PAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC FOR WOMEN

A Boston physician's discovery which cleanses and heals all inflammation of the mucous membrane wherever located.

In local treatment of female ills Paxtine is invaluable. Used as a douche it is a revelation in cleansing and healing power; it kills all disease germs which cause inflammation and discharges.

Thousands of letters from women prove that it is the greatest cure for leucorrhœa ever discovered.

Paxtine never fails to cure pelvic catarrh, nasal catarrh, sore throat, sore mouth and sore eyes, because these diseases are all caused by inflammation of the mucous membrane.

For cleansing, whitening and preserving the teeth we challenge the world to produce its equal.

Physicians and specialists everywhere prescribe and endorse Paxtine, and thousands of testimonial letters prove its value.

HOW CHEAP BAKING POWDER IS MADE.

A recent seizure of a lot of "cheap" baking powders by the authorities of a neighboring city has exposed the character of the low priced brands of baking powders which many manufacturers are offering throughout the country. The price of the powders first attracted attention to them. Samples were taken and analyzed. The official report of the analysis showed the stuff to be "alum powders," composed chiefly of alum, sulphuric acid and pulverized rock. The powders were declared dangerous to health and several thousand pounds were confiscated and destroyed.

Physicians have frequently cautioned consumers against mixing food with these so-called cheap baking powders. They are all found, when analyzed, to contain large percentages of alum and sulphuric acid to which are added various sorts of filling matter sometimes both injurious and nasty.

The high class, cream of tartar baking powders, are the most economical and wholesome and should always be selected for use. They will be found cheaper in the end, besides making the food better and more healthful.

A Remarkable Woman.

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Anna M. Willis, of this place, a charming old lady of 74 years, has given for publication a very interesting letter.

Mrs. Willis is widely known and highly respected, and the recommendation she gives is well worth the consideration of anyone who may be interested. Mrs. Willis' address is R. R. No. 6, Kokomo. Her letter reads as follows:

"I have been troubled with Kidney Trouble for 20 years. It was so bad that it affected my heart and my back. It hurt so that I could not get up when down, and I began to think that I would be past doing anything. I was recommended to get Dodd's Kidney Pills and purchased some at the drug store of Mr. G. E. Meek. After using several boxes, I was completely restored. I feel twenty years younger, and am able to do all the usual work in the house and garden which a person who lives on the farm has to do, although I am 74 years of age."

Mrs. Anderson, Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen many cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—MRS. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Creamery Business Increases.

There were thirty-three new creameries and ten new cheese factories established in Minnesota during the season just closed, according to a compilation just completed by the state dairy and food commission. The total number of creameries is 714 and the number of cheese factories is 85. There were only 583 creameries in 1899.

Todd county heads the list with 6 new creameries, making a total of 15. Three years ago there were only four creameries in the county and only one was operated the entire year. Although Stearns county reported only one creamery in the last year, the county still has the largest number in the state, twenty-nine. Freeborn county, having twenty-seven in all, including one new one, it is said, produces the largest amount of butter of all the counties.

A Good Shot.

The best hunting story of the season comes from West Duluth, and its truth is vouched for by a number of West Duluth hunters. George Brotherton has recently returned from a short trip to Breda, on the Duluth & Iron Range road, where he spent a few days in the woods. He brought back with him two deer, which it is claimed he killed with one shot. One of the deer is a fine buck and the other a doe. The deer were standing close beside each other with the buck a little in advance and farthest from the hunter. Mr. Brotherton fired and the shot hit the doe in the neck. It passed completely through the neck of the animal and hit the buck in the side, breaking his back bone.

A New Apple Wanted.

A thousand dollars for a new apple is what the Minnesota State Horticultural society is offering. The competition is open to all, and anyone that produces the seedling apple tree that meets the conditions can get the one thousand dollars.

The kind of apple the society wants is described in the announcement of the society's thirty-seventh annual meeting, which will be held Dec. 1, 2, 3 and 4 at the First Unitarian church, Eighth street and Mary place, Minneapolis. This apple is worth $1,000.

"As hardy and prolific as the Duchess, with fruit equal to the Wealthy in size, quality and appearance, and that will keep as well as the Malinda."

We Are Winners.

Minnesota took both first and second places in the national contest, which awarded prizes on the best average for twelve successive monthly tests. Mr. Sondergaard of Hutchinson took first place with an average of 96.75, and is now the champion butter maker of the United States, John Soltic of New Sweden, who took first place last year, was a close second this time with an average of 96.66. A Wisconsin man was a poor third. In all 117 experts from all parts of the diary belt furnished entries for each of the twelve contests.

Minnesota has in Sam Haugdahl the world's champion, as he took the medal at the Paris exposition.

Stuffed Rats.

Commissioner Henry F. Greene, Duluth, is preparing to undertake a new thing in securing expert help for the government service. He has ordered that an examination be held in the large cities of the country, which includes Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul, for an eligible list of taxidermists, who can properly stuff rats, mice and chipmunks, with a view to filling a position at the National Museum in Washington.

Plans and specifications for the examination are now under preparation by Mr. Greene.

Forest Fire Checked.

A bad forest fire was narrowly averted at Cuba, five miles east of Cass Lake. A train crew discovered the woods to be on fire and the section men at Cuba were notified and sent out to fight the flames. Later a special train was sent from Cass Lake. The fire was gotten under control. Had it gone on unchecked a short time longer thousands of dollars worth of valuable timber would have been destroyed.

Unconstitutional.

Despite the best efforts of friends of the plumbers' license law to have that act upheld by the highest court, the supreme court, in a decision filed, holds that the law is unconstitutional. The court's opinion is that the law is contrary to the constitution because it applies only to cities having 10,000 or more inhabitants and only to those having sewer and waterworks systems.

News Notes.

An unknown man was burned to death in a car load of shingles at Hayfield. He was about 35.

The old Overboe mill in Moorhead was burned. The mill was one of the oldest in the valley.

FIRST KIDNEY PILL MADE.
THE ORIGINAL DISCOVERY.
THE ONLY GENUINE.

WM. H. NEIGHBORS, the well-known jeweler of West Main Street, Wytheville, Va., says: "Some four years ago an attack of grip settled in my back, and I have suffered off and on ever since with a dull, heavy aching across the small of my back, always more severe in the morning. It was difficult for me to stoop or straighten, and if I sat down for any length of time it was hard for me to arise. I took two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and the dull, disagreeable aching left me."

H. B. MCCARVER of 201 Cherry Street, Portland, Oregon, inspector of freight cars for the Transcontinental Company, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble which had annoyed me for months. I think a cold was responsible for the whole trouble. It seemed to settle in my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills rooted it out. It is several months since I used them, and up to date there has been no recurrence of the trouble."

MRS. GEORGE WALLACE, JR., of Elmira, N. Y.; wife of George Wallace, broker, of West Water Street, and living at 607 Baldwin Street, says: "In March, 1897, I was cured of kidney and bladder trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills. My physician said at that time that my life could be saved only by an operation. Night after night I had been kept awake for hours at a time with terrible pain in my back, and the secretions from the kidneys were in as bad a state as possible. I suffered with hemorrhages frequently, and was in a weak state. Four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and I now gladly reëndorse the remedy, because during the time which has since elapsed, nearly seven years, I have never had the slightest sign of a return of the trouble."

WORLD'S LARGEST BRICKYARD

Enormous Bank of Easily Accessible Clay Is Located at Peterborough, England.

Peterborough, England, makes enough brick in the course of a year to put a girdle four times around the earth. It is estimated that the busy brick-making yards, which have grown up in great number around the ancient city in the last 20 years, turn out 800,000,000 bricks annually. As the length of a brick is about eight inches, then, if Peterborough's annual output were laid out in a single line, it would stretch over 100,000 miles. The brick industry has revolutionized the trade of Peterborough. Such is the wealth of clay and the profit to be drawn from it that one part of the brick-making district has been fitly named "Klondike." It lies in beds of enormous area and depth, and some of the experts say they could go on taking out easily accessible clay for the next century without taking thought as to where the next supply of the material is to come from.

Cake-Walk Attractions.

Booker Washington says that one reason why colored people migrate to cities is that there are more schools. Another reason is that there are more cake walks. The colored rural citizen is no more oblivious than the white man to the social allurements of metropolitan life.

No More Than Right.

The bill to give authors' manuscript the privileges of third class mail matter is to be pushed in congress. It can fairly be urged, says the Boston Herald, that a good deal of the manuscript is intrinsically entitled to that rating.

Where Indiana Leads.

The new republic of Panama is nearly as large as the state of Indiana. It hasn't half as many poets, though, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

The Laplanders are the shortest people in Europe, men averaging four feet eleven inches, women four feet nine inches.

BANANAS, NOT PAJAMAS.

He Was Averse to the Subject, But When It Was Introduced Spoke His Mind.

Walter Camp, the athletic adviser of Yale university, was recently entertaining a gathering of his undergraduate friends with experiences of his own, says the New York Tribune.

He told of a dinner where a charming young woman was seated next to an exceedingly deaf old man. She had done her best to interest him, but had found it necessary to shout out each remark unto the third and fourth narration before the old man could catch the point.

So the time dragged along, till the dinner was waning and the fruit was passed.

The young woman determined to make a final effort at being agreeable, so she threw her voice into saying:

"Do you like bananas?"

"How's that?" asked her neighbor, in a surprised tone.

"Do you like bananas?" she repeated.

"Well, my dear," he replied, "so long as you have introduced the topic, I will say that I much prefer the old-fashioned nightshirt."

"Well, Tommy, how are you getting on at school?" "First rate. I ain't doing so well as some of the other boys, though I can stand on my head; but I have to put my feet against the wall. I want to do it without the wall at all!"—Punch.

His Victory.

Mr. Lewis had just come in from his club. He appeared in the best of humors, and his wife soon found out why.

"You've heard me speak of Stafford, haven't you?" he asked.

"The man who knows so much about the tariff?" ventured Mrs. Lewis.

"The man who talks so much about it," Lewis corrected. "Well, we had a long argument about it this evening, and I came out ahead."

"You did!" said Mrs. Lewis, in a flutter of delight.

"Yes; I got him to admit that he knows no more about it than I do."—Youth's Companion.

Sound Was Not Hollow.

Mr. Dennis was endeavoring to the best of his ability to give the doctor a faithful account of his wife's symptoms, but he found it uphill work.

"You say she has a cough," said the doctor. "Is it a hollow cough?"

Mr. Dennis cast his eyes to the ceiling and then down to the ground, but found no help anywhere.

"It may be a hollow cough," he said, humbly, "but there's a great soobstance to the sound of it, anyway."—Youth's Companion.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Meets to Consider Reciprocity for Cuba and Other Affairs.

Panama and Cuba engaged the attention of the United States senate on the 23d to the exclusion of all other questions. It was agreed that a vote on the Cuban bill should be taken December 16. This defers action until the regular session of congress. The house was not in session.

Until the senate either passes the Cuban bill or rejects that measure no proposition to adjourn the extra session of the Fifty-eighth congress will be entertained by the house of representatives. This is the declared position of the leaders of that body.

DOMESTIC.

Settlement of the Chicago city railway strike was balked by union men, just as peace articles were about to be signed, and negotiations were continued. Riots followed attempts to run cars and shots were fired by the police to stop the destruction of property.

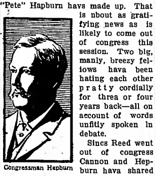
THE END OF A HOUSE FEUD

How Speaker Cannon and Congressman Hepburn Settled a Quarrel—Youthful Members of the House—The Speaker's Lobby.



Congressman Hepburn

Washington.—Speaker Cannon and "Pete" Hepburn have made up. That is about as gratifying news as is likely to come out of congress this session. Two big, manly, breezy fellows have been hating each other pretty cordially for three or four years back—all on account of words unfitly spoken in debate.

Since Reed went out of congress Cannon and Hepburn have shared the laurels of debate between them. There has been nobody else who could quite touch either of them; and they were a fairly even match. It was inevitable that the two should clash; and the row came in the heat of debate. Hepburn thought Cannon made his remarks needlessly personal. Cannon couldn't see it in that light, and so for many months these republican gladiators never spoke as they passed.

It looked as though the feud would be a lasting one; but a year ago when Cannon announced his candidacy for speaker Hepburn, like the big-minded fellow that he is, walked into Cannon's headquarters one day, held out his hand and exclaimed: "Joe, I'm going to vote for you." That was one of the early things that set the tide flowing toward the Illinois man, and now that congress is at work and he has achieved the ambition of his life he signalizes the reconciliation by asking Hepburn to put him in nomination in the house—which, of course, Hepburn does cheerfully.

There was a significance in the incident that was not generally understood, but it meant a great deal for party harmony during these coming two years. Hepburn will come very close to being the republican leader on the floor. He's a little outside the organization, just as Cannon was during the Henderson regime; but Cannon was the real leader then in spite of his isolation.

Youthful Congressman.

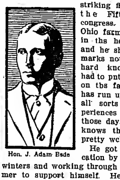
Hon. Butler Ames

There are a good many youthful members of the new house. One of the most interesting of them is Butler Ames, the grandson of Benjamin F. Butler, who represents the same district the doughty old general represented for years just after the war. He is not only the grandson of Gen. Butler, but he is the son of Adelbert Ames, who was a major general of volunteers in the civil war, and was afterwards provisional governor of Mississippi in the reconstruction period and a United States senator from that state.

Young Ames has just a shade of resemblance to his grandfather, and he has the old general's faculty for attaching friends to himself. Young as he is he has a record in which he ought to take a good deal of pride. He was a lieutenant in the Massachusetts militia when the war with Spain broke out. He went to the front with his regiment and came out of the Porto Rico campaign a lieutenant colonel. Then he went home and served three years in the legislature, and now he is in congress.

When Ames was stationed at Camp Alger early in the spring of 1898 he was engineer officer of the camp, and in the course of his duties he had a good many scraps, owing to the fact that, though merely a lieutenant, he sometimes had to give directions to officers of regiments of much higher rank. One of his troubles as with Representative Dick, who was lieutenant colonel of an Ohio regiment. The two had not met since till the opening day of congress, when they happened to sit side by side in the street car leaving the capitol. They matched pennies for the fare and made up for good.

The Rise of Bede.



Hon. J. Adam Bede

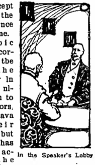
J. Adam Bede, the new member from Minnesota, promises to be one of the striking figures in the Fifty-eighth congress. He is an Ohio farmer's boy in the beginning, and he shows the marks now of the hard knocks he had to put up with on the farm. He has run up against all sorts of experiences since those days and he knows the world pretty well now.

He got his education by studying winters and working through the summer to support himself. He learned how to set type in the old days before the type setting machine came into vogue, and so drifted naturally into newspaper work. He came to Washington in the course of his wanderings and got a place as a reporter on the Evening Star. After working there a few months he suddenly took it into his head to strike west again, and nobody in Washington heard a thing from him until 1894, when word reached here of the eccentricity of a person of the same name who, wishing to be appointed United States marshal under the Cleveland administration, had written his application on a piece of birch bark. The novel petition was granted, but Bede soon gave up the job because he couldn't stand for the proposition that a government official must give up active interest in politics.

Bede was a democrat then of a pretty stiff type. He resigned his place and put in a lot of hard work for sound money. In 1896, when the Chicago convention was captured by free silver, he became a republican, and he has been one ever since.

Bede has one distinction for a new member. He got a fine piece of patronage before he had warmed his seat in the house. He was on deck when the vacancy came on the civil service commission through the resignation of Commissioner Foulke, and he promptly secured the appointment of a constituent of his to the vacancy.

Place to Entertain.



In the Speaker's Lobby

Speaker Cannon is planning to throw open the speaker's lobby, which has been closed to everybody except members of the house ever since the Reed regime.

The marble room, which corresponds in the senate to the speaker's lobby in the house, has always been open to favored visitors, and senators have received their callers there; but this privilege has never been accorded in the house, except for a short time under Speaker Reed. The privilege then was abused so that the lobby had to be closed again, but Speaker Cannon believes he can restore the privilege under restrictions which will make it generally acceptable without abuse. At present members of the house are in an embarrassing position frequently through the absence of any retiring room where they can receive callers. If one of them receives a card from somebody whom he wishes greatly to see he must go out into the public corridor, where he is apt to be set upon by dozens of individuals whom he has been trying to avoid. There is no compromise. Either he must give up the caller he wishes to see or else take his chances with the crowd. Speaker Cannon proposes that hereafter when a member wishes to see a friend he can invite his caller into the speaker's lobby, where both can sit at their ease, while the undesirables storm and fret outside.

Only a few days ago William Alden Smith received a card from a person who was described to him as half seas over. He sent out word that he could not be found. A little while later a card came from a constituent whom he was anxious to see. He went out to meet his caller and ran plump into the arms of his drunken friend, who promptly flashed a William Alden Smith campaign button he had been wearing fourteen years and proceeded to borrow two dollars on the strength of it.

LOUIS A. COOLIDGE.

Sure to Be Fined.

Some butchers of Frankfort, Germany, evidently find it cheaper to be fined small sums for using boracic acid in the manufacture of Frankfort sausages than to be haled up for selling meats affected with trichinae or allowing the dearer meats to spoil in other ways. John Klein, a butcher, followed the example of many others recently and was fined only $2.36. If this sum were paid every day in fines, the loss caused the butcher would not be so great in a year as the loss from meats undoctored with the chemical.

Wadena is considering giving prisoners arrested for petty offenses a bread and water diet. This is a step in the right direction. This thing of arresting every tough that blows into town, giving him a night's lodging, a good breakfast or else keeping him five or ten days and getting him in shape for the road, is not a good preventative measure, to say the least. Either bread and water or hard manual labor is the only sane thing to do with the over increasing army of vags until we grow wise enough to deal with the causes of the evil. —Crookston Times.

The courts of Chippewa county refused to be hurried in the trial of the negro Scott for outrageous assault on a white woman near Glenco last July. There was loud public demand for a special grand jury and trial at the last term of court. It would be better for the courts to rush the trial of negroes for crime and prevent the people from organizing mobs and taking the laws in their own hands by mob law.

The Northern Pacific railroad company have drawn the temperance line on its employees to take effect January 1st. After that date it will be quit drinking or lose your job with that Co.. and it will not be a high recommendation for a laboring man to carry to other places where he may look for employment, that he has been discharged by that company for drinking.

WAGNER'S HOME.

How the Great Composer Came to Live In Baireuth.

How Wagner came to make Baireuth his home is a rather interesting story. He had long dreamed of possessing a theater where his compositions could be interpreted to suit his ideas, but had little hope that the dream would ever be fulfilled. When, however, in his period of greatest depression and loneliness he formed the friendship of the late king of Bavaria it seemed suddenly as if all things were possible to him. In 1867 his royal protector instructed the celebrated architect, Gottfried Semper, to prepare the plans for the theater, which was to be built at Munich. Through political and professional dissensions and jealousies the town council of Munich refused permission for the erection of the theater there. In 1871 Wagner visited Baireuth and, after taking counsel with the celebrated bankers, Messrs. Feustel and Gross, decided upon a site in that city. The municipality of the town, correctly estimating the financial advantages which would accrue, presented Wagner with two plots of land, one for the theater and the other for his own house. The latter was immediately built, and in 1872 Wagner removed his family from Truhchen, near Lucerne, to the new home, Wahnfried. The corner stone of the theater was laid on his sixtieth birthday, May 22, 1872. It was estimated that the theater would cost 800,000 thalers (about $250,000), and this sum was very largely raised by Wagner societies throughout the world. It was completed in 1876 and dedicated with the presentation of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" on Aug. 13 of that year. Since then it has been the Mecca of the lovers of Wagnerian music from all parts of the world.

TEETH AND SIGHT.

Decayed Molars Cause Disturbance of the Ocular Nerves.

"Many people who come to me to have their teeth attended to complain incidentally of failing eyesight, and when I tell them that bad teeth in nine cases out of ten are the cause few feel inclined to believe me," said a well known New York dentist.

"Bad sight is generally attributed to overstudy, debilitated constitution and a hundred and one other causes. But have you ever heard any one place the blame on the teeth? Bad teeth are the direct result of insufficient application of the toothbrush, and bad eyesight, resulting from the decayed molars exciting disturbances of the ocular nerves, is the next inevitable penalty. That is a fact which seems to be little known.

"The other day I extracted four decayed teeth of a young girl who was almost totally blind. Her pupils were dilated and insensible. A week after I had pulled her teeth her sight was practically restored. Two months previous to this cure the girl had been examined by an expert oculist, who, after putting her to various eye tests, designated the case as 'hysterical amblyopia,' and I guess that's about all the satisfaction the girl got, judging by her condition when she came to me. In saying this do not think for a moment that I am in any way prejudiced against oculists. I merely cite the instance.

"In the course of a year I attend to the teeth of scores of people with impaired vision, and in every case where the teeth are drawn the sight is soon after either greatly improved or entirely restored."—New York Times.

Pickwicks In Livery.

The dignity of some fat coachmen in New York is very impressive. Their development is outlined distinctly by their coats. They have swelled steadily and persistently year after year, and every now and then the coats have been let out and the buttons moved to accommodate increasing inches of girth. A coachman's figure has a great deal to do with his success. The attempts of fat men to look lean sometimes verge on the humorous. They hold their heads high to escape the imputation of obesity and puff out their chests heroically. But with all their hauteur, pomposity and pretentious bearing they look only like very fat men in tight clothes, reminiscent of Pickwick in livery.—New York Press.

The Dead Man's Threat.

Returning home recently, a woman who had taken out a summons against her husband, a painter's laborer, on account of his ill treatment, saw by the light of the moon her husband standing, as she thought, behind the door ready to strike her. She ran away, but it was afterward discovered that the man was hanging by a rope from a ventilator over the door with his feet almost touching the floor. He was dead.—London Mail.

JAPANESE HOMES.

There Are No Doors or Passages in a Typical Dwelling.

The Japanese house consists in the main of a post at each corner and a roof. The roof may or may not be covered with heavy channeled purplish tiles. It makes little difference in the long run whether it is or is not, for if it is not tiled the first typhoon that comes along removes it into somebody's garden anything up to a quarter of a mile away, and if it is tiled heavily enough to resist the typhoon so much the worse for the people underneath it when the first genuine earthquake arrives. But the odds are that it will be burned down before either happens, as the Japanese use very cheap lamps and very fiery petroleum and are regular children about fires. Of course something else is done to the four posts and the roof before they become a house in which births, marriages and deaths can take place. But really remarkably little is necessary. Crossbeams are naturally added to support the weight of the roof, grooves are made in the crossbeams and in the platform raised a foot or two above the ground which constitutes the floor. A Japanese house is all on one floor generally—in fact, one might say it is all one floor. Between the grooves in the floor and the grooves in the crossbeams are run shutters with paper panels to divide the houses into whatever number of rooms the owner may choose, which depends on the number of bedrooms he may require. There are no doors or passages in a typical Japanese house. In it every room acts as a passage into the room beyond it, and for the door you slide back the panel that happens to be nearest to you. For this sliding there are little bronze sunk handles in the wooden frames of the panels. The outside paper shutters do not come quite to the edge of the platform floor; the grooves along the edges are filled at night or in severe weather with wooden shutters, each of which is held in its place by the one that follows it, the last one being secured with a flimsy wooden bolt.

TWO TON BLACKFISH.

A School That Was Driven Ashore at Cape Cod.

One day in November, several years ago, the good people living on the Massachusetts bay shore at the north end of Cape Cod were wrought to the highest pitch of excitement by the arrival of an immense school of blackfish which were on the flats chasing bait, as the small fish they feed on are called, and gradually working inshore. The news spread like wildfire. Village stores were hastily closed, schoolboys deserted schoolrooms, and even women flocked to the shore. The flats along the coast make out from half to a mile and a half practically level and almost dry at low tide where at high [illegible] to eight feet of water. No school of blackfish so large as this had ever been heard of. And by good luck the tide was ebbing.

Hastily the boats were launched, each taking a half dozen men and boys, those not rowing being armed with sticks and pieces of board. In a quarter of an hour they were in position in half circle and to leeward of the fish.

"Close in now," came from the "commodore," "and make all the noise you can!" And they did, fairly churning the water with boards and sticks. The thousands of squid and herring on which the blackfish were feeding assisted in this movement by getting into shoal water as far as possible so that the blackfish could not follow them. The result was inevitable. The fast ebbing tide soon began to leave the big fish in such shoal water that it was difficult for the larger ones to swim. Gradually the circle of boats drew nearer and nearer, and in two hours 90 per cent of the entire school was stranded on the flats. For weeks after the villagers were engaged in cutting up and trying out the oil. The total catch netted some $25,000, many of the fish weighing two tons apiece.—Outing.

Dogs In China.

Dogs in China are chiefly despised. except as house workers or for culinary purposes. A black dog with yellow eyebrows is valued as a first rate house dog, but a white one with black eyebrows will bring luck to his owner, while a black dog is the king of his race. A "lion dog"—belonging to the small, shaggy northern breed—will bring good fortune, while the only real Chinese canine pet is the "sleeve dog," so called from being small enough to lie in the copacious Celestial sleeve. Retrievers are apparently unknown, while greyhounds are lanky and slow.

Could Lift a Ton and a Half.

A Scotchman, said to be the last of the Stuarts, was possessed with an extraordinary strength, from which circumstance he got the byname of Jemmy Strength. Among other feats, he could carry a 24 pounder cannon and had been known to lift a cart load of hay weighing a ton and a half upon his back. Many a time he took up a jackass and, carrying it on his shoulders, walked through the tollgate.

The promptness with which President Rosevelt by Secretary Hay has entered into a treaty with Panama for the canal across the isthmus is a characteristic of him. Recognized as an independent nation Panama has an absolute and unquestioned right to dispose of the canal. Of course Columbia may attempt to reclaim the state of Panama and succeed. If she does it can not prohibit our right to the canal. Some may say that the President is hasty in his action. Not so. It is only a matter of business and fortunately for the United states, we have a President who is business from the start. We may have to defend the property. But we have a number of war vessels with nothing else to do and needing exercise.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

First Publication Dec. 4th, 1903.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of eight hundred and eighty-seven one hundredths (800.87-100) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Jorgenson, an unmarried man of Polk County, Minnesota, Mortgagor, to Thomas Nesbitt of the County of Kalamazoo, Michigan Mortgagee, bearing date the 22nd day of May 1897, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of September 1897, at 4.15 o'clock P. M., in Book 77 of Mortgages, on page 239.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by Philip D. Miller and James Nesbitt, as executors of the estate of Thomas Nesbitt, deceased, Mortgagee, to Addie Nesbitt of Kalamazoo County, Michigan, by written Assignment dated the 18th day of March 1899, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds, on the 22nd day of March 1899, at 9.10 o'clock A. M., in Book 75 of Mortgages on page 515.

Which said Mortgage, together with said debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Addie Nesbitt of Kalamazoo County, Michigan, the Assignee and holder thereof, to Hans O. Ladies Only.

It Is Women Who Need Most Relief From Little Irritating Pains and Aches.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are for women.

Woman's delicate nervous organism tingles to the least jarring influence, and some ache or pain is the result.

The remedy is at hand—
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They act most marvellously on woman's nervous organism, and relieve and cure the pains to which she is a martyr.

Headaches, neuralgiac pains, monthly pains and all kinds of pains disappear, as if a gentle hand had lightly soothed them away. Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the head, Toothache, Backache are all cured by these "Little Comforters."

Cured without danger of disagreeable after-effects; cured quickly; cured without unnatural action on liver, stomach, or other internal organs.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills please the women, and the children take them because they are easy to take and soothe all their sufferings.

"For years I had spells of sick headache, at times suffering untold agonies. I could not endure any excitement. Going to church, and even visiting, brought on these terrible spells. I tried numerous remedies without relief until I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and they have cured me. When I feel symptoms of sick headache I take a pill and ward off the attack. When I am tired and nervous, a pill soothes me."—MRS. SARAH WATKINSON, Blairstown, Ia.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

To Prove What Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney Remedy, Will do for YOU, Every Reader of Our Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and need attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince any one.

The mild and immediate effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root will set your whole system right, and the best proof of this is a trial.

14 EAST 120th ST., NEW YORK CITY.
DEAR SIRS: OCT. 15th, 1903.

"I had been suffering severely from kidney trouble. All symptoms were on hand; my former strength and power had left me; I could hardly drag myself along. Even my mental capacity was giving out, and often I wished to die. It was then I saw an advertisement of yours in a New York paper, but would not have paid any attention to it, had it not promised a sworn guarantee with every bottle of your medicine asserting that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable, and does not contain any harmful drugs. I am seventy years and four months old, and with a good conscience I can recommend Swamp-Root to all sufferers from kidney troubles. Four members of my family have been using Swamp-Root for four different kidney diseases, with the same good results."

With many thanks to you, I remain,
Very truly yours,
ROBERT BERNER.

You may have a sample bottle of this famous kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, sent free by mail, postpaid, by which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, poor digestion, when obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale the world over at druggists in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty-cent and one-dollar. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—If you have the slightest symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, send at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., who will gladly send you by mail, immediately, without cost to you, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, and a book containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured by Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in this paper.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Close Call.

G. Baumgartner met with an expensive and dangerous accident on his way to Le Sueur. He was riding on a load of hay and on passing over the remains of what he supposed to be a burned out bonfire in the road, the horses' feet started the smoldering material into a blaze, with the result that the load of hay caught fire at the rear end. Springing from the load, Baumgartner sought to unhitch the horses, but the crackling of the flames made the animals so nervous that he was unable to do so.

Realizing that the team would be burned to death as soon as the flames reached the front end of the load unless something was done, Baumgartner, with rare presence of mind, sprang onto one of the horses and whipped the team into a run at a terrible pace along the road. The resulting rush of the hay through the air so fanned the flames backward that, before they were hot enough in front to injure the horses, they burner the reach in two adn dropped the blazing hay, rack and rear wheels in the road. The two-mile run was made in eight minutes.

Plenty of Money.

The annual report of the state superintendent of public instruction, in process of compilation, will show that the public school system of Minnesota is in excellent financial condition. The receipts of the common school and independent districts for the year ending July 31, 1903, exceeded those of the previous year by $616,200.16, and the districts have $2,434,547.60 cash on hand. The number of districts increased from 1,628 to 2,015.

Teachers and principals have shared in this prosperity. They received in wages $4,379,137,81, which is $460,360.05 more than in 1901 and $31,783.28 more than in 1902. Of this sum $2,235,081.22 was paid by independent and special districts and $2,144,065.59 by common districts.

Nervy Burglar.

A burglar with nerve to spare went thru the home of Louisa L. McNair, in Minneapolis, and many valuables were taken.

Only one man was seen and his work was witnessed by a nurse who was staying at the house, who told her that if she remained quiet she would not be harmed. He stayed in the house nearly an hour searching it thoroly. Mrs. Louis K. Hull, the daughter of Mrs. McNair, was also aroused, but dared not call her husband for fear of serious consequences. The thief ransacked the dresser drawers, securing Mrs. Hull's diamonds and other jewels. He then went down stairs, opened a cabinet, and took two old Swiss watches and several antique rings.

A New Industry.

Henry Copilvich, president of the Standard Turpentine company at Hinckly reports that it has stumps enough pulled to keep its boilers running. The plant is making turpentine, tar and charcoal and is the only one in the United States making three products from pine stumps. The company pulls the stumps from the farmers' lands free of charge or pays cash for stumps delivered. This is of great help to new settlers as they get their land cleared for nothing and have some money to use while they are getting started.

Vinegar Improves.

The state dairy and food department has just finished an analysis of 1,000 samples of vinegar received since Jan. 1, 1903, and of this number only 209 were illegal. Of 1,000 samples analyzed last year, 270 were illegal, so that there is a gain in legal vinegar of 16 per cent.

Of the 209 illegal samples, 174 were cider vinegar 25 were white wine vinegar and 10 were malt. The results last years were, cider, illegal, 330; white wine, 40.

Cleaned the Streets.

Miss Stella Mayhew, the star in "The Show Girl" at the Grand, St. Paul, acted as foreman for eighteen men she employed to clean the streets of St. Paul.

The dirty conditions of the streets attracted her attention, and when she learned that because the street cleaning fund had been exhaused city officials could do nothing, she advertised for fifty men to clean the streets under her direction. Only eighteen responded.

News Notes.

The monument in Summit Park, St. Paul, erected to the memory of Minnesota's soldiers and sailors is unveiled.

More than $2,000,000 will be sent from Minnesota and the Dakotas this fall to European relatives and friends of new Americans that are prospering here. The greater part of the remittances will go thru Minneapolis.

Plans for the international bonspiel to be held in Minneapolis probably the last week in January, are being shaped.

The First National bank has been opened at Grand Meadows. A great rush was made to get check books and make deposits.

The Winona free public library in response to a demand from German-American residents, has appropriated $100 for the purchase of books in the German language. A similar appropriation was made a year ago for the purchase of books in the Polish language, and these have been greatly appreciated, being out most of the time.

Justice S. B. Rockey at Pipestone, sentenced Frank Madden to a term of ninety days in the county jail for passing unlawful money. Madden refused to plead guilty, but witnesses were introduced to prove his guilt.

Miss Whittaker, a prominent club woman of Savannah, Ga., tells how she was entirely cured of ovarian troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Uterine Tonic and Regulator. I suffered for four years with irregularities and Uterine troubles. No one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental misery those endure who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me within three months. I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to be able to obtain such a remedy when so many doctors fail to help you. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had. Very truly yours, MISS EASY WHITTAKER, 604 30th St., W. Savannah, Ga." — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women prove beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

A scheme has been prepared for carrying out an underground railway in Manchester, England, with connections with the principal out-districts.

Frau Cosima Wagner, widow of the great composer, is believed to be drawing about $120,000 a year in royalties from her late husband's operas, in spite of the fact that he squandered his copyrights in many cities. From the Paris grand opera alone her annual receipts are about $20,000, and the Baireuth profits are close to $50,000 every year.

CURIOUS FOOD COMPOUND.

Old Bones, Alum, Flint and Sulphuric Acid for Raising Bread.

Housekeepers have recently been solicited by some of the grocers and by peddlers to try another kind of baking powder—"cheaper and just as good," as they say. This is another scheme of some baking powder manufacturer to get a new brand on the market by offering the grocer a large profit. Housekeepers are not usually much benefited by such changes. Alum baking powders are generally low priced, but they are well known to be detrimental to health. Large quantities of one of them were recently seized in New York, being found to be largely composed of sharp-pointed grains of ground flint and sulphuric acid!

Most of the so-called phosphate powders are mixed with alum. The manufacturer of a phosphate powder has patented the process of making the principal ingredient of his powder from bones digested with sulphuric acid.

Housekeepers do not want such mixtures in their food. They should never encourage peddlers nor admit testers or alleged experimenters in food within their doors, and when buying baking powder should get a brand well known to be made of cream of tartar, which is a healthful product of the grape.

An advertisement in a Hamburg paper dated 1801 shows that cigars were in use (though very little as compared with pipes) in Germany a century ago.

Shetland's shortest night is five hours; but her longest is over 18 hours.

England now has seven admirals of the fleet and nine field marshals.

SOME NECROLOGY OF 1903.

Captains in charge of troops who captured Jeff Davis, four.

Lieutenants in charge, five. The last one died the other day.

The last man who hanged John Brown, two.

Last survivors of Waterloo, nine.

Last men who saw Napoleon, two. This does not include the men who have written about him, none of whom has died for several years.

Last women, who, as flower girls, were kissed by Lafayette, thirteen.

Last men who shot Wilkes Booth, six.

The original McKinley man has not died so often during the year as formerly.

All of the original Roosevelt men are still living.

There has been a noticeable falling off in the men who knew Lincoln before he was president.

The last man who voted for Andrew Jackson has died once this year.—N. Y. Sun.

PROVERBS UP TO DATE.

"Nothing comes of nothing," but you had best not quote this to the father of a worthless son.

"Let the shoemaker stick to his last," but he had best know something about collecting bills.

"Birds of a feather flock together," but a blond woman usually considers a brunette her best foil.

"The cracked pitcher goes most often to the well," and the prima donna's last public appearance is a big house filler.

"The eyes are the windows of the soul," yet a lover is satisfied as he gazes into the "dark depths" of my lady's eyes.—N. Y. Herald.

FINE POINTS OF LAW.

Appropriation of considerable quantities of water in seasons when that may be done without sensible injury to lower owners is held, in Meng vs. Coffey (Neb.), 60 L. R. A. 910, not to give a prescriptive right to divert the whole stream in dry seasons.

The financial returns which a water plant can be made to bear are held in Kennebec water district vs. Waterville (Me.), 60 L. R. A. 856, to be necessarily considered in determining the value of the franchise of its owner when taken by right of eminent domain.

Receiving the premium after the destruction of all the insured property, so that nothing remains to which insurance might attach, is held, in German Insurance company vs. Shader (Neb.), 60 L. R. A. 918, to waive a provision in a policy that the insurer shall not be liable for loss occurring before payment of the premium.

An agent who is authorized by his principal to sell or exchange the property of the latter upon specified prices and terms is held, in Holmes vs. Cathcart (Minn.), 60 L. R. A. 734, to be in duty bound, upon learning that a more advantageous sale or exchange can be made, the facts concerning which are unknown to the principal, to communicate the same to him before making the sale as expressly authorized, and his failure to do so held to amount to a fraud in law.

SONG AND MELODY.

Prince Ludwig Ferdinand, of Bavaria, has finished his music drama, "Gyges."

Sarasate, the noted violinist, will be 60 next year. His curls, which 20 years ago were black as a raven, are now as white as carded wool. He is still a bachelor, and his income from his work averages £10,000 a year.

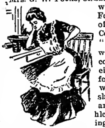
Mlle. Delna, the finest contralto in France, was discovered by Saint-Saens, and he looks upon the day when he heard the prima donna for the first time singing a music hall ditty as she washed up her dishes at a village inn near Paris as the happiest one in his life.

Since 1850, according to an investigation made by George Boyd, the assistant in the document room of the United States senate, closure has been proposed 98 times in that body.

In the British home trade 7,000 sailing-vessels and 2,800 steamers are engaged; but in the foreign the proportion is reversed—there are only 1,700 sailing-ships to nearly 4,000 steamers.

France has now the deepest well in the world. It is 3,609 feet, and the temperature at the bottom is 117 degrees.

Twenty-seven-hour trains are hereafter to be the rule between New York and Chicago.



ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up at one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, together with the other symptoms."

Cautious Man.

"Do you love my daughter?"

"Well, no; not just yet. You see, I'm a cautious man, and I'm just at the point where I feel that I could love her without any trouble. How much of a dowry does she get?"—Chicago Post.

Reads Like a Miracle.

Friarspoint, Miss., Nov. 30.—The Butler case still continues to be the talk of the town. Mr. G. L. Butler, the father of the little boy, says:—

"The doctor said my boy had disease of the spinal chord, and treated him for two months, during which he got worse all the time. Finally, the doctor told me he did not know what was the trouble. The boy would wake up during the night and say that he was dying. He would be nervous and trembling and would want to run from the house, saying he saw ugly things which frightened him. After we had tried everything else, I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for Nervous Troubles. I purchased some and used them until he had taken altogether eight boxes, when he was sound and well, with not a single symptom of the old trouble. This was some months ago, and I feel sure that he is permanently cured. We owe to Dodd's Kidney Pills all the credit for his restoration to good health."

HIS ANNUAL MESSAGE

President Roosevelt's Communication to National Law Makers.

SUBJECTS OF IMPORTANCE

Control of the Trusts—Frauds of Various Kinds—The Isthmian Canal and Panama Revolution—The Merchant Marine—Our Insular Possessions—Foreign Relations.

President Roosevelt's annual message to congress deals largely with a few important questions, leaving those of minor interest to the annual reports of the executive department heads.

The first subject to receive attention at the hands of the president is that of the trusts in connection with the operations of the department of commerce and labor and the bureau of corporations. Of the results which this bureau will accomplish he says:

"The preliminary work of the bureau of corporations in the department has shown the wisdom of its creation. Publicity in corporate affairs will tend to do away with ignorance, and will afford facts upon which intelligent action may be taken. Systematic, intelligent investigation is already developing facts the knowledge of which is essential to a right understanding of the needs and duties of the business world. The corporation which is honestly and fairly organized, whose managers in the conduct of its business recognize their obligation to deal squarely with their stockholders, their competitors and the public, has nothing to fear from such supervision. The purpose of this bureau is not to embarrass or assail legitimate business, but to aid in bringing about a better industrial condition—a condition under which there shall be obedience to law and recognition of public obligation by all corporations, great or small."

Capital and Labor.

On the subject of capital and labor the president says:

"The consistent policy of the national government, so far as it has the power, is to hold in check the unscrupulous man, whether employer or employe; but to refuse to weaken individual initiative or to hamper or cramp the industrial development of the country. We recognize that this is an era of federation and combination, in which great capitalistic corporations and labor unions have become factors of tremendous importance in all industrial centers. Hearty recognition is given the far-reaching, beneficent work which has been accomplished through both corporations and unions, and the line as between different corporations, as between different unions, is drawn as it is between different individuals; that is, it is drawn on conduct, the effort being to treat both organized capital and organized labor alike; asking nothing save that the interest of each shall be brought into harmony with the interest of the general public, and that the conduct of each shall conform to the fundamental rules of obedience to law, of individual freedom, and of justice and fair dealing towards all. Whenever either corporation, labor union, or individual disregards the law or acts in a spirit of arbitrary or tyrannous interference with the rights of others, whether corporations or individuals, then where the federal government has jurisdiction, it will see to it that the misconduct is stopped, paying not the slightest heed to the position or power of the corporation, the union or the individual, but only to one vital fact—that is, the question whether or not the conduct of the individual or aggregate of individuals is in accordance with the law of the land. Every man must be guaranteed his liberty and his right to do as he likes with his property or his labor, so long as he does not infringe the rights of others. No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it. Obedience to the law is demanded as a right; not asked as a favor."

The Merchant Marine.

The president does not believe that any financial legislation is needed or advisable at this time. On the subject of the merchant marine he asks that a commission consisting of the secretary of the navy, postmaster general and secretary of commerce and labor be appointed to investigate its needs and report to congress desirable legislation. He believes in stopping undesirable immigration, but makes no specific recommendations. He refers to the naturalization frauds being perpetrated in the large cities especially, and asks that a way be found to stop them. He recommends that appropriations made for the purpose of enabling the attorney general to prosecute the violations of the anti-trust laws be extended to include all violations of national laws, including naturalization frauds, the postal and public land frauds.

He refers to steps now being taken by the state department for making bribery an extraditable offense, and in connection with this the president says:

"The exposures and prosecutions of official corruption in St. Louis, Mo., and other cities and states have resulted in a number of givers and takers of bribes becoming fugitives in foreign lands. Bribery has not been included in extradition treaties heretofore, as the necessity for it has not arisen. While there may have been as much official corruption in former years, there has been more developed and brought to light in the immediate past than in the preceding century of our country's history. It should be the policy of the United States to leave no place on earth where a corrupt man fleeing from this country can rest in peace. There is no reason why bribery should not be included in all treaties as extraditable."

The Alaskan Boundary.

In connection with the Alaskan boundary decision the president reviews the history of the case leading up to the appointment of the tribunal, its sessions and decision, pronounces the result entirely satisfactory, and says:

"The award is self-executing on the vital points. To make it effective as regards the others, it only remains for the two governments to appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts, who shall, with all convenient speed, proceed together to lay down the boundary line in accordance with the decision of the majority of the tribunal. I recommend that the congress make adequate provision for the appointment, compensation and expenses of the members to serve on this joint boundary commission on the part of the United States."

A review of the Venezuelan case is given and its amicable adjustment through the efforts of this country, and the statement made that the adjustment by arbitration of this dispute has materially helped the cause of international arbitration. He says our relations with Turkey are friendly, and claims against that government are in process of adjustment. He calls attention to the signing of a new commercial treaty with China on October 8 which should give to our commerce an impetus in that empire, though he says the full measure of development cannot be looked for until the present abnormal conditions are settled.

He strongly advocates the extension of the rural free delivery system as rapidly as possible. He recommends government assistance for the Louisiana Purchase and Lewis and Clark expositions, and such legislation as will tend to the fuller development of Alaska, especially in regard to the land laws.

Insular Possessions.

In connection with our insular possessions he recommends an appropriation for the building of lighthouses in Hawaii and the payment for those already built by the island government. He asks that the governor of Hawaii be empowered to discharge officials appointed by him without submitting the matter to the legislature. He reports steady progress being made in both Porto Rico and the Philippines, and asks for the latter new tariff arrangements.

He believes that new laws are needed in connection with the administration of the public lands, and wants them held, so far as possible, for the home builder. He reports steady progress being made in irrigation in the west under the irrigation law, and does not believe new legislation along this line is needed now. He urges the continuation of the work of forest preservation, and the reservation of the public lands lying about the headwaters of the western streams.

He notes the increase in the number of government employes under the civil service rules, and pronounces the results advantageous to the government. In connection with the army he recommends the procuring of suitable maneuver grounds in different sections of the country, and some provision that will enable the department to recognize merit in making promotions where such are deserved. For the navy he wants a naval base established in the Philippines without unnecessary delay, and recommends the establishment of a naval general staff along lines similar to those of the army.

The Isthmian Canal.

More attention is given the isthmian canal and the Panama revolution than to any other subject. The legislation leading up to the present condition is discussed and reviewed. He sees no necessity for reverting to the Nicaraguan route, and pronounces present conditions ripe for the building of the Panama canal, and in this connection says:

"When the congress directed that we should take the Panama route under treaty with Colombia, the essence of the condition, of course, referred not to the government which controlled that route, but to the route itself; to the territory across which the route lay, not to the name which for the moment the territory bore on the map. The purpose of the law was to authorize the president to make a treaty with the power in actual control of the isthmus of Panama. This purpose has been fulfilled."

He reviews the relations of this government with Colombia relative to the matter of transit across the isthmus from the time of the signing of the treaty guaranteeing right of way of transit across the isthmus to the citizens of this country, 1846, down to the present time. For an interpretation of the meaning of the treaty he quotes from the state papers of previous government officials, including Secretary Cass and Secretary Seward. Says we are under obligations to the world to build the canal; notes the repudiation of the canal treaty by Colombia and says:

"Nevertheless the government of Colombia not merely repudiated the treaty, but repudiated it in such manner as to make it evident by the time the Colombian congress adjourned that not the scantiest hope remained of ever getting a satisfactory treaty from them. The government of Colombia made the treaty, and yet when the Colombian congress was called to ratify it the vote against ratification was unanimous. It does not appear that the government made any real effort to secure ratification."

The Panama Revolution.

He reviews the incidents of the Panama revolution, and says the action of the United States was in accordance with the terms of the treaty guaranteeing peaceable transit across the isthmus, and could not have been otherwise. He reviews at considerable length the disturbances that have occurred in Panama since 1847, and the efforts of the United States to preserve the rights guaranteed its citizens by treaty and says:

"In short, the experience of over half a century has shown Colombia to be utterly incapable of keeping order on the isthmus. Only the active interference of the United States has enabled her to preserve so much as a semblance of sovereignty. Had it not been for the exercise by the United States of the police power in her interest, her connection with the isthmus would have been sundered long ago. In 1856, in 1860, in 1873, in 1885, in 1901, and again in 1902, sailors and marines from United States warships were forced to land in order to patrol the isthmus, to protect life and property, and to see that the transit across the isthmus was kept open. In 1861, in 1862, in 1885, and in 1900, the Colombian government asked that the United States government would land troops to protect its interests and maintain order on the isthmus."

Considering the canal question in all its phases, and the inability of Colombia to maintain order on the isthmus, and its repudiation of the canal treaty which would have guaranteed permanent peace there, the president says:

"Under such circumstances the government of the United States would have been guilty of folly and weakness, amounting in their sum to a crime against the nation, had it acted otherwise than it did when the revolution of November 3 last took place in Panama. This great enterprise of building the interoceanic canal cannot be held up to gratify the whims, or out of respect to the governmental impotence, or to the even more sinister and evil political peculiarities, of people who, though they dwell afar off, yet, against the wish of the actual dwellers on the isthmus, assert an unreal supremacy over the territory. The possession of a territory fraught with such peculiar capacities as the isthmus in question carries with it obligations to mankind. The course of events has shown that this canal cannot be built by private enterprise, or by any other nation than our own; therefore it must be built by the United States."

The New Canal Treaty.

He refers to the new canal treaty recently made with Panama, which he submits with the message, and says of it:

"By the provisions of the treaty the United States guarantees and will maintain the independence of the republic of Panama. There is granted to the United States in perpetuity the use, occupation and control of a strip ten miles wide and extending three nautical miles into the sea at either terminal, with all lands lying outside of the zone necessary for the construction of the canal or for its auxiliary works, and with the islands in the bay of Panama. The cities of Panama and Colon are not embraced in the canal zone, but the United States assumes their sanitation and, in case of need, the maintenance of order therein; the United States enjoys within the granted limits all the rights, power and authority which it would possess were it the sovereign of the territory to the exclusion of the exercise of sovereign rights by the republic. All railway and canal property rights belonging to Panama and needed for the canal pass to the United States, including any property of the respective companies in the cities of Panama and Colon; the works, property and personnel of the canal and railways are exempted from taxation as well in the cities of Panama and Colon as in the canal zone and its dependencies. Free immigration of the personnel and importation of supplies for the construction and operation of the canal are granted. Provision is made for the use of military force and the building of fortifications by the United States for the protection of the transit. In other details, particularly as to the acquisition of the interests of the New Panama Canal company and the Panama railway by the United States and the condemnation of private property for the uses of the canal, the stipulations of the Hay-Herran treaty are closely followed, while the compensation to be given for these enlarged grants remains the same, being $10,000,000 payable on exchange of ratifications; and, beginning nine years from that date, an annual payment of $[illegible],000 during the life of the convention."

ROUND ABOUT THE STATE.

There have been 15 pauper burials over at Bemidji this year.

F. W. Heckrich, prominent athlete and bowler, died in Minneapolis.

A Business Men's association has been organized at Grand Meadow.

Jessie Eckstrom was accidently killed by falling from a wagon at Stark.

Eskimo Gambling.

Those who have spent any time in the north polar regions and become acquainted with the life and habits of the Eskimo know that he is by nature a gambler. A favorite method of gambling that affords much amusement is to take one of the long handled musk ox cups and, partly filling it with soup or stew made from the seal or walrus, whirl it on the top of a flat rock, about which are grouped those who have entered the game. The person to whom the handle of the cup points when it has stopped turning is the winner of the contents of the cup.

When the winner has emptied the cup then another article, not always or necessarily a soup or stew, is put into it for the next winner. If, however, the article is too large to put into the cup—for instance, a walrus tusk or seal hide or what else—then it may be represented by something else. The cup is then sent spinning again, and when it comes to a rest the winner takes the prize. One of the most valuable prizes, next to a gun or harpoon, is a needle, especially when one is very much needed in the household.

The Real Thing In Toothaches.

"Geewhitaker! Jumping Moses! But it was the worst case of toothache I ever bumped against!" he said. "It was easy in the early part of the evening, but when midnight arrived it got busy for fair. Liniment, hot and cold water and all the rest of the standard remedies were applied without avail. Seven thousand demons, with 7,000 redhot sledges, hammered, hammered and hammered away at the throbbing nerve. That tooth stood upon its head, rolled over the carpet and hung out of the window. It growled, grumbled, moaned and muttered, laughed, cried, ran, walked, trotted, galloped, sailed, flew, dog and excavated, and did everything under the heavens but quit and go to sleep like a decent tooth and stop monkeying"—

"And why didn't you have it extracted?"

"Just as soon as Brown could get to the dentist's he"—

"Great Scott, man! Wasn't it your tooth?"

"No. It was Brown's."—New York Press.

Acute Vision of Birds.

Birds have very acute vision—perhaps the most acute of any creature—and the sense is almost more widely diffused over the retina than is the case with man; consequently a bird can see objects sideways as well as in front of it. A bird sees—showing great uneasiness in consequence—a hawk long before it is visible to man. So, too, fowls and pigeons find minute scraps of food, distinguishing them from what appear to us exactly similar pieces of earth or gravel. Young chickens are also able to find their own food, knowing its position and how distant it is as soon as they are hatched, whereas a child only very gradually learns either to see or to understand the distance of an object. Several birds—apparently the young of all those that nest on the ground—can see quite well directly they come out of the shell, but the young of birds that nest in trees or on rocks are born blind and have to be fed.—Chambers' Journal.

President For a Day.

David R. Atchison of Missouri had the unique honor of being president of the United States for one day, and that was Sunday, March 4, 1849. The term of James K. Polk expired on the morning of that day, but, as it was Sunday, the president elect, General Zachary Taylor, was not inaugurated until next day, March 5. In consequence the president pro tem. of the United States senate, D. R. Atchison, was the acting president on March 4, 1849. However, he had presided at a night session of the senate, which lasted until away after midnight of Saturday, and he slept nearly all day Sunday, without realizing the fact that he was president of the United States.

Light Lunch and Music.

A country girl in Dublin went into a restaurant for her lunch. She was asked if she would have a meat dinner or "light lunch and music." Being curious, she chose the light lunch and music and was immediately shown into a room where other inquisitive persons were eating soup and listening to a spirited if not satisfying performance upon the jewsharp by one of the waiters. She felt at the end of the meal that she had paid high for curiosity, but she could make no complaint.

How to Clean Silk Dresses.

A little ammonia in a few teaspoonfuls of alcohol is excellent to sponge silk dresses that have grown shiny or rusty, as well as to take out spots. A silk, particularly a black, becomes almost like new when so sponged.

TWO TURNS OF THE WHEEL

The Story of the Rise and Fall of a Comstock Fortune.

Sandy Bowers was a teamster, his wife a buxom and not uncomely Scotch woman who took in washing and kept a miners' boarding house. It was in the early days of Virginia City, before men had grasped the full value of the discovery, and the teamster, in company with others of his kind, came into possession of several hundred feet on the lode at Gold Hill.

His claim became one of the bonanzas of the region, and Sandy found himself richer than he had ever thought any one could be. Neither he nor his wife ever rose to the level of their fortune. They remained the teamster and the washerwoman to the end. There is a story that neither could read nor write. After giving an entertainment at the International hotel such as that hostelry of many grandeurs had never before seen they went to Europe for two years.

When they came back they were still the teamster and the washerwoman. Europe had added no veneer. But the money was still in plenty. "Money to throw to the birds," as the old man was wont to say. Nevada was more to their taste than anywhere else; so they elected to remain there; and that strange monument of wealth, which is known all through Nevada and California as the Bowers mansion, was built on the shore of Washoe lake.

The site was one of extraordinary beauty, with the wall of snow capped Sierra behind it, the sapphire sweep of water in front. Money was never considered in its construction. It was built of quarried stone and furnished with the costliest San Francisco could supply. A library of books with Sandy's name on every volume was one of its features. The door handles were of silver, the table furnishings the finest to be had at that place at that time.

Here the old people—for they were getting old—settled and dispensed a lavish hospitality. Here an adopted child whom they dearly loved and had named Persia died. Here, too, later on Sandy died and was buried in the garden under the shadow of the Sierra. And here—the shades of evening beginning to close on this strange drama—poverty overtook his widow. She strove to redeem her first losses by speculation, throwing good money after bad. In her case the wheel of fortune made a complete revolution. Her old age saw her as poor as she had been in her youth. She passed from stage to stage and finally made a livelihood by practicing fortune telling in San Francisco. It having been always understood that she had the gift of second sight. The crystal in which she gazed had shown her many things, but nothing stranger, more dramatic and varied than her own life.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Our Small Country.

One brother is a rich merchant in the Straits Settlements, on the Malay peninsula. The other brother was the cook in a cheap restaurant on South Clark street.

The merchant sent to the cook a draft for sufficient money to pay his expenses out to Asia, and the cook gave up his job and has started for his brother's home. The interesting thing about the whole incident is the letter written by the wealthy merchant which accompanied the draft.

In the first place, the draft was made payable in New York.

"I send you the money in a draft payable in New York," wrote the brother from faroff Asia. "You can go over and get it cashed there. On the way I wish you would stop at Texas and see Brother Thomas. I haven't heard from him for two years now, and I'd like to know how he's getting along."—Chicago Tribune.

Getting Around It.

"Thomas, you have disobeyed your old grandmother."

"No, I didn't, ma."

"Yes, you did. Have you not been swimming?"

"Yes, ma."

"Didn't I hear her say to you not to go swimming?"

"Oh, she didn't tell us that. She only came out and said, 'Boys, I wouldn't go swimmin',' and I shouldn't think she would, an old rheumatic woman like her. But she didn't say nuthing about our goin' swimmin'."

An Infamy.

Some years ago we remember meeting at the door of a secondhand bookshop an excited Irishman. He had just bought the "Irish Melodies" for a shilling, when he turned round on the bookseller and burst out, "But I could kill ye for selling these immortal gems so cheap!"—Athenæum.

JAPANESE HOMES.

There Are No Doors or Passages In a Typical Dwelling.

The Japanese house consists in the main of a post at each corner and a roof. The roof may or may not be covered with heavy channeled publish tiles. It makes little difference in the long run whether it is or is not, for if it is not tiled the first typhoon that comes along removes it into somebody's garden anything up to a quarter of a mile away, and if it is tiled heavily enough to resist the typhoon so much the worse for the people underneath it when the first genuine earthquake arrives. But the odds are that it will be burned down before either happens, as the Japanese use very cheap lamps and very fiery petroleum and are regular children about fires. Of course something else is done to the four posts and the roof before they become a house in which births, marriages and deaths can take place. But really remarkably little is necessary. Crossbeams are naturally added to support the weight of the roof, grooves are made in the crossbeams and in the platform raised a foot or two above the ground which constitutes the floor. A Japanese house is all on one floor generally—in fact, one might say it is all one floor. Between the grooves in the floor and the grooves in the crossbeams are run shutters with paper panels to divide the houses into whatever number of rooms the owner may choose, which depends on the number of bedrooms he may require. There are no doors or passages in a typical Japanese house. In it every room serves as a passage into the room beyond it, and for the door you slide back the panel that happens to be nearest to you. For this sliding there are little bronze sunk handles in the wooden frames of the panels. The outside paper shutters do not come quite to the edge of the platform floor; the grooves along the edges are filled at night or in severe weather with wooden shutters, each of which is held in its place by the one that follows it, the last one being secured with a flimsy wooden bolt.

TWO TON BLACKFISH

A School That Was Driven Ashore at Cape Cod.

One day in November, several years ago, the good people living on the Massachusetts bay shore at the north end of Cape Cod were wrought to the highest pitch of excitement by the arrival of an immense school of blackfish which were on the flats chasing bait, as the small fish they feed on are called, and gradually working inshore. The news spread like wildfire. Village stores were hastily closed, schoolboys deserted schoolrooms and even women flocked to the shore. The flats along the coast make out from half to a mile and a half, practically level and almost dry at low tide, where at high tide is four to eight feet of water. No school of blackfish so large as this had ever been heard of. And by good luck the tide was ebbing.

Hastily the boats were launched, each taking a half dozen men and boys, those not rowing being armed with sticks and pieces of board. In a quarter of an hour they were in position in half circle and to leeward of the fish.

"Close in now," came from the "commodore," "and make all the noise you can!" And they did, fairly churning the water with boards and sticks. The thousands of squid and herring on which the blackfish were feeding assisted in this movement by getting to to shoal water as far as possible so that the blackfish could not follow them. The result was inevitable. The fast ebbing tide soon began to leave the big fish in such shoal water that it was difficult for the larger ones to swim. Gradually the circle of boats drew nearer and nearer, and in two hours 90 per cent of the entire school was stranded on the flats. For weeks after the villagers were engaged in cutting up and trying out the oil. The total catch netted some $25,000, many of the fish weighing two tons apiece.—Outing.

Dogs In China.

Dogs in China are chiefly despised, except as house workers or for culinary purposes. A black dog with yellow eyebrows is valued as a first rate house dog, but a white one with black eyebrows will bring luck to his owner, while a black dog is the king of his race. A "lion dog"—belonging to the small, shaggy northern breed—will bring good fortune, while the only real Chinese canine pet is the "sleeve dog," so called from being small enough to lie in the capacious Celestial sleeve. Retrievers are apparently unknown, while greyhounds are lanky and slow.

Could Lift a Ton and a Half.

A Scotchman, said to be the last of the Stuarts, was possessed with an extraordinary strength, from which circumstance he got the byname of Jemmy Strength. Among other feats, he could carry a 24 pounder cannon and had been known to lift a cart load of hay weighing a ton and a half upon his back. Many a time he took up a jackass and, carrying it on his shoulders, walked through the tollgate.

Flour and Teeth.

A valuable letter from a correspondent drew attention to an important and admitted cause of the national degeneration of physique which we have striven to emphasize in these columns. The roller mill has undoubtedly diminished the dietetic value of our bread. The entire wheat grain is of value—the husk (which is a valuable intestinal stimulant), the brown exterior and the white central core. Except for certain invalids white bread is an indefensible absurdity. Better is brown bread, consisting of all but the husk, and best is a whole meal bread, assuming such to be obtainable. The deficiency of salts in white bread is unquestionably related to the deterioration—also familiar to our readers—in the national teeth. We may illustrate this by an argument from Sir Thomas Lander Brunton. "Why has America the cleverest dentists?" Answer: "Because she has the best flour mill makers." The better the mill is, the finer the flour, the poorer the bread, the worse the teeth and the better the dentists. Perfectly simple!—London Chronicle.

Quickly Subdued.

Von Blumer (roaring with rage)—Who told you to put paper on the wall?

Decorator—Your wife, sir.

Von Blumer—Pretty, isn't it?

Many people buy everything on credit and never ask the price until they go to pay. Then there is a kick.—Atchison Globe.

The Cataleptic Trance.

It cannot be doubted that in numerous cases of cataleptic trance the apparently lifeless patient has been acquainted with all the arrangements being made for his interment. Several instances are recorded in which, although the body presented every appearance of death, the patient was conscious of everything going on around him, but absolutely unable to raise a limb or in any way communicate with those near his bed.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

First Publication Dec. 4th, 1903.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of eight hundred and eighty-seven one hundredths (890.87-100) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Jorgensen, an unmarried man of Polk County, Minnesota, Mortgagor, to Thomas Nesbitt of the County of Kalamazoo, Michigan Mortgagee, bearing date the 22nd day of May 1897, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of September 1897, at 4.15 o'clock P. M., in Book 77 of Mortgages, on page 239.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by Philip D. Miller and James Nesbitt, as executors of the estate of Thomas Nesbitt, deceased, Mortgagee, to Addie Nesbitt of Kalamazoo County, Michigan, by written Assignment, dated the 18th day of March 1899, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds, on the 22nd day of March 1899, at 9.10 o'clock A. M., in Book 73 of Mortgages on page 515.

Which said Mortgage, together with said debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Addie Nesbitt of Kalamazoo County, Michigan, the Assignee and holder thereof, to Hans O. Rosaaen of Fisher, Polk County Minnesota, by written assignment dated the 21st day of August 1903, and recorded on the 1st day of September 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 95 of mortgages, page 231, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, THEREFORE, NOTICE is HEREBY GIVEN,—That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

Lots numbered three (3), eleven (11) and twelve (12) containing One Hundred Ten 45-100 acres more or less of section seven (7), Township One Hundred Fifty (150) North of Range Forty-eight (48) West, and eleven and one-half (11½) acres of the west side of Lot numbered Thirteen (13) of Section Seven (7) of Township One Hundred and fifty (150) North of Range Forty-eight (48) West; all according to the United States Government survey thereof, and all being situate in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said county and State, on 22nd day of January 1904, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of eight Hundred and 87-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty (50) Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Will Work Much Hardship.

The recent closing of the various convents in France, it is learned, will cause the industry and art of lacemaking to die out. This charming and profitable work was fostered chiefly in religious institutions where the nuns were past mistresses in the art and the peasant girls of the neighborhood were pupils.

Told of Death in Dream.

Three times did Mr. Page, a farmer of South Elmham, England, dream that Mr. Crickmore, formerly a threshing machine propriator, had been drowned in a pond on his land. He searched the pond, but it was not till later that Crickmore was found in it. Throughout the search a little dog that accompanied Mr. Page whined piteously.

Mark Twain's Pretty Compliment.

Mark Twain was standing in a crowded street car, hanging to a strap. As the car swung around a corner the strap broke, dumping him into the lap of a well-dressed woman. The humorist arose and bowed. "Madam," said he, "this is the first time the street car company ever conferred a favor on me."

Little Soap Used in India.

English firms are trying to secure a market for soap in India, but up to the present time that country has remained practically soapless. Indeed, throughout Hindustan soap is regarded as rather a curiosity, and rarely, if ever, kept in stock by the native storekeeper.

Sermon Causes Trouble.

Leaning over to her neighbor in a Dublin church, one Sunday recently, a woman whispered: "There's a tip for you," alluding to the preacher's remarks on proselytism. The other woman gave an answering glare and struck the speaker across the face. In an instant the church was in an uproar, and in a rush to the doors several persons were knocked down.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To fight it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."

Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine."—MRS. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., Pres. Household Economics Club.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham. She will understand your case perfectly, and will treat you with kindness. Her advice is free, and the address is Lynn, Mass. No woman ever regretted having written her, and she has helped thousands.

When women are troubled with irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, general debility, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Frances Cook, Box 670, Kane, Pa., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for ten years with leucorrhœa, but am glad to say that through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her Sanative Wash I am cured, for which I am very thankful."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Found Dead.

A young man, probably thirty years of age, whose identity is unknown, was found dead beside the Milwaukee track in Winona. The man's right foot was crushed, there was a bruise on his right hand and his head was injured, but aside from this he was not mutilated. There was nothing about him to show his name. He had $14 in bills and change in his pockets and a pass book showing that he had been engaged in husking corn near Hastings.

The body was taken to the morgue, where it is being held to await the developments. It is believed that he was trying to board the train and slipped, for no other way can the police account for the injuries and the position of the man's body, which was at right angles to the track. His death must have occurred in the early night, for the hands and feet were badly frozen.

Food Exhibit at St. Louis.

An exhibit showing the work of the Minnesota dairy and food commission will be made at the Louisiana Purchase exposition, if the present plans of Commissioner W. W. P. McConnell are carried out.

The exhibit will illustrate the adulteration of food and drink, misbranding, artificial coloring and various schemes of unscrupulous manufacturers to deceive the purchaser. It will be a part of a combined exhibit of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments. The display will be made in the agriculture building.

Must be Labeled.

W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, has given notice that he will enforce rigidly the pure food laws with reference to maple and other syrups. He will require all syrups not made of pure juices to be labeled with a statement of all the ingredients. He will give jobbers until until January 1 to get their goods properly labeled, and the retailers will be given six months longer, or until July 1, to dispose of their unlabeled goods, and after that time they must comply strictly with the law.

New Freight Boat.

A contract was signed between C. A. Tomlinson of Duluth and the American Shipbuilding company for the construction of one of the biggest freight carriers on the lakes.

The new Tomlinson boat will be 404 feet over all and 474 feet keel. She will be 52 feet beam and 29 feet deep. She will have twenty-eight hatches, and will cost $350,000. This vessel is expected to transport 10,000 net tons on the usual summer draft to the connecting waters of the Great Lakes.

Ranks Third.

The tonnage of the Duluth-Superior harbor in 1903 was exceeded by but two ports in the United States, according to the annual reports of the United States engineer in charge of the Duluth district of Lake Superior for 1003. Those two ports were New York and Philadelphia. Boston comes fourth in the list. The commerce of the Duluth-Superior from 1867 to 1002, inclusive, amounted to 129,064,100 freight tons valued at $1,809,102,514.

Litigation Decided.

By the decision of Judge Page Morris of the United States district court at Duluth, the steamer George C. Hadley is held solely responsible for the collision which resulted in the sinking of the Thomas Wilson outside of Duluth harbor with nine of her crew June 7, 1902. Judge Morris fixes the total damage to the Wilson and her crew at more that $180,000, of which however, but $23,098.23, the appraised value of the Hadley, can be recovered.

Many Apples.

The big Western transit liner Buffalo has delivered in Duluth what was probably the biggest shipment of apples ever comprising a single cargo at any American port. It consisted of 39,400 barrels, or 150 carloads, and was valued at $128,000. One half of the shipments was for the Twin Cities and the other half for Duluth. Estimating 750 apples per barrel, the cargo consisted of 20,550,000 apples.

News Notes.

The branch offices of the International Harvester company at St. Cloud have been closed preparatory to the removal of some of the officials elsewhere.

George Wise, employed at the Palisade flour mill, Minneapolis, fell sixty feet in the elevator shaft and escaped with a few slight bruises about the head. Wise thought the elevator was at the landing and backed through the door.

Six out of the nine players who will be included in the Duluth ball team for next season have been signed. Qaillian, Wilkes and Shaw are the only members of the old team who have been saved. Second Baseman Kelly of the Winnipeg team last year has been secured.

Two big timber sales were made the past week at Two Harbors, involving a consideration of $350,000, and the lumber firm of Alger, Smith & Co. were the purchasers in each case. The lands are located in Lake and St. Louis counties, and a period of twenty years is allowed in which to cut the pine.

Representative Dave McCleery has introduced a bill to pension participants in the battles of New Ulm and Fort Ridgely in the Sioux outbreak of 1862, at $12 a month. McCleery will do all he can to secure the passage of the bill, but he realizes that the task is hard, as all such special pension measures have died heretofore.

Hans Solberg of Vincland has asked the authorities to assist him in locating his 14-year-old son, John, who left home Sept. 27. The boy was last heard from at the offices of the Associated Charities in Minneapolis.

AN EVIL IN FOOD THE LAW SHOULD REACH.

In reference to the use of alum baking powders Prof. Schweitzer, of the State University of Missouri, says: "The deleterious effects of alum and the soluble salts of alumina upon the human system, even when used in small quantities, are too well known to need relating; their use in baking powder is dangerous, and should be restricted."

The effects of the continuous use of alum baking powders are thus summed up in a medical publication:—

"Alum taken into the stomach retards the digestion of the food.

"It is an irritant which inflames and irritates the stomach and intestinal canal.

"It is an astringent and tends to constipate the bowels, which interferes with digestion.

"It renders the albumen of the food partially insoluble, and therefore takes away from its nutritive value.

"It is absorbed into the blood, which it tends to thicken and coagulate. The free flow of the blood through the organs of the heart is thus retarded.

"Its continued absorption into the system causes some forms of nervous prostrations and many of those affections of the nerves from which both women and men suffer.

"Fourteen grains of alum have caused the death of a child. Larger doses have frequently resulted fatally in the case of adults.

"No drug so powerful and deadly, no matter in what proportions it may be employed, can safely be used in any article of food."

WAY STATIONS.

There will be 36 tunnels on the route of the new Denver, Northwestern and Pacific railway within a distance of 26 miles, through the Rockies. It is estimated that it will require 600,000 pounds of powder to blast 2½ miles of this route.—Four-Track News.

At the beginning of the last century the royal college of Bavarian physicians sought to forbid steam railway travel, because it would induce delirium furiosum among the passengers and drive the spectators crazy; while an English quarterly said that it would as soon expect the people to suffer themselves to be tied to one of Congreve's rockets as to trust themselves to the mercy of a locomotive going at the prodigious rate of 12 miles an hour.

The new Belgian military system, established on the basis of voluntary conscription, has already proved a failure. Notwithstanding the active efforts of the enlistment committee but few volunteers have come forward during the last year.

Gen. Jos Wheeler is an enthusiastic believer in the value—the "incalculable benefit" is his own phrase—of the army maneuvers. "Many things," he says, "that are necessary in actual warfare are being attempted now in these experiments, and when one side or another fails the failure shows what may be expected next time. In other words, to learn why you have failed or succeeded in a thing is just as important in warfare as in anything else."

EVERY WALK IN LIFE.

A. A. Boyce, a farmer, living three and a half miles from Trenton, Mo., says: "A severe cold settled in my kidneys and developed so quickly that I was obliged to lay off work on account of the aching in my back and sides. For a time I was unable to walk at all, and every makeshift I tried and all the medicine I took had not the slightest effect. My back continued to grow weaker until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and I must say I was more than surprised and gratified to notice the backache disappearing gradually until it finally stopped."

WHERE PEACE REIGNS.

Money Is Not Needed and No Dissipation or Irregularity Permitted.

The long haired young reformers were holding an informal debate, and when they had agreed that the world was just about as corrupt and bad a place as it well could be, a grim-faced man arose, relates London Tit-Bits.

"What you seem to want, friends," he said, "is a place where everyone has to be good by law."

"That's it!" chorused the reformers.

"Where smoking ain't allowed, and such a thing as drink is unknown? Where no one need worry about food and raiment, and where money does not exist?"

"We do!"

"Where everyone has to go to church on Sundays, and everyone keeps regular hours?"

"That is just what we do want. Oh, to find such a place!" said a soulful young fellow, speaking for the others.

"Well, I've just come from such a place—"

"You have?" cried the soulful one. "Oh, tell us, tell us, man of wonderful experience, where it is, that we may also go!"

"It's a place called prison!" said the grim man.

Acceptable as a Juror.

A murder case was on trial, and the jury was being selected. Among the venire was a negro who had a passion for listening to socialistic speeches when not otherwise engaged, which was "generally always."

The attorney asked: "Do you believe in capital punishment?"

"Yes, suh, I does."

"Do you know what capital punishment is?"

"'Course I does," the negro replied.

"Well, what do you understand capital punishment to be?"

"It means a-gittea eben wid de rich, who are a-rulin' ober de pore. I ble'be hit's right, an' you cain't make me ble'be authin' else."

"Accepted!" shouted the attorney.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Bright's Disease Cured.

Whitehall, Ill., Dec. 7.—A case has been recorded in this place recently, which upsets the theory of many physicians that Bright's Disease is incurable. It is the case of Mr. Lon Manley, whom the doctors told that he could never recover. Mr. Manley tells the story of his case and how he was cured in this way:

"I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills after the doctors had given me up. For four or five years I had Kidney, Stomach and Liver Troubles; I was a general wreck and at times I would get down with my back so bad that I could not turn myself in bed for three or four days at a time.

"I had several doctors and at last they told me I had Bright's Disease, and that I could never get well. I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and I am now able to do all my work and am all right. I most heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills and am very thankful for the cure they worked in my case. They saved my life after the doctors had given me up."

BRIEFLY DESCRIPTIVE.

Not Many Words Required to Tell How the Whole Thing Happened.

"Private" John Allen, according to the New York Times, is responsible for this one:

Last year there were a number of claims for damages brought against one of the railroads in Mississippi by the farmers in a certain county of that state. These claims arose out of the fact that many hogs had been killed by the trains of the railroads in question. A mixed commission was formed of railroad men and others to determine the equity of these claims. Among others questioned by this commission was an old darky who claimed to have been an eye-witness of the annihilation of one hog.

Said the chairman of the commission to Zeph:

"Tell us, in as few words as possible, how this hog was killed."

Old Zeph shifted a huge cud of tobacco from one cheek to the other, cleared his throat, and then replied:

"Well, sah," said he, "as nearly as I kin make it out, it was dis way: De train tooted and den tuk him!"

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Meets to Consider Reciprocity for Cuba and Other Affairs.

The first regular session of the Fifty-eighth congress began at noon on the 7th. The business transacted in the senate consisted of the reading of the president's message and the beginning of the discussion of the Cuban reciprocity bill. The nomination of Gen. Leonard Wood to be major general of the army was received from the president. In the house the president's message was read and bills were introduced to increase the pay of letter carriers; providing for postal currency notes in the denomination of five, ten, 25 and 50 cents, to be issued by the postmaster general and kept on sale by all postmasters; making McKinley's birthday, January 29, a national holiday, to be known as "McKinley day."

The recent investigation into frauds in the post office department was the basis of a sharp debate in the United States senate on the 8th by Senators Gorman and Lodge. Senator Teller spoke in opposition to the Cuban bill. The Panama canal treaty was referred to the foreign affairs committee. In the house bills were introduced: To prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors in buildings owned or controlled by the government; to protect anti-gambling laws from nullification through interstate gambling by telegraph. A resolution was adopted requesting the postmaster general to furnish the post office committee with all papers in connection with the recent investigation of his department.

Senator Hoar (Mass.) introduced a resolution in the United States senate on the 9th calling for information covering every phase connected with the founding of the new republic of Panama. Senators Teller and Morgan spoke against Cuban reciprocity. In the house bills were introduced for the upbuilding of the navy; to create a commission to consider legislation for the development of the American merchant marine; to appropriate $100,000 for the erection of a federal building at Lincoln, Ill.

Bills were introduced in the United States senate on the 10th providing that after March 4, 1904, salaries of senators, representatives and delegates in congress shall be $7,500 per annum, and to make the provisions of the naturalization laws of the United States applicable to Porto Rico. In the house the pension appropriation bill, carrying $138,150,100, was reported. A bill was introduced limiting the meaning of the word "conspiracy" and the use of injunctions.

MISDIRECTED GENEROSITY

BY JOHN H. RAFFERTY.

Col. Battersly, not having seen his sister in ten years, decided to spend Christmas at her house. A desultory correspondence had made him vaguely aware of the fact that her husband, Calvin Murdock, had grown rich, and that she had two children, a boy and a girl. But he was not prepared for the luxuriant conditions which he found upon entering their splendid home. He was never estranged from his sister, but when she married Murdock the soldier brother had made up his mind that his sister's husband was not "his" kind." In frontier barracks and foreign camps, Col. Battersly's life had been lonely. He was a silent, elemental, passionate man, whose rigid habits gave a cold and even hard exterior to a nature essentially tender. Murdock was a man of much smug piety, who knew that a Sunday school class does not hurt a man's credit with the bank.

But the Murdocks gave Uncle Battersly a grand welcome. His sister kissed him, the two children gave him their hands with trained graciousness, and the head of the house said: "Welcome to the warrior—see, the conquering hero comes!" This made the old campaigner ill at ease. He blushed like a girl, and thereafter found restraint in the, to him, artificial atmosphere of the grand house. When he went out for a walk Mrs. Murdock said:

"Poor fellow; how he's changed!"

"Out of his element with women and children," growled Murdock.

"What makes his neck so red?" asked the boy.

When the Christmas presents began to arrive, and his sister showed them to him, the colonel suddenly realized that he must buy something for the children. He said nothing about it, but spent half of the next day buying for his niece a French doll, with a complete wardrobe, and a fully equipped steam battleship for his nephew. It was a soldier's choice—love and a child for the little woman, power and war for the little man. "He was very careful about the address, "Mrs. Murdock, 2441 Penrose street."

He wondered why his gifts did not soon appear in the grand array, but said nothing to his sister, showing each day an increasing interest in the accumulating presents in the locked room, and finally, on Christmas eve, late in the day, going back to the store where he had made his purchases to ask what had become of the doll and the warship. It took a long time to find out the right man, but at last a very polite clerk who had been answering questions as fast as a dozen people could ask them, turned to him and said:

"Murdock? What address? Penrose street or Penrose avenue?"

"Are there both?" asked the colonel, as the possible blunder dawned on him.

"Yes; one on the West side, one on the South side. Where did you wish your goods to go?"

Of course, Penrose avenue is on the South side and Penrose street is on the West side, and Col. Battersly had himself made the mistake. The goods had been receipted for, the clerk told him. It was pretty late to attempt getting them back, but they would try. The clerk made some notes, rattled off a few words about the terrible rush, moved off and left the colonel standing dazed in the crowd. He went home, and as a precaution got out of his trunk a strangely carved bracelet, antique, oriental—a noble present, he thought, for his niece; and for his nephew an old, bejeweled war mask—it had been a mandarin's. And he took them to Mrs. Murdock, saying nothing of their great value, and said they were for her girl and her boy. But after dinner that night Mr. Murdock tapped at the colonel's door, saying:

"I hope you won't think of giving those rare curios to the children, colonel. They're worth their weight in money."

"Didn't cost me a cent, Murdock," blurted the soldier. "They're part of the loot—well, the loot—that is, I picked 'em up in China and—they—the children will appreciate them more as they grow older."

Murdock walked away without another word, but that night the woman told her brother, softly and with evident desire to be grateful, that "papa was so scrupulous, he didn't want the children to receive such presents."

"You know, brother," she said, "he's so conscientious that he thinks you didn't come by them honestly—that is, from his point of view. You won't feel hurt, will you, brother? Papa is so different from you."

So the brother, flushing red, took back his barbaric gifts and went to bed. In the morning, soon after breakfast, he went out of the house, called a cab, and bade the driver take him to 2441 Penrose street. The doll and the battleship had not arrived, and he was going after them. He got out of the cab in a squalid street, and went into the only house in the block. It was a dirty, tumbledown cottage, built below grade and with a sign "For Sale" nailed to the rickety fence. A thin woman, in an old, faded wrapper, came to the door.

"I came to see if—"

"Oh, I knew somebody ud come," she interrupted him. "I knew they wasn't for us, sir—won't you come in?"

He stepped into the dingy room and saw a big-eyed, frail girl of seven fondling the great French doll.

"You see, sir," said the woman, breathless to explain, "the things come while I was out—I work over at the shoe factory, and—my name is Murphy, sir—and when the things come nobody was home, sir, but Mamie and the boy. He's mine, and he's out there now playin' with th' steamboat, and when the wagon came, Mrs. Tracy, she lives in the next block, she seen it, and she ran over and signed a book, and the driver jumped on his wagon and went away, an', of course, the children seen the bundles on' nothin' would do but they must open 'em. That's all, sir; we didn't want to—I hope you don't think we'd steal 'em."

SPENT HALF AN HOUR BUYING A FRENCH DOLL.

She was out of breath now, and the two children—the boy, a sturdy lad of ten, had come in—were staring, frightened, at the colonel. He looked at them a moment and then at the mother.

"I don't understand you, madam," he said. "I called to look at the house. It's for sale, you know."

He saw the look of anxiety pass from her homely face. The children, delighted with the reprieve, ran back to their splendid toys. He made a show of looking through the stuffy rooms, and when he was going gave each of the little ones a coin.

"Good-by, madam," he said to the mother. "You have two fine children."

And when he was in the cab again he stroked his gray mustache and chuckled:

"It was a lucky blunder, after all. I'll go down to the store in the morning and tell 'em it's all right."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Young Writer.

No young writer in whom the literary aspiration is a passion need or really will be cowed by the arrny of mighty and expert antagonists in the arena whose names sound and resound so gloriously from the herald's trumpet [illegible] re-enforced by past triumphs. Though a true and becoming modesty may well temper his ambition, it should in no degree suppress his ardent longing. These veterans, young aspirant, are indeed masters, but as such your exemplars. They also had their beginnings, hidden indeed, as used to be the sources of the Nile, "not permitted to be seen small," because they mastered their art before they exhibited as artists.—Harper's Magazine.

Thief Cleverness.

A magistrate's clerk has been known to have his tie pin stolen while in court, and one in Birmingham a few years ago lost his coat in the same way, but a more remarkable example perhaps of a thief's cleverness under the very eyes of the police was that of the burglar at Clerkenwell, who managed to conceal two diamond rings while the police were searching him and passed one of them to his wife in the cell while the police were looking on. The rings were under his tongue, and one of them passed from his mouth to his wife's when he was kissing her goodby.—London Answers.

A Lasting Lesson.

"Didn't I tell you not to propose to me again?"

"You said something of the kind, but of course it made no impression on me."

"Oh, it didn't! Well, I'll give you a lesson now that you won't forget. You'll never propose to me again."

"What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to accept you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Buddhism.

Mrs. Dumm—I see a piece in the paper about some society people bein' interested in Buddhism. What's that?

Mrs. Dumber—Why, I guess that must be the doin's of these young society people that's called "buds."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Safest.

Sharpe — Yes. Parker invented the safest air ship ever heard of.

Wheaiton—But it refused to fly. You couldn't get up on it.

"That's why I say it was the safest."

Success.

She—And what would you call a successful poet?

He—One who leaves money enough to bury him.—Judge.

A straight line is shortest in morals as well as in geometry.—Rahel.

The Originator.

"I wonder who made the first after dinner speech?" asked the philosopher.

"Adam," replied the wise guy promptly. "As soon as he got through with the core of that apple he said, 'The woman tempted me,' didn't he?"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Forced to It.

"You ought not to beg," she said.

"No, ma'am," admitted the tramp.

"Why do you do it?"

"Well, ma'am, I wouldn't if I could git people to give me money by jest lookin' sad."—Chicago Post.

No Difference.

Young Criminal Lawyer—I have arranged to have the prisoner's wife and babies sit in front of the jury and weep all through the trial. Do you think it advisable to pick bachelors or married men for the jury?

Old Criminal Lawyer—Oh, it doesn't make a particle of difference. If bachelors they will sympathize with the woman and babies, and if married men they will sympathize with the prisoner.

THE QUALITY OF GENIUS.

Its Practical Absorption of a Man's Best Faculties.

To be a great lawyer is incompatible with being a great poet. Nevertheless, Shakespeare was fond of showing his little legal knowledge, and Bacon has written some verse. There have been writers of eminence, like Walter Scott and Thackeray, who were lawyers by profession, but they must have made law quite subordinate to literature, although some of them, like Walter Scott, have got money by following the law. Hoffman, the author of "The Pot of Gold" and other imaginative stories, was a man of genius, who was also a judge or a magistrate. I think, however, that his legal duties sat lightly on him. His connection with the law seems somewhat similar to that of Walter Scott. It was neither absorbing nor permanent. Politicians turn to literature. Literary men, like Chateaubriand and Lamartine, have held high places as politicians, but they never were real statesmen, and I should not call them men of great genius. A man of action may be great in more fields of action than one. Julius Cæsar and Napoleon Bonaparte were statesmen and generals, but they were not and could not be poets, though Julius Cæsar was a writer. Among the ancient Greeks and later Spaniards and Portuguese we find poets who were soldiers and even generals. They, however, were not wholly military. Only a part, and sometimes a small part, of their lives was spent in service. Horace's experience of war was very short, and, although he was a military tribune, he was not a distinguished soldier. A man may be excellent in more ways than [illegible] he cannot be a man of ge[illegible] different ways. A few [illegible] as that of Sherid[illegible] which seem [illegible] rule. [illegible]

[illegible] and wi[illegible] pre[illegible] persons.

"T[illegible] is represented as sto[illegible]ss, with short, nervous, [illegible] steps.

Th[illegible] proud step is slow and measured. The toes are conspicuously turned out, the legs straightened.

Slow steps, whether long or short, suggest a gentle or reflective state of mind, as the case may be.

The direction of the steps wavering and following every changing impulse of the mind inevitably betrays uncertainty, hesitation and indecision.

Obstinate people who in argument rely more on muscularity than on intellectual power set the feet flatly and firmly on the ground, walking heavily and slowly, and stand with the legs firmly planted far apart.

Box Office Ingenuity.

A newspaper man was standing in line at the box office of one of the popular theaters on the opening night. The first man asked for four seats, and when he started to pay for them the man in the box office said:

"Oh, that's all right. There's no charge at all for those seats."

The man looked surprised, grabbed the tickets and went. Then the newspaper man's turn came, and he said:

"Please satisfy impertinent curiosity and tell me why you wouldn't take that man's money."

"Well," said the treasurer, "I expect you didn't notice that that man was cross eyed. If I had sold him the first tickets we wouldn't have had a bit of luck through the whole engagement."—New York Times.

Wasp's Method of Attack.

Belt in his "Naturalist in Nicaragua" draws attention to the methods of attack used by different species of wasps. One accustomed to animals and not to men takes care to crawl down the outstanding hairs to the skin before inserting its sting, while others which live in the midst of human dwellings fly straight at a man's face. The first species, true to inherited instinct, when it attacks unfamiliar human beings attaches itself to their hair or their beards. But there must have been a time when the second species discovered that the face was the vulnerable part, and the discovery was the outcome of the action of brain.

Art Treasures.

"I understand you have a number of art treasures."

"Any number of 'em," answered Mr. Cumrox.

"By the way, how would you define an art treasure?"

"An art treasure, as nearly as I can figure it out, is something that is considered all the more valuable for being secondhand goods."—Washington Star.

Saw His Finish.

"Oh, oh," exclaimed Mrs. Naggs, "I've bitten off the end of my tongue!"

"Well, I certainly feel sorry for myself," rejoined the heartless Naggs. "Hereafter there will be no end to your tongue."—Buffalo News.

A Hardware Talk.

"Yes," said the nut to the nail; "it gave me a terrible wrench to part from him, but I knew it would be only a matter of a few days before he would bolt anyway."

Sweet Simplicity.

"Auntie, ought Bertie Wilson to have smiled so often at me in church?"

"No, dear. Where was he sitting?"

"Behind me."

A NEW CONTEST LAW.

A case of unlawful detailner was tried in justice Rings court at Winsor yesterday, in which Miss Alice Campbell was plaintiff and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bella, were defendants. The real object the case was to disposess Bella of the land on which he has valuable improvements and give Miss. Campbell possession, who filed a homested on it Nov. 10th, last

The case was decided in favor of the plaintiff by the jury, and prompt notice of an appeal to the District court was given by the defedants. This case has established a new precedence in the law of the rights of claimants to the disputed lands now under contest, (which if it was law) that would save the U. S Land office the trouble of deciding the cases.

All that it would be nessessary for the filer to do would be to commence action in justice court and put the settler off the land and out of his house and move in and take possession.

Colchester's Oyster Feast.

Famous indeed is the Colchester oyster feast, and to be invited is considered the highest compliment the town can confer not only from the importance of the function, but because at that meal is an unlimited supply of the finest obtainable natives, of which some sacks are consumed. Even from the times of the Romans these oysters have been celebrated, says the London Chronicle. Exclusive rights to the oyster fisheries were granted to the town under a charter of Richard I., and in the reign of Elizabeth horse loads of oysters were accepted as gifts by the courtiers of the time. Massinger's Justice Greedy commences his day with "a barrel of Colchester oysters," a statement that shows how altered are the customs of today.

Who Nero Was.

In the days when Sir Charles Gavan Duffy was a leading figure in Victorian politics there sat in the Melbourne parliament a wealthy but not well informed butcher. The chief secretary of the day was deprecating the attitude of the leader of the opposition, whose conduct was, he declared, worse than Nero's.

"Who was Nero?" interjected the knight of the cleaver, with equal scorn and sincerity.

"Who was Nero?" replied the delighted chief secretary. "The honorable gentleman ought to know. Nero was a celebrated Roman butcher."—London M. A. P.

On the Christmas Tree.

The old fashioned stockings and hearts and crosses and animals cut out of tarlatan outlined with worsted and then filled with flat candies and tied on the tree are always popular ornaments. Sugar figures bought in the confectionery store will serve to break the monotony. The baker at Christmas time usually has his windows filled with horses, dogs, cats and men and women made of delectable cake dough and artistically ornamented with colored sugar curlycues. These are toothsome and attractive to the small boy and girl.

Candles in small candle holders are always scattered well over the tree. It is a wise precaution to keep a pan of water in which is a wet sponge in case of accidents. When a spark falls upon a bough, the sponge quickly applied to the spot will check the spread of the fire.—Washington Star.

POLLY HANGING HOLLY

WITH Polly I chanced to be hanging the holly,
 With Polly the roguish, with Polly
  the sly;
With Polly, who's brimming with frolic
  and folly,
 A quip on her lip and a jest in her eye.

The wind it was grieving; and shadows were weaving
 Their dark web without o'er the face of the sky.
Within it was merry with green leaf and berry,
 And Polly, close by, with a gleam in her eye.

"This holly, I know, sir, you wish mistletoe, sir!"
 Cried Polly as o'er us a wreath was hung high.
I looked at her, laughing, to see were she chaffing.
 And, oh, what a glint there shone out from her eye!

"THIS HOLLY, I KNOW, SIR, YOU WISH MISTLETOE, SIR!"

How like the rose petals on which the bee settles
 Her cheeks were! Her lips were the holly fruit's dye.
"Be it mistletoe, dear, a minute or so,
  dear!"
 "A minute?" breathed Polly, with mirth in her eye.

So it's, oh, to be handling the holly with Polly,
 With Polly the mischievous, Polly the sly!
With Polly, the genius of all that is jolly,
 A lure on her lip and with love in her eye!

ORIGIN OF XMAS GREENS.

They Were Used at Christmastide Five Centuries Ago.

The use of evergreens at Christmas time is older than the Christmas tree, the Christians seeming to have copied it from their pagan ancestors. In a very old book we find this reference to the use of evergreens at Christmas time: "Against the feast of Christmas every man's house, as also their parish churches, were decked with holme, ivie, bayes and whatsoever the season of the year afforded to be green. The conduits and standards of the streets were likewise garnished, among the which I read that in the year 1444, by tempest of thunder and lightning, toward the morning of Candlemas day, at the Leadenhall, in Cornhill, a standard of tree, being set up in the midst of the pavement, fast in the ground, nailed full of holme and ivie, for disport of Christmas to the people, was torn up and cast down by the malignant spirit, as was thought, and the stones of the pavement all about were cast in the streets and into divers houses, so that the people were sore aghast at the great tempest."—Leslie's Weekly.

Your Heart.

When Your Heart Fails to Pump Your Blood, Trouble Results.

Have you heart trouble?

You have, if you find it hard to breathe after walking up stairs, exercising, etc. If you have pain in your left side, in chest, back or shoulder. If you suffer from cold extremities, pale face, blue lips, dry cough, swollen ankles.

If you have fainting spells, breast pang, palpitation, redness of the face, discomfort in sleeping on one side.

The only scientific treatment for this whole train of troubles is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is the prescription of a famous specialist, whose great success in treating obstinate nervous heart disease has made his name pre-eminent in the medical and scientific world.

The medicine will cure you. We know it. We want you to prove it. If first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will give you back your money.

"I have for several years suffered at times with heart trouble. I got so bad I could not sleep half the night, and had to sit up on the side of the bed lots of times to get breath. Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. After using them I recovered, and have had better health since then than before for several years. I can [illegible] recommend them for heart trouble."—REV. LAZY MAN'S PARADISE.

The Women Are the Hard Workers in the West Indies.

On market day in the West Indies thousands of peasant women and girls can be seen walking along the roads to the town from their palm thatched huts in the mountains and woods. They carry on their heads immense loads of bananas, oranges, yams, plantains, brown sugar or tobacco, stepping along at the rate of four miles an hour with the gait of a princess.

Constant carrying of heavy loads gives them a splendid carriage. They will walk forty miles to market to sell 30 cents' worth of produce. Often they could sell the same stuff for a better price at their homes, but they enjoy the merry company on the road and the fun and gossip of the market place too much to give up their weekly jaunt. Most people think such a tramp hard work, but they regard it as a picnic. Tramping along over rough mountain tracks, fording swift rivers, tugging fractious mules in the way that they should go, these women never let their loads fall. They could dance a jig without dropping them.

Meanwhile the men folk, who have not even taken the trouble to sow or harvest the crops, much less carry them to market, are sleeping in the palm thatched hut or lying down in the yam patch outside and smoking the strong native tobacco.

"On my estate," said a coffee planter to an American friend, "I employ about 600 people in the busy seasons. The women outnumber the men by more than two to one and do far better work, though they are only paid 18 cents a day as compared with the men's 24 cents. The difference in wages is most unfair, but it is regulated by an iron bound custom."—Kansas City Star.

Jungle Housekeeping.

The negro housewife in the West Indian jungle finds housekeeping very easy. Fruit and vegetables grow wild all about the hut, and the river abounds with fish.

On wash day all she has to do is to pick a few of the berries of the soap berry tree, take her clothes to the river and use the berries as she would use ordinary soap. Even her cooking pots grow on the trees; the calabash cut in halves being used for this purpose. Calabashes are used also for bowls, basins and jugs for carrying water from the river, while the small ones make excellent cups.

In the afternoon, when she is ready for her cup of tea, the negress picks half a dozen leaves from the lime bush growing at her door, boils them, squeezes the juice from a sugar cane for sweetening, and the coconut supplies the milk. Thus she has a delicious cup of tea without depending on the grocer for it.

She makes the mats for her floor out of the dried leaves of the banana, plaited and sewed together, as the old country people in this country make their rag mats.

To get a fine polish on eyeglasses moisten with alcohol and polish as usual with chamois. By this means all grease is removed.

Mrs. Weisslitz, Buffalo, N. Y., cured of kidney trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Of all the diseases known with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless prompt and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave careful study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills— Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — made sure that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was certain to control that dreaded disease, woman's kidney troubles.

Read What Mrs. Weisslitz Says.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years my life was simply a burden, I suffered so with female troubles, and pains across my back and loins. The doctor told me that I had kidney troubles and prescribed for me. For three months I took his medicine, but grew steadily worse. My husband then advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought home a bottle. It is the greatest blessing ever brought to our home. Within three months I was a changed woman. My pain had disappeared, my complexion became clear, my eyes bright, and my entire system in good shape."—MRS. AN EXPERT.

He Wanted a Confidential Clerkship Because He Could Be Very Confidential.

Secretary Shaw says that shortly after he assumed his duties as head of the treasury department he was called upon by an old gentleman from his own state of Iowa, who wanted an appointment as confidential clerk to one of the assistant secretaries of that department.

"In spite of the fact that I was very busy at the time," says Mr. Shaw, "I gave the Iowan the better part of an hour, for he was as pleasant and entertaining an old chap as one could meet—bright, chipper and witty."

On account of his age, the secretary felt that he could not comply with the request. So, gently but firmly, he informed him that he did not see his way clear to give him the appointment. This did not dampen the old gentleman's spirit in the least.

"Now, sir," said he, "as I feel myself peculiarly well qualified to fill one of these confidential clerkships, I hope that you will consider my application further."

Then, wagging his head most impressively, he added earnestly:

"Oh, sir, I could be so confidential!"

Well Remembered.

Valley City, N. Dak., Dec. 14.—Two years ago Mrs. Matilda M. Boucher of this place suffered a great deal with a dizziness in her head. She was cured of this by a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and has not been troubled since.

Shortly afterwards she had a bad bilious attack and for this she used Diamond Dinner Pills and was completely cured in a short time.

In January, 1903, she had an attack of Sciatica of which she says:

"I was almost helpless with the Sciatica, but remembering what Dodd's Kidney Pills and Diamond Dinner Pills had done for me before, I commenced a treatment of these medicines and in three weeks I was completely restored to health. I have great faith in these medicines for they have been of so much benefit to me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are very popular in Barnes County, having made a great many splendid cures of Sciatica, Rheumatism and Kidney Troubles. Many families use no other medicine.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Dead and Down Timber.

The report of Simon Michelet, Indian agent at White Earth, relative to the dead and down timber at that place has been received at the interior department. Agent Michelet estimates that there are from 20,000,000 to 30,000 feet of dead and down timber on the reservation, of which 75 per cent is white pine and the remainder Norway.

The timber is reported to be in good condition, and if logged this winter Agent Michelet says it will probably bring the same price as standing timber, but if allowed to lay, he reports that it will depreciate in value. The agent asks that he be authorized to dispose of the timber, stating that it will give employment to the Indians.

Boy Thaws Dynamite.

Frank Bailey, seventeen years of age, of Brainerd, was terribly injured in the woods near Alborn station on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, by an explosion of dynamite. He is in a Duluth hospital.

The flesh was literally torn from the bones of the right arm and it is expected that it will have to be amputated near the shoulder.

The dynamite was in a tin can and the boy was thawing the explosive out over a fire. While in the act of stirring the fire the dynamite exploded. Pieces of the tin can were driven into the boy's flesh. The boy's right side is badly torn.

Made Doubly Sure.

The body of an unidentified man was found in the woods near Fridley park. The body was frozen and covered with snow and had the appearance of having laid in the woods nearly a week. Coroner Ewing of Anoka county, who was called to the scene, decided that the man had taken carbolic acid and then made sure of his work by hanging himself, for one end of the rope was around his neck and the other was attached to a small tree. There was nothing about his person to indicate his identity.

Court Names Surveyor.

Judge Brooks of Minneapolis, has filed an order in answer to the petition of M. H. Hegerle in which George H. Budd is appointed as civil engineer to survey the county in connection with a proposed drainage ditch asked for in the petition for the town of Minnetrist, Hennepin county, and the town of Lake, Carver county. When the route for the proposed waterway has been surveyed, the civil engineer is asked to make a report to the court.

Champion Butter Maker.

M. Sondergaard of Hutchinson, national champion butter-maker, made high score in the December butter scoring contest conducted by the state dairy and food department. His sample was graded 97. J. W. Koopsall of Lewiston, Winona county, came in second with a marking of 96½, and Alfred Schroeder of Lafayette, Nicollet county, who took first place in November, came in third this time with a marking of 90.

Much Prize Money.

Minnesota's exhibits at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago place her agricultural college at the head of all the colleges exhibiting. They won $1,235 in prize money and four championships, ten first prizes, seven second prizes and eight thirds, with a fourth and fifth additional, twenty-seven in all, with the championships as additional honors. The results are very unusual and show the character of the exhibits sent, as compared with those of other states.

Serious Charges.

Some of the commission merchants of the Twin Cities are said to have received illegal consignments of game and fish, and, after selling them to firms in Chicago and other cities, to have notified the original shippers that the game and fish were confiscated by the state commission. In this way, it is said, the firms have sold large quantities of game and fish without making any returns to the shippers.

Renews Recommendation.

In its nineteenth annual report, the state railroad and warehouse commission renews its recommendations that the state enact a law making it illegal for any common carrier to advance its rates for transportation of any class of freight or commodity without first having obtained the written consent of the commission The subject and the necessity for such a law is strongly urged, as a needed restraint.

Branded as a Fake.

Dr. H. L. Williams and the athletic authorities at the university branded as a fake, pure and simple, the story which appeared in a Minneapolis paper to the effect that Minnesota authorities were negotiating with Robert Fitzsimmons, the prize fighter, with an idea of bringing him to the university as trainer for the football squad.

Minnesota Notes.

The mangled body of O. H. Bergstrom, of Hector, Minn., was picked up by the section crew at a point a few miles west of Willmar.

The state dairy and food commission has analyzed samples of so-called pure maple syrup sold in Minnesota that is 100 per cent adulteration.

C. P. Thurston, St. Paul, has been appointed inspector of customs at St. Vincent. This customs office was created on account of the increased train service on that branch of the Great Northern railroad.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY ENDORSES PE-RU-NA.

Pe-ru-na Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen: "I can cheerfully say that Mrs. Schley has taken Pe-ru-na and I believe with good effect."
W. S. SCHLEY.—Washington, D. C.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY, one of the foremost notable heroes of the Nineteenth Century. A name that starts terror in the heart of every Spaniard. A man of steady nerve, clear head, undaunted courage and prompt decision.

Approached by a friend recently, his opinion was asked as to the efficacy of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy. Without the slightest hesitation he gave this remedy his endorsement. It appeared on later conversation that Peruna has been used in his family, where it is a favorite remedy.

Such endorsements serve to indicate the wonderful hold that Peruna has upon the minds of the American people. It is out of the question that so great and famous a man as Admiral Schley could have any other reason for giving his endorsement to Peruna than his positive conviction that the remedy is all that he says it is.

The fact is that Peruna has overcome all opposition and has won its way to the hearts of the people. The natural timidity which so many people have felt about giving endorsements to any remedy is giving way. Gratitude and a desire to help others has inspired thousands of people to give public testimonials for Peruna who heretofore would not have consented to such publicity.

Never before in the annals of medicine has it happened that so many men of national and international reputation have been willing to give unqualified and public endorsements to a proprietary remedy. No amount of advertising could have accomplished such a result. Peruna has won on its own merits. Peruna cures catarrh of whatever phase or location in the human body. That is why it receives so many notable and unique endorsements.

Address The Peruna Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, Ohio, for free literature on catarrh.

Champion Liar Found.

The Manila American has discovered "the champion circulation liar." He is acting as editor of the Thundering Dawn, a Buddhist organ just started in Tokyo. Here is his greeting to the public:

"This paper has come from eternity. It starts its circulation with millions and millions of numbers. The rays of the sun, the beams of the stars, the leaves of the trees, the blades of grass, the grains of sand, the hearts of tigers, elephants, lions, ants, men and women are its subscribers. This journal will henceforth flow in the universe as the rivers flow and the oceans surge."

It Sometimes Happens.

"Of course," says the shoe dealer, "there are times when it is necessary to stretch the truth a trifle."

"Yes, sir," answered the head salesman, "and often a fellow has to stretch a lie."

"I don't see how?"

Make Lazy Liver Lively

You know very well how you feel when your liver don't act. Bile collects in the blood, bowels become constipated and your whole system is poisoned. A lazy liver is an invitation for a thousand pains and aches to come and dwell with you. Your life becomes one long measure of irritability and despondency and bad feeling.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Act directly, and in a peculiarly happy manner on the liver and bowels, cleansing, purifying, revitalizing every portion of the liver, driving all the bile from the blood, as is soon shown by increased appetite for food, power to digest it, and strength to throw off the waste. Beware of imitations! 10c., 25c. All druggists.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Meets to Consider Reciprocity for Cuba and Other Affairs.

The United States senate on the 14th spent the day on the Cuban bill, most of the time being occupied by Senator Bailey (Tex.) in an argument against the constitutionality of the proceeding. A bill was introduced to create a bureau of public roads in the department of agriculture. Rev. Edward Everett Hale, of Boston, was selected as chaplain. In the house the pension appropriation bill, the isthmus canal, the Republic of Panama, the tariff, tobacco interests and questions affecting labor were debated. A concurrent resolution providing for a recess adjournment from December 19 to January 4 was adopted.

The United States senate on the 15th continued the debate on the Cuban bill, Senator Perkins (Cal.) speaking for the measure, as did Senator Simmons (N. C.). and Senator McCumber (N. D.) opposed it. In the house rural free delivery, reciprocity with Canada and the new republic of Panama were topics under discussion.

By the decisive vote of 57 to 18 the United States senate on the 16th passed the bill carrying into effect the reciprocity treaty with Cuba. The house resolution providing for a holiday recess from December 19 to January 4 was agreed to. In the house Central American affairs were discussed and also pensions, industrial and agricultural conditions and labor.

The United States senate on the 17th was the scene of a spirited debate on the isthmian canal question. Senators Hoar and Gorman criticised the president's action in recognizing the independence of the Republic of Panama, while Senator Foraker defended the executive's action. In the house the pension appropriation bill, carrying $138,150,100, was passed. There was a general discussion on Panama, rural free delivery and tariff. Speaker Cannon signed the bill carrying into effect the Cuban reciprocity treaty.

The Message of the Bells

A New Year Story

By ELIZABETH PRICE

Sun clouds scudded gustily across the sky, hiding the peaceful face of the moon, whose radiance touched the edges of her somber veil with a fringe of silver. The great gray tower lifted its head far aloft in the midnight stillness, and the wind moaned around its rough-hewn corners a requiem for the dying year. Within the tower sat the old bell-ringer, waiting for the stroke of 12 from the clock, and, as he waited, his thoughts drifted back to the years long buried in the dimness of the past—the years when his floating white hair had been crisp and black, when his long, slender fingers were strong and supple and struck from the midnight chimes music of entrancing beauty.

Oh, happy memory! Oh, long ago! It was on another night like this that Ruprecht was born; and the joy which beamed from the pale young mother's face was reflected in his own, as he left her baby on her bosom and rushed to the bell-tower to make his chimes a paen of praise to the Father who had filled his life with blessing. How they loved him—that baby—their only one—their all! How he and Elspeth had watched each new development—how proudly guided the first tottering step; how carefully repeated the first lisping word! How joyfully they trained and taught him, while the father, too busy in his struggle for their maintenance to realize his great ambition, transferred it uncomplainingly from his own future to that of his son! Nor had their hopes been vain. The boy studied—improving every opportunity with untiring zeal, until at last the great organ in the cathedral below thundered its glorious music responsive to the touch of the boyish fingers. People thronged to hear. Ruprecht's services were demanded elsewhere—brilliant prospects opened before him, and the inevitable separation drew near.

"THE CLOCK ON THE MANTEL WARNED FOR TWELVE, AND THE MUSICIAN TURNED TO THE PIANO AND PLAYED AGAIN SIMPLY AND LOVINGLY PLEYEL'S HYMN."

New Year's Eve! How many anniversaries this shadowy hour held! The boy bade them good-by while Elspeth clung to him and sobbed, and her husband rushed away to tell the chimes his agony as he had poured into them his joy. As he sat waiting even as now, a step came up the stair, and some one entered the belfry chamber, and the voice he loved said tenderly: "Mein Vater, let me play the chimes to-night. I will leave with them a message to comfort you when you are sad—a message for you and the mother, too.

"When I hear it in the far-off land it will be my mother's voice that sings to me, and when you play it, mein Vater, it will say to you, 'Ruprecht loves me.' Then you will pray 'God watch over my boy and keep him safe for me,' and the All-Father will hear."

When Ruprecht struck the massive keys it was the simple old Pleyel's hymn he played. but he lent his beautiful voice to the clangor of the bells and sang his mother's favorite words:

"Children of the Heavenly King
As ye journey sweetly sing:
Sing your Saviour's worthy praise
Glorious in His works and ways."

A moment later he was gone. The years had been many and long since then, but no tidings ever came, and Elspeth's hair grew white before the look of expectancy in her dear eyes changed to the calmness of resignation. He was dead, of course. They knew now that it must be so, though they had not given up hope till they had left the old home and followed their wanderer to the new country. They had heard of the wrecked ship, to be sure, but hope dies hard. Perhaps if they had been patient—had stayed on amid the scenes of his childhood—he might have come back to them; but how could they be patient when the world was so wide, and half of it lay between them and the land that had called their child. They were only waiting now—he and Elspeth—for the summons which should call them to the happy reunion in a home where there would be no sad good-bys, where music knows no minor, and hearts forget how to ache.

The first stroke of midnight sounded and an instant later the bells pealed forth, while the old man sang with trembling lips and voice that no one heard but God—as he had sung every New Year since that one:

"Children of the Heavenly King
As ye journey sweetly sing,
Sing your Saviour's worthy praise,
Glorious in His works and ways."

Then, as the last reluctant echo died away, he stumbled down the narrow stairs toward home and Elspeth.

Not far from the belltower stood a mansion, where a great throng had assembled to watch the old year out and the new year in. Silken draperies rustled, jewels gleamed, music rippled on the perfumed air, and happy voices rang sweet and high. But every sound was silenced, and bright eyes grew dim in the flood of melody which suddenly poured about the gay throng. They crowded toward the music room, trying to catch a glimpse of the player. Those who were near saw a slender man, with fair curling hair brushed back from a brow as pure as a woman's. The face was pale and the eyes sad, but about the sensitive mouth played an expression of rare sweetness and beauty. Quietly he sat before the grand piano, playing without the slightest effort such masterful music as had hushed the listeners to awe-struck silence.

"Who is he?" was the question passed from one to another when at last the cessation of the music broke the spell.

"He is a friend of father's," their hostess told them. "Father met him abroad some years ago, and by helping him in a search for some missing friends, won his heart. The search was not successful, but that did not seem to lessen Prof. Von Bulow's gratitude, and they have corresponded in a desultory way ever since. Father invited him here for the holidays this year, but he declined the invitation, then this evening suddenly and unexpectedly appeared. These great musicians are always eccentric, you know. I heard him tell father that this is an anniversary he doesn't like to spend alone. Some love story probably. No, he isn't married. He spends his entire time with his wonderful music. That is really all I know about him." With that the interested guests were forced to be content, for the player had vanished from among them as suddenly as he appeared, and soon the gayety resumed its sway.

At 11 o'clock the hostess seated her guests in a circle, saying: "Now we will turn down the lights and tell ghost stories till midnight. Everybody must contribute something. The more gruesome and harrowing the better," she added laughingly. The young people fell to with the spirit of fun, and ghosts walked, hobgoblins shrieked and ghouls moaned, till the more timid begged for mercy.

It was almost 12 o'clock when a new voice suddenly broke into a momentary pause. Everyone looked up to see the musician standing in the door.

"My friends," he said, "my story is not of the spirits of the unseen world—it is of a lad in the far-away Fatherland, who once, on a night like this, left home and friends and went out into the wide world, with music as the priestess who presided at the altar, where burned the fires of his ambition. So brightly did this fire burn that its glow hid the quieter emotions which lingered in the shadow, and father and mother and home were left behind. The youth had not dreamed of the pain of broken ties—but he afterward learned it all.

"Shipwrecked, a weary sickness and deliverance, miscarried letter returned to its writer long afterward—all these came between the lad and his loved ones, and when at last, overcome by the deadly 'heimweh,' he turned toward home, he found it empty—the loved ones gone, while the chimes in the tower which the father had played ever since the lad had lived, responded sadly to the touch of strange, unfriendly hands.

"With breaking heart the lad turned back to the country of his adoption, hoping, against hope, to find the dear ones, who had followed him there during his long silence. The years have passed and the lad is a man, but the father and the mother he has not found, nor does he expect to greet them again until the New Year of Heaven dawns for him, as he believes it has already dawned for them. So, when the midnight comes I play each New Year's Eve as I—as the lad played on that last night long ago—my message to my dear ones."

The clock on the mantel warned for 12, and the musician turned to the piano and played again simply and lovingly Pleyel's hymn, singing as in the long ago the beautiful words his mother loved.

As the last note died away in the quiet room the tower clock began to strike, but was drowned by the music of the chimes. A thrill ran through the hushed circle as they recognized the strain they had just heard, but the musician arose with a mighty cry: "Mein Vater!" and ran out into the night, guided by the music of the bells.

When the old bell ringer shut the door he could not see, for the tears that blinded him, the hurrying figure on the pavement. A moment later he was gathered close to the heart that had yearned for him through all the space of silence and loneliness, and together, in the opening of the glad New Year, they went out from the shadow of the bell tower, home to Elspeth, whose mother heart came near to bursting, with the joy of a son's home coming.—Minneapolis Housekeeper.

SWINGING AROUND.

Col. Frank Eddy, of Glenwood is swinging around the north and it is posible he may be here before Christmas. At Crookston the genial candidate for Gov Van Sant's official sandals talked good sense and good politics when he said that he didn't regard Judge Collins as a factor in the fight and too when he expressed the opinion that Ustin of Hennepin would eventually get into the battle. Col. Eddy thinks however that the real candidates are himself and R. C. Dunn. He does not underrate Dunn's strength, neither does he overestimate his own chance and by the very candor of his expression proves hiself to be a campaigner of skill and experiance. With him politics is no joke neither is his candidcy based on a jest—he is out for delegates and hopes he will get them.

The Colnel has benn challanged mainly because of his plain featurs and this reminds us that once in congress, Mr Eddy was accused of being two-faced by a fellow member. Mr. Eddy resented this and rising in his place in the house aske; "Does the gentleman imagine that if I were two faced that I would be wareing this one?" The hit was recived with roars by the house and the offender against his ruffled dignity was lauged "out of court" as the saying goes.

XMAS WITH THE GERMANS.

Scenes In the Shops and In the Retirement of Home.

As the handsome shops reveal the Christmas of the rich Germans, also we see the Christmas joys of the other, the peasant class. The toy stores—the dolls in all the national costumes of the world, and windows all bristling with combating soldiers. Candy shops! Candy is distinctively American. In Germany and France it is bonbons; in England sweets. The Germans do not eat candy as a habit, as we do, but on Christmas time, according to their idiom; "it goes loose." But it is the "pfefferkuchen" that is the great distinguishing delicacy of Christmastide. Not a house, family or person in Germany is without it. It is a sort of hard spice cake, made in all sorts of shapes.

The writer spent last Christmas in the home of Baron von Shierbrant. The day before Christmas the drawing rooms were closed. No one dare enter except the baron and baroness, who came in and out of those rooms very quietly and mysteriously. On Christmas eve the first event of interest is the Christmas eve dinner, which is characterized by the serving of "karpfen in bier" and the bringing forth from their secret hiding places of the famous Christmas cakes, marzipan, pfeffernuesse and pfefferkuchen. Dinner ends with the joining of hands and all saying, "Gesegnete mahlzeit."—Washington Post.

Ballads of Yule.

Though some are dead and some are fled
To lands of summer over sea,
The holly berry keeps his red,
The merry children keep their glee.
They hoard with artless secrecy
This gift for Maude and that for Molly,
And Santa Claus he turns the key
On Christmas eve. Heigh-ho, the holly!

Amid the snow the birds are fled;
The snow lies deep on land and lea;
The skies are shining overhead;
The robin's tame that was so free.
Far north at home the "barley bree"
They brew; they give the hour to folly.
How "Rab and Allen cam' to pree,"
They sing; we sing, Heigh-ho, the holly!

[illegible]

Friends, let us pay the wonted fee,
The yearly tithe of mirth, be jolly!
It is a duty so to be,
Though half we sigh, Heigh-ho, the holly!

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN

By MARY WINTHROP

(Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure.)

"THE man who said that a big apartment house was a village in itself didn't know a thing about it, or else he had never been in a village. Lord! I would say it was a collection of hostile camps, with a janitor as the only means of communication."

By way of emphasis for his words Frank Lane threw across the room the gayly illustrated magazine he had been pretending to read. It landed with a crash, bringing with it to the floor a small vase which stood on the corner of the mantel. Broken bits of porcelain rolled in all directions.

The young man started to his feet. The vase was one of his childish relics. Every bit was precious. But he sank back with a groan. He had forgotten his sprained ankle.

The pain in it made him remember. It was almost intolerable for a few moments. But that was not what brought the tears to his eyes—tears of weakness and loneliness. He was remembering that it was the day before Christmas and that he was shut up in his bachelor apartments with a sprained ankle. A solitary dinner at the club was never wildly festive for Christmas, but even that was to be denied him this year.

"I WISH YOU WOULD LET ME KEEP IT."

There was a rattling at the hall door. Lane hastily brushed aside the tears as the wife of the janitor came in. Womanlike, she was compassionate. Her face beamed as she cried: "A package for ye, Mester Lane. Th' postmnn jest left it, an' I hurried it up, thinkin' it might cheer ye a bit. It's sure some prisint a lody fren's been a-sendin' ye."

The invalid laughed shortly. From a lady friend! He had been raised in an orphan asylum and as for as his knowledge went had not a living relation. His position in the business world was entirely due to his own pluck and energy. He had not had time to make lady friends.

When the woman had gone, he still looked curiously at the package in his lap. It was in bad order. The string was loosened and the enveloping paper torn. The address was blurred, but he could still make out faintly the inscription "F. E. Lane" and the name of the apartment house. It was really for him.

His fingers trembled with eagerness as he slipped off the outside wrapper and disclosed dainty tissue paper and ribbons. It must surely be from a girl, he thought.

Inside was a creation of violet silk. He eyed it dubiously, but then his face cleared. He had seen similar curios in shop windows. It must be a handkerchief case.

But the name of the sender? He took hold of the case gingerly and shook it. He carefully turned it inside out. No card appeared. It must have slipped out on the way. He sniffed appreciatively. The case was strongly scented with violets. It almost seemed as if the fair donor herself was glorifying his room with her presence.

Yet the question of who had sent it still remained unsolved. He knew whom he wished had sent it—the girl in the flat above. She was the girl who, when she came in from the office of an evening, sat down at the piano and rattled off a jolly twostep—that was when things had gone well—or crept in quietly and sang soothing lullabies—that was when the day's work had left her wornout and blue. Lane sympathized, for he had felt just that way himself.

"B-r-r-r" rang the electric bell. Lane frowned as he reached his hand back for the button. Why need commonplace realities in the shape of the janitor break in upon his day dream? Then he straightened up suddenly. The figure standing in the doorway was not to be confused with the janitor. It was a girl with rebellious brown curls wandering down to obstruct a pair of serious dark eyes. It was the girl of the flat above.

The girl stood uncertainly a moment in the gathering dusk, then stepped forward with sudden decision. "I beg your pardon for intruding on you," she said apologetically. "I don't believe you can even see who I am in this semidarkness. Won't you let me light up? I am the girl from the flat above." As she spoke she turned to the switch. In a moment the room flushed into a blaze of light.

Lane still stared at her as if at a vision, but the years of business training came to his aid. "Won't you sit down, Miss Fane?" he said courteously. "I can't rise—a little trifle of a sprained ankle."

"Yes, I know," the girl interrupted sympathetically. "The janitor told me. I am so sorry." The man found her pity very sweet.

"I don't want to trouble you," she went on, "but I am looking for one of my Christmas presents which is lost, strayed or stolen. It must have come, for my cousin writes that it was mailed some days ago."

Instinctively Lane spread his hands over the dainty trifle lying in his lap. Yes, the pillow hid it from view.

"It is a handkerchief case made of purple silk. As our names look something alike, I thought it might have come to you by mistake." She looked at him expectantly.

Now, Lane had been mentally planning how he might keep that handkerchief case. He was a thief in everything but the deed. But he could not answer those searching brown eyes with a lie. "Yes, I have it. I thought it was mine." And he held it out weakly. Then sudden inspiration came to him. "I wish you would let me keep it," he said pleadingly. "I will buy you anything else in its place that you like."

Miss Lane's color deepened. "Why?" she asked wonderingly.

"Because," he said vehemently, "it's the only Christmas present I shall have. I have been lying here in the dusk imagining who might have sent it to me, and I can't bear to give it up. I would not care so much if I was up and around. You don't know how blue a fellow gets shut up here all alone. Little things come to count a lot."

He looked so helpless lying there on the couch that the girl's heart went out to him, and she had a fashion of following her heart more readily than her head. "You poor fellow!" she said gently. "I know just how you feel. You shall keep the handkerchief case. Cousin Laura will never know, and I have several others. And you must count it as a real Christmas present from me. Only don't give me anything in its place except to wish me a merry Christmas when I come down to see you in the morning. I will bring some of the goodies from my home box. They will make you forget all about the ankle."

She hurried away. Lane did not know that it was because she wished to hide tears brought to her eyes by the dumb look of gratitude on his face. And he lay back and wished that the morrow might come.

Before another Christmas the two flats were empty. Mr. and Mrs. Lane were keeping house in a large flat on the ground floor. His wife always declares that he stole her heart and the handkerchief case at one and the same time on that memorable Christmas eve.

Sauce For Plum Pudding.

Four tablespoonfuls of butter, whites of two eggs, one cup powdered sugar, one gill of brandy and one gill of boiling water. Cream the butter, add gradually the sugar, and beat until white and light. Add the whites, one at a time, beating all the while. When ready to serve add the brandy and water. Stand in a basin of boiling water over the fire, stir until creamy, and it is ready for use.

A sauce without brandy is made as follows: One tablespoonful of cornstarch, one tablespoonful of butter, one pint of boiling water, one egg, one-half cup of sugar. Put cornstarch, egg and sugar in a bowl and mix them well. Pour over them the boiling water and stir over the fire until thick. Add any flavoring.

Cranberry and Apple Sauce.

Take one quart of cranberries, two cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of water. Pick over the berries carefully and wash in cold water. Put them into a porcelain lined saucepan, with enough water to cover, and cook until tender. Then add the sugar and remove from the stove just as soon as the sugar has been dissolved. Serve hot or cold. Select the berries carefully; boil them slowly without stirring. If treated in this way they will retain their shape and the sauce will be clear and transparent.

Apple sauce is for roast goose. Peel and core six tart apples. Put them into a saucepan and just cover with water. Boil until tender, then press through a colander. Add a teaspoonful of butter, a dash of nutmeg or cinnamon and sweeten to taste.

PLUM PUDDING.

Plain Directions For Making This Christmas Luxury.

Place in a vessel one pound of beef kidney suet, very dry, free from fibers and chopped very fine; one pound of seeded Malaga raisins; one pound of currants, cleaned and washed in plenty of water; one pound of bread crumbs, sifted through a sieve; a quarter of a pound of lemon peel, chopped very fine; one pound of powdered sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour, a quarter of an ounce of nutmeg and allspice, a pint of brandy and six eggs.

Mix the whole well together. Dip a strong cloth in cold water and wring it out to extract all the moisture. Spread it open on a table and butter it liberally with butter softened to the consistency of cream. Dredge over with sifted flour and shake the cloth to remove any excess of the flour that failed to adhere to the butter. Lay in the center of the cloth the prepared mixture. Form it in the shape of a ball and raise up the edges of the cloth, bringing the four ends together all around, so as to inclose the preparation well, then tighten and tie firmly.

Have on the fire a high saucepan three-quarters full of water. When this boils plunge in the plum pudding and let it cook for three hours. Then remove it and have it stand for five minutes before cutting the string. Undo the cloth carefully and invert the pudding on a hot dish. Sprinkle it with sugar. Pour over some brandy or rum and set it on fire. Serve immediately with hard sauce.—St. Louis Post.

CHRISTMAS ON AN ICEBERG

THIS is in substance the story of Ray Lambertson, a Nova Scotia lad of eighteen, who was taken off an iceberg at sea by a passing ship and treated in Bellevue hospital:

"Father and I went out fishing on Christmas eve last from Clark's harbor. We were after mackerel and were doing well, but had not been long out when a bay of Fundy fog surrounded us, and we concluded to put back. After groping our way east for half an hour we struck against something, or something struck against us, and I was thrown clean overboard. I know now that the keel of our boat collided with the spur of an iceberg. When I rose to the surface I heard the old man shouting, but I couldn't answer him, and it seems to me that the spur got between us in the first place and then we were separated altogether by the entire berg. I managed to get on a ledge of the berg and maintain myself there by bracing my shoulder against a slight projection overhead. When I thought I was on top the berg would keel over until I found myself on the side, and at one time it turned a complete somersault and threw me once more into the water. I had a good mind to give up then and accept what seemed my fate, but I thought of the folks at home and that my father being probably drowned the family would have to depend on me. So I made another effort. The berg was rolling and presented many sharp points here and there, one of which I seized and by its means lifted myself to the ledge from which I had been thrown.

"Realizing that I could not maintain myself in that position, I climbed once more to the top and this time found myself in a saucer shaped cavity. Whipping out my knife, I hacked away for dear life until I had scooped out a still deeper hollow, and after much hard work I succeeded in gathering quite a pile of pebbles and sea weed, on which I rested my feet. Meantime my body from the waist up was exposed. Even at this I was in danger of falling out or off when the berg rolled over, as it frequently did. I was therefore obliged to be constantly on the alert. Exhausted from my exertions and though fearing that sleep might mean death, I could not resist the drowsiness that came over me; so I fell asleep. When I awoke after a few hours it was night, and the stars were in the sky. Though my hands and feet were numbed, I did not feel as cold as one might imagine. It is useless describing my sensations. I thought of the sad Christmas mother and the kids would pass without me and, perhaps, without the old man, and I prayed to God to save me. I was glad when the morning came—Christmas morning—but I suffered fearfully from hunger and thirst, especially from thirst. Christmas day passed over me like Christmas eve, and at the dawn of the 26th I gave up hope. But one should never despair even though hundreds of miles out at sea on an iceberg, for that evening I was taken off the berg by a boat from the barkentine Sea Serpent, commanded by Captain Ferguson, and bound for the Azores. The captain treated me well, and after staying on the Azores a few weeks I came to New York in a Liverpool [illegible]antine.

"EVEN AT THE TIME I WAS IN DANGER OF FALLING OFF."

"That is about all," concluded the young fisherman from Nova Scotia. "And, say, doctor, I don't want to spend no more Christmas days on a berg."—Washington Post.

Presents For Men.

In silverware there are toilet articles such as talcum jars, cold cream jars, silver mounted brushes, combs, clothes brushes, whisk brooms, flasks and shaving brushes.

Bath robes come in the most attractive guise, and the man who has none will surely bless the sister or mother who gives him one.

Gorgeous heavy silk mufflers, embroidered suspenders, neckties of white silk, linen or silk handkerchiefs and chest protectors are some of the things men must expect, as they generally put off buying them until after Christmas.

Other decorations for a man's den are the hideous but picturesque Japanese masks, swords and bayonets. Panel decorations in oriental design will surely please if they are well selected. A wastebasket would not be amiss, and one of the new corkscrews, with a horn top, silver trimmed, would be highly acceptable.

Kind Old Man.

Ascum—What did that rich old uncle of yours give you for Christmas? Something useful, I'll bet.

Hauskeep—Yes; a little device for saving coal bills.

Ascum—Ah! An arrangement to attach to the heater.

Hauskeep—No; to keep on my desk. It's a bill file.—Philadelphia Press.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., tells how she was permanently cured of inflammation of the ovaries, and escaped the surgeon's knife, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The universal indications of the approach of woman's great enemy, inflammation and disease of the ovaries, are a dull throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. On examination it may be found that the region of pain will show some swelling. This is the first stage of inflammation of the ovaries.

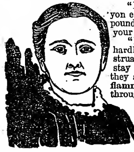
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for the restored health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought into my life.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal, and so I told him that I would not undergo it. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of your Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, so I kept taking it for ten weeks, and at the end of that time I was cured. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health, and am now.

"You surely deserve great success, and you have my very best wishes."—MISS ALICE BAILEY, 50 North Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Another woman saved from a surgical operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Read what she says:—



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot thank you enough for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. If it had not been for your medicine, I think I would have died.

"I will tell you how I suffered. I could hardly walk, was unable to sleep or eat. Menstruation was irregular. At last I had to stay in my bed, and flowed so badly that they sent for a doctor, who said I had inflammation of the ovaries, and must go through an operation, as no medicine could help me, but I could not do that.

"I received a little book of yours, and after reading it, I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now a well woman. I shall praise your medicine as long as I live, and also recommend the same to anyone suffering as I was."—MRS. MINNIE OTTOSON, Otho, Iowa.

All sick women would be wise if they would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be well.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Vigilant Committee.

The many depredations by horse thieves and other criminals have aroused the citizens of Rock county, and steps are being taken to revive the old vigilance committee, or to organize a new one.

Twenty years ago this committee, many members of which are still residents of the county, did effective work in apprehending horse thieves and petty criminals and stamping out the lawlessness so common to pioneer communities. Many a long chase was made by these old pioneers, and the results of their work convinced those with an abnormal propensity to appropriate the property of another that the community was a most unhealthful place in which to operate.

Bank Situation.

The comptroller of the currency has made public the report on the condition of the national banks of Minnesota, exclusive of the Twin Cities, at the close of business Nov. 14. Compared with the corresponding statement of a year ago it is noted that the resources of the Minnesota banks have been increased about $9,000,000, now aggregating $00,027,000.

Individual deposits have increased from $36,739,572, the amount reported a year ago, to $41,0003,103; loans and discounts from $33,335,394 to $38,069,095.

The issuance of national bank notes in the Minnesota banks has increased from $3,721,100 to $3,771,400. The legal reserve is 16.61 percent.

Many Pies Gone.

Jack Frost got in his work on one hundred carloads of apples shipped from Western New York to the Twin Cities and when the shipment reached there the apples were so badly frozen that they were unfit for use. The entire consignment, valued at $20,000, will prove a loss.

The apples were shipped from Buffalo to Duluth via the Western Transit boat line and at that place were changed to the cars of the Omaha and Northern Pacific railroads. This is one of the largest shipments of apples sent to the Twin Cities for a long time and a claim has been put in against the lines for damages.

Probably Lost.

The wilderness to the north of Duluth holds another mystery involving the fate of two Duluth men, well-known mineral prospectors and timber cruisers, named Potrick Lovin and Patrick McCoy.

They left Duluth the first week in August, expecting to be gone fifty or sixty days. Twice the proposed length of their stay has elapsed, and no word has been received. Their friends say that they undoubtedly met death on the Pic river, which flows into Lake Superior to the east of Port Arthur. The missing men were each over fifty years of age, and unmarried. They have been exploring out of Duluth for more than twenty years.

Badly Injured.

Frank Bailey, seventeen years of age, of Broinerd, was terribly injured in the woods near Alhorn station on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, by an explosion of dynamite. He is in a Duluth hospital.

The flesh was literally torn from the bones of the arm and it is expected that it will have to be amputated near the shoulder.

The dynamite was in a tin can and the boy was thawing the explosive out over a fire. While in the act of stirring the fire the dynamite exploded. Pieces of the tin can were driven into the boy's flesh. The boy's right side is badly torn.

Fifty Years Old.

When St. Paul celebrates the anniversary of its fiftieth birthday next summer, the observance of the event will be supplemented by ceremonies in honor of the dedication of the new state capitol building and the completion of the improvements at Fort Snelling. Three days will be devoted to the celebration, which will begin on July 4.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the semi-centennial committee held at the Commercial club. The committee voted to adopt the plan for the three-day fete, which will necessitate an expenditure of $12,000.

Sad Death.

His foot caught by the double rail in a turn of the Great Northern tracks at Minneapolis, Elmer Smith, a section foreman employed by the road, was run down and killed by an engine.

Tug as he would, he could not release his foot, and before the engineer or fireman heard his cries or noticed he was pinned to the track, the locomotive struck him, killing him instantly.

News Notes.

M. B. Coyle, living near Lake Shetek, was drowned while crossing the islet with a load of cattle.

Concordia college on St. Anthony avenue, St. Paul, has been closed until after the holidays on account of an epidemic of scarlet fever.

Anton Anderson, a farmer, believed to have been insane shot himself at his home near Battle Lake. He was unmarried.

The money for a twin city exhibit at the St. Louis exposition will have to be raised by public subscription if anyone objects to the appropriation of money by the common council of either either St. Paul or Minneapolis.

Seven years ago Mrs Sally Barnes wrote a letter from Minneapolis to her son, Iza Wells Patchin, Jr., in Buffalo, N. Y. The letter reached him last week.

The Twin City Rapid Transit company has filed a trust deed in Ramsey county in connection with the $10,000,000 bond issue announced recently in New York.

PE=RU=NA PROTECTS THE LITTLE ONES

Against Winter Catarrh In Its Many Phases.

Neglected Colds in Children Often Bring Disastrous Results.

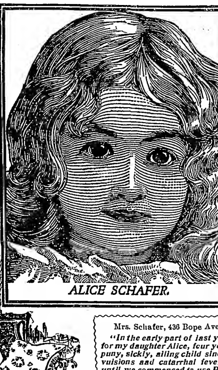
Peruna should be kept in the house all the time.

Peruna should be kept in every house where there are children.

Don't wait until the child is sick then send to a drug store. Have Peruna on hand—accept no substitute.

Pe-ru-na Protects the Entire Household Against Catarrhal Diseases.

As soon as the value of Peruna is fully appreciated by every household, both as a preventive and cure of catarrhal affections, tens of thousands of lives will be saved, and hundreds of thousands of chronic, lingering cases of disease prevented. Peruna is a household safeguard.



ALICE SCHAFER.

ANNA R. BROWN

Mrs. J. M. Brown, Dunnegan Springs, Mo., writes:

"My little daughter three years old was troubled with a very bad cough which remained after an attack of catarrhal fever. She has taken one bottle of Peruna through which she has obtained a complete cure. She is now as well and happy as a little girl can be. When our friends say how well she looks I tell them Peruna did it."

In a later letter she says: "Our little daughter continues to have good health."

Mrs. Schafer, 436 Bope Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"In the early part of last year I wrote to you for advice for my daughter Alice, four years of age. She has been a puny, sickly, ailing child since her birth. She had convulsions and catarrhal fevers. I was always doctoring until we commenced to use Peruna. She grew strong and well. Peruna is a wonderful tonic; the best medicine I have ever used.

"I was in a very wretched condition when I commenced to take Peruna. I had catarrh all through my whole body, but thank God, your medicine set me all right. I would not have any other medicine.

"Peruna cured my baby boy of a very bad spell of cold and fever. He is a big healthy boy fifteen months old. I have given him Peruna off and on since he was born. I think that is why he is so well. I cannot praise Peruna enough. We have not had a doctor since we began to use Peruna—all praise to it.—Mrs. Schafer.

Pe-ru-na Kept in the House for Five Years.

Mr. Albert Lietzman, 1596 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I am only too glad to inform you that I am feeling splendid and have never felt better in my life. Through the advice of a friend I tried Peruna, and am glad to say it cured me to perfection. I began to tell a friend about Peruna the other day, and I had no sooner commenced than he told me his folks have kept Peruna in the house for the last five years. I am sure I wouldn't be without it. Mother also uses it to keep herself in good health."

Be Sure to Have Pe-ru-na on Hand During the Inclement Months of Fall and Winter.

Croup, capillary bronchitis and articular rheumatism are the special banes of childhood. These all alike result from catching cold.

One child catches cold and scares its mother into hysterics by having croup in the dead of night.

Another child catches cold, develops a stubborn cough that will not yield to ordinary remedies. The parents are filled with forebodings.

Still another child catches cold and develops that most fatal malady of childhood, capillary bronchitis. The doctor is called, pronounces the case pneumonia and, if the child is lucky enough to live, it has developed weak lungs from which it may never recover.

And yet another child catches cold and articular rheumatism is the result. Ankles, knees, wrists and elbows become suddenly swollen and painful. A long disastrous illness follows. The child may live and become convalescent, a miserable invalid of valvular disease of the heart. All these mishaps are the direct result of neglected cold. Peruna is the safeguard of the family. If a child catches cold Peruna should be used immediately.

A few doses of Peruna and a child's cold is gone. The apprehension of the parents flee away. The household is free from fear once more.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

COURT KNEW ENGLISH.

The Expression Was in the Negative, But Not Commonly Understood That Way.

"Ten dollars," said the judge.

"But, your honor," said the prisoner, "I protest against this fine. I have the right to make a defense against the charge."

"But you have pleaded guilty," said the judge, according to the New York Times.

"I beg your honor's pardon. I denied the charge in the plainest terms."

"Young man," said the judge sternly, "I want to call your attention to the fact that the court understands the English language. You have pleaded guilty in unmistakable words. The plaintiff charges you with assault and battery. It is clearly evident that he has been assaulted and battered. According to your own statement, he approached you on the street and used abusive language toward you. Then you say that you 'didn't do a thing to him.' If the court understands the language spoken by millions of people you immediately wiped up the earth with him. The fine stands, and any further reflection upon the court's knowledge of English will cost you $10 more."

A Western Woolgrower.

Newcastle, Wyo., Dec. 21.—There is a man in this place who claims that no one need suffer with backache, as he has proven in his own case that it can be completely and permanently cured.

His name is S. C. Holst, and he is a stock raiser a woolgrower.

"I was shearing sheep at the time the first pain came on," says Mr. Holst. "I was so bad for two years afterwards that I could hardly sit down, and when once down, it was almost impossible for me to get up again.

"I tried all the medicine I could hear of and several doctors without help, not even for a moment. I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and they made a new man out of me. I felt as if there was new blood in my veins. I am as stout in the back as a mule and can lift and work as hard as I please without an ache or pain in any part of my body.

"It is now over a year since they cured me and I can say there is not a healthier man in Wyoming than I am, and before using Dodd's Kidney Pills there was not a more complete physical wreck in the whole country than I was."

[illegible] WILLIAM.

[illegible]rgh, and finally landed in Nick Young's [illegible]ional league was about ready to take the "boy president," but has the making of [illegible]

[illegible] vigorous trembling of the body, produced by the screw-like motion, and dashed away three feet above the surface. As it swerved to the right I fired, dropping it. As it fell the splash startled another fish from the water, which came straight toward the boat, rising slightly on the stiff wind. I did not fire, as the fish was too near, and it passed over the boat into the preserves of my companion, who dropped it when 50 feet away.

There was something essentially novel in this sport. The fish appeared as though by magic, shooting out of the water with little or no splash, often apparently sailing along a foot above the surface, which it so resembled that it was as difficult to drop them as it would be to a woodcock darting over cover that it perfectly resembled. There was one essential lacking in this novel sport—a retriever. Many of the fish sank before the small boat could be cast off to secure them.

Loss of Cattle in Texas.

The West Texas Stockman, an authority on live stock matters, in its issue to-day, says that the total number of cattle in the state will not exceed [illegible] head, of which [illegible]000,000 are [illegible] cattle, and that the depreciation [illegible] values during the past year represents a loss of at least $21,000,000 to Texas cattlemen. Stockmen generally believe that this estimate of 7,000,000 head of cattle in the state is too high.

SPIRITS OF THE DROWNED.

How the Chinese Appease the Manes of the Departed—Custom of Taoist Religion.

Shanghai residents seeking cool breezes on the river recently could not fail to notice the number of Chinese [illegible] gayly colored lanterns [illegible] burning paper on the water [illegible] paper, but wonderfully constructed oiled paper lamps of various colors, which were dropped from the [illegible] to float on the water, sometimes [illegible] of 12 or 13 red, blue and green [illegible] bobbing up and down on the [illegible] waters of the Wrangpoo, says the Shanghai Mercury.

Inquiry of even the meanest native elicited the reply that joss pidgin was being done to keep the drowned men quiet. This is in reality a very ancient custom developed under the Taoist religion, which teaches that the spirits of the drowned flit miserably over and under the water until such time as cash is paid to the gods to release them from their purgatory. Failing this release, the drowned spirit lays in wait to catch boatmen sitting by the water's edge at dark and pull them into the water to take their places, when they themselves escape.

Hence, clinging to the old superstition, everywhere for the past 15 days of the seventh moon the Chinese assemble in bands and go down the rivers in their boats, beating gongs and burning paper money. Products of modern life are curiously blended with the old ideas, as we see everywhere in China, and in this festival steam launches are often to be seen towing a string of boats with colored lanterns waving to and fro. One procession of boats carrying over 100 lanterns and scattering others in their wake was preceded by the music of a cornet, a strange anomaly indeed.

NOVEL HEALTH CURE.

There is a certain colony in Milton, N. J., to which hard-worked city men repair to recuperate on a diet of fruit and milk. The idea is that in reverting as closely as possible to nature lies the secret of true health, and in this strange little colony the only cooked food allowed consists of bread. The first meal of the day is at 12, the last, and only other one, at six, and the rest of the 24 hours is spent in sleeping, bathing, walking and playing outdoor games and lying for hours in shallow trenches covered with a thin layer of earth. This practice is kept up, no matter how inclement the weather may be.

A LONG CHRISTMASTIDE.

Holidays That Extend Into the New Year.

While in this country, as in England, Germany and other parts of Europe, the joyous spirit of the Christmas fes- tival is by no means limited to Dec. 25, but finds expression in many ways in the life and amusement of the peo- ple both before and after that day it- self, comparatively little attention is paid here to the observance of the numerous designated holidays which in other lands go to make up Christ- mastide. The period opens with St. Thomas' day, which falls on Dec. 21, and closes with St. Distaff's day, on Jan. 7. The first named festival is known in some parts of England as "Doling day," on account of the dis- tribution of the bounty of charitable individuals, and in most English cities at the present time the day is given up largely to the anniversaries of chari- table societies and the distribution of benefits among the poor and needy. It is also the day chosen for the election of church officers, a custom adopted here in some denominations, and it appears also from the old rhyme that certain public officials were elected at the same time:

My masters all, this is St. Thomas' day,
And Christmas now can't be far off, you'll say.
And when you to the ward motes do re- pair
I hope such good man will be chosen there
As constables for the ensuing year
As will not grudge the watchmon good strong beer.

As for St. Distaff's day, which closed the merry round of Christmastide, that anniversary is now rarely observed anywhere, but in the good old times in England it was not the least among the happy festivals of the year. It takes its name from the fact that on this day it was the custom for women to re- sume for a few hours their labors at the distaff or the spinning wheel. It was sometimes called "Rock day" in honor of the rock, which is another name for distaff.—Leslie's Weekly.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS.

From the Gospel According to St. Luke, Chapter ii, Verses 7-20.

And she brought forth her firstborn son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger, be- cause there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them: "Fear not, for, behold, I bring you good tid- ings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

"And this shall be a sign unto you: ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

And it came to pass as the angels were gone away from them into heav- en the shepherds said one to another. "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us."

And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger.

And when they had seen it they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorify- ing and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen as it was told unto them.

Druids and Mistletoe.

The Druids always sought the mis- tletoe by the full moon and, when they found it, rejoiced and worshiped. Aft- er cutting off its twigs with a golden sickle they sacrificed two milk white bulls beneath the tree. The sacred shrub was then immersed in water, and the resulting concoction became their remedy for all diseases. The early Christians would not permit the use of the mistletoe in their churches because of its heathenish origin; consequently it was hung only within the private abode and usually in the kitchen. Any maid caught standing beneath a branch had to forfeit a kiss to the gallant eagerly awaiting his opportunity. With each kiss a berry was plucked, and when all of the berries disappeared the bare branch was useless to the young man who wished to claim the privilege of thus saluting the fair damsel there- after. The mistletoe was said to have been the original magical shrub or for- bidden tree in the garden of Eden.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Christmas at Ninety In the Shade.

Christmas in the West Indies is very well observed. To meander about among palm trees or orange groves and fields of sugar cane on Christmas day, with the thermometer at 90 degrees in the shade, certainly has the zest of novelty to a northerner. If you are in the British West Indies on Christmas day your attention will be most attract- ed in all the Christmas gatherings of which you form a part, whether in the streets, the home or the church, by the close association of whites and blacks. The "color line" is not a live question.

Boots as Stockings.

German children do not, as a general practice, hang up their stockings Christmas eve, but use their father's big boots instead.

GROUSE ARE CLEVER.

They Evade [illegible] That Display Intelligence.

The grouse has a hundred tricks of defense, says Outing. It will lie still until the hunter is within a yard of it, then soar straight upward in his front, towering like a woodcock; again it will rise forty yards away, and the sound of its wings is his only notice of its presence. It will cower upon a branch under which he passes, and his cap will not be more than a foot be- low it as he goes, and, though it has seen him approaching, it will remain quiescent in frightful fear until his back is turned. It will rush then, and when he has slewed himself hurriedly around he will catch only a glimpse of a brown, broad wing far away.

Wounded and falling in the [illegible] will be found—if it is found at all— with the telltale speckles of its breast against the trunk of some brown tree against which its feathers are indis- tinguishable, and the black ruff about the neck of the male will be laid against the darkest spot of the bark. Often it will double like a fox; often as man draws near it will spring noiselessly into some spruce and hide until he passes, dropping then to the ground and continuing its feeding; of- ten, too, it will decline to take wing, though unhurt, and will run fast for half a mile—so fast that the most ex- pert woodsman will be unable to keep pace with it. This it will only do on leafy ground and never when snow would betray its tracks.

Origin of Commonplace Phrases.

Expressions that we use nowdays metaphorically were used in their real sense in bygone days. For instance, we speak about "beating a retreat," forget- ting perhaps that the phrase comes from the fact that in war time when a retreat was ordered the drums were beaten in a particular manner, just as today it is sounded on the bugle. Then again one speaks of going off "bag and baggage." How many know what the "baggage" was? The general idea is that it was part of the soldier's kit. In point of fact the "bag" was originally the soldier's haversack; the "baggage" was his wife. The familiar phrase "to give the cold shoulder" originated in France, where it was the custom to serve with cold shoulder of mutton in- stead of hot meat a guest who had out- stayed his welcome. "A feather in his cap" comes from Hungary. It being for- merly the custom for the Hungarians to put a feather in their caps for ev- ery Turk they killed. The word "dead- head" is, according to some authorities, one of great antiquity. It is said that a "deadhead" was in Pompeii an indi- vidual who gained admission to an en- tertainment free of charge by means of a pass in the form of a small ivory death's head.

Now, Was It?

Clerk—Is this to be charged, madam?

Lady—Oh, yes; you'll have to. My husband has just lost his position.—Harper's Bazar.

While in this country, as in England, Germany and other parts of Europe, the joyous spirit of the Christmas festival is by no means limited to Dec. 25, but finds expression in many ways in the life and amusement of the people both before and after that day itself, comparatively little attention is paid here to the observance of the numerous designated holidays which in other lands go to make up Christmastide. The period opens with St. Thomas' day, which falls on Dec. 21, and closes with St. Distaff's day, on Jan. 7. The first named festival is known in some parts of England as "Doling day," on account of the distribution of the bounty of charitable individuals, and in most English cities at the present time the day is given up largely to the anniversaries of charitable societies and the distribution of benefits among the poor and needy. It is also the day chosen for the election of church officers, a custom adopted here in some denominations, and it appears also from the old rhyme that certain public officials were elected at the same time:

My masters all, this is St. Thomas' day,
And Christmas now can't be far off, you'll say.
And when you to the ward motes do repair
I hope such good men will be chosen there
As constables for the ensuing year
As will not grudge the watchman good strong beer.

As for St. Distaff's day, which closed the merry round of Christmastide, that anniversary is now rarely observed anywhere, but in the good old times in England it was not the least among the happy festivals of the year. It takes its name from the fact that on this day it was the custom for women to resume for a few hours their labors at the distaff or the spinning wheel. It was sometimes called "Rock day" in honor of the rock, which is another name for distaff.—Leslie's Weekly.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS.

From the Gospel According to St. Luke, Chapter ii, Verses 7-20.

And she brought forth her firstborn son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them: "Fear not, for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

"And this shall be a sign unto you: ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

And it came to pass as the angels were gone away from them into heaven the shepherds said one to another, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us."

And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger.

And when they had seen it they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen as it was told unto them.

Druids and Mistletoe.

The Druids always sought the mistletoe by the full moon and, when they found it, rejoiced and worshiped. After cutting off its twigs with a golden sickle they sacrificed two milk white bulls beneath the tree. The sacred shrub was then immersed in water, and the resulting concoction became their remedy for all diseases. The early Christians would not permit the use of the mistletoe in their churches because of its heathenish origin; consequently it was hung only within the private abode and usually in the kitchen. Any maid caught standing beneath a branch had to forfeit a kiss to the gallant eagerly awaiting his opportunity. With each kiss a berry was plucked, and when all of the berries disappeared the bare branch was useless to the young man who wished to claim the privilege of thus saluting the fair damsel thereafter. The mistletoe was said to have been the original magical shrub or forbidden tree in the garden of Eden.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Christmas at Ninety In the Shade.

Christmas in the West Indies is very well observed. To meander about among palm trees or orange groves and fields of sugar cane on Christmas day, with the thermometer at 90 degrees in the shade, certainly has the zest of novelty to a northerner. If you are in the British West Indies on Christmas day your attention will be most attracted in all the Christmas gatherings of which you form a part, whether in the streets, the home or the church, by the close association of whites and blacks. The "color line" is not a live question.

Boots as Stockings.

German children do not, as a general practice, hang up their stockings Christmas eve, but use their father's big boots instead.

GROUSE ARE CLEVER

They Evade the Hunter by Tricks That Display Intelligence.

The grouse has a hundred tricks of defense, says Outing. It will lie still until the hunter is within a yard of it, then soar straight upward in his front, towering like a woodcock; again, it will rise forty yards away, and the sound of its wings is his only notice of its presence. It will cower upon a branch under which he passes, and his cap will not be more than a foot below it as he goes, and, though it has seen him approaching, it will remain quiescent in frightful fear until his back is turned. It will rush then, and when he has slewed himself hurriedly around he will catch only a glimpse of a brown, broad wing far away.

Wounded and falling in the open it will be found—if it is found at all—with the telltale speckles of its breast against the trunk of some brown tree against which its feathers are indistinguishable, and the black ruff about the neck of the male will be laid against the darkest spot of the bark. Often it will double like a fox; often as a man draws near it will spring noiselessly into some spruce and hide until he passes, dropping then to the ground and continuing its feeding; often, too, it will decline to take wing, though unhurt, and will run fast for half a mile—so fast that the most expert woodsman will be unable to keep pace with it. This it will only do on leafy ground and never when snow would betray its tracks.

Origin of Commonplace Phrases.

Expressions that we use nowadays metaphorically were used in their real sense in bygone days. For instance, we speak about "beating a retreat," forgetting perhaps that the phrase comes from the fact that in war time when a retreat was ordered the drums were beaten in a particular manner, just as today it is sounded on the bugle. Then again one speaks of going off "bag and baggage." How many know what the "baggage" was? The general idea is that it was part of the soldier's kit. In point of fact the "bag" was originally the soldier's haversack; the "baggage" was his wife. The familiar phrase "to give the cold shoulder" originated in France, where it was the custom to serve with cold shoulder of mutton instead of hot meat a guest who had outstayed his welcome. "A feather in his cap" comes from Hungary, it being formerly the custom for the Hungarians to put a feather in their caps for every Turk they killed. The word "deadhead" is, according to some authorities, one of great antiquity. It is said that a "deadhead" was in Pompeii an individual who gained admission to an entertainment free of charge by means of a pass in the form of a small ivory death's head.

Some Very Ancient Laws.

King Amraphel of Babylon, who lived 2,250 years B. C., formulated a code of laws. His statutes, which were operative five centuries before the laws of Moses, numbered 282 and contain the following:

"If a woman who sells beverages gives bad value for the money paid her, she shall be thrown into water.

"If a wife be a spendthrift or if she otherwise neglect her duties, her husband may put her away without compensation, but if a man put away his wife for no other reason than that she has no children he shall return her whole dowry.

"If a betrothal be rescinded, the man shall pay the woman compensation.

"A widow with grown up children may not marry again without permission from a judge."—London Express.

Some Errors of Speech.

Many make the mistake of saying "I intended to have told you" or "If I had have known" instead of "I intended to tell you" or "If I had known." I have heard the following confused sentence from one who should know better: "I should have thought that you would have gone to have seen her." The correct sentence would be, "I should think that you would have gone to see her."

It is incorrect to say "Those sort of things" instead of "Things of that sort." Do not say "Ain't" for "Is not," or "He don't" for "He does not" or "Not as I know" for "Not that I know" or "I have lit the lamps" for "I have lighted the lamps."—Delineator.

Misunderstood.

Fergus Hume, who wrote a number of sensational books, was one day in a railway carriage with a friend, says London M. A. P. In one corner was an old lady. Mr. Hume said to his friend that he really did not know how to murder any one in a new way. He had murdered at least twenty people and now he wanted a new mode. The old lady shivered and looked most apprehensive. At the next station she got out hurriedly. Evidently she took Hume for a dangerous lunatic traveling with his keeper.

PAWN SHOPS OF CHINA.

They Cut Quite a Figure In Life In the Flowery Land.

Pawnbroking is a great institution in the Flowery Land. The Chinese pawnbroker's, however, is quite a different kind of establishment from ours. The pawn shop of China is more a stronghold, a place of quiet and safe repose, for valuable jewelry and the miscellaneous and costly wardrobes of the people. It also in many instances performs the equally important but somewhat costly function of lending to the needy, and, as in the collections of similar establishments of our own land, one may see the much prized jewels and trinkets of happier times, which caused their poor owners many a bitter pang to part with, heartaches that were perhaps brightened with the hope that one day they would be able to redeem them.

To listen to the man selling these unredeemed pledges is one of the choice entertainments of the Peking streets. He is selected by the pawnbroker for his fluency of speech and ready wit, to which he gives full play in his humorous descriptions of the quality and history of the furs and richly embroidered dresses which are piled up on the platform of his tent. He at times runs off his speech in rhyme, making clever and sarcastic allusions to the requirements of his audience, pressing a satin robe on the attention of some naked beggar.—Golden Penny.

Oldest Family In the World.

Of the 400 barons in the British house of lords about a dozen date back to 1400, the earliest being 1264. The oldest family in the British Isles is the Mar family in Scotland, 1093. The Campbells of Argyll began in 1190. Talleyrand dates from 1199 and Bismarck from 1270. The Grosvenor family, the Duke of Westminster, 1066; the Austrian house of Hapsburg goes back to 952 and the house of Bourbon to 864. The descendants of Mohammed, 1,000,000, are all registered carefully and authoritatively in a book kept in Mecca by a chief of the family. Little or no doubt exists of the absolute authenticity of the long line of Mohammed's descendants. In China there are many old families; also among the Jews. But in point of pedigrees the mikado of Japan has a unique record. His post has been filled by members of his family for more than 2,500 years. The present mikado is the one hundred and twenty-second in the line. The first one was contemporary with Nebuchadnezzar, 1,000 years before Christ.

Thackeray as a Critic.

It cannot be contended that Thackeray was a great critic. Indeed, there is not doubt that, as a rule, he preferred second rate books of the first class to the greatest. For instance, while, as a matter of course, he admitted that Milton was a great poet, he added that "he was such a bore that no one could read him." Whatever one may think of the discernment of a man who says that, it is impossible to doubt his honesty. He was often led away by the character of the author whose works he was criticising. He disapproved of Swift and Sterne and rather gradgingly admitted their qualities, but he gladly praised Pope, whom he loved because of his infirmity and because of the love the poet bore his mother. His judgments came from the heart rather than the intellect. It was fortunate when these coincided.—Lewis Melville in Fortnightly.

Appropriate Dressing.

Henry Irving once preached quite a terse sermon on appropriate dressing. A clever young woman belonging to his company appeared at rehearsal one morning dressed in a lovely gown and a stunning hat. Irving commented on the unusual splendor of her get-up, whereupon the actress explained that she was going to a swell luncheon that afternoon and had saved time by dressing in advance. "Then run away to the luncheon first, my dear young lady," said the star. "Just now your mind, too, is dressed up for the luncheon and not for work. When you come to rehearsal come looking the part." The young woman, who is now a star, never forgot the lesson she learned that morning.

A Printer's Blunder.

A Paris newspaper on one occasion made a blunder which excited no small amount of merriment at the expense of a man of real talent. The following paragraphs, intended to have been printed separately, were by some error so arranged that they were read consecutively: "Dr. X. has been appointed head physician to the Hospital de la Charite. Orders have been issued by the authorities for the immediate extension of the cemetery of Mont Parnasse. The works are being executed with the utmost dispatch."

Young folks grow most when they are in love. It increases their sighs wonderfully.

Snake Killing Cats of Cairo.

A native woman living in old Cairo was entering her house when to her great terror, she perceived a snake of formidable dimensions, which had taken possession of the hearth during the woman's absence. The woman fled, leaving the door open. Her cat then appeared on the scene, entered, saw the cobra, put up its back and tail, spat and otherwise manifested its hostility and in turn went out. A few minutes afterward it returned in company with a second cat. After a similar exhibition both went out and returned with a third, and finally went away, returning finally with a fourth. Considering that sufficient force had been recruited to kill the snake, the four at once fell on the reptile, and after a short but fierce struggle the latter was literally torn to pieces.—Egyptian Gazette.

Embarrassing to the Guest.

A tourist in the Welsh mountains who had been caught in a storm and who after much difficulty had succeeded in making his way to a solitary cottage congratulated himself on his good fortune when he was asked to stay for the night. After donning a suit of his host's clothes, so that his own might be dried, he proceeded downstairs and on his way met the mistress with a big Bible in her hand. In the fading light she mistook the stranger for her husband and gave him a thump on the head with it, remarking, "That's for asking the man to stay all night."

A Woman's Wish.

Mrs. Housekeep—My husband has been complaining a good deal of late because his dinner has not been served on time.

Mrs. Clubb—Gracious! I wish mine would.

Mrs. Housekeep—You do?

Mrs. Clubb—Yes; because he'd have to come home earlier to do it.—Philadelphia Press.

Lack of Judgment.

"Was you really plannin' to run away with the hired girl?" asked the old farmer disgustedly.

"That's what I was thinkin' of doin'," admitted his son.

"Ain't you got any sense at all?" demanded the old man. "Don't you know that hired girls is harder to get than daughters-in-law?"—Chicago Post.

Some Very Ancient Laws.

King Amraphel, of Babylon, who lived 2,250 years B. C., formulated a code of laws. His statutes, which were operative five centuries before the laws of Moses, numbered 282 and contain the following:

"If a woman who sells beverages gives bad value for the money paid her, she shall be thrown into water.

"If a wife be a spendthrift or if she otherwise neglect her duties, her husband may put her away without compensation, but if a man put away his wife for no other reason than that she has no children he shall return her whole dowry.

"If a betrothal be rescinded, the man shall pay the woman compensation.

"A widow with grown up children may not marry again without permission from a judge."—London Express.

Some Errors of Speech.

Many make the mistake of saying "I intended to have told you" or "If I had have known" instead of "I intended to tell you" or "If I had known." I have heard the following confused sentence from one who should know better: "I should have thought that you would have gone to have seen her." The correct sentence would be. "I should think that you would have gone to see her."

It is incorrect to say "Those sort of things" instead of "Things of that sort." Do not say "Ain't" for "Is not," or "He don't" for "He does not" or "Not as I know" for "Not that I know" or "I have lit the lamps" for "I have lighted the lamps."—Delineator.

Misunderstood.

Fergus Hume, who wrote a number of sensational books, was one day in a railway carriage with a friend; says London M. A. P. In one corner was an old lady. Mr. Hume said to his friend that he really did not know how to murder any one in a new way. He had murdered at least twenty people and now he wanted a new mode. The old lady shivered and looked most apprehensive. At the next station she got out hurriedly. Evidently she took Hume for a dangerous lunatic traveling with his keeper.

PAWN SHOPS OF CHINA.

They Cut Quite a Figure In Life In the Flowery Land.

Pawnbroking is a great institution in the Flowery Land. The Chinese pawnbroker's, however, is quite a different kind of establishment from ours. The pawn shop of China is more a stronghold, a place of quiet and safe repose, for valuable jewelry and the miscellaneous and costly wardrobes of the people. It also in many instances performs the equally important but somewhat costly function of lending to the needy, and, as in the collections of similar establishments of our own land, one may see the much prized jewels and trinkets of happier times, which caused their poor owners many a bitter pang to part with, heartaches that were perhaps brightened with the hope that one day they would be able to redeem them.

To listen to the man selling these unredeemed pledges is one of the choice entertainments of the Peking streets. He is selected by the pawnbroker for his fluency of speech and ready wit, to which he gives full play in his humorous descriptions of the quality and history of the furs and richly embroidered dresses which are piled up on the platform of his tent. He at times runs off his speech in rhyme, making clever and sarcastic allusions to the requirements of his audience, pressing a satin robe on the attention of some naked beggar.—Golden Penny.

Oldest Family In the World.

Of the 400 barons in the British house of lords about a dozen date back to 1400, the earliest being 1264. The oldest family in the British isles is the Mar family in Scotland, 1093. The Campbells of Argyll began in 1190. Talleyrand dates from 1199 and Bismarck from 1270. The Grosvenor family, the Duke of Westminster, 1066; the Austrian house of Hapsburg goes back to 952 and the house of Bourbon to 864. The descendants of Mahommed, however, are all registered carefully and authoritatively in a book kept in Mecca by a chief of the family. Little or no doubt exists of the absolute authenticity of the long line of Mohammed's descendants. In China there are many old families; also among the Jews. ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of Our Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

I was a constant sufferer for a number of years with weakness of the kidneys and back and frequent desire to urinate, but after using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am entirely cured and cheerfully recommend this wonderful remedy to any who may suffer from these common complaints.

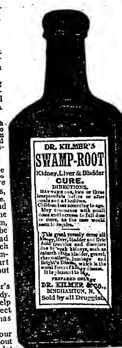
Most truly yours,
B. H. CHALKER, Chief of Police,
Ozark, Ala.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering with fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has ever been discovered.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.



DR. KILMER'S
SWAMP-ROOT
Kidney, Liver & Bladder
CURE.
DIRECTIONS.

Less Children Engaged.

The factory inspection work of the state bureau of labor, for the year 1903, has been tabulated and shows the following data:

The inspectors made in all 4,[illegible] reports, embracing 111,009 persons, or 93,143 male adults, 18,894 female adults, 730 boys under 16 years of age, and 242 girls under the same age.

The corresponding figures for the year 1902 were 3,420 reports, 99,1[illegible] persons, or 82,608 male adults, 15,[illegible] female adults, 833 boys and 243 girls under 10 years of age.

This data shows an increase in the total number of wage earners of 11.91 per cent, while that of the male adults 13.57 per cent, that of the female adults 9.38 per cent, and of the children there is a decrease from last year's number of 9.58 percent.

Drowned.

Mrs. Anna Krenen, wife of Fred Krenan, is supposed to have drowned herself and two children in the cistern at home near Le Sueur. The bodies were discovered by her husband. The bodies were dressed in their night clothes only. Mrs. Krenan had been suffering somewhat with measles, but there was no suspicion that her mind was in any way unbalanced.

The opening to the cistern is only about fourteen by eighteen inches, so that it is scarcely possible that even the 2-year-old boy could have fallen in accidentally, in which case of course, it would have been possible that the mother, in running to the place with baby in her arms, might, herself, have fallen in while attempting to rescue the boy.

Game Dinners.

The state board of control sent out to institutions under its control all the game confiscated during the season by the state game and fish commission. This game was used for the Christmas dinner of the inmates. Altogether, there were 3,020 ducks, chickens and partridges, and 1,657 pounds of venison.

The game was distributed to the institutions in proportion to the number of inmates under its care. The Fergus Falls institution with 1,500 patients was the largest and received 628 birds and 343 pounds of venison.

The board also supplied a Christmas dinner for the crippled children at the City hospital in St. Paul. English chickens and turkeys were purchased so that every public charge had a good dinner on Christmas day.

Meet in Minneapolis.

Jan. 12, the first annual meeting of the Minnesota Agricultural society ever held in Minneapolis will be called to order and opened with usual ceremonies. The sessions of the main convention will be held in the Masonic temple and Secretary Randall has [illegible] a fine list of prominent [illegible] dress the meeting [illegible] dent of the Great Northern [illegible] that Mr. Hill's address will be [illegible] important of the convention [illegible] have something of importance to the farmers of the state in regard to present conditions and future prospects.

They Must Hang.

Charles and Henry Nelson, the Owatonna boys, who were convicted of the murder of H. H. Kriar on the night of April 13, 1903, must pay the penalty of their crime with their lives.

The supreme court affirmed a verdict of murder in the first degree, which was reached by the jury in the district court of Steele county, and refused to grant them a new trial. As yet the boys have not been sentenced to their death, but following the action of the supreme court the governor will be compelled to fix the date of their execution.

Renovated Butter.

Renovated butter is evidently becoming a staple commodity in the household. During November internal revenue officials in St. Paul issued revenue stamps covering a output of 869,104 pounds of this commodity. This makes over 184 tons of renovated butter consumed in one month. During the first eleven days of December the local office issued stamps covering an output of 279,852 pounds. The federal tax on renovated butter became operative July 1.

Counterfeit.

Counterfeit $10 silver certificates are said to be in circulation in St. Paul. Several of them have been received at the banks. The counterfeit bills are well made and easily mistaken for genuine currency. Orders have been issued to the policemen to notify all merchants on their beats of the existence of the counterfeit money, and the storekeepers were asked to call the police as soon as one of the counterfeit bills is presented.

Brief Notes.

Confidence men are working very strongly on the trains around Winona.

When William Frazier entered the central police station of Minneapolis to report the absence of his son, Otto, who had been missing since Friday night, he found him locked up under the name of Frank Sommers, with two companions, charged with horse stealing.

Alice, the four-year-old daughter of Jacob Anderson, 465 Olive street, St. Paul, fell down the cellar steps of her home and broke her neck.

The herring catch on Lake Superior was about 2,200,000 pounds less this season, which was about 25 per cent less than the season a year ago.

OBEYED INSTRUCTIONS.

Photographer Pointed His Camera Where He Was Told To and There Was Trouble.

The city editor summoned the photographer of his staff, relates Youth's Companion. "Col. Welligan's house is burning," he said, "and I want a picture of the fire. Get out there as quick as you can with your camera and take a view of what's left of the building, from the inside of the fence corner."

"But," said the photographer, "if—"

"That's the point I want it taken from—right in the corner."

"But I think there's—"

"I don't care whether there's a better point or not. You know what I want. Hurry up! You are losing time."

The photographer took his camera and departed. A few hours later he came in with the proof of a picture he had taken from the desired point of view.

"What is this?" asked the city editor.

"That is a photograph of the ruins of Col. Welligan's house from the inside corner of the fence, near the street."

"I can't see anything of the house."

"I can't, either," responded the photographer. "I tried to tell you there was a big tree standing between that corner and the house, but you wouldn't let me."

Mr. Grover's Case.

Frederika, Ia., Dec. 28.—Mr. A. S. Grover is now 74 years of age. For the last 30 years he has suffered a great deal of sickness, and, although he is a temperate man and never used spirits of any kind, his kidneys had troubled him very much. He said:—

"I was told I had Diabetes, and my symptoms corresponded exactly to those of a young man who died of Diabetes in this neighborhood. My feet and limbs were bloated quite a little.

"I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and at last determined to try them. I took in all ten boxes before I was well, and now I can truthfully say that I am all right. The bloating is gone from my feet and legs, I have gained eight pounds in weight, and I can sleep well at night, and every symptom of my trouble is gone.

"It is some time now since I was cured, and I have not had the slightest return of any symptom of the old trouble."

What women sigh for is long life without old age.—Chicago Daily News.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful, I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. SISTERS OF CHARITY

Use Pe-ru-na for Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrh—A Congressman's Letter.

In every country of the civilized world Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs.

With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease, these wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never failing safeguard.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."
—Sisters of Charity.

The young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat with good results as the above letter testifies.

Send to The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio, for a free book written by Dr. Hartman.

The following letter is from Congressman Meekison, of Napoleon, Ohio:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

David Meekison.

Gentlemen: "I have used several bottles of Peruna and feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head, and feel encouraged to believe that its continued use will fully eradicate a disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

Dr. Hartman, one of the best known physicians and surgeons in the United States, was the first man to formulate Peruna. It was through his genius and perseverance that it was introduced to the medical profession of this country.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SIMPLEST OF IMPLEMENTS.

Internal Improvements Effected by a Woman with a Hairpin and a Brush.

There is a story in Lippincott's Magazine of a husband who, on his return from a visit, sat down to hear the family happenings during his absence. This incident, it may seem, has a moral. The wife was naming the reforms she had successfully introduced.

"You know," said she, "that closet that was locked for over a month? You said it couldn't be opened except by a locksmith? Well, I opened it."

"How in the world did you do it?"

"With a hairpin. And the furnace door has been sagging round on one hinge for ever so long, you know; but it's all right now."

"Well, I'm glad you had it fixed."

"Had it fixed! I fixed it myself with a hairpin. And then there was that crayon portrait of mother that stood on the floor for six weeks because you hadn't brought me any picture hooks—"

"Well, I intended to, but—"

"Oh, it doesn't make any difference now. I made a hook myself out of a hairpin."

"No!"

"And there's Willie! You've been coaxing and bribing him for a year to break him of biting his nails, and I broke him in a week."

"With a hairpin?" he inquired, weakly.

"No! Don't be a goose. With a hairbrush."

An English Earl's Opinion.

The English, next to the Americans, are the greatest travelers in the world, and while they as a rule insist upon having the best there is to be obtained, they appreciate good service and beautiful scenery. The Earl of Shaftesbury, having, with his wife, spent some little time in the United States during the summer, speaks most enthusiastically in regard to what they have seen. A few days ago he said to a gentleman in Buffalo:

"Our stay in New York was a delightful one, and the picturesque grandeur along the Hudson and its surroundings was a source of much joy to us all.

"It has seldom been my good fortune to pass the time in such excellent sport as that furnished in your enchanting Adirondack Mountains."—Albany, Times-Union.

A Gentle Hint.

"I—er—had a peculiar dream about you last night," said the girl on the other end of the sofa.

"And what did you dream?" asked the young man in the case.

"That I saw you in a jewelry store pricing engagement rings," she blushingly replied.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Should Have Known Better.

"That was an unlucky thing for Peck, the engine driver," said the guard. "They gave him one o' them new engines yesterday, an' he named it after his wife."

"Why unlucky?" asked the plate driver.

"Why, it blew him up this morning."—Stray Stories.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of Our Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

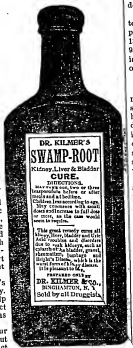
I was a constant sufferer for a number of years with weakness of the kidneys and back and frequent desire to urinate, but after using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am entirely cured and cheerfully recommend this wonderful remedy to any who may suffer from these common complaints.
Most truly yours,
B. H. CHALKER, Chief of Police,
Ozark, Ala.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering with fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has ever been discovered.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.



DR. KILMER'S
SWAMP-ROOT
Kidney, Liver & Bladder
CURE.
DIRECTIONS.
May take one, two or three teaspoonfuls before or after meals and at bedtime.
Children less according to age.
May commence with small doses and increase to full dose or more, as the case would seem to require.
This great remedy cures all kidney, liver, bladder and Uric Acid troubles and disorders due to weak kidneys, such as catarrh of the bladder, gravel, rheumatism, lumbago and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney disease.
It is pleasant to take.

OBEYED INSTRUCTIONS.

Photographer Planted His Camera Where He Was Told To and There Was Trouble.

The city editor summoned the photographer of his staff, relates Youth's Companion. "Col. Welligan's house is burning," he said, "and I want a picture of the fire. Get out there as quick as you can with your camera and take a view of what's left of the building, from the inside of the fence corner."

"But," said the photographer, "if—"

"That's the point I want it taken from—right in the corner."

"But I think there's—"

"I don't care whether there's a better point or not. You know what I want. Hurry up! You are losing time."

The photographer took his camera and departed. A few hours later he came in with the proof of a picture he had taken from the desired point of view.

"What is this?" asked the city editor.

"That is a photograph of the ruins of Col. Welligan's house from the inside corner of the fence, near the street."

"I can't see anything of the house."

"I can't, either," responded the photographer. "I tried to tell you there was a big tree standing between that corner and the house, but you wouldn't let me."

Mr. Grover's Case.

Frederika, Ia., Dec. 28.—Mr. A. S. Grover is now 74 years of age. For the last 30 years he has suffered a great deal of sickness, and, although he is a temperate man and never used spirits of any kind, his kidneys had troubled him very much. He said:—

"I was told I had Diabetes, and my symptoms corresponded exactly to those of a young man who died of Diabetes in this neighborhood. My feet and limbs were bloated quite a little.

"I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and at last determined to try them. I took in all ten boxes before I was well, and now I can truthfully say that I am all right. The bloating is gone from my feet and legs. I have gained eight pounds in weight, and I can sleep well at night, and every symptom of my trouble is gone.

"It is some time now since I was cured, and I have not had the slightest return of any symptom of the old trouble."

In every country of the civilized world Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs

With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease, these wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never failing safeguard.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."

"Well, I intended to, but—"

"Oh, it doesn't make any difference now. I made a hook myself out of a hairpin."

"No!"

"And there's Willie! You've been coaxing and bribing him for a year to break him of biting his nails, and I broke him in a week."

"With a hairpin?" he inquired, weakly.

"No! Don't be a goose. With a hairbrush."

An English Earl's Opinion.

The English, next to the Americans, are the greatest travelers in the world, and while they as a rule insist upon having the best there is to be obtained, they appreciate good service and beautiful scenery. The Earl of Shaftesbury, having, with his wife, spent some little time in the United States during the summer, speaks most enthusiastically in regard to what they have seen. A few days ago he said to a gentleman in Buffalo:

"Our stay in New York was a delightful one, and the picturesque grandeur along the Hudson and its surroundings was a source of much joy to us all.

"It has seldom been my good fortune to pass the time in such excellent sport as that furnished in your enchanting Adirondack Mountains."—Albany Times-Union.

A Gentle Hint.

AWFUL DISASTER IN CHICAGO THEATER!

Fire Breaks Out During the Performance and Many Hundreds Perish.

LIVES CRUSHED OUT IN THE FRENZIED ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Almost Six Hundred Souls Sacrificed in the Appalling Catastrophe — Unfortunate Victims Mostly Women and Little Children.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Fire broke out in the Iroquois theater, on Randolph street between Dearborn and State streets, about 3:30 p. m. The theater was packed to the doors with an audience gathered to witness a matinee performance of the extravaganza "Mr. Bluebeard, Jr." The flames spread rapidly through the auditorium, and panic and stampede ensued. The loss of life is appalling, latest estimates placing the number of dead at 582, while 350 others were injured. Many of the victims were burned to death, but the majority lost their lives through suffocation or being trampled upon. Every hospital and morgue in the city is filled with victims. The work of identification is proceeding very slowly, and it is impossible at this time to give anything like a correct list of the dead, injured or missing. The hospitals and morgues are besieged by hundreds of agonized men and women whose relatives were known to have attended the performance, but of whom nothing has since been heard. It is the most appalling catastrophe in point of loss of life which has ever been visited upon this city.

Origin of the Fire.

The fire started from sparks from the eight electric arc lights which hung in the fire entrance back of the proscenium arch, behind the grand drapery on the south side of the stage. The large arc lamps were used to throw "spot" lights on the performers in the dark scenes. There were 180 drop scenes hung in the flies of the theater and a spark ignited one of the draperies hanging from the top of the stage near the proscenium. It burned nearly a minute before it was discovered by one of the men in the flies, who gave the alarm. Stage Manager Carlson ordered the drapery lowered, but the men in charge of the fly gallery were excited and instead of lowering it pulled it up, and in an instant all the hanging drops were ablaze. A moment later there was an explosion of several calcium tanks which lighted the theater like a photographer's flash light powder and the flames spread to the auditorium. The fly men barely had time to climb down the ladder leading to the upper portion of the stage and escape before the entire scenery was blazing. Nearly all the company were in their dressing rooms at the time, and when the alarm was given they rushed madly into the street through the stage exits, their faces covered with makeup and wearing their stage costumes.

Fire Curtain Fails to Act.

Crossed wires on a "spot light" coming in contact with a canvas "border" at the right of the stage are said to have caused the fire. Ten minutes after the border ignited the acres of canvas scenery in the rear of the stage were ablaze. The asbestos fire curtain caught in a tangle of ropes and could not be lowered. An instant later the entire theater from foyer to stage was a sea of flame. Had the asbestos fire curtain acted properly the fire would have been shut off from the theater proper and the persons in the theater could have escaped with little difficulty.

Awful Scenes.

So fiercely the fire burned during the short time which hundreds of lives were sacrificed that the velvet cushions of the balcony seats were burned bare. The crowds fought so in their efforts to escape that they tore away the iron railings of the balconies, leaping upon the people below.

From 3:30 o'clock, when the alarm was sent in, to 7:30 o'clock, when the doors of the gutted theater were closed, the charred, torn and blistered bodies were carried from the building at the rate of four a minute. Many blankets filled with fragments of human bodies were taken from the building.

Like Rats in a Trap.

Most gruesome were the sights in the upper balcony of the burned theater, when the police and firemen began removing the bodies. There 150 persons, caught like rats in a trap, had died in fearful agony. Along the rail guarding the edge of the pit were stacked the bodies of the hapless victims, their limbs drawn and faces set. Indications in the highest balcony were that in the last few seconds of the struggle for life the agonized people had crushed forward, intent upon throwing themselves to the floor below. Their arms were interlocked and the muscles set so hard that much force was necessary to separate them. In the end of the gallery nearest the stage the fire had done its most awful work. There were found bodies charred beyond the possibility of recognition, some with shreds of clothing still clinging to them. A number of the victims' bodies had burned to the seats, so that the firemen were either forced to rend the bodies in removing them or use axes on the seats to which they were fastened.

Men fell on their ... Men and women cursed. A rush was made for the Randolph street exits. In their fear the crowds forgot the many side exits, and rushed for the doors at which they had entered the theater. Little boys and girls were thrown to one side by their stronger companions. The 12-year-old son of Mrs. F. A. Morgan, of 496 Webster avenue, was literally scalped by a man who grasped the boy by the hair and threw him to one side. With his hands the man tore the boy's hair out. The mother held to her son's arm. Alive, but injured, both were carried out.

SCENE IN REAR OF THEATER.

Victims Jumping from Fire-Escapes to Escape the Flames.

Loss Heaviest in Balconies.

All but three persons on the main floor escaped with their lives. Of the 900 persons seated in the first and second balconies few if any escaped without serious injury. The majority of those escaping did so by jumping from the balconies onto the heads of the crowds surging from the main floor of the theater. The fight of the men and women to get through the balcony exits was their undoing. They jammed the doors so tight that none of them could get out.

Piled in the aisles of the balconies in a solid mass, four feet high, they were found. They had either been burned to death or suffocated. The few taken from the theater and resuscitated were on the bottom of the piles where fire and smoke could not reach them.

Work of Rescuers.

The straggling line of rescuers which followed the conquest of the flames became a steady stream as a strong wind from the front cleared the theater of smoke and the odor of burned flesh. Down the front stairs, the rescuers behind treading on those before them, went the line of workers, their blankets shielding the nakedness of the bodies from the gaze of the crowds in the street. Four stories above the street most spectacular means of rescue were adopted. From the fire escapes at the rear of the theater to those of the old Tremont house were laid three narrow planks. Across the little bridge thus formed were transported the bodies of 30 dead. Twenty injured were also taken across the chasm. Many of the rescuers on this bridge were stage hands who gave little heed to the drop of 75 feet which would follow a false step. While in transit across the chasm the bodies of the dead and injured were steadied by the use of a rope by the rescuers.

Removal of the Bodies.

Coroner Traeger and his two physicians, Joseph Springer and Otto Lewke, arrived at the fire early. The coroner took personal charge of the removal of the bodies, 150 policemen and 200 firemen working under his orders. In their first efforts to take out the dead, the rescuing parties had much trouble. Numbers of the dead were nearly nude, having been stripped of their clothing in the rush for safety. The heat of the fire and the water thrown in extinguishing it combined to make the bodies slimy and most difficult to handle. There was less difficulty after a thousand blankets had been brought from the store of Marshal Field & Co., half a block away. Firemen and spectators worked together in removing the last 200 bodies, which were taken from the building in less than an hour. ... as the ... the street doctors ... dead were ordered taken away, being hurried to the temporary hospitals in adjacent buildings.

Bodies Piled on Sidewalk.

When the dead became so numerous that the ambulances could not carry them away as fast as taken to the street it was the first thought of the rescuers to carry the bodies to the shelter of adjacent business places. Twenty dead were carried into Thompson's restaurant, east of the theater. There they were piled beneath tables and covered with tarpaulins and blankets from the fire wagons. The crush of bodies finally became so great that sheltering them was impossible. Wrapped in blankets, they were piled along the sidewalk for a hundred feet, four narrow lanes dividing the piles and affording passages for the firemen and police.

TERRIBLE SCENES ARE ENACTED IN THE PLAYHOUSE OF DEATH

Rescuers Are Forced to Walk on Dead to Extricate Living---Exits Choked With Bodies of Women and Children.

Chic o, Jan. 1.—On the heels of the fireme came the police, intent on the work rescue. Chief O'Neill and Assist Chief Schuettler ordered captains m a dozen stations to bring their en, and then they rushed to the th ter and led the police up the stairs the landing outside the east entran to the first balcony.

The emen, rushing blindly up the stairs the dense pall of smoke, had found eir path suddenly blocked by a wa f dead eight or ten feet high. They scovered many persons alive and c ried them to safety. Other fireme crawled over the mass of dead and d gged their hose into the theater to fig back the flames that seemed to be awling nearer to turn the fatal landin into a funeral pyre.

Passages Strewn with Bodies.

Am g the elevated passages leading fr m the foyer to the balcony were rewn scores of women and childre, who, in the struggle inside the doors, had exhausted their strength and who, when the outside and comparative safety were reached, were unable to continue to the street and fell helpless upon the marble floor. Some were dead when the rescuers reached them and some still showed signs of life. These latter were hurried to the street and committed to the waiting arms of hundreds who had gathered about the entrance, ready to carry them to near-by stores and restaurants and to the police ambulances which soon began to arrive.

There are three doors leading to the main balcony from the front of the theater and most of the imprisoned spectators attempted to escape by way of the east one. This door is higher than either of the others and farther away from the stage, and it is thought that this accounts for the number that tried to use it. The fire approaching from the stage gradually drove them back to the east wall, where they perished in the frenzied jam.

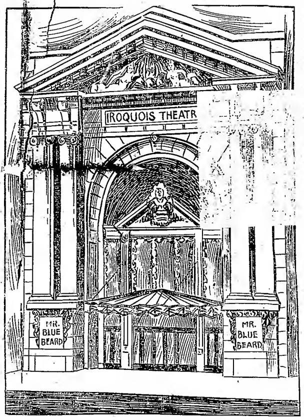
Women Beaten Down by Men.

Comparatively more men than women gained positions anywhere near the door. According to one man who escaped, they climbed over the backs of the seats, beat down women and children and even walked over their fallen bodies. They tore children from their mothers and threw women who blocked their way out of the aisles on and beneath the seats.

As soon as the bodies which blocked the door were cleared away the chief and his assistants turned their attention to those who had not been so fortunate as to even get near the doors. Charred and stiff in death, women and children were found apparently in the very seats from which they had viewed the performance. One little lad of about 12 years was found caught between two seats not a half dozen feet from the center door. There was no one near him and he seemed to be one of the few who in avoiding the rush for the door above fell victims to the suffocating heat.

At Morgues and Hospitals.

Morgues and hospitals were the scenes of wild disorder and frantic grief for hours after the disaster. Kinsfolk and friends sought their loved ones, frantic with grief, threatening to break windows and overpower the police unless permitted to enter and search for the bodies of those they loved. Heavy police guards were necessary to keep the crowds in check at Rolston's and Jordan's morgues. At the same time the hospitals were filled in with injured. Many of them unconscious, many of them writhing in pain from their burns, the yet living victims were taken to the wards, where hastily collected extra forces of nurses and physicians did all they could to alleviate suffering. Many had breathed flame and were in the stupor that preceded death; many had been scorched from head to foot, and some died on the way to the hospitals or shortly after their arrivals.



Entrance and Front of Playhouse.

Never have such scenes been witnessed in Chicago's institutions for the care of the dead or the suffering. The capacities of many were exhausted long before all had been taken care of.

Wounded Fill Hospitals.

Rolston's morgue was filled early, when 100 bodies were laid out in rows, and wagons carrying hundreds of others were turned away. And all the while, as the black wagons, express wagons, carriages, vans, carts, wagons for delivery of meat, groceries and merchandise of all sorts, arrived with their fearful burdens, the crowd surged around the doors in waves that the police could scarce withhold and hailed each new arrival with frantic manifestations of grief and horror. Those in front strove to get nearer and look at the faces of the dead as they were carried in and those in the rear surged forward. The whole human mass, swayed by a common impulse, moved in a tide that almost swept the policemen from their feet.

Greatest in Country's History.

The Iroquois theater was vastly more destructive to human life than any other playhouse fire in the history of this country. The fire next to it in point of lives lost occurred December 5, 1876, in Conway's Brooklyn theater, Brooklyn, N. Y. Here 295 of the audience perished in fierce flames. The day after Christmas in 1811, while the play, "The Bleeding Nun," was being performed in a theater at Richmond, Va., a fire started that burned 70 persons to death, among them the governor of the state, George W. Smith.

SEARCH FOR THE DEAD

Friends and Relatives of Victims Haunt Morgues and Hospitals.

MANAGERS OF THE IROQUOIS THEATER PLACED UNDER ARREST

City Officials Also Taken in Charge and Charged with Manslaughter —Many Other Theaters Are Closed by the Mayor.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The search of the rows of charred dead at the morgues by sorrowing friends and relatives continues. Over 400 of the 583 known dead now have been identified. Failing to find scores of the missing in these heaps of bodies, the search has been turned to the private hospitals and homes for more dead and dying. Coroner Traeger has asked all citizens to aid him in this quest. Grief-crazed friends and relatives of the missing join in this appeal.

Funerals of Victims.

The saddest reminders of the Iroquois catastrophe Friday were the numerous funerals which moved through the streets in all portions of the city. In the homes of hundreds of victims friends gathered to console the parents, brothers and sisters whose relatives had been lost.

Such a day of mourning Chicago has never witnessed, and sad scenes were enacted in the homes where funeral services were conducted over the children.

In some homes funeral services were held over the body of ... member of a family while an... waiting in some morgue ... by the distracted ... which was the case at the home of ...rbert and Agnes Lange, ... Both [illegible]

He was only one of hundreds who spent the day searching for beloved ones, but his appeal for assistance was so full of pathos that intense sympathy was immediately aroused and every effort was made to find the missing body. The absolute failure of Mr. Lange to identify any of the bodies aroused hope in his heart that the lad may still be alive and cared for in some hospital.

New Year's day the black hearses and the w... began their slow way through the city's streets. There are not hearses enough to bury the dead; to carry the charred, distorted bodies from the sorrow-darkened homes to the waiting graves in the cemeteries.

Thirty-four teachers in the public schools are known to have lost their lives in the fire and the schools will be closed Monday in their memory.

Managers Arrested.

Will J. Davis and Harry J. Powers, proprietors and managers of the Iroquois theater, and George Williams, city building inspector, were placed under arrest on the criminal charge of manslaughter. Warrants for the three men, who have hitherto been unmolested by police and coroner investigations of the catastrophe, were issued Friday night by Justice George W. Underwood.

Theaters Closed.

Seventeen Chicago theaters were closed peremptorily by Mayor Harrison Friday night because they were not equipped with asbestos drop curtains. This action following on the heels of the Iroquois disaster, shuts one-half of the playhouses in Chicago, with a total seating capacity of more than 20,000 persons. Violations of the building ordinances received thus the only drastic punishment ever known to come from the city hall. The mayor was moved to issue the order by his disposition not to take additional responsibility for further calamities. Until they have provided asbestos or iron curtains for the protection of their patrons these theaters will remain closed: Academy of Music, Alhambra, Avenue, Bijou, Chicago Opera House, Clark Street museum, Columbus, Criterion, Feigenbaum's, Milwaukee Avenue Garrick, Glickman's, Howard, Sam T. Jack's, London Musee, Marlowe, New American and Olympic.

A Memorial Day.

Mayor Harrison in a proclamation names to-day as a day of mourning throughout Chicago for the dead in the Iroquois theater fire. The proclamation follows: "The mayor announces that the city hall will be closed all day Saturday on account of the calamity at the Iroquois theater. He respectfully requests all business houses to close as a mark of respect for the dead."

Ten minutes after the border ignited the acres of canvas scenery in the rear of the stage were ablaze. The asbestos fire curtain caught in a tangle of ropes and could not be lowered. An instant later the entire theater from foyer to stage was a sea of flame. Had the asbestos fire curtain acted properly the fire would have been shut off from the theater proper and the persons in the theater could have escaped with little difficulty.

Awful Scenes.

So fiercely the fire burned during the short time which hundreds of lives were sacrificed that the velvet cushions of the balcony seats were burned bare. The crowds fought so in their efforts to escape that they tore away the iron railings of the balconies, leaping upon the people below.

From 3:30 o'clock, when the alarm was sent in, to 7:30 o'clock, when the doors of the gutted theater were closed, the charred, torn and blistered bodies were carried from the building at the rate of four a minute. Many blankets filled with fragments of human bodies were taken from the building.

Like Rats in a Trap.

Most grewsome were the sights in the upper balcony of the burned theater, when the police and firemen began removing the bodies. There 150 persons, caught like rats in a trap, had died in fearful agony. Along the rail guarding the edge of the pit were stacked the bodies of the hapless victims, their limbs drawn and faces set. Indications in the highest balcony were that in the last few seconds of the struggle for life the agonized people had crushed forward, intent upon throwing themselves to the floor below. Their arms were interlocked and the muscles set so hard that much force was necessary to separate them. In the end of the gallery nearest the stage the fire had done its most awful work. There were found bodies charred beyond the possibility of recognition, some with shreds of clothing still clinging to them. A number of the victims' bodies had burned to the seats, so that the firemen were either forced to rend the bodies in removing them or use axes on the seats to which they were fastened.

Men Fell on Their [illegible]

Men and women cursed. A rush was made for the Randolph street exits. In their fear the crowds forgot the many side exits, and rushed for the doors at which they had entered the theater. Little boys and girls were thrown to one side by their stronger companions. The 12-year-old son of Mrs. F. A. Morgan, of 496 Webster avenue, was literally scalped by a man who grasped the boy by the hair and threw him to one side. With his hands the man tore the boy's hair out. The mother held to her son's arm. Alive, but injured, both were carried out.

Loss Heaviest in Balconies.

All but three persons on the main floor escaped with their lives. Of the 900 persons seated in the first and second balconies few if any escaped without serious injury. The majority of those escaping did so by jumping from the balconies onto the heads of the crowds surging from the main floor of the theater. The fight of the men and women to get through the balcony exits was their undoing. They jammed the doors so tight that none of them could get out.

Piled in the aisles of the balconies in a solid mass, four feet high, they were found. They had either been burned to death or suffocated. The few taken from the theater and resuscitated were on the bottom of the piles where fire and smoke could not reach them.

Work of Rescuers.

The straggling line of rescuers which followed the conquest of the flames became a steady stream as a strong wind from the front cleared the theater of smoke and the odor of burned flesh. Down the front stairs, the rescuers behind treading on those before them, went the line of workers, their blankets shielding the nakedness of the bodies from the gaze of the crowds in the street. Four stories above the street most spectacular means of rescue were adopted. From the fire escapes at the rear of the theater to those of the old Tremont house were laid three narrow planks. Across the little bridge thus formed were transported the bodies of 30 dead. Twenty injured were also taken across the chasm. Many of the rescuers on this bridge were stage hands who gave little heed to the drop of 75 feet which would follow a false step. While in transit across the chasm the bodies of the dead and injured were steadied by the use of a rope by the rescuers.

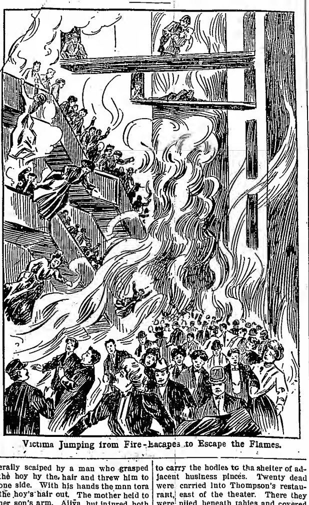
Removal of the Bodies.

Coroner Trieger and his two physicians, Joseph Springer and Otto Lewke, arrived at the fire early. The coroner took personal charge of the removal of the bodies, 150 policemen and 200 firemen working under his orders. In their first efforts to take out the dead, the rescuing parties had much trouble. Numbers of the dead were nearly nude, having been stripped of their clothing in the rush for safety. The heat of the fire and the water thrown in extinguishing it combined to make the bodies slimy and most difficult to handle. There was less difficulty after a thousand blankets had been brought from the store of Marshal Field & Co., half a block away. Firemen and spectators worked together in removing the last 200 bodies, which were taken from the building in less than an hour. [illegible] as the bodies [illegible] the street doctors [illegible] dead were ordered taken away, [illegible]ing hurried to the temporary hospitals in adjacent buildings.

Bodies Piled on Sidewalk.

When the dead became so numerous that the ambulances could not carry them away as fast as taken to the street it was the first thought of the rescuers to carry the bodies to the shelter of adjacent business places. Twenty dead were carried into Thompson's restaurant, east of the theater. There they were piled beneath tables and covered with tarpaulins and blankets from the fire wagons. The crush of bodies finally became so great that sheltering them was impossible. Wrapped in blankets, they were piled along the sidewalk for a hundred feet, four narrow lanes dividing the piles and affording passages for the firemen and police.

SCENE IN REAR OF THEATER.



Victims Jumping from Fire-Escapes to Escape the Flames.

TERRIBLE SCENES ARE ENACTED IN THE PLAYHOUSE OF DEATH

Rescuers Are Forced to Walk on Dead to Extricate Living---Exits Choked With Bodies of Women and Children.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—On the heels of the firemen came the police, intent on the work of rescue. Chief O'Neill and Assistant Chief Schuettler ordered captains from a dozen stations to bring their men, and then they rushed to the theater and led the police up the stairs to the landing outside the east entrance to the first balcony.

The firemen, rushing blindly up the stairs in the dense pall of smoke, had found their path suddenly blocked by a wall of dead eight or ten feet high. They discovered many persons alive and carried them to safety. Other firemen crawled over the mass of dead and dragged their hose into the theater to fight back the flames that seemed to be crawling nearer to turn the fatal landing into a funeral pyre.

Passages Strewn with Bodies.

Among the elevated passages leading from the foyer to the balcony were strewn scores of women and children, who, in the struggle inside the doors, had exhausted their strength and who, when the outside and comparative safety were reached, were unable to continue to the street and fell helpless upon the marble floor. Some were dead when the rescuers reached them and some still showed signs of life. These latter were hurried to the street and committed to the waiting arms of hundreds who had gathered about the entrance, ready to carry them to near-by stores and restaurants and to the police ambulances which soon began to arrive.

There are three doors leading to the main balcony from the front of the theater and most of the imprisoned spectators attempted to escape by way of the east one. This door is higher than either of the others and farther away from the stage, and it is thought that this accounts for the number that tried to use it. The fire approaching from the stage gradually drove them back to the east wall, where they perished in the frenzied jam.

Women Beaten Down by Men.

Comparatively more men than women gained positions anywhere near the door. According to one man who escaped, they climbed over the backs of the seats, beat down women and children and even walked over their fallen bodies. They tore children from their mothers and threw women who blocked their way out of the aisles on and beneath the seats.

As soon as the bodies which blocked the door were cleared away the chief and his assistants turned their attention to those who had not been so fortunate as to even get near the doors. Charred and stiff in death, women and children were found apparently in the very seats from which they had viewed the performance. One little lad of about 12 years was found caught between two seats not a half dozen feet from the center door. There was no one near him and he seemed to be one of the few who in avoiding the rush for the door above fell victims to the suffocating heat.

At Morgues and Hospitals.

Morgues and hospitals were the scenes of wild disorder and frantic grief for hours after the disaster. Kinsfolk and friends sought their loved ones, frantic with grief, threatening to break windows and overpower the police unless permitted to enter and search for the bodies of those they loved. Heavy police guards were necessary to keep the crowds in check at Rolston's and Jordan's morgues. At the same time the hospitals were filled in with injured. Many of them unconscious, many of them writhing in pain from their burns, the yet living victims were taken to the wards, where hastily collected extra forces of nurses and physicians did all they could to alleviate suffering. Many had breathed flame and were in the stupor that preceded death; many had been scorched from head to foot, and some died on the way to the hospitals or shortly after their arrivals.

Never have such scenes been witnessed in Chicago's institutions for the care of the dead or the suffering. The capacities of many were exhausted long before all had been taken care of.

Wounded Fill Hospitals.

Rolston's morgue was filled early, when 100 bodies were laid out in rows, and wagons carrying hundreds of others were turned away. And all the while, as the black wagons, express wagons, carriages, vans, carts, wagons for delivery of meat, groceries and merchandise of all sorts, arrived with their fearful burdens, the crowd surged around the doors in waves that the police could scarce withhold and hailed each new arrival with frantic manifestations of grief and horror. Those in front strove to get nearer and look at the faces of the dead as they were carried in and those in the rear surged forward. The whole human mass, swayed by a common impulse, moved in a tide that almost swept the policemen from their feet.

Greatest in Country's History.

The Iroquois theater was vastly more destructive to human life than any other playhouse fire in the history of this country. The fire next to it in point of lives lost occurred December 5, 1876, in Conway's Brooklyn theater, Brooklyn, N. Y. Here 295 of the audience perished in fierce flames. The day after Christmas in 1811, while the play, "The Bleeding Nun," was being performed in a theater at Richmond, Va., a fire started that burned 70 persons to death, among them the governor of the state, George W. Smith.

SEARCH FOR THE DEAD

Friends and Relatives of Victims Haunt Morgues and Hospitals.

MANAGERS OF THE IROQUOIS THEATER PLACED UNDER ARREST

City Officials Also Taken in Charge and Charged with Manslaughter —Many Other Theaters Are Closed by the Mayor.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The search of the rows of charred dead at the morgues by sorrowing friends and relatives continues. Over 400 of the 583 known dead now have been identified. Failing to find scores of the missing in these heaps of bodies, the search has been turned to the private hospitals and homes for more dead and dying. Coroner Traeger has asked all citizens to aid him in this quest. Grief-crazed friends and relatives of the missing join in this appeal.

Funerals of Victims.

The saddest reminders of the Iroquois catastrophe Friday were the numerous funerals which moved through the streets in all portions of the city. In the homes of hundreds of victims friends gathered to console the parents, brothers and sisters whose relatives had been lost.

Such a day of mourning Chicago has never witnessed, and sad scenes were enacted in the homes where funeral services were conducted over the children.

In some homes funeral services were held over the body of one member of a family while another was lying in some morgue still unidentified by the distracted relatives. Such was the case at the home of Herbert and Agnes Lange, [illegible] Barry avenue. Both [illegible] men.

Then came a long [illegible]

He was only one of hundreds who spent the day searching for beloved ones, but his appeal for assistance was so full of pathos that intense sympathy was immediately aroused and every effort was made to find the missing body. The absolute failure of Mr. Lange to identify any of the bodies aroused hope in his heart that the lad may still be alive and cared for in some hospital.

New Year's day the black hearses and the white began their slow way through the city's streets. There are not hearses enough to bury the dead; to carry the charred, distorted bodies from the sorrow-darkened homes to the waiting graves in the cemeteries.

Thirty-four teachers in the public schools are known to have lost their lives in the fire and the schools will be closed Monday in their memory.

Managers Arrested.

Will J. Davis and Harry J. Powers, proprietors and managers of the Iroquois theater, and George Williams, city building inspector, were placed under arrest on the criminal charge of manslaughter. Warrants for the three men, who have hitherto been unmolested by police and coroner investigations of the catastrophe, were issued Friday night by Justice George W. Underwood.

Theaters Closed.

Seventeen Chicago theaters were closed peremptorily by Mayor Harrison Friday night because they were not equipped with asbestos drop curtains. This action following on the heels of the Iroquois disaster, shuts one-half of the playhouses in Chicago, with a total seating capacity of more than 20,000 persons. Violations of the building ordinances received thus the only drastic punishment ever known to come from the city hall. The mayor was moved to issue the order by his disposition not to take additional responsibility for further calamities. Until they have provided asbestos or iron curtains for the protection of their patrons these theaters will remain closed: Academy of Music, Alhambra, Avenue, Bijou, Chicago Opera House, Clark Street museum, Columbus, Criterion, Feigenbaum's, Milwaukee Avenue Garrick, Glickman's, Howard, Sam T. Jack's, London Musee, Marlowe, New American and Olympic.

A Memorial Day.

Mayor Harrison in a proclamation names to-day as a day of mourning throughout Chicago for the dead in the Iroquois theater fire. The proclamation follows: "The mayor announces that the city hall will be closed all day Saturday on account of the calamity at the Iroquois theater. He respectfully requests all business houses to close as a mark of respect for the dead."

The governorship race is admited by some of our exchanges to have narrowed down to three candidates. Better say two and have a good race.

There is no doubt, Russia and Japan will start a war that may involve some of the other nations of Europe, but it is hoped that Uncle Sam will not have to fire anything but meat and flour at them.

There are some of the editors, in the northern part of the state, that have placed themselves in position, this early in the gubernatoal campaign, that they may have to eat old crow for their 4th of July dinner.

As soon as Eddy makes a foward movement, toward the nomination for governor, his opponents commence to complain that he is homely. They must be of the opinion that he is looking for a wife but he is not, as he is a married man, but he wants to be the next governor of Minnesota.

The Duluth News Tribune, has cartoon of Judge Collins saw wood at the gubernatorl wo[illegible]ile in his supreme court robe, that would create the impression that the robe was in danger of being soiled, but it would be pretty hard to con[illegible] the friends of Columbia county that it could be soiled.

Now that Judge Collins has resigned from the supreme court bench, and is to step down to mix up with the common politi[illegible] his friends. We are of the opinion that he will be in about the same position in Polk county as the man that interferes to make peace in a family row.

The closeing of Chicago opera houses and theaters, by order of mayor Harrison, after the loss of six hundred lives in the burning of the Iroquois theater last week, looks a goodeal like locking the stable door after the horse is stolen. Chicago will see to it that all the city ordinance's regarding fire escapes and protection are strictly enforced, for about two years, and thats all, until they get a repetition of the disaster of last week.

Mr William Henry Eustis, of Minneapolis, has gone to Porto Reco for the winter, but left word that he was a sort of receptive candidate for governor, says the Northfield News.

By the way is this the same Eustis, who ran against John Lind for governor, and had charge of the free soup houses provided for the laboring men of Minneapolis, during the last administration of Grover Cleveland, when they made the soup frome the shade of a chicken?

As this is leep-year we would respectfully call old maids attention to the fact, that Gully and vicinity, would be a fruitful field to commence operations in, as we have a large number of bachelors tht have good homes "that are leading a single life, that never have had the courage to ask for a wife". Just put your hand on their shoulder and say, "could you, would you, ah-my dear be mine". If he don't brake away and run for the woods your case is won, and you have got a good husband. If he won't listen to you the first time; try again; [illegible] is lots of time before the [illegible] 1905

DETECTIVE INSTINCT.

Civilians Frequently Are Better Sleuths Than Professionals.

"The detective instinct is inborn in some people," observed an old detective, "and it is a rather curious thing when you think about it. I have known good detectives, naturally so, who were never connected in any manner with the service. They possess all the mental qualities of a sleuth—quickness to grasp a situation, keen perception, rapidity of thought, strongly developed power of deduction and extreme nervous activity. While it is true all great detectives have acquired distinction through hard work and unflagging application, it is also true that many men have the detective impulse so firmly welded into their natures that it will crop out in spite of themselves.

"And I may say in passing it is useful to them in many ways, for not only operatives, but business men of every description, frequently need those peculiar faculties which go to make up a criminal chaser. I once knew a man who had the instinct so strongly developed that he thought of nothing else than the unraveling of mysteries and chasing clews. He found something of interest in the slightest case of theft and would amuse himself by working it out. It became a mania with him, and he was a source of much amusement to the officers. There was never a murder day or night that he was not among the first on the scene, and his peculiar talents frequently enabled him to lend valuable assistance to the regular force."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Rufus Choate Was Beaten.

As one of the very few occasions when the wit of Rufus Choate was foiled an incident is recalled when that brilliant lawyer was examining one Dick Barton, chief mate of the ship Challenge. Choate had cross examined him for over an hour, hurling questions with the speed of a rapid fire gun.

"Was there a moon that night?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you see it?"

"No, sir."

"Then how did you know there was a moon?"

"The 'Nautical Almanac' said so, and I'll believe that sooner than any lawyer in the world."

"Be civil, sir. And now tell me in what latitude and longitude you crossed the equator."

"Ah, you are joking."

"No, sir. I am in earnest, and I desire an answer."

"That's more than I can give."

"Indeed. You a chief mate and unable to answer so simple a question!"

"Yes, the simplest question I ever was asked. I thought even a fool of a lawyer knew there's no latitude at the equator."—Success.

LONDON IN 1700

When Traitors' Heads Adorned London Bridge and Temple Bar.

London [illegible] comparatively small city of about 600,000 inhabitants, the [illegible] and ill kept roads to which had been but [illegible] unimproved since Tudor times. [illegible] cle of many of the trees on the Southwark road bending under their burden of hanged men had indeed been slightly modified, but none the less the decomposing heads of "traitors" still filled the atmosphere about London bridge and Temple Bar with myriads of baneful microbes.

Our immediate forbears were evidently not overparticular about sights and smells. They were accustomed to see men sitting in the pillory pelted with rotten eggs and possibly included among their immediate circle not a few who had been deprived of their noses and ears for expressing too freely their opinions, political and religious.

The drains were in an appalling condition. The innumerable churchyards were so full of coffins that they often projected through the turf. Bear and bull baiting, dog fights and boxing matches were attended even by royalty as late as 1820, and five years later all the "dandies" in London were paying high prices to stand in the carts round Tyburn to behold twenty-two of their fellow creatures hanged for misdemeanors which in our time would be punished with a few days' imprisonment.—Saturday Review.

Convenient Fetters.

Leo Deutsch, a Russian political exile who was permitted to return to his home, tells in his book, "Sixteen Years in Siberia," tales not only of suffering, but of lenient treatment by his jailers. In Siberian prisons often the harshness of the discipline was considerably relaxed. On one occasion, to the vast amusement of the prison authorities, Deutsch appeared before the governor with his fetters tied up with a piece of string, and it appeared he had only assumed them for the moment. But the complaisant governor was afraid of a visit from high quarters. "Then if an inspection is made you will be wearing your fetters," he asked, laughing. "Of course," replied Deutsch. "You see, I've come to you in full dress," pointing to his tied up chains. On another occasion Deutsch's bag was stolen. It contained, among other articles of a convict's attire, the indispensable fetters, and he had to apply for a new pair. "Take care you don't lose these!" said the officer as Deutsch packed them among his luggage.

How to Keep Milk Sweet.

A tiny pinch of carbonate of soda or salt put into the milk as soon as it arrives will help to prevent it from turning sour, and if it seems inclined to turn and is slowly heated to nearly boiling point and a pinch of carbonate of soda then stirred in the sourness will disappear. Some people also add a tiny pinch of sugar.

BETTER THAN ORATORY.

The Secret of One Class of Lawyers' [illegible]

[illegible] the most common defects of a recently admitted lawyer is a striving for oratorical display. A successful older practitioner endeavors, on the other hand, to give the jury a heart to heart talk. The ways of an eagle in the air, of a serpent upon a rock, of a ship in the midst of the sea and of a man with a maid are as A B C compared with the methods usually pursued by the twelve good men and true. It seems a trifle odd at first that a dozen individuals who separately are shrewd, sharp business men should collectively be guilty of the most absurd performances, but the fact must be reckoned on nevertheless.

A story is told of two farmers who were returning home, one of them from jury duty in a neighboring town. "Lawyer Smith is a great orator," said one—"a perfect Daniel Webster. My, how I hated to decide against him in the three cases he tried!"

"How about Lawyer Jones, who was on the other side?"

"Oh, shucks! Why of course he wins all his cases. I heard every one of 'em, and they were the simplest things. He just explained things to the jury. He didn't have to do any hard talking at all. You couldn't help but agree with him."—Success.

Galileo's Caustic Humor.

In a biography of Galileo some stories are told of the caustic humor of that bold investigator. Lotario Sarsi, a writer on science, having said that the Babylonians used to cook eggs by whirling them in a sling, Galileo replied: "The cause of such an effect is very remote from that to which it is attributed, and to find the true cause I shall reason thus: If an effect does not follow with us which followed with others at another time it is because in our experiments something is wanting which was the cause of the former success, and if only one thing is wanting to us that one thing is the true cause. Now we have eggs and slings and strong men to whirl them, and yet they will not become cooked; nay, if they were hot at first they more quickly become cold, and since nothing is wanting to us but to be Babylonians it follows that being Babylonians is the true cause why the eggs became cooked and not to the friction of the air, which is what I wish to prove."

Serpent Worship in India.

Serpent worship, once very widely diffused, survives in India. Sometimes when Hindoos find a cobra in some crevice in the wall of their house it will often be reverenced, fed and propitiated, and if fear or the death of some one bitten by it induces them to remove it they will handle it tenderly and let it loose in some field. When Hindoos are bitten, they have far more confidence in their magic spell or "muntra" than in any medicine, even if they do not scruple to make use of medical aid.

Speaking and Stopping.

The knowledge of when to sit down is invaluable to public speakers and to their audiences. Perhaps the best plan is to secure a candid friend who will pull you down by your coattails. A man "on his legs" is one with whom time gallops; he has spoken for half an hour, and to him it seems but five minutes. The excitement of the brain suggests new and ever new ideals, and the extemporary talker in the pulpit or after a public dinner flounders in pursuit of these will-o'-the-wisps through swamps and thickets of bad grammar haunted by the anacolouthon and other fearful wild fowl. In the pulpit there is no man to pull the preacher down, and many are his "two words more, my brethren." After public dinners a bored audience begins to talk and laugh, but these symptoms of disapproval are not marked by the self absorbed public speaker. In short, the knowledge of when to sit down is rare and hard to acquire.—Longman's.

Naval Gun Crews.

Each gun crew of a naval vessel consists of seven men besides the captain of the turret, who has general charge. There are two guns in each turret, so that when in action there are in a turret fifteen men. At each gun there are a pointer, a trainer, a sight setter, a rammer man, a hoist man, a breech block man and a loader. Each has his station, and the seven men practically become part of the gun, working together like a machine.

"I'm glad you're satisfied with something," she snapped.

"Oh, I'm not. I merely meant to inform you that it is not ideal."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Why She Liked Him.

"Why do you like Harry?" asked one fair maid of another. "He kisses you most awkwardly, I've noticed."

"That's just why I like him," was the quick retort. "If he went about it in a graceful manner I would know he had been practicing before he met me."

Shorthand 2,000 Years Ago.

It is no doubt a surprise to most to learn that shorthand was known and practiced 2,000 years ago. Manilius, a contemporary of Cæsar and Cicero, Virgil and Horace, asserts that some system of reporting very similar to our shorthand was in vogue in his days. Writing these words under the influence of Virgo and Mercury, he says they are—

In shorthand skilled, where little marks comprise Whole words, a sentence in a single letter lies,
And while the willing hand its aid affords,
Prevents the tongue to fix the falling words.

It is certainly a novel conception that Cicero's grand orations were committed to paper with as much skill as our modern stenographers boast.

A Story of Rossini.

In "Gossip From Paris During the Second Empire" A. B. N. Peat, the author, tells a story of Rossini, who was much dogged by the lion hunters: "Once a Russian lady outstripped the limits [illegible] of Rossini's patience and, having watched his daily promenade during several days, sent a message to his house expressive of her desire to be received by him. The reply to this strange communication was: 'I do nothing for nothing. If the lady brings me a fine bunch of asparagus she will be welcome, and she can take a view of me at her leisure.' Then, pointing to his waist, which had attained a somewhat aldermanic rotundity, he added, 'The lady may even walk round me if she pleases, but I must have my asparagus.'"

Colchester's Oyster Feast.

Famous indeed is the Colchester oyster feast, and to be invited is considered the highest compliment the town can confer not only from the importance of the function, but because at that meal is an unlimited supply of the finest obtainable natives, of which some sacks are consumed. Even from the times of the Romans these oysters have been celebrated, says the London Chronicle. Exclusive rights to the oyster fisheries were granted to the town under a charter of Richard I., and in the reign of Elizabeth horse loads of oysters were accepted as gifts by the courtiers of the time. Massinger's Justice Greedy commences his day with "a barrel of Colchester oysters," a statement that shows how altered are the customs of today.

Who Nero Was.

In the days when Sir Charles Gavan Duffy was a leading figure in Victorian politics there sat in the Melbourne parliament a wealthy but not well informed butcher. The chief secretary of the day was deprecating the attitude of the leader of the opposition, whose conduct was, he declared, worse than Nero's.

"Who was Nero?" interjected the knight of the cleaver, with equal [illegible] and sincerity.

"Who was Nero?" replied the [illegible] ed chief secretary. "The honorable gentleman ought to know. Nero was a celebrated Roman butcher."—London M. A. P.

Nerve Fag.

If You Waste Your Nerve Energy, After Awhile You Will Suffer For It.

You can waste nerve force by excess, over-work, worry, anxiety, etc.

You can weaken yourself by not eating proper food or securing sufficient rest to renew the nerve energy you use up.

The proper treatment, in addition to good phosphatic food, such as whole meal bread, prepared cereals, etc., is Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

This is as truly a brain and nerve food as any food you could eat, and besides, furnishes strength and tone of its own, which goes to the weakened nerve system, and sets it to rights.

Snake Killing Cats of Cairo.

A native woman living in old Cairo was entering her house when, to her great terror, she perceived a snake of considerable dimensions, which had taken possession of the hearth during the woman's absence. The woman fled, leaving the door open. Her cat then appeared on the scene, entered, saw the cobra, put up its back and tail, spat and otherwise manifested its hostility and in turn went out. A few minutes afterward it returned in company with a second cat. After a similar exhibition both went out and returned with a third, and similarly went away, returning finally with a fourth. Considering that sufficient force had been recruited to kill the snake, the four at once fell on the reptile, and after a short but fierce struggle the latter was literally torn to pieces.—Egyptian Gazette.

Embarrassing to the Guest.

A tourist in the Welsh mountains who had been caught in a storm and who after much difficulty had succeeded in making his way to a solitary cottage congratulated himself on his good fortune when he was asked to stay for the night. After donning a suit of his host's clothes, so that his own might be dried, he proceeded downstairs and on his way met the mistress with a big Bible in her hand. In the failing light she mistook the stranger for her husband and gave him a thump on the head with it, remarking: "That's for asking the man to stay all night."

A Woman's Wish.

Mrs. Housekeep—My husband has been complaining a good deal of late because his dinner has not been served on time.

Mrs. Chubb—Gracious! I wish mine would.

Mrs. Housekeep—You do?

Mrs. Chubb—Yes; because he'd have to come home earlier to do it.—Philadelphia Press.

Lack of Judgment.

"Was you really plannin' to run away with the hired girl?" asked the old farmer disgustedly.

"That's what I was thinkin' of doin'," admitted his son.

"Ain't you got any sense at all?" demanded the old man. "Don't you know that hired girls is harder to get than daughters-in-law?"—Chicago Post.

India's Married Children.

In India there are 100,000 boys and 627,000 girls under the age of 14 who are legally married, while 8,600 boys and 24,000 girls who have not attained the age of four are under marriage bonds, as arranged by their parents.

Garrick's Witty Rebuke.

Sterne was said to treat his wife badly. Prosing to Garrick one day about conjugal love and that sort of thing, he remarked that a man who behaved unkindly to his wife deserved to have his house burned over his head. "If you think so," said Garrick, "I hope your house is insured."

Disgusted the Sailor.

Here is a campaign story: "A sailor once left his ship and came upon the land. He wandered around and finally reached a cemetery. He came across a tombstone on which was printed, 'I am not dead, but sleeping.' The sailor read the words several times, and then said: 'Well, if I were dead I'd own up to it!'"

Minister Resembles Fitzsimmons.

Rev. Richard Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal church in Washington, in general appearance, looks like an exact duplicate of "Bob" Fitzsimmons, the prize fighter. The illusion disappears as soon as the reverend gentleman takes off his hat, for his head is not at all arranged on the coconut plan adopted by nature in modeling the lanky pugilist.

Ancestors of Rousseau.

Prof. Eugene Ritter of Geneva has written a book on two female ancestors of Rousseau, Mme. Bourgeois and Mme. Durant. Mme. Bourgeois was so quarrelsome and eccentric that, when nearly 60 years old, she was brought before the courts charged with being a witch, tortured and banished from Geneva. Mme. Durant maltreated her chambermaid, who thereupon committed suicide by jumping into the Rhone.

Sermon Causes Trouble.

Leaning over to her neighbor in a Dublin church, one Sunday recently, a woman whispered: "There's a tip for you," alluding to the preacher's remarks on proselytism. The other woman gave an answering glare and struck the speaker across the face. In an instant the church was in an uproar, and in a rush to the doors several persons were knocked down.

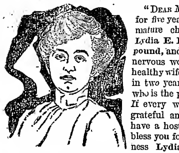
It is natural for a cannibal to love his fellow man.—Chicago Daily News.

Many women are denied the happiness of children through derangement of the generative organs. Mrs. Beyer advises women to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with stomach complaint for years. I got so bad that I could not carry my children but five months, then would have a miscarriage. The last time I became pregnant, my husband got me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the first bottle I was relieved of the sickness of stomach, and began to feel better in every way. I continued its use and was enabled to carry my baby to maturity. I now have a nice baby girl, and can work better than I ever could before. I am like a new woman."—MRS. FRANK BEYER, 22 S. Second St., Meriden, Conn.

Another case which proves that no other medicine in the world accomplishes the same results as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was married for five years and gave birth to two premature children. After that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it changed me from a weak, nervous woman to a strong, happy and healthy wife within seven months. Within two years a lovely little girl was born, who is the pride and joy of my household. If every woman who is cured feels as grateful and happy as I do, you must have a host of friends, for every day I bless you for the light, health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought to my home. Sincerely yours, MRS. MAE P. WHARRY, Flat 31, The Norman, Milwaukee, Wis."

MINIMIZING THE PAIN.

He Wanted the Best Watch, But Didn't Like to Pay the Price All at One Time.

"What's that watch worth?" asked Mr. Kloce, pointing to one in the show-case. "Ten dollars," replied the jeweler. "I'll take it," said the customer, and after paying for it he went out, relates Youth's Companion.

The next day he came round again.

"This watch doesn't exactly suit me," he said. "What's that one worth?" pointing to another.

"Fifteen dollars."

"I'll take that instead of this one, if you don't mind."

"Certainly."

A day or two later he came again.

"How good a watch have you got for $25?" he inquired.

"Well, $25 will get a pretty good timepiece," said the jeweler, handing one out. "Here's one with a gold-filled case, and full jeweled. The movement is warranted."

"I'll take it."

He paid the difference, took the watch and went away.

After the lapse of a few days he made his appearance once more.

"Have you got a first-class watch with a solid gold case that you can sell for $50?" he said.

"Yes. Here it is."

"Well, I'll take it," said Mr. Kloce. "Here's the other watch and $25. That's the one I really wanted at first, but I hated to pay out all that money at once."

Good News from Minnesota.

Lakefield, Minn., Jan. 4.—Mr. William F. Gentry of this place is one of the best-known and most-highly respected men in Jackson County. For 45 years he has suffered with Kidney Trouble and now at 77 years of age he has found a complete cure and is well.

His cure is remarkable because of the length of time he had been suffering. Cases of 40 years' standing might be considered incurable, but the remedy that cured Mr. Gentry seems to know no limit to its curative power. Mr. Gentry says:

"I have suffered with misery in my back for about 45 years and had all the troublesome symptoms of Kidney and Urinary disease. I tried various kinds of remedies, but all to no effect until I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Now I have no pain in my back and feel quite well in every way.

"I am 77 years of age and I feel better than I have for the last 40 years. I attribute it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Safe.

With the cares of business behind him, and thoughts of wife and baby in his suburban home occupying his mind to the exclusion of everything else, Hilltop hurried down Chambers street to the ferry. MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Chance for the Militia.

Every officer and enlisted man in the Minnesota National guard, every civilian who has seen service in the regular, volunteer or militia forces, and every private military school graduate in the state, soon will be given an opportunity to appear before a board of officers at Fort Snelling and be examined as to his fitness for the position of a commissional officer in the volunteer forces of the United States.

Every applicant for examination will be permitted to name the rank for which he thinks he is fitted, from the grade of second lieutenant to that of colonel, and the questions propounded to him will be in accordance with the requirements of the rank to which he aspires. This means that a private in any national guard regiment, if he so elects, may stand the examination for colonel, and if he passes it he will have a good chance of going to the front in command of a regiment when Uncle Sam needs troops.

Valuable Land.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson, received from the United States general land office a second list of 6,296 acres of swampy lands in the Chippewa Indian reservation which have been awarded to Minnesota under a recent decision of the secretary of the interior. An installment of 11,178 acres was received a few days ago, making a total of 17,484 acres.

The lands in this second list were included among those from which timber was to be sold Dec. 28 at Cass Lake for the benefit of the Indians, under the Morris law, passed June 27, 1902. These lands have been withdrawn from sale, as were the lands in the first list, the timber on which was scheduled to be sold Dec. 9.

Inside City Limits.

Two full grown gray wolves killed within the city limits, of Duluth, is the report made at City Clerk Cheadle's office by Captain Joseph W. Mann of the steamer Mary Mann, a resident of West Duluth.

The animals were killed with strychnine some distance from the city proper in the vicinity of Spirit Lake. Because the wolves were caught in the city limits Mr. Mann was obliged to procure a certificate from the city clerk in order to receive his voucher from the county auditor. He will receive $25 for the scalp of the female and $15 for the male.

The day's work will net him about $45 in bounties on the wolves and a red fox killed at the same time.

Heir to Fortune.

From cookshop to palace.

This is the revolution in the fate of W. H. Turner of St. Paul, which the wheel of fortune has brought him. Until a few days ago he worked and toiled day after day in front of a fiery cook stove at $20 a month. Now he is in Winona where $60,000 awaits him. The cause—a rich uncle, never heard of until after his death.

Recently a St. Paul attorney called his place of work, 584 Wabasha street, to notify him of the inheritance awaiting him. Turner is now in Winona to claim his estate, but says that he will return to fulfill his contract with his employers.

Robert Mannheimer.

Robert Mannheimer, president of Mannheimer Bros. company, St. Paul, died at his home, 215 Nelson avenue, in that city. Mr. Mannheimer had been ill for more than a year, and during that time it was only at intervals that he was able to be out, while during the last four months he was confined to the house. Altho the end was not unexpected, it came as a severe shock to his relatives and friends when he sank to sleep and passed peacefully away.

Mr. Mannheimer was born in Bavaria sixty-four years ago last month and came to America when he was a boy.

Date Named.

Wednesday, Feb. 10, 1904, was fixed by Gov. Van Sant as the day upon which Charles and Henry Nelson, the two Owatonna boys, must pay the penalty of death upon the gallows for the murder of H. H. Krier, proprietor of a saloon and bowling alley at Owatonna on the night of April 13, 1903.

Judge Collins Resigns.

Judge L. W. Collins has tendered his resignation as a justice of the supreme court, to take effect March 31.

Governor Van Sant accepted it, and announced that he would appoint Wallace B. Douglas, attorney general, to the vacant place. W. J. Donahower, assistant attorney general, will succeed Mr. Douglas, and will become attorney general on April 1.

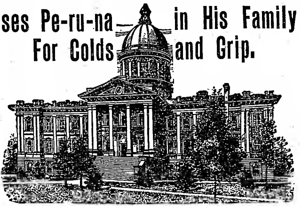
GOVERNOR OF OREGON
Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family For Colds and Grip.



CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From The Governor of Oregon.

Peruna is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Peruna as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every State in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Peruna is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Peruna is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Peruna not only cures catarrh, but prevents it. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Peruna. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Peruna medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Peruna for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Peruna to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Peruna in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled, "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

SUDDENLY RICH.

Several Drinks of Whisky Raised the Man from Poverty to Affluence.

Representative Bartlett, of Georgia, was in one of the small towns in his district campaigning last fall, says the New York World, and heard a conversation between one of his friends who was about to move to Dallas county, Tex., and a native:

"Hear you all going to Texas," said the native.

"Yes; going to Dallas county."

"Well, I wish you'd look up my brother down there and tell him I'm doing mighty poorly. The interest is coming due and I wish he would send me some money."

The native then went and had a couple of drinks of local whisky. Shortly afterward he met the man who was going to Texas.

"I hear you-all are going to Texas?"

"Yes."

"Well, if you-all run across my brother down there tell him I am fine and that everything is going along all right."

The man who was going to Texas promised and the native dropped into the saloon and had some more drinks. When he came out he again hailed the man who was going to Texas and said:

"Say, if you see my brother down there just tell him to send to me if he needs any money."

The Oat Wonder.

The Editor must tell its readers of this marvel. It originated with the largest farm seed growers in the world, the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis. It has stiff straw, stands up like a stone wall, is white, heavy, and has long ears, filled to the tip with fat, plump kernels. It is a great stooler, 80 stocks from one kernel.

IF YOU WILL SEND THIS NOTICE AND 10c IN STAMPS

to above address, you will get a sample of this Oat Wonder, which yielded in 1903, in 40 States from 250 to 310 bu. per acre, together with other farm seed samples and their big catalog. [K. L.]

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Meets to Consider Reciprocity for Cuba and Other Affairs.

Congress reconvened on the 4th after the holiday recess. The senate devoted the session to Panama and President Roosevelt's special message on Panama affairs was read. The nomination of William H. Taft, of Ohio, to be secretary of war, and Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, to be civil governor of the Philippine islands, were received. In the house no business was transacted. A report was received from the joint army and navy board setting forth the need of fortifications in the Philippines.

Senator Lodge practically monopolized the senate session on the 5th in a speech advocating the Panama treaty. In the house a resolution was passed extending sympathy to the citizens of Chicago and elsewhere in their sad bereavement because of the theater disaster. The president's message relative to the Panama canal was read.

Alleged irregularities in the postoffice department constituted the only theme in the United States senate on the 6th. In the house Mr. Warner (Ill.) introduced a bill providing for a judicial code for the United States.

Senator Morgan occupied the time in the United States senate on the 7th and criticised the president and the attitude of this government in connection with the Panama republic. The house was in session only 12 minutes.

DOMESTIC.

Alfred A. Knapp, under sentence of death for wife murder at Hamilton, O., and self-confessed murderer of five persons, has been granted a new trial.

RUTH CLEVELAND DIES.

The Eldest Daughter of the Former President Passes Away Unexpectedly.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 8.—Ruth Cleveland, the eldest child of ex-President Cleveland, died at the Cleveland home here Thursday very unexpectedly, the immediate cause of death being a weakening of the heart action during a mild attack of diphtheria. Dr. Wick[illegible], the attending physician, said that [illegible] Cleveland had been ill with [illegible] diphtheria for four days, and that the heart affection was anticipated. She was 15 years old.

The Cleveland household is grief-stricken over the death of the eldest daughter, and many messages of condolence are being received. The private school which Ruth attended has been closed for the rest of the week out of respect.

Ruth Cleveland was born on October 3, 1891, in her father's residence at 819 Madison avenue, New York, after Mr. Cleveland had served his first term as president. She was named after Mrs. Cleveland's grandmother and as "Baby Ruth" was a great favorite in Washington society during her father's second term in the white house. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland have four remaining children, Esther, who was born in the white house September 9, 1893; Marion, born at Gray Gables, Buzzard's Bay, July 7, 1895; Richard Folsom Cleveland, born here October 28, 1897, and Francis Grover Cleveland, born at Gray Gables, Buzzard's Bay, July 18, 1903.

STATEHOUSE RUINED.

One Wing of Iowa's Handsome Capitol Building Ruined by Fire, with Loss of $250,000.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 5.—Fire gutted the northwest wing of the state capitol Monday with an approximate loss of $250,000. The chamber of the house of representatives is a charred mass of ruined debris and cannot be fixed up in time for the approaching session of the legislature. The fire gained great headway before it was checked, starting about ten o'clock, and at noon it was thought the entire building was doomed, and Gov. Cummins ordered the contents of all the offices removed. However, it was finally confined to the wing of the capitol in which it originated and by six o'clock was practically extinguished.

The origin of the fire is a mystery and Gov. Cummins will order an immediate investigation. The supposition that it started either from a lighted candle carelessly left burning or from an electric light wire.

The building was supposed to have been fireproof, but the use of several false ceilings in the house furnished excellent material for the flames. Gov. Cummins states that the house chamber cannot possibly be repaired this winter.

The Public Debt.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business December 31, 1903, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $914,150,880, a decrease for the month of $11,618,530.

Accidentally Killed.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Carl Gordon, a brother-in-law of Daniel R. Hanna, of Cleveland, O., accidentally shot and killed himself here Wednesday night.

NEW MOVE FOR PEACE.

Japan Has Determined to Continue Her Negotiations with the Russian Government.

Tokio, Jan. 9.—The Japanese government has practically determined to continue negotiations. It is dissatisfied with Russia's terms, but does not feel warranted in issuing an ultimatum or breaking off negotiations, and will make another effort to secure their modification before resorting to force. It is anticipated that the discussion will continue a few weeks, during which interim a breach of the peace is very improbable.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 9.—Mr. Kurino, the Japanese minister, authorizes the statement that the Japanese government still is doing everything in its power in the interests of peace, and that all reports about the sending of troops to Corea are without foundation. Minister Kurino said he thought that the negotiations had made some progress.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—The Tageblatt's Paris correspondent learns that the French government has been informed that Russia's answer to Japan makes far-reaching concessions respecting Corea and that these concessions are equivalent to permitting the occupation of Corea by Japan on lines somewhat similar to the position of Great Britain in Egypt, but that Russia firmly rejects any right of Japan to mingle in affairs in Manchuria.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The far eastern situation was discussed at the cabinet meeting Friday, special consideration being given to the movement of the Asiatic squadron, which it is desired shall be so shaped as to emphasize the absolute neutrality of this country in the event of hostilities between Russia and Japan. After the meeting it was announced that orders would be cabled Rear Admiral Evans upon his arrival at Guam Saturday to proceed thence to Subig bay, it being desired that the American navy shall observe "good sea manners" by not going to Japanese or Russian waters just now.

Representative Slayden (dem., Tex.) introduced a resolution in the house Friday requesting the president to tender the good offices of mediation of the United States to Russia and Japan.

Paris, Jan. 7.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Paris edition of the New York Herald cables as follows: There is almost no hope of a peaceful solution and the public is expecting news of a battle resulting from the landing of Japanese troops in Corea. A battalion has been sent from Vladivostock to prevent the Japanese landing.

London, Jan. 8.—The Daily Mail's Yokohama correspondent says that Russia's reply to Japan practically removes all hope of a peaceful settlement..

Peking, Jan. 8.—Gen. Yuan Shai Hai, commander in chief of the Chinese army and navy, sent his foreign adviser, Charles Denby, Jr., to Peking to investigate the report as to the probability of war. Mr. Denby has reported that according to the best opinions obtainable, based on diplomatic information, war cannot be averted.

Measles Among Indians.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 9.—A special dispatch from Tulsa, I. T., states that an epidemic of measles is raging north and east of that place among the Shawnee Indians, and that many deaths have resulted. Three deaths occurred in one family. These people are the small remnant of a once powerful tribe, and were almost annihilated by this malady 17 years ago.

ROUND ABOUT THE STATE.

Minneapolis labor unions are responding to the appeal of the striking Colorado miners for funds.

A new population mark was reached at the prison when the daily population report showed 626 inmates.

The State Bank of New Prague, capital $37,000, was authorized to begin business by the Public Examiner.

C. C. King, 83, St. Paul, prominent member of the Territorial Pioneers, died at his home after a lingering illness.

Three fires in a day is the record of 1903 in Minneapolis. There were 1,096 alarms, involving a total loss of $450,152.58.

John Enquist had his neck broken in a runaway at Kennedy and died almost instantly. He leaves a wife and five children.

Fire in the St. Paul Show Case company building resulted in a loss of $20,000. The $14,000 stock was entirely destroyed.

Halver S. Hegg, a farmer of the town of Winger, was killed at McIntosh. A hay fork fell upon his head, crushing his skull.

E. A. Tupper of Minneapolis was appointed a member of the state pharmacy board to succeed Dr. G. H. Goodrich of Anoka.

Mary Belanger has begun suit against the Duluth & Iron Range road to recover damages of $5,000 for the death of her husband.

A building owned by Otto Kankle and occupied by Conrad Fuglseth at Fertile as a bowling alley took fire and was entirely consumed.

The high school building at Gaylord was destroyed by fire. The loss is $10,000; insurance, $5,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Fire at Crookston destroyed the butcher shop of O. Oberson and the postoffice building which adjoined. The loss was $1,500 with small insurance.

Thieves looted the lodging house owned by Mrs. Guy Raymond of Minneapolis, and carried off $7,000 worth of certified checks in addition to a large amount of clothing.

The big firm of Johnsrud Brothers, hardware and machinery dealers of Fertile, filed a petition in bankruptcy, placing their firm assets at $5,728 and their liabilities at $17,385.88.

In the district court at Brainerd George Krentz and Bert O'Brien were convicted of having chickens in their possession out of season and the court fined them $10 each and costs.

Gen. George L. Becker, a pioneer lawyer of the state, and prominent in public life of the early days, died at his residence in St. Paul after an illness of ten days from pneumonia.

During the year 1903, 5,248 persons faced the judge in police court at Minneapolis on some charge or other. Last year 5,294 persons answered the call of their names in police court.

John Chilstrom of Greenbush and John Herreum of Herreum township, Roseau county, who had been to Warroad to celebrate, died within three hours after reaching home. Their symptoms point toward poisoning with wood alcohol.

Officials of the state labor bureau state that a law requiring all hotels in cities of more than 5,000 inhabitants to have ropes in every room so that the guests can reach the ground safely in case of fire, is a dead letter.

The appropriation of $35,000 made by the legislatures of 1902 and 1903 for the purpose of carrying on the suit against the Northern Securities company is nearly expended. A trifle more than $5,000 remains, and it is said that there are several claims for salaries and expenses yet to be made.

Russia does not care to strike the first blow in a war with the Japs, but is useing her best endevors to goad Japan up to the fighting point.

We indignantly resent the imputation that the mention of a prominent Chicago merchant as Democratic candidate for president is merely for advertiseing on his part; yet he will get a choice lot of the very best, top colum, next to pure reading, even if he does not get the nomination, says Ralph W. Wheelock, in The Minneapolis Tribune.

Why not give the merchant as good an opprotunity to get free advertising as the lawyers, as he may want to visit Europe in a fiew years and it will be niee for him to say, that he was the candidate of the Democratic party for president of the United States.

Ingenious Swindle In Curios.

The craze for antiques and curios is responsible for some ingenious swindles, but it is doubtful if many could surpass that which victimized an American woman traveling abroad who while in Holland purchased some alleged Dutch pottery which proved on examination to be common granite ware made in America in odd shapes and decorated in Dutch fashion to be sold in Holland as antique cooking utensils.

American enterprise is frequently encountered in various ways in Europe, as, for instance, the experience of an American gentleman in London who bought a pair of rubber overshoes in a London shoe shop which were unusually satisfactory. On examining them preparatory to buying another pair he made the discovery that they were manufactured in Providence, R. I., by an American firm, although they [illegible] sold as English rubbers or "gums."

The fact is well known that there is [illegible] in the manufacture of so called Egyptian scarabs in America which are sent to Egypt to be sold to unsuspecting tourists as genuine antiques.—Boston Transcript.

Mistletoe and Holly.

Hanging rooms with holly wreaths and bunches of mistletoe is a [illegible] custom which can be traced to the days of the Roman saturnalia and even early Persian customs. Our own custom of decorating our rooms at Christmas comes more immediately from ancient Germany, where evergreens were hung in honor of the midwinter festival.

The Druids used to cut the mistletoe from their sacred oaks with elaborate ceremony. A golden knife was used to sever the parasite from the tree. During the ceremony two white bulls were sacrificed, and music and processional formed part of the rite. The groves of Mona, once the favorite retreat of the British Druids, were cut down by the all conquering Romans and have passed from the popular memory, but the mistletoe, which the old Druids called "all healing," is still an object of veneration. In some parts of England a berry is plucked from the mistletoe for every kiss that is given under it, and when there are no more berries left no more kisses are allowed.

About Heads.

The head of the true Rhinelander is wide at the temples. If the hat is the exact length in nine cases out of ten it has to be stretched sideways in order to make it fit. English heads are wide, but not so pronounced as those of Germans. There is more of a "sliding scale" with them as to the relative length and breadth. The Celtic head is almost invariably round or oval and is without pronounced phrenological bumps.

For general smoothness of the cranial protuberance the Italian comes next to the Celts, either of the two besting the classic Greeks in that respect. Odd as it may seem, anatomists declare that the Turkish skull is almost identical in shape, size, etc., with that of the enlightened inhabitant of the United States.

Rattan Comes From Singapore.

Strange as it may seem many people imagine that rattan and willow furniture are the same. Rattan is the Chinese importation, brought direct from Singapore, and is reed susceptible of bending double without even cracking. It possesses, besides this, great firmness and strength, and a chair of rattan could be thrown from an express train and picked up intact. Rattan is therefore used for such articles as baskets and lighter ornamental furniture. Each has its use, the rattan, however, being better adapted for working up into intricate designs.

Crushed by Python

Dreadful Death of a Gypsy Girl In a Prussian Menagerie.

Mlle. Fougere, Who Nearly Met the Same Fate, Tells How It Feels to Be In Coils of a Huge Snake.

La Pantella, a beautiful gypsy girl, was crushed to death by an immense python in a menagerie at Voelklingen, Prussia, a few days ago.

A crowd applauded what it believed to be simply the intense realism of the scene. When the curtain fell the members of the audience dispersed, still not dreaming that they had looked upon a tragedy.

"For a time I thought the woman was in torture," said one spectator as he walked away.

"Yes; she is a wonderful actor. Such a look of horror I never saw upon a human face," remarked another.

"But how she smiled as the big snake seemed to tighten his coils!"

So they chatted. Could they have peered behind the canvas of the menagerie tent their impressions of the thrilling spectacle would have undergone a quick and startling change.

THE PYTHON OPENED ITS JAWS.

Half a dozen showmen were busy cutting the sinuous folds of the python from the poor little body of the gypsy girl, who was twisted and bruised.

"See how sweetly she smiles," whispered one of the showmen.

The next day the newspapers were told how La Pantella was squeezed to death by a python in sight of a thousand persons so stupid that they cried "Bravo!" as the reptile closed about his victim.

Stupid? Perhaps not. Every one is not expected to know what it means to be crushed in the coils of a python. Had the woman rolled her eyes in pain or terror or had she screamed or even raised a hand in call for help those who watched her open mouthed and alert would have known.

But the python is a stealthy executioner. Possessed of no tongue of venom, he must depend upon his great muscles to slowly overcome his prey.

Mlle. Anita Fougere, who is admitted by the members of her particular avocation to be one of the most notable of its exponents, has been giving exhibitions in this country. She has been squeezed by a python and thus describes the sensations:

"My preference always ran toward the larger snakes. I loved the big boas, the cobras and the pythons. Let the men fool with silly little copperheads and rattlers!

"But to get down to the story of how I was 'squeezed to death.'

"We were in Canada, and it was winter. The weather was so cold that my snakes were almost good for nothing. The cobras were just so many logs the moment I took them out of their warm blankets in a heated room.

"The performance was in the evening, and, as I remember, I was very tired. The day's work had been trying. There was just one more act, the exhibition of Monarch, my big python.

"He had been in a strange humor for several days. I was not quite sure of him. The night before as he had wound himself about my body I noticed that he twitched, and I was frightened just a little.

"The professional snake charmer has no business to be nervous or apprehensive, but sometimes we just can't help it. I was so the moment I reached into the box and drew out the cold head of Monarch that evening.

"I reasoned, however, that the weather would soon take out of him any wickedness he might have, so I proceeded with the final act.

"Monarch had been trained to creep out of his box. I would take out enough of his body to wind once around my waist, and then I would stand still while he dragged along the rest of his eleven feet and encircled me.

"This he would do most gently.

"But this night there was a new vigor in his clasp. As one length after another coiled around me I felt the whole frame of the serpent tighten. I knew that I was at Monarch's mercy. I wanted to scream, but I was afraid.

"The least sign of fear or surrender on my part would quickly have resulted in my death.

"I held Monarch's head in one hand and, instead of watching my audience, bent my gaze into his eyes, speaking to him all the while in a low, purring tone to which he was used, but he simply spread wider his great mouth.

"At this I signaled the attendants to go farther away, for an angry snake must see no one but his master. The pain which filled me was now exquisite. I felt I must totter and fall, but I was held upright as though I stood in a metal pipe. My feet seemed no longer to touch the floor. I was floating through space, with my head on the great head of the python, whose beady eyes glowed like twin coals.

"Into my vitals seemingly ran a thousand needles. It was a paroxysm of agony so intense that it became a great joy.

"Finally I found myself engaged in strange calculations, harboring weird hope. How long until I should feel a rib snap? Which one would break first?

"Upon my ears broke the sound of music. Yes, it was the old grind organ of Pierre Lecardi, whom I used to know when I was a girl.

"The python must have disturbed my line of vision by a hug more intense, for I was lifted twenty years ahead and laid in the arms of a great, strong man. Some danger lurked near—when the protecting arms of my husband closed about me.

"So happy was I at this stage that my first words upon recovering my senses framed a protest.

"'Why have you cut away the arms of my husband?' I cried.

"'Poor girl; poor Anita!' I heard some one say. 'It wasn't Prestino who hugged you; it was Monarch. We had to cut him to pieces to save your life.'"

Summer Ice.

The peasants of Pongibaud, in the mountains of Auvergne, are acquainted with a singular summer formation of ice, presumably due to evaporation of underground moisture and consequent fall in temperature. Of this phenomenon they have for many years taken advantage to cool and harden their cheeses, which are deposited in certain caverns where this ice is found to be present, and thus keep good during the hottest summer months.

The Cause of It.

Flat Wheels.

"Flat wheel," growled the old retired conductor as the trolley car in which he sat went thumping along at twelve miles an hour, shaking the passengers uncomfortably at every revolution of the wheels.

"What makes flat wheels?" asked the man sitting next to the conductor.

"Fools," said the conductor. "It's this way: If a man doesn't know how to stop his car he makes a flat wheel. On the steam roads some brakemen flatten a wheel every time they put on a brake. When the wheel suddenly stops revolving and the momentum of the train carries it along the wheel slides along the track, and a flat is started. Next stop makes it worse, and so it goes until the wheel is no good. If a brakeman knows his business he need never make a flat wheel unless he has to suddenly avoid an accident. If he keeps his wheels turning slowly they don't flatten. Now, these fellows on the trolleys take no care at all, and every other car in some places has a flat wheel."—Washington Star.

The Khyengs' First Woman.

The Khyengs of Burma are probably the only race or tribe of people that have any tradition of the origin of the human race that do not have a man or male human being in some way connected with that important event. The Khyeng genesis opens in this wise: "In the beginning of the world, after the sun, moon and stars had appeared, the earth by its own inherent power of productiveness brought forth a female creature, which was called Hlernen. She laid 100 eggs and hatched them in cotton wool, and from them sprang 100 human beings, the progenitors of the different races." The least that can be said of this curious belief is that it is a fine illustration of the multiple theory as applied to the origin of the human race.

Two Expensive Banquets.

The costliest meal ever served, according to history, was a supper given by Ælius Verus, one of the most lavish of all the Romans of the latter days, to a dozen guests. The cost was 6,000 sestertio, which would amount to $242,500. A celebrated feast given by Vitellius, a Roman emperor of those days, to his brother Lucius cost a little more than $200,000. Suetonius says that the banquet consisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 different fowls besides other courses.

GIRL STUDENTS FIGHT DUEL.

How Two Russian Maidens Settled a Dispute With Pistols.

Recent cable dispatches brought an account of a tragic affair that occurred recently in the students' quarters of St. Petersburg, the principals being two girl students. The story is most dramatic. One of the girls made the acquaintance of a young man of good family and became secretly engaged to him. Shortly afterward she introduced to her fiance another young girl, an intimate friend of her own. At this point the tragedy began, for the fickle lover immediately fell deeply in love with his fiancee's friend, and, what was still worse, the attachment was mutual.

The girls, however, true to their friendship, had no secrets from one another, and the newcomer confided to the betrothed girl the fact that she and the young man were in love. The two girls were in despair and at length determined that the death of one of them offered the only solution of the difficulty. They accordingly resolved upon fighting what the Russians call an "American duel."

Locking themselves in a room with a revolver, they drew lots, and it fell out that the betrothed girl had to shoot her friend. The latter stood calmly awaiting her death, looking straight into the eyes of the girl who held the revolver, but the latter, yielding to a sudden impulse, turned the weapon against her own breast and fired. The shot was a fatal one, and, bleeding from a terrible wound, the poor girl fell dead on the floor.

THE GIRL TURNED THE PISTOL AGAINST HERSELF.

At this sight the girl whose life had been spared snatched the revolver and attempted to commit suicide, but her trembling hand was incapable of properly directing the shot, and she only wounded herself slightly.

Her courage giving way, she knelt in despair by the corpse of her friend, crying bitterly, and in this position she was found by neighbors, who, on hearing the shots, broke into the room.

Shifting Eyes.

No matter of what color, beware of the eyes that have no desire to look you full in the face. There is something wrong behind the shifting, uneasy glance, and the owner of such optics will prove to be unworthy of trust. Read well the signs, for if actions speak louder than words eyes speak even louder than actions, and to be forewarned is to be forearmed.

Reversing the Adage.

They found the bride in tears.

"I cook pies and things that are something fierce, but George will not eat them," she sobbed miserably.

"Ah, you must first make him love you. The way to a man's stomach is through his heart," they said, for they were worldly wise.—Puck.

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

Folks who think it is better to bear pain than soothe it—are wrong.

Old fashioned doctors used to say it was better, because they had nothing with which to ease pain but dangerous, heart-paralyzing drugs.

But now, that a safe remedy has been found, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, it is wrong to suffer, for nothing can be gained but weakened nerves.

A safe rule to remember is: When in pain, take an Anti-Pain Pill.

This will soothe your quivering nerves.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain by restoring the natural secretions, in which they differ from opium and similar narcotic drugs, which relieve pain by checking the action of the glands. [illegible] are sure and harmless, [illegible] medical treatment for the cure of Headache, Neuralgia, Backache, Rheumatism, Dizziness, Toothache, Stomachache, Menstrual (Monthly) [illegible] Irritations like Sea-Sickness, Car-Sickness, Sleeplessness, [illegible], etc.

Irrecoverable Waste.

The utilization of what formerly were considered waste products and the resurrection of materials from a used up state to a new condition of serviceableness have in recent times been developed to such a degree of completeness that we are scarcely prepared to admit that anything is ever irrecoverably lost. In this respect we believe in the conservation of material just as we have long been taught to believe in the law of conservation of energy. From a purely practical point of view, however, some things certainly may be so completely lost to further use that their loss may well be considered absolute, and one of these is the metal lost in the wear of railway rolling stock brasses. For the speculator in copper value, the promoter of a copper "corner," to use the broker's cant, the copper which has gone into railway brasses need have no terror. It is not likely ever to be available again in full measure. It is dissipated so completely, in part at least, that its practical recovery is not likely to receive much serious consideration. From the best available deductions on the subject it appears that 5 per cent of the annual copper production of the world disappears in this way every year.—Cassier's.

Ainu Women.

When Ainu, especially Ainu women, meet after a separation that has lasted some time they have a pretty way of telling each other their experiences in a sort of chant, and in the pleasant sound of their singularly sweet voices one forgets their wild and unkempt looks. The Japanese women are equally remarkable for the sweetness of their voices, but have the advantage over their Ainu sisters of delicate and dainty ways, the charm of which the most stolid globe trotter is constrained to own. If the women of Ainu-moshiri, as the Ainu call their land, are the drudges of the men in their youth and middle age their opportunity for revenge comes with the lapse of years.

The curses of an angry old woman excite the utmost terror in the bravest bear hunter. He flies, panic struck, from such names as shunnmaush (man's deer), toitoneppo (bald juiced boar) or, worst of all, rai-guru (corpse) or inau-sak-guru (godless fellow). After death her ghost is regarded with even deeper dread.

Tools of the Ancients.

An investigator who lived during two years in a tomb at Gizeh collected evidence to prove that the tools used in working stone 1,000 years ago had jeweled cutting edges like modern tools. He says that the builders of the pyramids used solid and tubular tools, straight and circular saws and many other tools supposed to be modern. In some specimens of granite a drill had sunk one-tenth of an inch at each revolution, indicating that the pressure was at least two tons. Nothing is known of the material of the tools. As the diamond was scarce then, it is probable that corundum was used.

Miss Rose Hennessy, well known as a poetess and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and receptions thinly clad, and would be suddenly chilled, but I did not think of the results. I caught a bad cold eighteen months ago while menstruating, and this caused inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well.

"I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was."—MISS ROSE NORA HENNESSY, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

A Physician's Statement.

Yorktown, Ark., Jan. 11.—Leland Williamson, M. D., one of the cleverest physicians, has made a statement, endorsing Dodds' Kidney Pills and saying that he uses them in his daily practice in preference to any other Kidney medicine. His statement has created a profound sensation as it is somewhat unusual for a physician to publicly endorse anything in the shape of a patent medicine. Dr. Williamson says:

"After twenty years' practice in a sickly and malarious country I have come to the conclusion that it is always best to use the remedy that will relieve and cure my patients whether ethical or not.

"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills with uniform success in the various forms of Kidney Disease, Pain in the Back, Gout, Rheumatism, Inflammation and Congestion of the Kidneys and all kindred diseases; I always prescribe Dodd's Kidney Pills in such cases and can testify that they invariably restore the Kidneys to their normal state and thereby relieve the blood of accumulated poisons, producing prompt and effective cures."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Died From Eating Shot.

His intestines perforated several hundred times by shot that he had swallowed when eating wild game that had fallen to his gun, Chris Larson of McIntosh died in the Bethesda hospital at Crookston, while his medical attendents were ignorant of the nature of his aliment.

A post mortem examination revealed the astonishing condition of the man, a condition such as never has been noted before in modern surgery.

Larson owned an eighty-acre farm near McIntosh. He was extremely eccentric and refused to sleep anywhere but on a heap of straw in a stable, with his horses and cattle—never having any more adequate covering than an old binder canvas.

His diet consited mainly of wild game, such as rabbits, prairie chickens, ducks and geese, supplemented with additions of vegetables as he was able to raise on the farm. Altho eccentric, he was thrifty and managed to work his land to a good advantage.

Unusual Fatality.

Arthur Proehl, the nine-year-old son of Mrs. Elizabeth Proehl, who resides with her father, Henry Benecke, in Rich Valley, near Glencoe, was killed in a peculiar manner.

The little fellow went to the henhouse to gather some eggs, and had to climb up to reach the upper tier of the nests.

His weight on the tier pulled it over and it fell, carrying the boy with it, pinning him down on the floor in the corner of the coop in such a manner that his mouth and nose were forced into the hollow of his left arm, which had become doubled under his face as he fell.

The weight of the box was so great that the boy was unable to move it and he was suffocated, being dead when found ten minutes later by his uncle, John Benecke.

Cost of Corn.

The results for 1902 of the statistical investigations at Northfield, Marshall and Halstad, which are being carried on by the state experiment station and by the statistical bureau of the United States department of agriculture, are being summarized. These investigations were undertaken to secure facts for the use of all the farmers of the state as to the cost, returns and profits of each line of business on the farm.

It was found that the cost of growing an acre of field corn, including cutting, shocking and shredding, was $14.83. The cost each acre when husking on the hill was $11.81.

Some of the factors used, as [illegible] cents an hour for man labor and [illegible] cents an hour for horse labor, have not been finally settled upon, hence the footings may be changed before the facts are finally published.

Board of Regents.

Judge Greenleaf Clark of St. Paul was reappointed [illegible] of regents of the state university by Gov. S. R. Van Sant and E. W. Randall of Hamline, secretary of the Minnesota Agricultural society, was named to succeed Theodore L. Schurmeier of St. Paul. The term of office is six years beginning Jan. 1, 1904.

A delegate of citizens from Hamline appeared before the governor to urge the appointment of Mr. Randall. They emphasized his business ability and sound judgment as evidenced by his work in connection with the management of the state fair.

State Treasury.

The December receipts at the state treasury aggregated $660,745.94. The principal items were: State taxes, $238,711.87; state institutions, $156,170.61; telephone taxes, $33,209.97; redemption of funding banks, $25,000; interest on bonds, $32,787.50; grain inspection, $48,234.73; stumpage, $29,263.36; school lands, $32,811.92; interest on school lands, $17,580.84; hunters' licenses, $11,338.85.

Bad Man Hurt.

Con Davis, a giant lumberjack, with an alleged record as a bar room fighter, lost an eye in W. G. Carlin's saloon at Floorwood a few weeks ago, and later he returned to that village with a 38-caliber revolver to get satisfaction. He now lies mortallly wounded in the jail at Floorwood.

Long Service.

Judge F. M. Crosby of Hastings has been in judicial service longer than any judge in Minnesota. This year he entered upon his thirty-third year on the district bench, a record not only remarkable but unequaled. His present term will not expire until January, 1909. Judge Crosby is regarded as one of the best judges of the state, and has a unblemished record.

News In Brief.

His age is 115 years, vouched for by authentic record. He says: "I attribute my extreme age to the use of Peruna."

Saw 22 Presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes Peruna the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal diseases.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 115 years. For many years he resided at Rosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

A short time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture. In his hand he held a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson, which has been carried by him ever since. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 115 years ago.

Surely a few words from this remarkable old gentleman, who has had 115 years of experience to draw from, would be interesting as well as profitable. A lengthy biographical sketch is given of this remarkable old man in the Waco Times-Herald, December 4, 1898. A still more pretentious biography of this, the oldest living man, illustrated with a double column portrait, was given the readers of the Dallas Morning News, dated December 11, 1898, and also the Chicago Times-Herald of same date This centenarian is an ardent friend of Peruna, having used it many years.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 115 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but of course subject to the little affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoea.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter dated January 31, 1903, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. The only thing that bothers me is my sight. If I could see better I could walk all over the farm and it would do me good. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock.

INTELLIGENCE FROM ALL PARTS

CONGRESS AT WORK.

Daily Proceedings of the Senate and House Briefly Told.

The senate on the 12th adopted a resolution authorizing the erection of a statue to Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis. The Panama question was debated at length. In the house the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was considered and a variety of topics, including Panama and the tariff, were discussed during the course of the debate.

Panama was the principal subject of consideration in the senate on the 13th. Senator Carmack opened with pointed criticism of the president's course. He was followed by Senator Spooner, the only other speaker of the day, who defended the administration. The house, in committee of the whole, struck out of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill the paragraph providing for the salaries and expenses of the civil service commission and the clerks employed under the commission.

The senate on the 14th listened to speeches by Senator Newlands, attacking the course of the administration in the Panama affair, and by Senator Depew in defense of the administration. Senator Latimer spoke in advocacy of a plan for the improvement of public wagon roads. The house passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, carrying $29,711,700, after restoring the paragraph providing for the salaries and expenses of the civil service commission. Bills were introduced providing that the government should not purchase any convict-made articles, and providing for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian territory as the state of Oklahoma. The senate joint resolution authorizing the erection of a monument in memory of Benjamin Harrison on government land in Indianapolis was passed. Adjourned to the 18th.

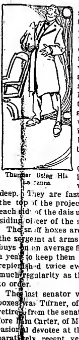
WASHINGTON LETTER

Timely and Interesting Gossip Gleaned at National Capitol.

THE SENATE SNUFF BOXES

How President Roosevelt Helped to Entertain the Children—New and Old New Year's Customs—Other Capitol Gossip.



Thurman Using His Bandanna

Washington.—Prehistoric as is the snuff-taking habit, the United States senate still observes the tradition in the shape of the official snuff boxes, which are carefully filled at regular intervals with the finest and highest-priced snuff to be found. Nobody ever uses them now, but the snuff in them is always fresh, and so it will doubtless be to the end of time.

The boxes are of lacquer, four inches long, 2½ wide and an inch deep. They are fastened by screws to the top of the projecting ledge, one on each side of the dais upon which the presiding officer of the senate sits.

The snuff boxes are in the keeping of the sergeant at arms of the senate, who buys on an average five pounds of snuff a year to keep them filled, and they are replenished twice every week with as much regularity as the senate is called to order.

The last senator who used the snuff boxes was Turner, of Washington, who retired from the senate last March. Before him Carter, of Montana, was an occasional devotee at the shrine. In comparatively recent years Edmunds, of Vermont, and Thurman, of Ohio, met by the snuff boxes on common ground, and there established a friendship that was lasting [illegible] until Thurman died. [illegible] senatorial snuff box that gave to the democratic campaign of 1888 its famous emblem of the bandanna. Thurman would go to the box on the democratic side, help himself to a big pinch, return to his desk and there execute astonishing gymnastics with the red bandanna which he flourished. The men in the press gallery, of course, did not overlook so picturesque a feature, and thus the bandanna found its way to political history.

Entertained the "Kids."

"Teddy" Waiting on the Kids

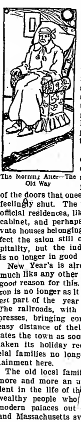
No president of the United States ever did a more genuine thing than did President Roosevelt when he turned in and helped serve the youngsters whom Mrs. Roosevelt had invited to the children's entertainment at the white house the day after Christmas. And no president's wife ever did a more wholesomely genuine thing than when Mrs. Roosevelt invited several hundred children to a party the like of which was never seen before and the memory of which will linger all their lives with the youngsters privileged to enjoy it.

There were over 500 of them, the children of the officials in Washington, the army and navy officers stationed here and a few others. Some limitation had to be made, because the white house would not hold all. Otherwise no limit whatever would have been set.

The little tots got their invitations in due form, and they flocked to the white house in the company of nurses and parents, to be met at the door of the east room by Mrs. Roosevelt, who gave each one a handshake and a smile and a word of welcome. There were attendants by the score to look after the smallest of the children, and there was not an untoward incident from beginning to end. It was in its way the prettiest sight the executive mansion ever saw, and it is doubtful if anything quite like it was ever seen anywhere else. for the indifferent road to get busy, either.

After the entertainment and the dancing the youngsters thronged the state dining-room, and there the president, who happened in to see how everything was going, set himself to work to help the tots get all they wanted to eat, passing things with his own hands and enthusiastically joining in the sport.

New Year's Customs.



The Morning After—The Old Way

We don't have New Year's calling as we used to ten or a dozen years ago. The charming old custom when all the well born women kept open house, and all the well born men spent the day in traveling about from place to place sipping egg nogg and winding up at their own homes groggy and happy has taken its departure for all time.

They do things differently nowadays. The egg nogg has disappeared, and most of the doors that once were open are unfeelingly shut. The white house, a few official residences, like the homes of the cabinet, and perhaps half a dozen private houses belonging to people who affect the salon still offer a gentle hospitality, but the indiscriminate calling is no longer in good form.

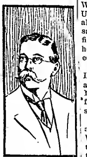
New Year's is already become very much like any other holiday. There is good reason for this. The holiday season is no longer as it once was, the gayest part of the year in Washington. The railroads, with their limited expresses, bringing congressmen within easy distance of their homes, depopulates the town as soon as congress has taken its holiday recess and the official families no longer seek for entertainment here.

The old local families are becoming more and more an unconsidered incident in the life of the capitol, and the wealthy people who are building the modern palaces out on Dupont circle and Massachusetts avenue do not take kindly to the old fashion notions of New Year hospitality.

Perhaps it is just as well. The new order of things has its attractions as well as the old. There are fewer muddy brains as the evening of the first day of the year comes on and fewer aching heads the morning after.

But there will always be somebody to regret the fine old times.

Senator Warren.



Senator Warren

Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, is one of the big brained and big bodied men of the senate. There is probably no other member of that body who is more effective in legislation that he, and certainly no one in whom other senators place greater confidence. They know he is clean and straight and honest, and that he will not mislead them even in little things—so that when he rises in his place, as he occasionally does, and asks for the immediate passage of a measure about which he knows a great deal and other senators know little, that bill is pretty sure to go through without the formality of debate and by unanimous consent.

There are not many senators who have this confidence of their colleagues, and that Warren is one of them is a tribute to the absolute sincerity with which his public conduct is characterized.

Warren was born in Massachusetts, and got his first training in the Berkshires. He was a farmer's boy, and he had to fight his own way. He went to Wyoming and grew up with the country, and now he is reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in the state, the owner of great tracts of land and of great quantities of city real estate. He is the principal citizen of the state, and would be such even if he did not occupy a seat in the senate. He has a way of "getting there" which impresses his contemporaries. That is the secret of his success.

Once when he lost a trunk coming from Cheyenne to Washington the railroad was indifferent about finding it for him. He ordered a man to watch the yard at Cheyenne for weeks until one of the freight cars of the offending road appeared. He attached it immediately, and did not release it till his trunk was found. It didn't take long for the indifferent road to get busy either.

As She Remembered It.

"Why is it," asked the lady who is always making bad breaks, "that you have never got any higher than the senate?"

"One reason," replied the statesman, "is that the people have never made a wild outcry to have me go up."

"Why, I thought nearly every paper in this town was saying that you ought to be sent up, two years ago, when there was so much talk about that hemp scandal."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Bimberly—Did you ever notice it?

Jimbleeute—Did I ever notice what?

Bimberly—The frankness with which a 17-year-old girl refers to herself as an old maid?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

No Reason to Be Nervous.

"Was the bride nervous at the altar?"

"Oh, no. She knew he didn't have nerve enough to run after she's got him that far."—Chicago Post.

Mayor Hitchcock of Crookston is said to be a candidate for the next sheriff of Polk county. This with T.H Bjoin, and Ed. Sullivan makes three, up to the presant time, that have an eye to the business of this importent office, this early in the campaign.

The new management of the Red Lake Falls Gazette seem to be looking for editorial gore, which they may find. We have often noticed that when a would be "tough" went stagering around the street looking for trouble, that he usaly finds it.

Editor Butler of the Bagley Independant, puts in a smooth kick in his last weeks issue, about the method of the County Commissioners of that county letting the county printing to one of their own members. Of course the Commissioner have the best of it at the presant time, but there may be a chace to even up a little before next election in that County.

Buried Alive

Strange and Horrifying Experience of a Young Englishman.

Apparently Dead, Though Fully Conscious, He Was Consigned to the Grave—His Miraculous Rescue.

George Heyward, who recently died at Independence, Mo., was eighty-two years of age and until a few weeks ago worked every day. Mr. Heyward was born in England, where he learned the watchmaker's trade, and came to this country many years ago.

When a young man in England Mr. Heyward was buried alive and was narrowly saved from awful death because physicians disagreed as to the cause of his demise and took up the body to perform an autopsy. When placed on the dissecting table signs of life were discovered, and he was resuscitated. This is the story as often related by Mr. Heyward.

THE DOCTOR DROPPED HIS KNIFE.

"It was in Marazvile, England, county of [illegible], where I was buried," Mr. Heyward used to say very grimly. "My father had a very large family of boys, and he raised us all on the farm near the village. I was quite young, and it was my chief delight to go to the fields with my older brothers. In those days the farmhouses were surrounded by big yards filled with straw. This straw was allowed to rot, and in the fall of the year it was loaded on to wagons and carted to the fields as a fertilizer. It was a bright morning when we started for the fields, and I ran ahead of the horses. The horses in England are not driven with reins, but they follow the command of the voice. After reaching the field the pitching of the straw was completed. The men used hopsticks, which are fashioned somewhat after a heavy pitchfork. While standing near one of the hands by accident I was struck on the head with one of the picks. It penetrated my skull and at the time made me feel faint and dizzy. My injury was not considered serious.

"After returning to the house I was sent into the cellar, and, much to my surprise, I could see in the dark as well as in the light. After coming from the cellar my strength failed me, and I was soon bedfast. Two doctors were called. One of them insisted that my condition was due to the blow on the head, the other that I had pleurisy. At any rate, two weeks elapsed, and my eyes closed in supposed death.

"It was death as far as my relatives were concerned. Yet I was painfully conscious of every movement going on around me. My eyes were half closed, and as I was laid out I heard my older brother, John, walk into the house. I saw him approach the cot with tears in his eyes, and sympathizing friends consoled him by asking him to dry his tears. 'He is gone,' they said, and other similar expressions were used around the bier. Well known faces would peer down at me as I lay with my eyes half closed. Tears rained on my face as the burial shroud was wrapped around my body. As soon as the undertaker arrived I knew I was to be buried alive. Try as I would, nothing could break the spell which bound me. Every action and every word spoken is as distinct to my mind now as then.

"Well, the time for the funeral arrived, and the service was preached over my living but rigid body. The undertaker approached, and the lid of my little prison house was fastened down. Life seemed all but gone when this took place; but, as I said, no effort of mine could break the spell. The coffin was shoved into the wagon, and the trundling of the vehicle sounded in my ears. I was painfully conscious of the fact that I was soon to be lowered into the grave. But I did not feel fear at my impending fate. The coffin was taken out of the wagon and lowered [illegible] in those days hand [illegible] were not used as receptacles for coffins. The clods of earth fell heavy on the lid of the casket. There I was being entombed alive, unable to speak or stay the hands of my friends. My effort heretofore proved futile, and the close air of the coffin seemed stifling to me. Suddenly the shoveling ceased, and the silence of the tomb was complete. I did not seem to have the fear then that a person would naturally expect under such circumstances. All I remember is that the grave is a lonely place, and the silence of the tomb was horribly oppressive. A dreamy sensation came over me, and a sense of suffocation became apparent. My whole system was paralyzed. Were it otherwise my struggles would have been desperate.

"How long I remained in this condition I do not know. The first sense of returning life came over me when I heard the scraping of a spade on my coffin lid. I felt myself raised and borne away. I was taken out of my coffin not to my home, but to a dissecting room. I beheld the doctors who had waited upon me at my home, dressed in long white aprons. In their hands they had knives. Through my half closed eyes I saw them engaged in a dispute. They were trying to decide how to cut me up. One argued one way, while the other doctor took another view of the matter. All this I witnessed through my half opened eyes. My sense of hearing was remarkably acute. Both approached the table and opened my mouth, when by superhuman effort my eyelids were slightly raised. The next thing I heard was: 'Look out, you fool! He is alive!' 'He is dead,' rejoined the other doctor. 'See! He opens his eyes!' continued the first doctor. The other physician let his knife drop, and a short time after that I commenced to recover rapidly. Instead of cutting me up they took me home. There was great rejoicing among my relatives. I owed my life to the doctors' dispute as to what ailed me during my illness."

Sarcastic.

In a volume of memoirs it is told that on the first council day after Lord Derby's elevation to the premiership Greville showed his disapproval by not appearing in his place as clerk. Some busybody asked Lord Derby whether he had noticed Greville's absence, and Lord Derby replied, with a face of benevolent apology: "No, really! You know, I am the most inattentive fellow in the world about these things. I never notice, when I ring the bell, whether John or Thomas answers it."

Boon Island.

Probably Boon Island would be but little known outside of New Hampshire, Maine and Massachusetts if it were not for the fact that the island is the terminal of the Cape Ann trial course. Perhaps it would be more proper to call the island the northern terminal, but at any rate Boon Island gains a mention in this way every time a new battleship or cruiser is tried off this coast, as all those not built on the Pacific always are.—Boston Globe.

Artists and Poets.

Artists and poets are like stars—they belong to no land. A strictly national painter or a strictly national poet is bound to be parochial, a kind of village pump. And you may write inscriptions all over him and build monuments above him, but he remains a pump by a local spring.—Robert Orange.

His Ideal.

Editor—What do you mean by "a girl of rare intelligence and one who refused to take advantage of alleged advantages offered her?"

Critic—Simply this: She does not dance, sing or play, but she can sharpen a lead pencil, drive a nail and keep a secret.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

The Way of Whistler.

His manservant entered the studio. "Wall?" said Whistler. "Lady Somebody, sir," said the servant (she was one of the great ladies of the British peerage). "Where is she?" "In her carriage at the door, sir." Whistler took no further notice of his servitor, but resumed the reading of his proof sheets to me, and the puzzled footman, who was standing behind his master's back and facing me, shook his head slowly up and down and, like Longfellow's Arabs, "silently stole away." Thus the reading went on for quite ten minutes longer, and the reader's sole auditor fidgeted more and more till, realizing how deadly cold it was on that March day, I called out to him, "I beg your pardon, Mr. Whistler, but I think I overheard your servant telling you that a lady was waiting to see you." "Oh," said he, "let her wait; let her wait! I'm mobbed with these people!" Then he went on reading for fully fifteen minutes more, and after that (his voice was getting tired, I dare say) he condescended to go downstairs and receive her shivering ladyship.—F. The Fierce Caterpillar.

A more harmless, inoffensive creature does not crawl than the common garden caterpillar, yet this small worm will put up an appearance so fierce upon occasion as to frighten its enemies away. Soft and pulpy, with no defensive or offensive weapons, this destroyer of cabbages and lettuces will bluff itself into a veritable armored cruiser and frighten many more formidable insects into ungovernable flight. Its method of procedure is like this: Immediately anything approaches, the slow moving, fat caterpillar raises its hairy body, wags a formidable looking head and looks the essence of strength and defiance, so much so that it requires a bird of a particularly valiant disposition to attack it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A WOMAN'S COOL NERVE.

Bitten by a Tarantula She Sucks Out Poison, Saving Her Life.

To her rare presence of mind a Denver woman undoubtedly owes her life, displaying at the same time a "nerve" almost on the heroic.

Mrs. Salvador Mortio of Park avenue, Berkeley, in the district of Denver, in taking out of her closet a heavy jacket put her hand inside the coat sleeve. She at once felt a sharp sting and, drawing her hand away, was horrified to find an immense spider-like insect, as large as a silver dollar and of inky blackness, clinging thereto. She quickly brushed the insect off and crushed it beneath her feet, and then went on about her work.

In about fifteen minutes the hand began to swell and in half an hour it had swollen to twice its size. The fingers had stiffened, and the entire hand was of a deep purple color. Mrs. Martin went at once to the telephone, but no Berkeley physician was within call. She then decided that she would go over into Denver, but before she could get dressed the pain was so intense as to be almost unbearable.

MRS. MARTIN FELT A SHARP STING.

Mrs. Martin then decided upon desperate measures. She examined her hand closely, but could find no abrasion of the skin through which the poison might be withdrawn. With a nerve truly remarkable under the circumstances, Mrs. Martin tied a cord tightly around her wrist to prevent the poison from spreading farther and then deliberately took a sharp razor and cut a deep gash in her hand near where she supposed the sting to be. She then sucked the poison out until the inflammation had receded and the fingers began to move. Hastily making a paste of common baking soda and ammonia, Mrs. Martin swathed her hand in this and started to the highlands for a physician. Upon at last locating one she was told that nothing further was necessary and that she owed her life to her quick thought and cool nerve. The next morning Mrs. Martin's mouth was blistered thickly, although she had been careful to wash it with witch hazel after abstracting the poison.

That Terrible Child.

The small son of a certain university professor, whose parents are deservedly popular for their tact and courteous speech, appeared at the home of a fellow professor and hesitatingly asked Mrs. —— if he might look at the parlor rug. Permission was of course granted, and Mrs. —— felt some surprise to see the little fellow stoop over the rug and stare silently for some half minute. He straightened himself up and, meeting her wondering expression, said triumphantly:

"It doesn't make me sick!"—Life.

Work For the Stomach.

For the average healthy man I think there is something to be said in favor of a good meal even if a trifle heavy now and then. I believe it is a fact that the human stomach, although it is not a gizzard, like that of a goose, still does its work better when slightly stretched, just as the lungs work better with deep inhalations induced by bodily exercise in the open air.—London Telegraph.

Blame
No One But Yourself if You Don't Get Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice.
Of course that's easy.

But our advice is really worth a little more to you than most people's, for we offer to give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you

We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house.

Dr. Miles' Nervine, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick.

[illegible] it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.

All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitchings, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money.

You are the doctor.

"My son Bert, when in his 17th year, became subject to attacks of epilepsy, so serious that we were compelled to take him out of school. After several physicians had failed to relieve him, we gave Dr. Miles' Nervine a trial. Ten months treatment with Nervine and Liver Pills restored our boy to perfect health."—MR. JOHN S. Some Red Saunders Philosophy.

"Of all the worlds I ever broke into this one's the most curious," said Red Saunders, "and one of the curiousest things in it is that I think it's queer. Why should I, now? What puts it into our heads that affairs ought to go so and so when they never do anything of the sort? Take any book you read or any story a man tells you. It runs along about how Mr. Smith made up his mind to do this or that and proceeded to do it. And that never happened. What Mr. Smith calls making up his mind is, when you come down to bed rock, nothing more nor less than what Mr. Smith pleasantly calls his mind dodging to cover under pressure of circumstances. That's straight. Old Lady Luck comes for Mr. Smith's mind, swinging both hands. She gives it a stem winder on the ear, lams it for keeps on the smeller, chugs it one in the short ribs, drives right and left into its stummick, and Mr. Smith's mind breaks for cover; then Mr. Smith tells his wife that he's made up his mind—he, mind you! Wouldn't that stun you?"—McClure's.

Ancient Cooking School.

We of the twentieth century are inclined to think of cooking schools as belonging exclusively to our day and generation. Therefore it may be news to many people that as long ago as the reign of good Queen Anne a Mr. Kiddee had a school of cookery in Queen street, Cheapside, and another in Holborn. Here is his advertisement—the original is on good paper, with a neatly engraved border:

To All Young Ladies:

At Edward Kiddee's pastry school, at Little Lincoln's Inn Fields, are taught all kinds of pastry and cookery. Dutch hollow works and butter works on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, in the afternoon, and on the same days in the morning at his school in Norris street, St James, Haymarket, and at his school at St. Martin's le Grand on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, in the afternoons.

What Dutch hollow works may be none of the cooking schools of today seems to know, but they sound good.

A Bird Friendship.

The rector of Woolstone, Mr. Gilbert Coventry, told me of a wild rock dove which one of his stable boys had reared from the nest. It slept in the open, however, and had full liberty. Soon the good things on the rector's table attracted it, and it would appear through the open window at mealtimes, take hot soup with much zest and even sip sherry from a wineglass. At night it often slipped in and slept in the rector's bed on its back under the coverlet. One Sunday morning during the reading of the lesson the dove flew swiftly through an open window into the church and settled on the rector's head. Broad smiles spread over the faces of the elders and audible titters came from the youngsters. A gentle touch sent the bird down to the edge of the clerk's desk below, where it sat undisturbed.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mistaken.

"I suppose you thought you were fishing when you caught me?" growled the man who is always disagreeable.

"Well, I used to think so," sighed his little wife, "but now I know I must have been bear hunting."

Some folks are like good natured dogs. If you pat them on the head they will jump all over you.—Schoolmaster.

The Art of Making Hay.

How and when men first learned to make hay will probably never be known, for haymaking is a "process," and the product is not simply sun dried grass, but grass which has been partly fermented, and is as much the work of men's hands as flour or cider. Probably its discovery was due to accident, but possibly man learned it from the pikas, the "calling hares" of the steppes, which cut and stack hay for the winter. That idea would fit in nicely with the theory that central Asia was the "home of the Aryan race" if we were still allowed to believe it, and haymaking is certainly an art mainly practiced in cold countries for winter forage.—London Spectator.

Myrtle.

The creeping plant we call myrtle is not a myrtle at all, but should be called by its proper name, periwinkle. Botanically it is Vinca minor. Long ago it used to be called "the ivy of the ground." Chaucer mentions it as "fresh pervincke, rich of hew." The large blue flowers are very pretty. In Tuscany it is known as "the death flower" on account of its being so often planted upon graves, a custom which is beginning to prevail in this country. There is a pretty variegated leaved variety and also a sport with white flowers not so pretty as the blue.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—MISS GUILA GANNON, [illegible] St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

[illegible] clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings [illegible]; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many actual cures.

How Another Sufferer Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise your wonderful remedies enough, for they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. For the last eight years and more I suffered with female troubles, was very weak, could not do my housework, also had nervous prostration. Some days I would remain unconscious for a whole day and night. My neighbors thought I would never recover, but, thanks to your medicine, I am [illegible] a different woman.

"I feel very grateful to you and will recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all. It has now been four years since I had the last spell of nervous prostration. I only weighed ninety-eight pounds at that time; now I weigh one hundred and twenty-three.

"I consider your Vegetable Compound the finest remedy made. Thanking you many times for the benefit I received from your medicine, I remain, Yours truly, MRS. J. H. FARMER, 2809 Elliott Ave., St. Louis, Mo."

Remember Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. She speaks from the widest experience, and has helped multitudes of women.

PAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC

FOR WOMEN

A Boston physician's discovery which cleanses and heals all inflammation of the mucous membrane wherever located.

In local treatment of female ills Paxtine is invaluable. Used as a douche it is a revelation in cleansing and healing power; it kills all disease germs which cause inflammation and discharges.

Thousands of letters from women prove that it is the greatest cure for leucorrhœa ever discovered.

Paxtine never fails to cure pelvic catarrh, nasal catarrh, sore throat, sore mouth and sore eyes, because these diseases are all caused by inflammation of the mucous membrane.

For cleansing, whitening and preserving the teeth we challenge the world to produce its equal.

Physicians and specialists everywhere prescribe and endorse Paxtine, and thousands of testimonial letters prove its value. At druggists, or sent postpaid 50 cts.

THE STATE FAIR ASSOCIATION

Many Valuable and Interesting Papers are Presented for Consideration. New Societies are Formed.

Mayor Haynes and Gov. Van Sant welcomed the State Agricultural society to Minneapolis at the opening session of the convention in the Masonic temple. Ex-United States Senator W. A. Harris was also a speaker at the morning session.

Senator Harris insisted that the agricultural husbandry of the world is upheld by the farmer's cow. He also believes that Shorthorn stock is the best the farmer can breed and urges the agricultural people to pay special attention to the raising of stock and the successful agriculture which is to be gained by cultivating the fertility of the soil.

The afternoon session was held under the auspices of the Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association. Dr. S. H. Ward, secretary of the live stock sanitary board of the state, was the first speaker. His paper was upon live stock diseases, their cause, prevention and cure. He spoke of these diseases from a sanitary point of view. In the discussion following it seemed to be the general opinion that hog cholera is contagious. Mr. Kenning, of Renville county, however, maintained the opposite.

John Huston, of Blandisville, Ill., spoke upon "Draft Horses," and he held that America is fully capable of breeding her own draft horses. This he says means the keeping of thousands of dollars at home which formerly went to the breeders of England and France.

A. B. Lyman of Excelsior, read an interesting paper upon the growing of alfalfa seeds. He spoke particularly of a new brand which was introduced into Carver county forty-five years ago by the German farmers.

He said the plant is a delicate one and suffers in cold weather. He will put some seed on the market at a future time, but not until the weather conditions make it easy to produce good live seed.

The Minnesota Field Crop Breeders met and formed a permanent association, and it will hold annual meetings hereafter in connection with the meetings of the agricultural society.

A. D. Wilson, of the farm school, read a paper on "Weeds and Pure Seed Growing." He showed the importance of the system of rotation of crops with live stock and the crops required to feed them as the larger agencies in reducing the number of weeds on the farm. He mentioned specific methods of destroying the common varieties of weeds such as quack grass and Canadian thistles. Mr. Wilson is a student at the farm school and is making a special study of weeds. Prof. Hays closed the afternoon session with an address upon "Field Crop Improvements."

Prof. W. J. Spillman and Hon. M. O. Eldridge, both of Washington, D. C., read papers before the evening session. Prof. Spillman, who is connected with the agricultural department, read a paper upon "Forage Crops." [illegible] plants which, in his opinion, are best suited for forage, and he illustrated his remarks with stereopticon views showing [illegible] tracts of crops in different parts of the United States.

Mr. Eldrige discussed "Good Roads," and said that advantage of keeping the country highways in good repair is evident from the prosperity of sections where this is done. He described at length different materials used in road building, suited to different localities.

L. H. Herrick, of Bloomington, Ill., delivered an interesting address at the opening of the second day session on "Cattle Feeding."

For ten years he had been buying 2-year-olds and feeding them in pretty much the common manner. There was nothing new about the business but what everybody knew. The stock was taken to Chicago and the common price secured. A man was called a good cattle feeder who stayed by them through thick and thin.

Mr. Kerrick also expressed himself in favor of recorded animals, so that the best stock can be secured. The demand is for a better beef and a good price can be secured.

At the evening session A. J. Lovejoy, of Roscoe, Ill., delivered an address on "Swine Husbandry," and J. H. Brigham, assistant secretary of agriculture, told of the work of the department.

Mr. Lovejoy contended that the hog is a cleanly animal if not confined too closely. Large herds should be divided so that not more than a dozen are together.

Corn should not be fed exclusively, and green food should be supplied in winter. The idea should not be entertained that "anything is good enough for a pig." On the other hand, it should be, "Nothing is too good for the hog."

Mr. Brigham said the government in 1839 appropriated the first $1,000 for agricultural interests. A commissioner was appointed in 1862. For many years the Grange labored for the elevation of agricultural interests, and finally, sixteen years ago, Governor Rusk was appointed the first secretary of agriculture.

Now the department employs 4,000 persons and expends $3,000,000 annually. Mr. Brigham reviewed the efforts of the department, and how it had proven of the greatest value to the American farmer. There are a number of bureaus, and improved conditions in the rural districts are the purposes of all.

The evening session was under the auspices of the department of agriculture of the University of Minnesota, and Professor Robinson and Dean W. M. Liggett delivered addresses on the school, illustrated by the stereopticon. Professor Robinson paid special attention to the experimental work, while Dean Liggett spoke of the school work.

Following musical selections by the Minnesota Ladies' quartet, Mr. Brigham gave a short address, in which he referred to the importance of the export of agricultural implements. In a general way he discussed the relations of capital labor and contended that individual rights should be maintained.

ENEMIES ALL RIGHT.

He Was Certain About That and He Took a Sly Shot at Them.

It is related that at a recent sham battle a young lieutenant, posted with his company behind a wall, ordered his men to fire at a detachment of troops who were marching by, says London Tit-Bits.

The guns were loaded with blank cartridges, and no harm was done; but the detachment happened to be on the same side of the sham fight as the company which had fired at it.

The commanding officer came riding up.

"Why did you fire at those men?" he demanded of the lieutenant, hotly.

"I supposed they were the enemy," said the lieutenant.

"And what led you to suppose they were the enemy?"

"Because my tailor was at the head of them and I saw my butcher in the ranks. What else could I suppose, sir?"

Dr. Williamson Swears.

Yorktown, Ark., Jan. 18th.—Last week a statement was published from Leland Williamson, M. D., of this place, to the effect that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine for all Kidney Diseases and that he uses them with uniform success in his daily practice.

No one who knows Dr. Williamson will doubt for a moment the complete truth of his fearless declaration, but to completely clinch the matter in the minds of those who may not have the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with this celebrated physician, Dr. Williamson has appeared before Mr. H. E. Greene, J. P. for Montgomery county, and made a sworn statement.

In this sworn statement the doctor has cited a number of cases which have been completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Here is case No. 1:

"Henry Hall, Sr., age 48, an American, attacked with Malaria Haematuria or Swamp Fever, temperature ranged from 101 to 105, highly coated tongue, constipated bowels, hemorrhage or passage of blood from Kidneys, used febrifuge and Dodd's Kidney Pills to relieve the inflammation and congested condition of Kidneys and to render the urine bland and non-irritating. Recovery complete after two months' treatment of the Pills."

Needed Not the Country.

"And do none of you know anything about the country?" asked the teacher, sadly.

"Oh, yiss, ma'am, I know," said Eva Gonorowsky. "The country is the Fresh Air Fund."

"Then you've been there," cried Miss Bailey. "Tell us about it, Eva."

"No, ma'am, I ain't seen it," said Eva, proudly. "I'm healthy."—McClure's.

MRS. COL. GRESHAM Was Given Up BY THE DOCTORS.

Pe=ru=na Saved Her Life.

[It was catarrh of the lungs so common in the winter months.]

MISS. JENNIE DRISCOLL

Miss Jennie Driscoll, 870 Putnam Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"If people knew how efficient Peruna was in the cure of catarrh, they would not hesitate to try it. I have all the faith in the world in it as it cured me, and I have never known of a case when the person was not cured in a short time."---Jennie Driscoll.

MRS. COL. E. J. GRESHAM

Mrs Col. E. J. Gresham, Treasurer Daughters of the Confederacy and President Hernden Village Improvement Society, writes the following letter from Hernden, Fairfax Co., Va.:

Hernden, Va.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen---"I cannot speak too highly of the value of Peruna. I believe that I owe my life to its wonderful merits. I suffered with catarrh of the head and lungs in its worst form, until the doctors fairly gave me up, and I despaired of ever getting well again.

"I noticed your advertisement and the splendid testimonials given by the people who had been cured by Peruna, and determined to try a bottle. I felt but little better, but used a second and third bottle and kept on improving slowly.

"It took six bottles to cure me, but they were worth a King's ransom to me. I talk Peruna to all my friends and am a true believer in its worth."---Mrs. Col. E. J. Gresham.

A PLAIN TALK

On a Plain Subject in Plain Language.

The coming winter will cause at least one-half of the women to have catarrh, colds, coughs, pneumonia or consumption. Thousands of women will lose their lives and tens of thousands will acquire some chronic ailment from which they will never recover.

KEEP PERUNA IN THE HOUSE.

Unless you take the necessary precautions, the chances are that you (who read this) will be one of the unfortunate ones. Little or no risk need be run if Peruna is kept in the house and taken at the first appearance of any symptom of catarrh taken as directed on the bottle.

Peruna is a safeguard, is a preventative, a specific, is a cure for all cases of catarrh, acute and chronic, coughs, colds, consumption, etc.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

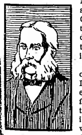
MEN OF WASHINGTON

Distinguished Characters Found at the National Capitol.

CONFEDERATE LEADERS GONE

But Few of Them Are Now to Be Found in the Senate or House—Some Picturesque Characters in Congress.



Gen. Longstreet

Washington.—Two great soldiers have passed away in the deaths of Maj. Gen. Longstreet and Gen. Gordon—two of the greatest soldiers in the history of the republic.

Of the generals of the confederacy Longstreet ranked easily among the first three, and in the opinion of military experts there were not more than that number of commanders on the federal side who excelled him. Yet for the greater portion of the time after the close of the civil war until his death his fame rested under a cloud among some of his own people, because after swords were transformed into agricultural implements he allied himself with the opposition party.

At the close of the war Longstreet became a republican and he remained a republican until the end. Some of his neighbors, forgetful of the splendid services he had rendered the confederacy in the field, ostracized him. They refused to recognize him at the reunions of confederate veterans and for years he lived as a stranger in a strange land. Now that he is dead perhaps his reward may come, but the tragedy of his life cannot be obliterated.

Of late years he has been a resident of Washington occupying the sinecure position of railroad commissioner, which was occupied before him by another [illegible] Joseph E. Johnston.

There is little in the physical appearance of the gray-haired old man to remind one of the dashing corps commander of 40 years ago. The inevitable ear-trumpet and the sightless eye were pathetic reminiscences of a heroic past, and when he died there were few to express more than a passing feeling of regret.

Dwindling Ranks.

The departure of Longstreet and Gordon serves to call attention to the rapidly dwindling group of former confederate officers who remain in public life in Washington.

Senator Bate

There are still a good many confederate veterans in congress, but very few of them held conspicuous rank. There was a time not so very long ago when the visitor to the senate galleries looked down on an historic group of southern military heroes. There were Wade Hampton and M. C. Butler, those fine types of the "rebel brigadier" about whom Ben Butler used to storm; Isham Harris, of Tennessee; Mahone, of Virginia; John B. Gordon and Colquitt, of Georgia; Walthall, of Mississippi, whom Lamar used to say would have succeeded Lee if Lee for any reason had fallen by the wayside, and whom Senator Hoar describes as the finest type of southern statesman; Zeb Vance, of North Carolina, the idol of the old north state. In the senate now there are only three or four. Cockrell, of Missouri, had an enviable record. So had Morgan and Pettus of Alabama.

Another interesting survival is Bate, of Tennessee. Bate limps about on a shortened leg to show for his experience in fighting the battles of the confederacy. Bate is known among his colleagues and has been known for years as the man who never smokes a lighted cigar. He is never without a cigar in his mouth, but it is always what is known as a dry smoke. There is a reason for this to which the Tennessee senator rarely refers. During the civil war he was riding into action once with his brother by his side. He was smoking a cigar. A bullet sped by, caught his cigar from between his lips and speeding past killed his companion. From that day Bate has never lighted a cigar. And he never will.

Bate rarely opens his mouth in the senate, but he is now one of the most experienced members of that body. He is serving his third term.

A Picturesque Congressman.

A picturesque figure in the house is the new member from the Bowery district in New York, Tim Sullivan. Sullivan is a Bowery boy and is proud of it. He has fought his way up from the bottom and at 40 years he is one of the most influential democrats in Greater New York. Over on the East side nobody would think of speaking of him as Congressman Sullivan. They all call him "Tim" or "Big Tim" or "Dry Dollar."

"Dry Dollar Tim"

"Dry Dollar Tim" is perhaps the name by which he is most familiarly known. He has carried it from boyhood. One day on his way to school little Tim picked up a revenue beer stamp. He thought it was a dollar bill. It had been raining and the stamp was wet so when he reached the school he pinned the stamp on the wall near the stove. The teacher asked him what he was doing and he replied that he was trying to "dry that dollar." The boys caught on as boys will and from that day to this he has been known as "Dry Dollar Tim." Since that memorable day Tim Sullivan has learned a great deal about the medium of exchange.

He has over a million and a half of dry dollars now. He owns theaters, race horses and race tracks and he is as well known in the sporting world as in politics. Most of "Dry Dollar's" education he picked up in the streets. His school days were few. He began to make money by selling papers and most of the information he picked up was gathered from the papers he sold and from the racy talk of the streets. To this day he says his reading is confined to the newspapers. He buys a lot of them and reads them all. When he is through with them he has little time for anything else.

At nine years of age "Dry Dollar" was a printer's devil. Ten years later he had already gone in for politics, and when he was 23 years old he was elected to the state assembly. He stayed in the assembly seven years and then he was promoted to the senate. Then he came to congress.

A Massachusetts Character.

Sam Powers, of Massachusetts, is going to retire from congress at the end of his present term. That will be sad news for younger men in the house and for many of the older men, too, for that matter. But Powers thinks he can make a good deal more money by going back to his profession and he says that the life of a representative is dreary and unprofitable.

Congressman Powers

Powers is a man of ability and he is also a thoroughly good fellow. He is one of the few members who has managed to attract the attention of the house during his first term in congress. When he landed in Washington to begin his congressional career the first thing that impressed him was the utter insignificance of the new member under the hard and fast system of preferment which prevails. He lay around for a few weeks, wondering why he ever consented to come to Washington at all, and calling himself all sorts of names. He talked around among some of the other new members and found that most of them felt about as he did.

Then he had an inspiration.

He organized the new members into a club, which he called the Tantalus club, because it is the fate of the new member to be constantly hoping to get somewhere and never reaching the goal. He got them all together for a dinner. He was made president by acclamation, and the first dinner was such a success that they had another and another. The beauty about the dinners was that the members who would never get a chance to talk in the house under the rules could be recognized and show what there was in them. The Tantalus club dinners became a feature of Washington. Everybody wanted to go to them and nobody could get in. The old members for once had to take a subordinate position. Powers became the best of all the new men and he speedily became a factor to be reckoned with. If he were to stay in congress he would cut a big figure, but he is going to leave.

To Lose Flesh.

To reduce the flesh one must have the fortitude to give up a number of the pleasant things of life, for a time at least, and many of them for good and all. One must, first of all, become an early riser and not sleep longer than seven hours. Before finishing the morning toilet exercise for twenty minutes with Indian clubs, dumbbells or wands. For breakfast take no cereal, coffee or milk, but tea, not too strong, fruit and toast. Sugar is a fat producer; so also are bread and all farinaceous dishes. Not more than half a glass of liquid should be taken at any meal. For luncheon partake of stewed or raw fruit, a salad dressed with vinegar and oil, green vegetables and a chop. For dinner the bill of fare can comprise fish mutton, lamb, lean beef, vegetables, especially tomatoes and beans, stale bread and a light dessert.

A Real London Fog.

A recent example of London fog was the cause of some queer blunders. A Bayswater bus got nearly as far as Camden Town when the driver thought he was headed for Portland Station. Horses knew their way better.

A wagon drawn by two horses belonging to a firm of grocers in Coventry was left by the man in charge just outside Rugby, ten miles from their destination. The animals started off, and were quickly lost to sight in the fog. They reached home without mishap, although the fog was so thick that objects could not be distinguished a few yards away. The driver, who had to find his way on foot, did not arrive until five hours later.

HEROISM OF FIVE SAILORS.

A Mystery of the Pacific Ocean That Will Never Be Revealed.

At the southern end of the new Seamanship building at the Naval academy, Annapolis, there is a boat about twenty-five feet long of the ordinary gig type, decked over and with four cockpits. On the sides of the stern cockpit there are five names roughly chiseled, as if with a sailor's claspknife. On the right side appears the name of J. C. Talbot, an the stern end appear W. Halford and P. Francis, and on the left, one above the other, the names of J. Andrews and J. Muir are cut.

The boat and the roughly cut names are ever before the young naval officers as a forcible and pathetic memorial of the heroism of the five men whose names thus appear, who dared the dangers of a trip of 1,500 miles on the Pacific in this little craft, and four of whom laid down their lives that their companions, survivors from the wrecked gunboat Saginaw, cast away on desolate Ocean island, might be saved.

The gunboat Saginaw went ashore on Ocean island in midpacific in November of 1870. This island is entirely barren and uninhabited and is near Midway island, where the United States now has a naval station. At that time the islands in the vicinity were badly charted and little was known about the currents.

While engaged in this work under the command of Captain Sicard, one of the most careful officers in the American navy, the ship was carried into the surf off Ocean island and completely wrecked. Captain Sicard managed the escape of every member of the crew and the transference of the ship's stores in such a skillful manner that the loss of the ship was a matter of honor to him in the service rather than blame. The island was entirely out of the usual course of vessels, and as it afforded absolutely nothing in the way of food productions the probability was that unless help could be procured in some other way all the members of the crew would perish of starvation.

At this juncture a call was made for volunteers to man one of the small boats and make the perilous attempt to reach the nearest land, the Hawaiian group, 1,500 miles across the Pacific. A [illegible] made promptly by Lieutenant [illegible] and the four men [illegible] Francis, Andrews and Muir. [illegible] captain's gig was selected as the [illegible] ers of those left behind.

evident that they were approaching the surf near some land. Sick and exhausted as they were, they were wonderfully cheered by the knowledge that land was so near, and, though the landing through the surf was a new source of danger, they believed that it could be accomplished in the morning.

The one survivor of the expedition, William Halford, now chief gunner in the service, has often related to Commander Halsey the circumstances which followed as far as he knew them and as far as they will ever be known. "When we heard the surf breaking on the shore," he said, "Lieutenant Talbot decided not to try to land until the morning. I was on watch until 1 a. m. and was relieved by the lieutenant. I got under the deck and went to sleep. The next thing I knew I was on the shore of the island, slowly recovering consciousness."

This is absolutely all that is known of the fate of the four brave men. The boat came ashore and was brought to Annapolis after some years. It is not known whether the boat drifted into the surf or whether Lieutenant Talbot believed that the chances were good of making shore and attempted a landing. At any rate, Halford was able to communicate with Honolulu, and a relief expedition was dispatched, by which every one of the wrecked crew was saved.

A Noble Sacrifice

How a Cherokee Warrior Gave Up Life to Save His Promised Bride.

Killed Two Mountain Lions With a Pocketknife, but Was Himself Slain by the Savage Beasts.

The awful experience of Miss Teecy Pyle, a Cherokee girl of Cookson, I. T., while on the way to Fort Gibson to wed Blackie Cookson, a brave young warrior who sacrificed his life that his intended bride might live, has cast a gloom over the entire community.

Blackie Cookson was a gallant Cherokee boy who had followed the stars and stripes in the Cuban campaign and later in China and the Philippines. He fought [illegible] and was among the foremost in the charge up San Juan Hill.

[illegible]

In order to have the ceremony of marriage [illegible] wife performed they were [illegible] to Fort Gibson which is thirty-five miles distant. The road from Cookson to that place is very lonely, and for a stretch of fifteen miles over the mountains.

Blackie drove his pony team gayly for several miles, but when they got into the mountains he noticed that two mountain lions were in pursuit. He urged his ponies forward, hoping to outstrip the beasts.

In the hurry and excitement of the morning Blackie Cookson had forgotten his pistol and had no weapon of any kind, with the exception of a small pocketknife. Safety could only be secured by outrunning the beasts, and that was a forlorn hope, as the genuine mountain lion is noted for his speed and endurance. However, it afforded the only chance of escape, and Blackie urged the ponies, who, however, required little urging, being wild from terror, up the steep incline of the mountain. Behind them occasional howls, gradually growing nearer and nearer, could be heard, and when they reached the crest of the mountain and looked back they could see savage beasts scarcely 200 yards behind and gaining upon them with fearful rapidity.

Realizing that escape for both was utterly impossible, the young Italian determined to sacrifice his life in order to preserve that of his intended bride, and, gradually slowing down the team when the level top of the mountain was gained, he turned to her who, half dead from terror, sat motionless and with white unspeaking lips by his side. Gazing sadly and tenderly into her pallid face, he bent down and kissed her in silence; then as the descent on the farther side of the mountain was nearly reached he gently put the guiding lines into her nerveless hands; then, rising to his feet, he drew and opened his pocketknife. Again turning his eyes backward, he saw that his pursuers were less than ten yards behind the buggy.

For one brief moment Teecy remembers hearing the short, sharp snapping of fangs, the ferocious, angry growls of the fierce animals and high above all the fierce war whoop of her lover. Then a merciful unconsciousness stole over her, and she fainted. The ponies, released from a guiding hand, took the road down the mountain at breakneck speed while she lay motionless. Fortunately the way, though steep, is not rough, and the buggy did not upset. The team continued on its mad flight until it reached the dwelling of Dr. Milroy, a distance of seven miles. The doctor succeeded in stopping the team and rescuing poor Teecy, who was in a pitiable condition.

A rescue party was organized as soon as she was able to falter out her fearsome story. A gruesome sight greeted them upon reaching the scene of the tragedy. Blackie's body, mangled almost beyond recognition, was still warm, but life was quite extinct. Both [illegible]

When Doctors Were Slaves.

Romans of means had physicians in their own houses. These men were slaves, for, odd as it seems, many Roman slaves were accomplished in literature, art and science. At one time the selling price of a slave doctor was about the equivalent of $300 in our money.

After the time of Julius Cæsar, who encouraged physicians, the art began to "lift its head" in Rome, and later men of character and position, though generally foreigners, entered the profession. Some of them accumulated large fortunes, and one made the equivalent of at least $500,000 in a few years.

A Leveler.

Young Hopeful—I bet if I had a goat and a wagon they would.—Judge.

Then He Took Another.

Comfort Brown—Don't you think it nonsensical—all this kissing under the mistletoe?

Thomas Tubbs—Sure thing! But a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men—and women!

The Real Thing.

"This," said the young Benedict, who was just realizing that he had caught a Tartar, "is what I call real married life."

"I'm glad you're satisfied with something," she snapped.

"Oh, I'm not. I merely meant to inform you that it is not ideal."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Why She Liked Him.

"Why do you like Harry?" asked one fair maid of another. "He kisses you most awkwardly, I've noticed."

"That's just why I like him," was the quick retort. "If he went about it in a graceful manner I would know he had been practicing before he met me."

Mistaken.

"I suppose you thought you were fishing when you caught me?" growled the man who is always disagreeable.

"Well, I used to think so," sighed his little wife, "but now I know I must have been bear hunting."

A Tough Rawhide Story.

A Hopkins man in an early day, relates that most veracious of all Missouri newspapers, the Hopkins Journal, houled lots of cord wood and used rawhide harness on his teams. Rawhide, we all know, expands when wet and contracts on drying out. Well, this man was hauling an exceptionally big load one day when a thunderstorm overtook him just as he reached a long hill leading to his home. He was walking beside his team that he might pay close attention to them and did not notice what the rain was doing for his rawhide harness until the top of the long hill was reached, when to his utter amazement the wagon stood at the bottom of the hill, the rawhide tugs being fairly stretched into fiddle strings. He was puzzled for a moment, but just then the sun came out, and a happy idea found lodgment in his fertile brain. He unhitched the team, fastened the tugs securely around a big tree and went in to dinner. When he returned the sun had caused the rawhide to contract sufficiently to bring the wagon up that steep hill with a momentum that smashed both front wheels when it came in contact with the tree around which the tugs had been fastened.

How Cigar Dealers Lose Custom.

"This may be a good cigar," said a man as he puffed at it, standing for a moment in the shop, "but I don't seem to relish it. Guess my stomach's a trifle off."

"That's just the way it is," remarked the philosophic tobacconist. "About 200 persons come into this store every day. Some of them spend $10 a week with me for cigars, and others don't spend $2. I lose a certain amount of the trade every week not because I keep inferior goods, but when smokers get a bit out of condition and the cigars don't taste as good as usual they will blame the cigars, and off they go to another shop.

"But it works about the same way with all. My dissatisfied customers go to some other man's store, and other men's dissatisfied customers come to me. So it evens up in the end. Out of every ten strangers who drop in here for the first time to buy a cigar I know by experience that I can count on one or two of them becoming regulars."—New York Press.

Thin Lips Better Than Thick.

In order to articulate well one must be able to move the lips with the greatest facility. A person with thick lips cannot move them quickly; there is too much of them, and the muscles which move them are clogged and have no fair chance of performing their work. Thin lips are easily worked, so as to allow the mouth to be quite free for the emission of the sounds that make words; and consequently the possessor of them can speak fluently. A mustache and a beard which covers the under lip to the mouth are both a hindrance to clear speaking. They impede the articulation in the same way as thick lips, and the words get partly lost.

The Ingenious Magpie.

The magpie is nothing if not ingenious. He always barricades his bulky nest with thorn branches, so that to plunder it is by no means an easy matter, but when circumstances oblige the "pie" to build in a low bush or hedge—an absence of lofty trees being a marked feature of some northern localities—he not only interlaces his home, but also the entire bush, in a most formidable manner. Nor does he stop here. To "make assurance doubly sure" he fashions a means of exit as well as an entrance to the castle, so that if disturbed he can slip out by his back door, as it were.

An Odd Gypsy Custom.

In Hungary, when the question of the baby's future comes up for discussion among the gypsies, there is no time wasted in argument. A blanket is held by the four corners and the baby is thrown into the air. If it comes down on its little stomach it is a sign that it is going to be a musician; if it falls on its back it is to be a thief, and the education of the child is begun as soon as possible in one of these two time honored professions.

Press On.

"Press on" solves the problem of all heroes. It is the rule by which to judge of all wonderful success and all triumphal marches to fortune and honor. If should be the motto of all—"Press on." Never despair. Never allow yourself to be discouraged, however stormy the heavens or dark the way or heavy the difficulties or repeated the failures.

Your Heart
May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.
One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise. Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs.
Some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.
No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.
If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good; as it is a special tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system.
Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good. If it doesn't—your money back.
"I was afflicted with heart trouble for three years. I would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though shot. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked; and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state. Not finding relief from this source, I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years."—MRS. JOHN DRESBACK, Leipsic, O.

Shorty Long's Escape.

"There used to be a cigar store round the corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street," said an old timer, "where they had a wooden Indian which stood on a platform during the day, but was always taken in at night to save it from mutilation by the boys about the neighborhood. Shorty Long was one of the well known characters of the town, an all round good fellow, who was always out for fun. On one occasion he started a hurrah on Fifth avenue near Smithfield street and was pursued by the police, who gave him a hot chase down the avenue and were in a fair way to overhaul him when he rounded the corner and sprang on the box where the Indian was to be found during the day. There he took a position as much like that of the wooden chief as possible, and as he posed with outstretched arm the bluecoated guardian of the peace galloped past and disappeared down Diamond alley. While the cause of all the trouble left his pedestal and started out for some fresh amusement."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Swearing Spoils Horses.

The horse does not like a nervous, fidgety, fussy or irritable man. He is too nervous and irritable himself, says Country Life in America.

"Why is it," one teamster was heard to ask another, "that Phil's horses are always gaunt? Phil feeds well." "Yes, was the reply, "but he's like a wasp around a horse."

A well known owner of race horses, not at all a sentimental person, recently made an order forbidding his employes to talk in loud tones or to swear in the stable. "I have never yet seen a good mannered horse," he says, "that was being sworn at all the time. It hurts the feelings of a sensitive horse and I'll keep my word good to discharge any man in my employ if I catch him swearing within the hearing of any horse in this stable."

The Streets of Amsterdam.

Amsterdam, in Holland, a city of ten miles in circumference, is mostly built on piles driven into the sandy subsoil, but the flowing of the tide and the debris of the Amstel river have made ninety islands, and the city has more canals than streets. The watery ways are traversed by over 300 bridges, so that Amsterdam has earned the designation of the Venice of the North.

The Woman Must Speak.

Mr. Skrap—There's just this about it. It is impossible for us to live together and not quarrel.

Mrs. Skrap—There is no possibility of our quarreling if neither of us speaks.

Mr. Skrap—Of course; but, as I say, it isn't possible for us to live together and not quarrel.—Philadelphia Press.

Brides Prized.

To us it seems a curious whim on the part of our ancestors of the eighteenth century that in their marriage announcements they should so often choose and with such seeming complacency to enlighten the world with regard to the amount of fortune received with the brides. Here are two cases in point: "Mr. James Coutts of Jeffry's Sq., marchant, to Miss Peagrum of Knightsbridge, £30,000." "W. Smith, gentleman, of the 2d Troop of Horse Guards, to Mrs. Ann Gardiner, a maiden lady, aged, 'tis said, near 70, with a fortune of £20,000."—Chambers' Journal.

Webster's Tiresome Habit.

Senator Hoar in his "Reminiscences" says that Daniel Webster had a tiresome habit in his public speeches of groping after the most suitable word after this fashion: "Why is it, Mr. Chairman, that there has gathered, congregated; this great number of inhabitants, dwellers, here; that these roads, avenues, routes of travel, highways, converge, meet, come together here?" When the speech was printed all the synonyms but the best one would be left out.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and need attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root will set your whole system right, and the best proof of this is a trial.

14 East 120th St., New York City.
Dear Sir: Oct. 15th, 1903.

"I had been suffering severely from kidney trouble. All symptoms were on hand; my former strength and power had left me; I could hardly drag myself along. Even my mental capacity was giving out, and often I wished to die. It was then I saw an advertisement of yours in a New York paper, but would not have paid any attention to it, had it not promised a sworn guarantee with every bottle of your medicine, asserting that your Swamp-Root is [illegible] vegetable, and does not contain any harmful [illegible]. I am seventy [illegible] and four months old, and with a good conscience I can recommend Swamp-Root to all sufferers from kidney troubles. Four members of my family have been using Swamp-Root for four different kidney diseases, with the same good results."

With many thanks to you, I remain,
Very truly yours,
[illegible] BERNER.

You may have a sample bottle of this famous kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, sent free by mail, postpaid, by which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, poor digestion, being obliged to pass your water frequently night and day smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—So successful is Swamp-Root in promptly curing even the most distressing cases of kidney, liver or bladder troubles, that to prove its wonderful merits, you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the ………………

TWO KINDS OF LAW.

One for Law-Abiding Citizens and the Other Generous-Spirited Neighbors.

Georgia has a law intended to induce stock-owners to keep their animals in their own fields, says the Atlanta Constitution. When a farmer finds his neighbor's cattle in his corn, instead of sending them to the pound or shooting them he puts them in his own corral, and when the owner comes for them, charges him 50 cents a head to pay for the trespass.

It happened that when the law was under discussion two neighbors were very violent, the one in favor of it, the other against it. After the law had been passed the cattle of the man who had opposed it got into the other man's field and were captured. Their owner went for them.

"As I am a law-abiding citizen," said the other farmer, "and as there are 14 cattle, it will cost you seven dollars."

The man whose cattle had been impounded was indignant, but he paid the bill. A little later he captured his neighbor's cattle in his field. Wallet in pocket, the owner of the cows rode over to get them.

"Well," he demanded, "how much do I owe you?"

"Not a cent," replied the other. "I may not be a law-abiding citizen, but I'm a neighbor."

A Dentist's Advice.

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 25th.—Mr. Harry L. Lewis, Dentist, 607 Sumit street, this city, says: "I certainly advise anyone no matter how severe they may have Kidney Trouble to take Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was troubled with Kidney Disease for several years and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. I had used many so-called remedies without any benefit. Four months ago, I was flat on my back with this painful trouble and must say that I almost gave up hopes of ever getting any better. Through a friend's advice I purchased six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"At first I could see but little benefit, but after two weeks, I could see an improvement; I had been getting up several times at night and pains in my back were very severe. When I had taken six boxes I felt better than I had for years. The pain had all gone and I didn't have to get up during the night at all. I continued the treatment until I had used several more boxes, and now I am glad to say that I am completely cured."

Thought It Was Spiled.

They were a party of people from "up state," and nothing in the big city interested them so much as the great ships at the docks. They had been wandering joyfully over the deck of a four-master just about to clear with coal for an eastern port, and after awhile one of the women found an open hatch.

"Come here!" she called excitedly to her nearest companion, with the air of one who has made a discovery. "Look! Look! Just think! She's holler!"—Youth's Companion.

gives to Salzer's Oats its heartiest endorsement. Salzer's New National Oats yielded in 1903 from 150 to 300 bu. per acre in 30 different States, and you, Mr. Farmer, can beat this in 1904, if you will. Salzer's seeds are pedigree seeds, bred up through careful selection to big yields.

	Per Acre.
Salzer's Beardless Barley yielded	121 bu.
Salzer's Home Builder Corn…	300 bu.
Speltz and Macaroni Wheat….	80 bu.
Salzer's Victoria Rape……….	60,000 lbs.
Salzer's Teosinte; the fodder wonder ………………	160,000 lbs.
Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass…	50,000 lbs.
Salzer's Pedigree Potatoes…..	1,000 bu.

Now such yields pay and you can have them, Mr. Farmer, in 1904.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was poor, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After reading one of your advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and besides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. MINNESOTA NEWS.

Squirrels and Nuts.

Henry Randsome of Derrynane township was in Le Sueur with nine and one-half bushels of walnuts for sale, which his boys discovered in a large hollow elm tree they had cut down for firewood.

The tree stood apart from others, and near Mr. Randsome's grove of walnut trees. It was a windy day when the tree was felled, and the snow lying on the ground was quite deep. There were no signs of squirrels about when the boys commenced work, but when the tree fell, as it did, under the pressure of the wind soon after the boys commenced sawing, it shattered with a fall, and in a moment the snow was fairly alive with red squirrels that were squirming and struggling on and just beneath the surface.

The three boys, who had two dogs with them, attacked the little animals that they so unceremoniously turned out of their winter home, and killed sixty-three of them.

Binding Twine.

Prison-made binding twine will be sold to the farmers of Minnesota during the coming season at prices one-half cent lower than those charged last year.

The output for this year will be 9,000,000 pounds, 2,000,000 more than last year. It is estimated that the 9,000,000 pounds of twine turned out by the prison factory will save the farmers of Minnesota $315,000 on the regular market price of other twine.

Warden Wolfer, and the members of the state board of control, met and fixed the following prices for the various grades of twine for the ensuing year: Sisal, 500 feet to the pound, 8¼c; standard, same weight, 8¼c; standard manila, 550 feet, 9 cents; next manila, 600 feet, 10 cents; pure manila, 650 feet, 11 cents.

Big Victory.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, received word that Minnesota's claim to thirty-six acres of swamp land on the Mesaba range has been granted by Commissioner W. A. Richards of the United States general land office. Mr. Iverson says that the tract probably contains 2,000,000 tons of iron ore, on which the state will receive a royalty of $500,000.

Title to this tract was contested by Wisconsin claimants, who filed forestry scrip on it. Minnesota claimed it under the swamp laws of 1800. E. S. Warner, United States surveyor general, sustained the claim of the state, holding that the land is swamp according to the filed notes of the United States surveyors and therefore the property of Minnesota. The case was then appealed to the United States commissioner of the general land office.

Copper and Gold.

The discovery of gold on the Olaf Johnson farm in the Pine Lake hills, south of Swanville, has caused everyone owning land in the vicinity to turn prospector, and as a consequence some astonishing descoveries are being made.

There cannot be no doubt that gold has been found. However, not much can be accomplished in the way of proving the extent of the discoveries, until spring weather will permit fo more thoro investigations.

State Expenses.

The state auditor issued warrants for the December expenses of the following state institutions: School for the feeble-minded at Faribault, $8,056.32; state prison at Stillwater, $5,519.29; Owatonna public school $2,238.19; school for the blind at Faribault, $1,536.93; Moorhead normal school, $959.10; Winona normal, $734.69; Duluth normal, $550.28; Mankato normal, $512.60; St. Cloud normal, $?70.96.

Bold Thief.

Disguised an an electrician repairing wires, a thief giving his name as Welch, got away with checks amounting to $625 and $100 in cash belonging to the Institute of the Sacred Heart at Duluth. The thief entered the secretary's office on the second floor and, working among some books and boxes under a writing desk, found the tin cash box containing a negotiable check for $600, another for $25 and about $100 in money, gold and silver currency.

Appointments.

Gov. S. R. Van Sant re-appointed W. W. P. McConnell as a member of the state live stock and sanitary board for a period of six years, and also made the following appointments:

Dr. A. P. Graves, Brainerd; Dr. A. G. Stoddard, Fairfax, and Wm. Davis, St. Paul, members of the state medical examiners' board for a period of three years. Dr. Holman of Duluth was appointed to the state dental board for a period of three years.

News Notes.

Parties contemplate starting a national bank at Belle Plaine.

Chicago will not play football games with West Point and Minnesota next fall. This statement was made by Coach Stagg.

A box car merchant has been arrested at Rochester on complaint of the dairy and food commission on a charge of selling lemon extract containing wood alcohol. The case will be heard Jan. 25.

The new primary law may shut Minnesota out of representation at the Republican national convention.

The state dairy and food commissioner arranges for a series of farmers' meetings to be held in the southern part of the state.

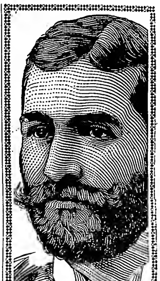
Winona county had a genuine prize fight. It was pulled off at Lewiston, a small village about fifteen miles from Winona, and there was an attendance of about fifty local "sports."

The seventh wolf shot in the city limits of Minneapolis, was brought into the city clerk's office by its slayer for the bounty of $7.50.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Other Prominent Physicians Use and Endorse Pe-ru-na.



Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Medical Examiner United States Treasury.

DR. LLEWELLYN Jordan, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

A constantly increasing number of physicians prescribe Peruna in their practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so-called patent medicines and recommend it to their patients.

Peruna occupies a unique position in medical science. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession to-day. Catarrh, as everyone will admit, is the cause of one-half the disease which afflicts mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of United States.

Robert R. Roberts, M. D., Washington, D. C., writes:

"Through my own experience as well as that of many of my friends and acquaintances who have been cured or relieved of catarrh by the use of Hartman's Peruna, I can confidently recommend it to those suffering from such disorders, and have no hesitation in prescribing it to my patients."—Robert R. Roberts.

Dr. R. Robbins, Muskogee, I. T., writes:

"Peruna is the best medicine I know of for coughs and to strengthen a weak stomach and to give appetite. Besides prescribing it for catarrh, I have ordered it for weak and debilitated people, and have not had a patient but said it helped him. It is an excellent medicine and it fits so many cases.

"I have a large practice, and have a chance to prescribe your Peruna. I hope you may live long to do good to the sick and the suffering."

Dr. M. C. Gee, writes from 513 Jones St., San Francisco, Cal.:

"Peruna has performed so many wonderful cures in San Francisco that I am convinced that it is a valuable remedy. I have frequently advised its use for women, as I find it insures regular and painless menstruation, cures leucorrhœa and ovarian troubles, and builds up the entire system. I also consider it one of the finest catarrh remedies I know of."—M. C. Gee, M. D.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does.

Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

PARTY LINE TELEPHONE.

A Squabble Between Subscribers That Was Settled Very Speedily and Amicably.

Washington has thousands of party line telephones. The best of feeling does not always prevail between those on the party lines when both want to use the 'phone at the same time, says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. A prominent politician is on a party line with a doctor. He was in great haste to get a friend over the 'phone and began ringing and shouting "hello." The other subscriber wanted to use his telephone at the same time, with the result they were soon saying harsh things to each other.

"Who are you," demanded the politician.

"I'm Dr. Blank," was the answer.

"Oh, pardon me, doctor, you can have the line. If it weren't for you I couldn't make a living."

"Well, who are you?" asked the doctor.

"I'm Jones, the undertaker," was the answer.

Billion Dollar Grass and Alfalfa.

When we introduced this remarkable grass three years ago, little did we dream it would be the most talked of grass in America, the biggest, quick, hay producer on earth, but this has come to pass.

Agr. Editors wrote about it, Agr. College Professors lectured about it, Agr. Institute Orators talked about it, while in the farm house by the quiet fireside, in the corner grocery, in the village post-office, at the creamery, at the depot, in fact wherever farmers gathered, Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass, that wonderful grass, good for 5 to 14 tons per acre, and lots of pasture besides, is always a theme worthy of the farmer's voice.

A. Walford, Westlore Farms, Pa., writes: "I have 60 acres in Salzer's Alfalfa Clover. It is immense. I cut three crops this season and have lots of pasture besides."

DOINGS OF A WEEK

What Has Happened Throughout the Civilized World.

A WEEK'S NEWS CONDENSED

A Complete Review of the Happenings of the Past Seven Days in This and All Foreign Lands.

GIVEN IN THE PRESS DISPATCHES

CONGRESS AT WORK.

Daily Proceedings of the Senate and House Briefly Told.

The senate on the 26th further discussed the Panama question and passed a bill providing for the construction of a memorial bridge across the Potomac river from Washington to the Arlington estate, to cost $5,000,000. In the house Mr. Boutell (Ill.) spoke for nearly two hours in reply to Mr. Williams' (Miss.) "stand pat" speech of a few days ago. Mr. Williams replied to Mr. Boutell. The speeches were made while the urgent deficiency bill was under consideration.

The senate proceedings on the 27th included a speech by Senator Simmons (N. C.) in suport of the Panama canal treaty and the passage of a bill granting 50,000 acres of public land each in the states of Idaho and Wyoming for the maintenance of soldiers' homes. In the house general debate on the urgent deficiency bill digressed to a discussion of political topics, the race question and aerial navigation. A bill was introduced allowing eight dollars to each soldier who served 90 days and is now 62 years old, $10 a month if 66 years old and $12 a month if 70 years old.

The time of the senate on the 28th was devoted to debate on the attitude of the United States toward the Panama revolution. A bill to prevent the desecration of the American flag was favorably reported. In the house the urgent deficiency bill was further discussed. Bills were introduced appropriating $100,000 for a statue of Abraham Lincoln in the city of Washington; prohibiting the incorporation by states of corporations to engage in business outside of the state; extending the thanks of congress to the people of Wisconsin for the statue of Marquette in statuary hall in the capitol.

DOMESTIC.

The cold wave has checked the floods in Ohio and the east, and no further danger is in sight at present.

The Ohio legislature adopted a resolution making the scarlet carnation the state flower.

Owing to the falling of the cage in a mine at Victor, Col., 15 men were killed.

The first cut has been made in steamship rates across the Atlantic, and a general rate war is promised.

The president has named members of the supreme court, other jurists and certain senators and representatives as delegates to the universal congress of lawyers in St. Louis in September.

New York laboring men at a dinner given by Rev. H. Roswell Bates, Presbyterian, told him wage earners were indifferent to the church.

Depressed by business reverse, Carl Corper, president of the Corper Brewing company, Chicago, killed himself.

The state department has a representative in Europe seeking to effect an international agreement on silver coinage.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Brown, of Reinbeck, Ia., were found in the hills near Pendleton, Ore. A note found said they were tired of life and had agreed to die together.

At Bellingham, Wash., Frank A. Gotch, of Humboldt, Ia., won the wrestling match for the championship of the world with Tom Jenkins, of Cleveland, O.

John Mitchell was reelected president of the United Mine Workers at the Indianpolis convention without opposition.

Three theaters in Chicago can comply easily with the new amended ordinance and probably will be open within a week.

A minister, his wife and two children were killed by a passenger train at Carry, Wis.

Alderman John J. Brennan's petition in Chicago for release on a writ of habeas corpus was denied and he was returned to the bridewell to serve one year.

Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Caily and two of their children were killed by a Northwestern train near Crystal Lake, Ill.

Mayor Harrison, by order of Judge Tuthill in habeas corpus proceedings, was discharged from the custody of the sheriff in Chicago.

Former Gov. Taft of the Philippines was enthusiastically welcomed on his arrival at Washington and Secretary Root formally greeted his successor.

Twenty indictments were voted by the grand jury against officers and members of Chicago trade unions on charges of assault, riot and conspiracy.

William E. Brockway, aged 81, "king of counterfeiters," was released from state's prison at Trenton, N. J., after serving a term of ten years.

Over 80 bodies have been recovered from the mine at Cheswick, Pa., where an explosion occurred.

Harry Behr was arrested in Louisville, Ky., charged with the murder of Miss Sarah C. Schafer, the Bedford (Ind.) school teacher.

President Harper in an address to University of Chicago seniors declared that the institution is not Baptist.

Thousands of cattle and sheep are dying in southern California as a result of a drouth.

The number of bodies thus far rescued from the Allegheny Coal company's mines at Cheswick, Pa., total 103, and 80 are still in the mine.

A collision of extra freights at Broken Bow, Neb., caused the death of three trainmen and a passenger.

Atlanta, Ga., had the heaviest snowfall ever known.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a dinner at the white house to the justices of the United States supreme court.

Fire destroyed three lumber yards at North Tonawanda, N. Y., causing a total loss of $225,000.

Mr. Walbridge was born in 1849, at Madrid, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. His father was a Methodist minister, who emigrated to the west in 1854. Young Walbridge graduated from the law department of Michigan university, and was admitted to the bar in St. Louis in 1876. In 187[illegible] he became connected with a large drug house, of which he is now the president. He has been an alderman, and from 1893 to 1897 was mayor of St. Louis.

MINES IN CALIFORNIA.

Only Three Counties Out of the Entire Array of Fifty-Seven Make No Showing.

There are only three California counties out of the entire array of 57 that will not make a showing in the statistics of mineral output for the year 1902. Several of the counties that are discovered to have mineral wealth are not represented by large figures of actual production. That is according to expectation. But, considering the area of this state, says the San Francisco Call, its length and breadth, there is no country on earth that can be shown to be as uniformly mineralized throughout practically its entire extent. Among the surprises contained in the statistics to be submitted by the state mining bureau will be the [illegible] value of the total output of petroleum in California for 1902. The production was very large, but when the price at the wells ranges from 15 to 25 cents a barrel for fuel oil it does not, comparatively speaking, require large figures to show what it sold for in total in the market. The total gold output for two counties far surpasses the value in the market of all the oil produced in the state during the year of 1902. While the price of oil has continued to be low, the value of silver, which is of great interest in Pacific coast camps, has continued to rise. The government followed the market from 40 cents to 55 cents in its purchases for the Philippine coinage. Then it stopped. Millions of dollars worth of bullion will be required by the government before the Philippine coinage bill provisions are fully carried out. At the present price of silver many silver mining camps can produce at a profit.

WHERE HEBREW IS SPOKEN.

Two Societies Exist in New York City for Its Preservation as a Live Language.

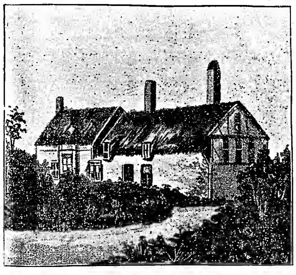
To those who think of Hebrew as a dead language, it will be a surprise to learn that there are a number of societies in this city whose affairs are conducted in classic Hebrew, says the New York Post. The two most important of these organizations are the Ohole Shem association and the Mephitzay Sfas Eber. In the former the older element predominates; in the latter the young people.

The great movement among Hebraists in Russia to rejuvenate the Hebrew speech and promote its literature found a ready and willing response from a few young men and women, residents of the East Side, who, about a year and a half ago, organized the Mephitzay Sfas Eber (Hebrew Culture society). [illegible] continually increasing membership [illegible] numbers about 170. The society meets every Sunday evening at eight o'clock in the Educational Alliance, and demonstrates that the Hebrew language is a living tongue, for all business and literary discussions are carried on in the classic diction of the prophets. The society has opened classes for the instruction of Hebrew in English, which have proved to be very successful. Recently it conceived the idea of uniting all Hebrew-speaking organizations of this country into a federation similar to the French federation in the United States. It is now agitating this idea.

Singular Event.

A singular scene was presented recently in Torquay, England. A local magistrate, passing a well-lighted house, saw a footman clutching the gate, while his body writhed in an extraordinary manner. He called out that he could not withdraw his hands and the magistrate went to his aid. As soon as he laid his hand upon the gate he found himself struggling against a succession of violent electric shocks. Not until the lights had been extinguished in the house were the two men released. A leakage from the mains is held responsible for the occurrence.

ANN HATHAWAY'S COTTAGE IN NEEDLEWORK.



The once fashionable art of embroidering pictures has been revived by Miss Fryer, a London woman, of whose work the London Queen gives the above example. The needle painting, for it quite merits the name of such, is executed on fine white silk, the subject being suggested by some sketch or engraving. The sky is touched in with water color, the different objects in the picture are indicated by a dot or so, but are rendered with wonderful fidelity. Pictures of this style of embroidery make extremely pretty and appropriate mountings for the pole screens, or, indeed, any of the small screens which are so popular nowadays.

WE do not know it all about who is to be the next nominee of the republican party, for the next governor of Minnesota, but we do know, that Hon. F. M. Eddy has a large number of friends in this neck of the woods, that will use their vote where it will do the most good, when they are called on to vote.

The desision of the supreme court liberating Dr. A. A. Ames, ex-mayor of Minneapolis from what has been considered a sure road to the Stillwater prison, meets with the approvel of the majority of the people, who have taken an interest in the trial of that celebrated case. The whole case has the apperence of being a radiculus political farc, by inteligent people, in which the supreme court have taken an active part. However their method of disposing of the case by setting aside the judgement of the lower court is preferable to granting him a new trial, and prolonging his and the public agony

WE are not advocating the suicidal practice of sending away for thoes things which can be purchased as ecconomicall at home, but it is certainly unfair to expect buyers to secure a search warrant and hunt around upon your shelves for those things which are attractively brought to their attention by others. The supply houses and department stores believe in publicity, practice it, and reap a rich reward but their reward, but their [illegible] would not be as great if local merchants were more alive to their interests, and less afraid to invest a few dollars at home in good live printers ink.—McIntosh Times.

A Madman's Delusion.

Dean Pigou tells the following story of a brilliant man who lost his mind temporarily through overwork and was confined in an English asylum: "His delusion was that his stomach was full to repletion of rats. There was no room for anything else. Hood said to me, 'Go and talk with him and lead up to the subject of rats.' I found him, as is very common, perfectly sane on every subject but this. After some conversation I said to him, feigning not to know who he was: 'You seem to be a very well informed man. Have you given your attention to natural history, because I notice that the question is being discussed as to whether the species of the genus rat called the Norwegian still exists?' Instantly he replied, 'Oh, certainly,' and unbuttoning his dress, said, 'Every known species of rat, sir, is here in my stomach,' and, localizing the rat with his finger, said: 'Here in this part of my stomach is a Norwegian rat. You can assure your friends that as long as I am alive no species can die!' Under the kind and humane treatment of Bethlehem he was soon at work again and had, of course, no recollection of his delusion."

Reading In Bed.

Commenting upon the recent discussion of the habit of reading in bed, American Medicine concludes that if the position is literally prone the habit is bad, because in such a position the eyes are fixed upon the book in a straining and harmful way and the book cannot be sufficiently illuminated.

But if one sits propped up by pillows, in much the same position of the head and trunk as when in a chair, there can be no evil consequences, provided a good rich light is rightly placed behind and at one side of the head.

The greatest argument for reading in bed is that the attention is not distracted by the discomfort of the body, the noises and interruptions usual at other times. Let one take an erect position of the body and head, be assured he has a good oculist and that his light is strong, white, steady and properly placed. He may then read with impunity until drowsiness cautions him to stop.

Long Range Prayer.

The Swiss mountaineers have a custom of calling through speaking trumpets at dusk each evening, "Praise the Lord God!" This call may be started by one herdsman and is answered by others from neighboring peaks, the sound being much prolonged as it reverberates from one mountain to another. After a short interval, supposedly devoted to prayer, a herdsman calls in the same manner, "Good night!" this, too, being repeated by his fellows. Then all retire to their huts. The impressiveness of these calls, echoing and re-echoing from rock and mountain to mountain, can easily be [illegible]

An Arctic Tragedy

Terrible Sufferings of the Greely Expedition Recalled.

Nineteen of the Party of Twenty-five Found Graves in the North--Rescue of the Survivors.

Sergeant Julius R. Frederick, arctic explorer and member of the Greely expedition, who died at his home in Indianapolis the other day, was one of the six survivors of the Greely arctic expedition sent out in 1881 and rescued by the Thetis and Bear under command of Captain, now Rear Admiral, W. S. Schley.

On the return of the survivors charges of cannibalism were made against them, but for more than eighteen years no one of them said a word in explanation. Finally in November, 1901, Sergeant Frederick told something of the experiences of the Greely party, justified in the eating of dead human bodies by men in the position of himself and the other survivors, but did not declare explicitly that such a practice had actually existed. Sergeant Frederick preserved his strength much longer than the rest and when practically all hope was abandoned, together with a comrade who perished in the effort, made an attempt to bring from a distant post a small supply of provisions cached there. This attempt failed owing to the death of Sergeant Rice, his companion on the trip.

RICE'S FORM BECAME RIGID.

"Twenty-five men left happy and prosperous homes," said Sergeant Frederick when at last he told of the sufferings of the expedition, "and sailed for the Land of the Midnight Sun to procure for their country the envied place in the world of knowledge for which others had striven and lost. Six haggard, ravenous beasts returned. Nineteen men found graves in the north. The sufferings and heroism of the members of the expedition have been set forth, but the truth cannot all be told—words are inadequate. Even yet I have a perfect mental picture that I cannot blot from my mind. I see myself, with twenty-four comrades, huddled together in the bleak shelter of a pile of stones. Before us rises a great hillock of ice, round which the wind shrieks in fury, never abating. At our backs and sheltered from our view by the little barrier of stones is the roaring ocean, floe dotted and foam crested. We are wet to the skin. Heedless of posture, we huddle together, trying to warm our numbed bodies.

"In August, 1881, Lieutenant Greely's command was conveyed to Lady Franklin bay by the steam whaler Proteus for the purpose of establishing one of the two meteorological stations to be fitted out and maintained by the United States under the direction of the signal service, in accordance with the agreement with the international meteorological congress. Lady Franklin bay was the most northern point attainable with safety and accessible to support and relief. The terrible disaster that befell the Greely party was due wholly to the miscarriage of the relief. The unsuccessful attempt of the Neptune to reach Fort Conger or Lady Franklin bay in 1882 and again in 1883 and the double failure of the Proteus and the Yantic to penetrate the ice made matters indeed serious for the men with Greely. It was not until the following year that an expedition, consisting of two ships, the Thetis and the Bear, was fitted out and sailed from New York for Lady Franklin bay.

"But all this time what were the twenty-five men of the Greely party doing? How were they maintaining life and keeping alive the hope in their breasts? For the first year all went well. We completed the work mapped out for the first year by the time the provisions and supplies were scheduled to arrive. But the ship never came. Our prospects, however, were not alarming. After the 'farthest north' expedition, under the command of Lieutenant J. B. Lockwood, had made its dash for the pole and returned with the greatest difficulty to its base, still no relief expedition appeared.

"We went into a rudely constructed camp on Cape Sabine. Although it was the best place we could find, still it was exposed to the full sweep of the arctic winds. We had a piece of a boat that we used as wood. An old sail afforded a shelter. Some of the men were ill; others were losing their strength and abandoning hope.

"At last, in the desperation of our situation, Lieutenant Greely, realizing that extreme measures were necessary, called for volunteers to go to Baird inlet in search of the last remaining cache of provisions. Sergeant Rice and myself were selected. As for myself, I made the trip on the scanty ration of six ounces of meat doled out to me before my departure. The whole trip to me is a horrible nightmare. I see the rockbound coast yet, the dark, lowering sky and the undulating ice floe. I am kneeling by the side of my comrade, Rice, to rub his hands and call him by his name. He cannot speak; his tongue is paralyzed with the cold, but his eyes look into mine with such a beseeching, agonized expression that I turn tear blinded on the storm and curse it. The form becomes rigid, the breath leaves the body, and Rice passes away. I bury him as best I can and push on again on my way, dragging the double load to reach the men I have left in the camp on Cape Sabine.

"Supplies grew scarcer day by day. All our dogs had been sacrificed, all our cached provisions exhausted. We were subsisting on the meager nutriment that could be obtained from a broth made of dry skins that formed our garments and our bedding. Sometimes we found lichens and bird eggs. All hope of rescue was gone. Several of the men died, and we who had a little strength remaining buried them as best we could. All of us, in truth, were ill, and it was obvious that it was but a question of days before the last member of the famous Greely expedition would pass away of starvation and cold.

"People have accused us of being cannibals, of eating the flesh of our comrades. It is a horrible thought. Yet such things have been done in the history of arctic exploration, and in every case where such measures were found necessary to keep life sustained the action was justifiable. I was away from camp most of the time. I did not see human flesh eaten, and if it was I cannot say that I know it personally. We were driven to desperation, and in the nature of things to men in our situation it was not fraught with the horror that such a suggestion would bring to me today. If I were to go on another arctic expedition I would write two letters, both identical. One I would leave behind with my family; the other I would carry with me always. I would say in these: 'In case of my death on [illegible] advent of such necessity my comrades are authorized to do as they [illegible] my body. Rather than feed the fish of the sea or the fowls of the air place my body at the disposal of my comrades, to be used if necessary in prolonging their lives.'

"What sufferings we endured during the twenty-one days of that last June we spent [illegible] the fastness of the arctic night! We were all delirious. Ellison's fingers and toes were frozen off, and we were obliged to feed him like a baby. Each with his tiny bit of dry skin and his cup of warm water did all that was possible in the face of fast approaching death to cheer the drooping spirits of his comrades. On the morning of June 22 the scene changed. We felt as we lay there, regardless of the passing of the hours that it was only a question of another day before the end would come for all of us. That morning Long, stronger than the rest of us, crawled to the shore. Although it was but a short distance away, it took him hours to make the trip. When he had been gone a long time, suddenly we were aroused from our stupor by the sound of a boat's whistle. Another and another time it sounded. Then men came running round the pile of rocks and gathered us in their strong arms.

RESCUE OF THE SURVIVORS.

"The six men from the death camp on Cape Sabine lived to reach their homes. Even now as I review the tragic events of the expedition I say again that if human flesh was eaten while the men with Greely lay starving on the rocks the act was justifiable. After eighteen years I can look back and declare that if it were all to be done over again there is nothing that I would not do a second time were I once more placed in such a position as I found myself on the first day of that memorable June when hope was lost and death stared me in the face."

He is well pleased with his new location and will make his future home there.

Cheerful and Hopeful.

The men whom I have seen succeed best in life, says Charles Kingsley, have always been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces and took the changes and chances of their mortal life like men, facing rough and smooth alike as it came, and so found the truth of the old proverb that "good times and bad times and all times pass over."

Legal Eloquence.

A young lawyer concluded his argument in a case with the following sublime burst of eloquence: "If, gentlemen of the jury, the defendant's hogs are permitted to roam at large over the fair fields of my client with impunity, then—yes, then, indeed, have our forefathers fought and bled and died in vain!"

Logic.

The Hardiness of Trees.

An expert nurseryman says the hardiness or nonhardiness of trees depends largely upon where the seeds from which the trees in question sprung came from. Satisfactory results are seldom experienced by planting a seed obtained from the sunny south, say. By planting seeds generally farther north, however, trees may be at length hardened and acclimated until a seed from such a tree may be reasonably expected to thrive and mature its fruits.

Trees, like people, acquire their habits from the climate in which they live. The northern tree knows instinctively when the time has come to ripen its fruits. The southern tree follows the same instinct, being in no hurry, as there is little likelihood of real cold. With transplantings farther north its habit changes.

The great trouble with most people is that they want to jump a tree from south to north at one move. This same idea is evident in the attempt to bring various fruit trees from Russia to the Northern United States

Apples and plums from the land of the great white czar have taken kindly to the below zero conditions of the gentle Dakotas.—Philadelphia Record.

Queer Korean Ways.

The women of the community are voluble and vixenish and ever ready to slap a handful of stars into the eyes of a husband or into those of a timid and shrinking tourist should the occasion arise. The women of the upper class are rigorously excluded from masculine eyes, and a hearty vote of thanks is due the committee who fathered this unwritten law. The dainty little Japanese musmee, teetering along in sandals or on wooden geta, is a genuine relief to the eye after a view of the uncomely Korean woman.

Until Korean boys are married and acquire the pseudo dignity of the topknot their hair is worn girl fashion in twin plaits down their backs. So much do they resemble girls that it is sometimes difficult to determine the sex, and one is oftentimes uncommonly surprised to observe what he is positive are two girls sprawling and viciously fighting in a Korean street.—Outing.

A Wife's Stratagem.

A London journal tells an admirable story of beanteous Kesa, who loved her husband, but who was herself sought by her wicked and powerful cousin, Morito. Knowing that Morito would take her husband's life unless circumvented by guile, she laid a terrible plot. Summoning Morito, she told him that on a certain night her husband would be sleeping in a certain room and that she intended to unloosen his hair so that under no circumstances could he be mistaken for another man. On the night in question Morito entered the room, severed the sleeper's head with his sword and, holding it up to the moon by the hair—beheld the face of Kesa herself

The Fierce Caterpillar.

A more harmless, inoffensive creature does not crawl than the common garden caterpillar, yet this small worm will put up an appearance so fierce upon occasion as to frighten its enemies away. Soft and pulpy, with no defensive or offensive weapons, this destroyer of cabbages and lettuces will bluff itself into a veritable armored cruiser and frighten many more formidable insects into ungovernable flight. Its method of procedure is like this: Immediately anything approaches, the slow moving, fat caterpillar raises its hairy body, wags a formidable looking head and looks the essence of strength and defiance, so much so that it requires a bird of a particularly valiant disposition to attack it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Contest Notice

Department Of The Interior,
United States Land Office Crookston, Minnesota February 2, 1904. [illegible] 2644-20 8

A Sufficent contest affidavit havetng been filed in this office on Nov.10 1903, by Stephen Singer, comestant, aginst Homestead entry No.6746, made Nov. 10th 1903, at 12:55 P.M. for the S.W.¼ Sec.36 Township 150 N., R. 39 W., by William Grandlin, Contostee,in which It is alledged that at the time said entry was made of record he was an actual bona-fide settler on said land; and was claiming the land as his homestead;that he has made lasting and valuable improvements upon the said lands; which consists of a foundation for a house, a well, and other improvements;that he was the first and prior settler on said lands and that his improvements thereon, and his claim thereto was well known to those living in the vicinity of said lands;that he is in all respects a qualified homestad entry man, and a sufficient affidavit of contes haveing been filed in this office on Nov.11th 1903; by Victor Bourman,wherein it it is alleged that he did at 9 o'clock A.M.Nov.10th 1903, make settlement and improvements on said land, with the intention of takeing the same, under the homestead act;that said William Grandlin never settled upon nor inproved said land;and such settlement by affiant was prior to such entry, or any other settlement.

Said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegations at 10 o'clock A.M. on March 30th 1904 before the Register and Reciver of the United States Land Office in Crookston Minnesota.

The said contestant having in a proper affidavit filed February 2. 1904,set forth facts which show that after due and dilligent deligence personal service of this notice can not be made,it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice can not be made;it is ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.

SYLVESTER PETERSON Register,

After Long Illness.

"The plates on the table looked strange to me, though I have used them forty years. The pictures on the walls seemed to hang in new places. The very carpets had a novel coloring, as if they had been at some magic cleansing and dyeing establishment." Dear Aunt Mary was telling her favorite niece her "queer" feelings after long illness. She was unconscious that she was repeating the story that has been told by convalescents from the time of Hezekiah till the present day.

Familiar things take on a disguise to the recovering eye. Even the face of a friend bears a new depth of meaning. "Did she use to look at me with such intensity of gaze? Did she clasp my hand so warmly? Was her voice so gentle and her word so full of hope and courage before I was sick?"

To the human creature just returning to life after lingering for days at the gates of death the whole world assumes a new aspect. Even inanimate objects seem to say: "You came near leaving us forever. No wonder you forgot our shapes and colors." And the warm, conscious, loving friend bends over us and with eye and voice says "See, I love you more truly than before. I knew how I should miss you!" So after long sickness, as after a hard cold winter, the world breaks into a new and blossoming spring.—Youth's Companion.

Mozart's Musical Memory.

Mozart had a wonderful memory of musical sounds. When only fourteen years of age he went to Rome to assist in the solemnities of holy week Immediately after his arrival he went to the Sistine chapel to hear the famous "Miserere" of Allegri. Being aware that it was forbidden to take or give a copy of this renowned piece of music, Mozart placed himself in a corner and gave the strictest attention to the music and on leaving the church noted down the entire piece. A few days afterward he heard it a second time and, following the music with his own copy in his hand, satisfied himself of the fidelity of his memory. The next day he sang the "Miserere" at a concert, accompanying himself on the harpsichord, and the performance produced such a sensation in Rome that Pope Clement XIV. requested that this musical prodigy should be presented to him at once

A Reminder.

Singleton—I say, old chap, what have you that string around your finger for? Wedderly—To remind me of something I am to get for my wife. Singleton—What are you to get? Wedderly—Why—er—I've forgotten what it was.—New Yorker.

They Were Not There.

"Are these men the future husbands of our daughters?" said a matron at the afternoon swell wedding reception.

"No," said a knowing mother. "They are downtown, making a living."—Cleveland Leader.

Too Much Chin.

Gasaway—My razor's in pretty poor condition. I believe it's tired. You know, they say razors get that way. Sharply (wearily)—Ah, yes; tired of your chin.—Pittsburg Post.

For Pain

Take a Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill, and the Pain will disappear Like Magic.

Not by paralyzing the nerves and glands, like opium, morphine, cocaine, and other dangerous drugs, but by increasing the natural secretions.

This action is obtained as a result of modern discoveries in medicine, making it possible to relieve pain without bad after-effects.

You can safely depend upon Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills to relieve and cure such pains as Neuralgia, Headache, Stomachache, Menstrual Pains, Rheumatism, Backache, Toothache, etc.

They will also, by their calming action on the nerves, almost instantly relieve such distressing feelings as Dizziness, Car-Sickness, Indigestion, Irritability, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, etc.

Not merely do they relieve, but they also absolutely cure, because by persevering in their use, you do away with the cause.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are guaranteed that first package will benefit, or your money back. Never sold in bulk.

"I am thankful for the good Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have and are doing me. Ever since the war I have had spells of severe throbbing headache, caused by catarrh, until six years ago, I began taking Anti-Pain Pills, the only remedy that ever gave me relief. A Story of Whistler.

One day Whistler entered the atelier of his class in Paris and found that a red background had been arranged behind the model. At once he directed something of a duller tone to be substituted, and he scraped the red paint off the canvas of one of the pupils, putting in its place another background. But the red would show through. He scraped, studied and worked laboriously to get something that pleased him. The rest of the class surrounded the easel and eagerly watched the master. He looked up finally and said, "I suppose you know what I am trying to do?" "Oh, yes, sir!" they all chorused. "Well, it's more than I do," he replied grimly and left the place.

What Puzzled Him.

A well known clubman entered a police station and said to the sergeant, "I would like to have an interview with that burglar you arrested for breaking into my house last night." Sergeant—I don't know that I can allow you unless you first tell me what you want to see him about. Mr. Clubman—Oh, there's nothing secret about it. I just wanted to find out how he got into my house so easily; it's more than I can do at night.—Kansas City [illegible]

The Streets of Amsterdam,

Amsterdam, in Holland, a city of ten miles in circumference, is mostly built on piles driven into the sandy subsoil, but the flowing of the tide and the debris of the Amstel river have made ninety islands, and the city has more canals than streets. The watery ways are traversed by over 300 bridges, so that Amsterdam has earned the designation of the Venice of the North.

The Woman Must Speak.

Mr. Skrap—There's just this about it. It is impossible for us to live together and not quarrel.

Mrs. Skrap—There is no possibility of our quarreling if neither of us speaks.

Mr. Skrap—Of course; but, as I say, it isn't possible for us to live together and not quarrel.—Philadelphia Press.

Two Expensive Banquets.

The costliest meal ever served, according to history, was a supper given by Ælius Verus, one of the most lavish of all the Romans of the latter days, to a dozen guests. The cost was 6,000 sestertia, which would amount to $242,500. A celebrated feast given by Vitellius, a Roman emperor of those days, to his brother Lucius cost a little more than $200,000. Suetonius says that the banquet consisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 different fowls besides other courses

Brides Priced.

To us it seems a curious whim on the part of our ancestors of the eighteenth century that in their marriage announcements they should so often choose and with such seeming complacency to enlighten the world with regard to the amount of fortune received with the brides. Here are two cases in point: "Mr. James Coutts of Jeffry's Sq., merchant, to Miss Peagrum of Knightsbridge, £30,000." "W. Smith, gentleman, of the 2d Troop of Horse Guards, to Mrs. Ann Gardiner, a maiden lady, aged, 'tis said, near 70, with a fortune of £20,000."—Chambers' Journal.

Webster's Tiresome Habit.

Senator Hoar in his "Reminiscences" says that Daniel Webster had a tiresome habit in his public speeches of groping after the most suitable word after this fashion: "Why is it, Mr. Chairman, that there has gathered, congregated; this great number of inhabitants, dwellers, here; that these roads, avenues, routes of travel, highways, converge, meet, come together here?" When the speech was printed all the synonyms but the best one would be left out.

Some folks are like good natured dogs. If you pat them on the head they will jump all over you afterward.

Mrs. Haskell, Worthy Vice-Templar, Independent Order Good Templars, of Silver Lake, Mass., tells of her cure by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Four years ago I was nearly dead with inflammation and ulceration. I endured daily untold agony, and life was a burden to me. I had used medicines and washes internally and externally until I made up my mind that there was no relief for me. Calling at the home of a friend, I noticed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My friend endorsed it highly, and I decided to give it a trial to see if it would help me. It took patience and perseverance for I was in bad condition, and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nearly five months before I was cured, but what a change, from despair to happiness, from misery to the delightful exhilarating feeling health always brings. I would not change back for a thousand dollars, and your Vegetable Compound is a grand medicine.

A Late Business Call.

"Curious what men do when they're drinking," said Representative "Tim" Sullivan. "When I was in New York I heard a story about a man I know who had been out nearly all night, and was considerably the worse for wear.

"He came along a street and saw an undertaker's sign, with a night bell, just over a speaking tube. He rang the bell fiercely.

"'What is it?' yelled the undertaker down the tube. 'What do you want?'

"'Nothing in particular,' the chap replied; 'only I want to say to you that you're the last man I'll do business with.'"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Best in the World.

Estherville, Ia., Feb. 1st.—Mr. George J. Barber, of this place, says:—

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine in the world. There is nothing as good. I had been sick for over 15 years with Kidney Disease, which finally turned into Bright's Disease. I was treated by Doctors in Chicago, but they didn't do me any good. The best Doctor in Estherville treated me for five years with no better success. I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and made up my mind to give them a trial.

"I am very thankful to be able to say that they cured me completely, and I think they are the best medicine in the world."

The honest, earnest, straightforward experiences of real living men and women are the only material used in advertising Dodd's Kidney Pills. One such testimony is worth more than a thousand unsupported claims. The people who have used Dodd's Kidney Pills are those whose evidence is worth consideration, and surely nothing can be more convincing than a statement like Mr. Barber's. There are thousands of others just as strong.

FRAUDS IN A BALE OF HAY.

Frauds in Watch Cases.

According to an article in the Cincinnati Commercial, a fifty-one pound stone was recently found in that city secreted in a bale of hay of eighty pounds.

This is not as bad as finding a lump of lead of nearly one-half the weight of the solid gold watch case secreted in the center of the case.

Gold watch cases are sold by weight, and no one can see where this lead is secreted until the springs of the case are taken out and the lead will be found secreted behind them.

These cases are made by companies who profess to be honest but furnish the means to the dishonest to rob the public. It is not pleasant for anyone to find that he has lugged a lump of lead in his watch case.

Another trick the makers of spurious solid gold watch cases is to stamp the case "U. S. Assay." The United States does not stamp any article made out of gold and silver except coin, and the fakir, by using this stamp, wants to make the public believe that the government had something to do with the stamping or guaranteeing the fineness of watch cases.

Another trick of the watch fakir is to advertise a watch described as a solid gold filled watch with a twenty or twenty-five-year guarantee. These watches are generally sent C. O. D., and if the purchaser has paid for the watch, he finds that the Company which guaranteed the watch to wear is not in existence.

The Dueber-Hampden Watch Company of Canton, Ohio, who are constantly exposing these frauds, will furnish the names of the manufacturers who are in this questionable business.

Dr. Ames Wins.

Dr. A. A. Ames, ex-mayor of Minneapolis, is a free man.

The supreme court of the state has decided that he was not proven guilty of having accepted the bribe charged in the indictment, which was returned by the famous Hennepin county grand jury.

To the surprise of the majority of those who looked for a reversal of the lower court the supreme court holds that the indictment on which the mayor was tried was all right.

The opinion of the court, which is concurred in by the majority of the members, is that the indictment was properly drawn and specified a certain crime, but that the evidence in the trial did not prove Dr. Ames guilty of the crime charged.

That the case has been a hard one for the court to decide is shown by the fact that the five judges found it impossible to agree upon the same grounds.

Fire at State School.

Fire which broke forth in the roof of the main building at the state public school at Owatonna destroyed the interior of the north wing and part of the central portion of the structure.

The flames are believed to have originated from a defective furnace flue and probably had burned sometime before they had been discovered.

Facilities being poor for fighting the fire help from the city was called by telephone. The message was misunderstood, and a run was made to the eastern part of the city, a mile and a half away. When finally reached the fire was beyond control.

The south wing, children's dining-room and the kitchen were damaged by smoke. All the school furniture was saved, the Engineer Balch and his wife lost all their property.

Nineteen babies domiciled in the south wing were removed safely.

Butter Contest.

A large number of buttermakers of Minnesota have agreed to enter a national butter scoring contest which will be held in Chicago under the direction of the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture and the National Dairy association. Commissioner McConnell of the state dairy and food commission received word from Secretary E. Sudendorf of the national association that 500 buttermakers in the United States have agreed to enter the contest and that Minnesota contributes the largest number of entries of all states.

There will be six scoring tests, the first two of which will be held at Chicago and the last four at Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis. The first two scorings will be held in February and March. Minnesota has won three national butter scoring contests in succession.

Rewarded.

"You'll die if you close that safe door" said A. Thompson, janitor of the College Inn, Minneapolis, as he pointed a revolver at Miss Edith Brown, cashier and bookkeeper of the Inn.

"Than I'll die," replied the plucky maiden and she slammed the door and threw the combination.

The janitor who resumed the role of safe cracker, fled, and now the plucky maiden is wearing a beautiful $100 diamond ring which was presented to her by Slattery, Lubby and company, proprietors of the Inn, as a mark of appreciation of her bravery.

Will Not Hang.

The Nelson boys will not hang.

Their sentence of death was commuted by the state board of pardons to one of life imprisonment, and they are now at Stillwater.

The crime for which Henry and Charles Nelson must spend the remainder of their lives in prison was the brutal murder of Henry Krier at Owatonna. The boys have little to say regarding the commutation of their sentence, but are glad to be allowed to live.

Butter Scores.

The state dairy and food department announced the following prize winners in the third monthly butter contest:

First prize, $5—H. J. Rosenau, Meriden, Steele county; score, 97.

Second prize, $3—M. G. Koepsell, Ridgeway, Winona county; score, 96½.

Third prize, $2—F. W. Steinke, Comfrey, Brown county; score, 96¼.

There were 110 contestants, and the average score was about 92. C. J. Haug of Elmore got a score of 96, thus being a close contestant for the third place.

News Notes.

Chicago, Great Western earnings for the second week in January show an increase of $11,873.

Carl Miller, cashier of the Bank of Dlerz, is missing, and his friends are unable to find him. His books were checked over prior to his leaving and found to be right.

Martin Kuehler has been appointed special officer of the Humane society at Winona, to succeed Mr. Schwegel.

The Clay county bank, at Felton, has closed its doors under peculiar circumstances. It is estimated that the assets are about $36,000, with liabilities of only $3,000.

The Lydia Co-operative Creamery association held its annual meeting and elected the following officers: President, W. J. Casey; treasurer, Edward Dubbe; directors, O. R. Borchardt, O. W. Mueller and Aug. Timmermann.

Owing to the decrease in the bicycle craze, the receipts of the city clerk of Minneapolis have fallen off during the last year to the extent of $3,000.

Spicer is to have a new bank. The safe and fixtures have been purchased and a location secured. J. L. Brown will be president, William Olson, vice-president, and B. F. Kuehman, cashier.

WOMEN ARE ESPECIALLY LIABLE TO COLDS

Colds Invariably Result in Catarrh, Which Sets Up a Host of Distressing Diseases.

PE-RU-NA Both Protects and Cures a Cold—Read Proof.

Miss Rose Gordon, 2,103 Oakland av., Oakland Heights, Madison, Wis., writes:—

"A few years ago I caught a severe cold, which resulted in chronic bronchitis and catarrh. Our family physician prescribed medicines which gave temporary relief only. I began taking Peruna and improved at once. Two bottles cured me. I recommend Peruna to all sufferers, and am most grateful to you for your valuable medicine."—Miss Rose Gordon.

Washington, D. C., 609 H street, N. W. Dear Dr. Hartman:—"I used to think that the doctors knew all about our aches and pains and were the proper ones to consult when sick, but since I have been sick myself I certainly had good reason to change my mind. During the winter I caught a heavy cold, which developed into catarrh of the bronchial tubes and an inflamed condition of the respiratory organs. The doctors were afraid that pneumonia would set in and prescribed pills, powders and packs until I sickened of the whole thing, as I did not improve. One of the ladies in the home had a bottle of Peruna and she advised me to try that. Shortly after I began using it I felt that I had found the right medicine. I used two bottles and they restored me easily and pleasantly to perfect health. While my stomach was very delicate, Peruna did not nauseate me in the least, but gave me a good appetite, and I wish to express my gratitude to you for restored health."—Miss Rosalie Von Struenning

CATCHING COLD

Is the Beginning of Most Winter Ailments—Pe-ru-na Protects Against and Cures Colds.

There is no fact of medical science better established than that a teaspoonful of Peruna before each meal during the winter season will absolutely protect a person from catching cold. Now, if this is true (and there is no doubt of it), thousands of lives would be saved, and tens of thousands of cases of chronic catarrh prevented, by this simple precaution within reach of every one.

After a cold has been contracted a teaspoonful of Peruna every hour will shortly cure it, leaving no trace of it behind. After chronic catarrh has become established, or the first stages of chronic bronchitis or consumption have been reached, it will take much longer to effect a cure.

It seems strange that as well known and well established as these facts are any one should neglect to profit by them, and yet no doubt there are many who pay little or no attention to them and go on catching cold, acquiring chronic catarrh, bronchitis and consumption.

Catarrh May Permeate the Whole System.

Mrs. Mary E. Sampson, West Derry, Rockingham county, N. H., writes:—

"I had terrible headaches, both ears run and I was nervous all the time, also had trouble each month; was deaf in one ear for thirty years. I took six bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin and am happy to say that it is the best medicine that I ever used. I am not so nervous, my appetite is good, everything I eat agrees with me, and I am feeling better in every way. I think Peruna is a Godsend to women and a blessing to suffering humanity."—Mary E. Sampson.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

DOINGS OF A WEEK

What Has Happened Throughout the Civilized World.

A WEEK'S NEWS CONDENSED

A Complete Review of the Happenings of the Past Seven Days in This and All Foreign Lands.

GIVEN IN THE PRESS DISPATCHES

CONGRESS AT WORK.

Daily Proceedings of the Senate and House Briefly Told.

In executive session on the 1st the senate passed the naturalization treaty with Hayti. Senator Morgan spoke in favor of a resolution for an investigation into the Panama revolution. A bill was introduced appropriating $100,000 for a statue of Abraham Lincoln in Washington. In the house a bill was passed providing a naval officer in the district of Chicago and in the collection district of Indiana and Illinois. A bill was introduced to authorize the appointment by the president of boards of investigation and arbitration to investigate and arbitrate disputes between employers and employes.

The time in the senate on the 2d was occupied in discussing the Panama canal question and James P. Clarke, the new democratic senator from Arkansas, in a speech endorsed every position taken by the president in connection with the Panama revolt. The committee on appropriations reported in favor of a loan of $4,600,000 to the St. Louis world's fair. In the house the resident commissioner from Porto Rico was given authority equal to that of a delegate from a territory and he introduced a bill to declare the citizens of Porto Rico citizens of the United States.

In a debate full of sarcasm and thrusts in the United States senate on the 3d the proposed appropriation for a loan of $4,600,000 to the St. Louis exposition was attacked. A mass of correspondence was received from the president concerning Colombian affairs. In the house bills were introduced providing for an increase in salaries for postal clerks in first and second class offices and for the reorganization of the consular service.

In the senate on the 4th the proposed loan to the St. Louis exposition of $4,600,000 was up for discussion, but instead the senators indulged in a political debate. In the house the diplomatic bill, carrying $1,993,600, was passed, and the agricultural appropriation bill, carrying a total of $5,711,240, was reported.

DOMESTIC.

The Strength of Lincoln

IN the winter of 1864 between 40 and [illegible] women connected with the Sanitary commission met in Washington to "talk it over." After the business had been concluded, about half the delegates decided to call upon President Lincoln. To one of their number, at least—Helen Everson Smith—the interview offered a wonderfully impressive illustration of Lincoln's trust in God, and the strength and comfort he derived from it.

There was no special reason for the call, except, perhaps, a pardonable curiosity on the part of the women to see "Old Abe" at close hand, and to hear his voice. The demand upon his time was a matter that probably had not occurred to them.

"LADIES, GOD BLESS YOU ALL"

Long, lank, haggard and embarrassed, the president certainly looked as if, in the depths of his generous heart, he were silently wishing that this additional burden had not been laid upon him. His sorrowful dark eyes were far sunken under cavernous eyebrows. His thick, dark hair lay wildly at cross-purposes over his head. His large nose loomed above a wide mouth set in a heavy, muscular framing which looked as if it had never smiled.

The Youth's Companion says that each one of the women, as she shook hands with him, had tried to say some pleasant thing, and he had gravely and perfunctorily replied with an expressionless "Thank you." The moments were getting fearfully long, and trying to the president.

"Could we not get out?" a lady asked, in a whisper.

Just then a dear old Quaker lady took the long-suffering giant's down-stretched hand. She had to rise on tiptoe, and as she did it her sweet voice uttered some words difficult to catch. But their effect was easy to see. As when the lights suddenly blaze behind a cathedral window, so the radiance illumined those rugged features and poured from the wonderful eyes. The gaunt form straightened. The mouth became beautiful in its sweetness. It is not possible to give the words of either exactly, but this was their support:

"Yes, friend Abraham, thee need not think thee stands alone. We are all praying for thee. The hearts of all the people are behind thee, and thee cannot fail. The Lord has appointed thee, the Lord will sustain thee, and the people love thee. Yea, as no man was ever loved before, does this people love thee. We are only a few weak women, but we represent many. Take comfort, friend Abraham. God is with thee. The people are behind thee."

"I know it." The great, soft voice rolled solemnly and sweetly forth from the trembling lips. "If I did not have the knowledge that God is sustaining and will sustain me until my appointed work is done, I could not live. If I did not believe that the hearts of all loyal people were with me, I could not endure it. My heart would have broken long ago.

"You have given a cup of cold water to a very thirsty and grateful man. Ladies, you have done me a great kindness to-day. I knew it before. I knew that good men and women were praying for me, but I was so tired I had almost forgotten. God bless you all!"

Lincoln to the Jury.

Mr. T. W. S. Kidd says that he once heard a lawyer opposed to Lincoln trying to convince a jury that precedent was superior to law, and that custom made things legal in all cases. When Lincoln arose to answer him he told the jury he would argue his case in the same way. Said he: "Old 'Squire Bagly, from Menard, came into my office and said: 'Lincoln, I want your advice as a lawyer. Has a man what's been elected justice of the peace a right to issue a marriage license?' I told him he had not; when the old 'squire threw himself back in his chair very indignantly and said: 'Lincoln, I thought you was a lawyer. Now Bob Thomas and me had a bet on this thing, and we agreed to let you decide; but if this is your opinion I don't want it, for I know a thunderin' sight better, for I have been 'squire now eight years and have done it all the time.'"

Lincoln and His Boys.

It was a frequent custom with Lincoln, this of carrying his children on his shoulders. He rarely went down street that he did not have one of his younger boys mounted on his shoulder, while another hung to the tail of his long coat. The antics of the boys with their father, and the species of tyranny they exercised over him, are still subjects of talk in Springfield. Mr. Roland Diller, who was a neighbor of Mr. Lincoln, tells one of the best of the stories. He was called to the door one day by hearing a great noise of children, and there was Mr. Lincoln striding by with the boys, both of whom were wailing aloud. "Why, Mr. Lincoln, what's the matter with the boys?" he asked.

"Just what's the matter with the whole world," Lincoln replied. "I've got three walnuts, and each wants two."

Her Retort.

"Your eyes, my dear, and your smile are intoxicating," he told her in his jocular way when she criticised the condition in which he came from the club.

"Even if they are," she retorted, "they never gave you that breath."—Chicago Post.

How They Hate Each Other.

"Well," said her neighbor, "this is a regular old-fashioned winter, isn't it?"

"Oh, is it?" she returned. "Really, you know, I can't speak from experience about old-fashioned winters, not having been here when you used to have that kind."—Chicago Record-Herald.

We all have our troubles; Congressman Steenerson has 21 applications to o.k., for the Crookston Postoffice, and can o.k. but one, but we believe that Halvor will live through it and be again elected to Congress.

As the time for hearing the contest's, about the lands filed on Nov. 10th, draws near, it is amusing to hear the differant opinions of the homsteader lawyers. One of the latest, is that a married man whoes wife is liveing on his homestead, while he is away at work has no right to settlement, unless she has a family of children. A remedy has at last been discovered for race suicide, and president Roosevlt should feel greatly relived.

Mr Dunn's announcement is evasive. He has ridiculed Gov. Van Sant's fight against the merger, belittled the governor action in trying to uphold the law and otherwise shown that his sympathies were with the Northern Securities company. Frankly, has he changed his mind? Does he still believe as he did? His announcement indicates no change of opinion.—Elbo Lake Herald.

It is impossiable for Bob Dunn or any other candidate for governor of Minnesota to dodge or try to evade the merger issue raised by Gov. Van Sant, and if the republican party should make the mistake of nomminating a candidate for governor that don't stand squarely on the VanSant platform on this important question he will be a load to carry though the campaign, as the people are fully awake to the importance of electing a governor that is opposed to the [illegible] of the railways in this state.

[illegible] of Dancing.

[illegible] As soon as we [illegible] of the Puritan prejudice [illegible] the point that one may hope that [illegible] exists for the intelligent part of the population the claim is too overweening to need apology. for if we take art to mean the production of beauty then the case only wants stating to be conceded, while if we understand it as self expression in some concrete form we shall find that the dance, which is a kind of fusion of music, painting and sculpture, is pre-eminently capable of giving expression beyond the possibility of words to the basic and therefore largely inarticulate, parts of our nature—the hunger of the spirit and the joy of life.—London Outlook.

Genesis of Life Insurance.

Life insurance originated in 1706 in London. In that year there was formed the first life insurance company. It was called the Amicable Society For a Perpetual Assurance Office. It was a mutual benefit concern.

Each member, without reference to age, paid a fixed admission fee and a fixed annual charge per share on from one to three shares, and at the end of the year a portion of the fund accumulated was divided among the heirs of those who had died, in accordance with the number of shares each dead person had held. Out of this company, with its crude and imperfect methods, life insurance as it exists today has grown.

Swinging Round the Circle.

In the journey of life we often travel in circles. Therefore do today the good that is in you. Plant your blossoms. You will come back to them by and by. It is the beauty of the things that you do today that has most to do with making beautiful your tomorrow. One of the blessings of the sunset is in reaping the memories of what was planted in the morning.

The First Corset.

The first corset—not counting ancient modifications of the Grecian zone and girdle—was introduced into France by Catherine de' Medici. It was a strange affair and fashioned after the style of a knight's cuirass. The framework was entirely of iron, and the velvet, which decorated the exterior only, served to [illegible] a frightful and cumbersome article of torture.

Good Scheme.

Hicks—You keep duplicates of all your old love letters? What an idea! Wicks—Yes; when I have done something particularly foolish I just read over one of those letters. It is quite encouraging to know that I'm not near so much of a fool as I used to be.—Boston Transcript.

Alone on The Ocean

Story of a Little Girl Who Drifted Miles to Sea In a Boat.

Borne Away on the Tide, She Was Far Out on the Atlantic When Rescued by Lifeboat Crew.

About fifty years ago Daniel Smith became keeper of the lighthouse at Cape Pogue, Marthas Vineyard, and remained as such for several years. He had a family consisting of a wife and six children. His eldest son, William, who was ten years old at the time, had a thrilling experience one hot July day soon after the family moved to the desolate spot. He is now a fisherman at Edgartown, Marthas Vineyard, and he never tires of telling the story.

THE BOAT WAS DRAWING NEAR.

"I suppose you think that's a mighty lonely spot over there at Cape Pogue, don't you?" said the old fisherman one day last summer as he sat on a pile on the old town wharf at Edgartown with a group of city people around him and pointed to the solitary lighthouse three miles across the harbor over which it stands guard. "Well, we wasn't. There were six of us young ones there, and we had lively times sometimes, you better believe. We never thought of being lonesome. The way we kids ran around that cape in and out of the water, [illegible] over the [illegible] and playing in the boats, was a caution. It's a wonder we weren't all killed a hundred times. I had a mighty narrow escape, and so did a cousin of mine one day. I'll tell you about it.

"As I was saying, we had a cousin named Susan Macy, who lived in Nantucket. She had been crazy to come and see us, and one day her father, Captain Macy, sailed up from Nantucket, which is about thirty miles to the southward, and brought Susan to stay two weeks.

"Everything went well until the fourth day," the old salt continued. "That was one Friday, as I recollect it. There was a picnic in Pease's grove, five miles up the cape. For some reason, I don't recollect what, father went alone and left us kids and mother at home. He went down in the sailboat by the way of the pond, leaving the small boat fastened on the outside of the cape.

"Well, we children amused ourselves in a variety of ways and finally wandered down to the shore, where we spied the boat. There was about ten feet of rope on her, and we took turns pushing the boat off with one of the other children in her. Then the child in the boat would pull her in again. After we had done this for awhile it became Susan's turn again. She was always a little daredevil, and she said she was going to unhitch the rope and have a longer ride. We all warned her not to do it, but she managed to unfasten the rope and gave a gentle push. The shore was bold there, and I started out to reach her, but soon found I was over my head. I had never learned to swim, but I managed to get to shore safely, though I don't know how I did it.

"Susan thought it was great fun until she saw she was beginning slowly to get farther and farther from shore. Then she became frightened. I didn't know what to do, so I ran for the lighthouse to tell mother. It was a quarter of a mile away. She rushed down to the shore and yelled to Susan to sit perfectly still, and we would get her some way. By that time the little boat must have been nearly half a mile offshore. Mother was a woman of good sense, and, although her face was pale, she stopped to think for a moment. Finally she turned to me and said:

"'Bill'—they always called me Bill—'Bill,' says she, 'there's only one thing to be done. You must run down to Pease's grove and tell the men folk. It's a good five mile run over the hot sand, but do your best. It's a case of saving a human life, and may God bless and help you, my boy!'

"So I started off on my long run down the beach. I was barefooted, and the day was a hot one, and the sand burned my feet terribly. I can tell you, but I bit my lips and kept on. Once in awhile I looked out to see if I could see Susan. At first I could see the little boat, but soon I lost sight of it entirely. That made me redouble my efforts, and I sped on. The last part of my run is a blank in my mind. I remember when I passed the little cove which marked the halfway place between the lighthouse and the head of the cape. That's the last thing I remember.

"I have often heard father tell how when the picnickers were in the midst of the dinner under the pines, they were startled by a bedraggled looking boy running into their midst saying 'Susan's drifting out to sea!' and falling in a dead faint. There was a grand rush for the lifeboat, and strong arms thrust it into the water and manned the oars. My apparently lifeless form was taken aboard, and the men started back to the lighthouse, following the outside shore to get the bearings from mother, for no sight of Susan could be seen from the shore.

"After a quick row the lifeboat reached the lighthouse, and mother pointed out a tiny speck about fifteen miles offshore, slowly drifting toward the broad Atlantic ocean. With hardly a minute's delay the lifeboat was headed out to sea. After a long row the little boat was drawing nearer, but no girl could be seen in it. The men thought their labors were all in vain, but as the big boat pulled alongside her prostrate form was seen in the bottom of the boat. As the lifeboat came alongside father seized the girl, and all were overjoyed to find she was only asleep."

NERVE OF A MURDERER.

Remarkable Execution of a Russian Who Hanged Himself.

Some time ago a Russian criminal was executed in St. Petersburg. He had during the last two years murdered twelve persons, the last one being a priest. The law did not show this monster any mercy, but speedily condemned him to death.

Stebljanski was the name of this wholesale murderer, and he hoped to the last for clemency. When the death warrant was read and the keeper informed him that he had but six hours to live, he raged and swore to revenge himself in the most terrible manner. After being left alone in the cell the first thing he did was to break his lamp, and, procuring some matches, he set fire to the oil. In a moment the flames broke through the window, and the entire building was for a time threatened with destruction. Fortunately the fire was discovered in time and got under control before much damage had been done, but in the meantime a terrible [illegible] between the keepers and the criminal who had fortified himself with an iron bar taken from his bedstead. The first man to enter the cell was knocked senseless, and it was only after being almost suffocated with smoke that the prisoner was finally overpowered. [illegible] morning the execution took place. The condemned man ascended the scaffold with much bravado, made a thorough examination of the same and finally declared that the rope was too short.

THE MAN STUCK HIS HEAD IN THE LOOP

"I cannot get my head in the loop," he said, "and, though it will cause me some inconvenience to wait, I will smoke a cigarette while you are having it attended to."

He lighted a cigarette and, turning to the executioner, made a speech, pointing out the detestable in his profession, and as a condemned criminal in Russia has certain rights no one dared to interrupt him.

The executioner, who really was a tender hearted man, became visibly affected by the moralizing words of the murderer and, turning to the crowd assembled before the scaffold, declared that his conscience did not allow him to proceed or to take a fellow man's life, and he then and there resigned his position and departed amid the shouts of the assemblage.

This caused great confusion among the representatives of the law, for where could they in a hurry get another executioner? The question was, however, solved by the condemned man, who declared that he would execute himself as soon as he got through smoking. He then threw a kiss to a pretty girl among the spectators, stuck his head in the loop and kicked away the trap beneath his feet.

A Clever Fish.

The salmon seems to be gifted with such intelligence, or "hereditary foresight," as it is occasionally called, which is more particularly acute when danger signals are abroad, says William J. Harris in Field and Stream. [illegible] have been known, when congregated in the upper pools, to become frightened by poachers approaching them with net or spear and to immediately dash down stream to a distance of thirty miles in one night, not stopping until they had reached pools so deep that they could not be taken with the appliances of the poacher. They seemed to know that if they went higher up the stream their doom was sealed. [illegible] they have [illegible] the leader at the [illegible] the fish, arriving about two and a half feet below the surface of the water, and on [illegible] days, guided by the old patriarch, they would swim around the fishermen, never approaching them nearer than ten or twelve yards.

Standing an Egg on End.

Any fresh egg can without using [illegible] be balanced on either end by one possessing patience and a steady hand. [illegible] to save time the egg should [illegible] a short time on the end upon which it is desired to balance it, so as to allow the yolk to settle; then both forearms of the person making the experiment should be rested on the edge of the table and the egg should be taken between the three fingers and thumbs of both hands and slowly turned around until the center of gravity is found. This experiment may at first require a little time, but after a little practice it will be found very easy to do. It would be well to try it first on the tablecloth and then on the bottom of a plate.

It is conceded, of course, that the present century is far more advanced than that of Columbus, so it is only to be expected that different ideas should have been formed, even as to the balancing of eggs.

The Literal Truth.

Dunn—What do you mean by sending me word that you were not in? Debts—I didn't. I sent you word that I was out. Dunns—Well, and what did you mean by that? Debts—Exactly what I said. I am out of cash.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Amplifying Him.

First Guest (at banquet)—Is this diamond backed terrapin? Second Guest—That's what the caterer calls it. First Guest (tasting it)—Well, he's a prevaricaterer.—Chicago Tribune.

Sentence Suspended.

"Her voice was tried by a famous singing master."

"Was it found guilty?"—Princeton Tiger.

Getting in debt is like sliding down a greased pole; getting out is like climbing the same pole.—Augusta (Ga.) Herald.

Grotesque.

Irate Husband—If I'm to believe what you say, why on earth did you marry me, madam?

Wife—I remember, I had at the time quite a craze for collecting grotesque curios—Chinese and Japanese hobgoblins and such like—and you were the only man to match my collection.

A Real Absent Minded Man.

The most absent minded man was not the man who hunted for his pipe when it was between his teeth, nor the man who threw his hat out of the window and tried to hang his cigar on the peg—no, but the man who put his umbrella to bed and went and stood behind the door.—[illegible]

Tobacco Smoke and the Blood.

Two or three mouthfuls of tobacco smoke from a cigarette were shaken up with a few drops of blood diluted with water in a bottle. Almost immediately the blood assumed the pink color characteristic of blood containing monoxide gas, and further observations with the spectroscope confirmed the presence in the blood of carbon monoxide. Similarly a few mouthfuls of smoke from a pipe and a cigar were tried, and the results were even more marked. In this experiment we have some explanation in particular of the evil effects of cigarette smoking, for it is chiefly cigarette smoke that is inhaled, an indulgence by which the poisonous carbon monoxide is introduced directly into the blood. This effect of tobacco smoke upon the blood appears to us to be of considerable significance.—London Lancet.

The Poison In Mackerel.

There is no more wholesome food among fish than a mackerel, yet close along the backbone of that same edible there lies a strip of flesh which may bring you to death's door—even if it fails to kill you. You may eat it a hundred times and it will be as wholesome as the rest of the fish, but the hundred and first time or earlier it may cause terrible trouble. This is because it occasionally, without any sign or any known reason, distills a powerful irritant poison. There is no difference in the appearance of the fish or in its flavor; nothing to warn you of the danger. The only remedy is to leave the spine of the fish alone and not take the flesh that lies in the angle of the backbone's edges. There is never a year without a few deaths from this cause, though you might eat mackerel scores of times without taking harm. Yet animals have some way of detecting the poison, and a cat will not eat the flesh from the mackerel's spine if it is dangerous. It is not a question of staleness—a perfectly fresh fish may be deadly and a stale one harmless.—London Standard.

Lady Grey's Dull Evening.

Thomas Creevey, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, has presented some queer pictures of English court life. During the reign of King William IV. Creevey wrote: "The Greys had just come from Windsor [illegible]. Lady Grey, in between [illegible] [illegible] said she was [illegible] more dead than alive. She said all the boring she had ever endured before was [illegible] nothing compared with [illegible] of the two preceding nights. [illegible] she never should see a [illegible] table again, she was so tired [illegible] one that the queen and the king [illegible] Duchess of Gloucester, Princess Augusta, Mme. Lieven and herself had [illegible] around for hours, the queen [illegible] or netting a purse, the king [illegible] and occasionally waking for the purpose of saying, 'Exactly so, ma'am,' and then sleeping again. The queen was cold as ice to Lady Grey till the moment she came away, when she could afford to be a little civil at getting quit of her."

Caribou Hunting Custom.

The Labrador Indians when on a hunt stalk on in advance of the train with their arms, while the women, heavily laden with provisions and means of shelter, drag along slowly after. When the lords and masters begin to think of food time or wish in any way to leave some guide as to their progress for the squaws they thrust an upright spear or stick in the snow and draw in the snow the exact line of the shadow then cast. The women, toiling painfully along, note the spear and the progress of the shadow and know closely the difference of time. They know, too, whether they dare to linger for a few minutes' rest or if they must hastily catch the stick or spear and hurry on.—Chicago News.

Long Journeys Made by Whales.

The whales that swim about the islands which lie off the coast of Norway and Finland in March and April travel immense distances. In May they turn up at the Azores or even at the Bermudas and sometimes pay a visit to the Antilles. They swim fast, for in June they are back again off Norway. Some of these whales have been known to bring back evidences of where they have been, for harpoons of the peculiar kind used off the coast of South America have been found stuck in them.—St. James Gazette.

Odd Japanese Customs.

The Japanese houses have no chimneys, and you are never warm enough until the house catches fire. The Japanese have beef and no mutton; the Chinese have mutton and no beef. Japanese bells, like Japanese belles, have no tongues. Japanese snakes have no poison; Japanese music has no harmony. The Japanese alphabet is not an alphabet, but a selection of seventy useful ideograms to dispense with the 30,000 in ordinary use by the Chinese.—"Queer Things About Japan."

Macbeth as a Comedian.

She—I suppose you attended the amateur theatricals last night? He—Yes, and there wasn't a dry eye in the house. She—The idea! I never heard of "Macbeth" affecting an audience that way before. He—No. You see, we simply laughed till we cried.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SYLVESTER PETERSON Register.

West Point's Origin.

The operations of the troops engaged in the war of the Revolution directed attention to the romantic and commanding heights of West Point, and within a few years after the close of the contest, through the influence of surviving officers of the Continental army it pleased President Washington to include in his message to congress (1793) a recommendation for the establishment of a military academy here.

The act creating the academy did not pass until the year 1802, and then only as a means of giving countenance to the work of George Barron who had the year before established a private school for cadets at the Point. It required the stimulus of a second war with the mother country to overcome the deep rooted prejudice of the legislators against an institution which they believed would become a nursery of aristocrats, and it was, therefore, not until 1812 that the Military academy became a part of the army establishment.—Frank H. Taylor in Four Track News.

Finding by Intuition.

A man asked the clerk of a big hotel in Fifth avenue if a person whom he named was staying in the house. The clerk said he was, but he was not in at that moment. "I had never seen the person for whom I had inquired," said the man who tells this story. "I had never had a description of him. I had formed no idea as to what manner of man he is, as we often do in such cases. I took a seat in the corridor, intending to ask the clerk again later on. I read a newspaper for a half hour and started to the clerk's desk to repeat my inquiry when I bumped into an individual by accident. We both apologized. In a second I said to him, 'Are you not Mr. —?' I don't know what impelled me to make the inquiry, but as quickly as I had asked him as quickly did he reply that he was Mr. —, the very person whom I wished to see. I suppose Conan Doyle might explain it, but hanged if I can."—New York Commercial Advertiser

Plants Without Roots.

The "flower of the air" is a curious plant found in China and Japan. It is so called because it appears to have no root and is never fixed to the earth. It twines round a dry tree or sterile rock. Each shoot produces two or three flowers like a lily—white, transparent and odoriferous. It is capable of being transported 600 or 700 miles, and it grows as it travels, suspended on a twig.

Testing Swords.

A very picturesque and effective test is applied to all the swords made for the English army before they are allowed to go into commission. A powerful man takes each in turn, swings it above his head and strikes it with all his might upon a huge round stone. If the sword shows any sign of weakness it is at once discarded.

Sarcastic.

They had been discussing the baby's ears, eyes and nose.

"And I think it's got its father's hair," said the joyful young mother.

"Oh, is that who's got it? I noticed it was missing." And as the tall girl with the suave manner said this the mother looked dubiously at her.—Judge.

The Streets of Amsterdam.

Amsterdam, in Holland, a city of ten miles in circumference, is mostly built on piles driven into the sandy subsoil, but the flowing of the tide and the debris of the Amstel river have made ninety islands, and the city has more canals than streets. The watery ways are traversed by over 300 bridges, so that Amsterdam has earned the designation of the Venice of the North.

Two Expensive Banquets.

The costliest meal ever served, according to history, was a supper given by Ælios Verus, one of the most lavish of all the Romans of the latter days, to a dozen guests. The cost was 6,000 sestertia, which would amount to $242,500. A celebrated feast given by Vitellius, a Roman emperor of those days, to his brother Lucius cost a little more than $200,000. Suetonius says that the banquet consisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 different fowls besides other courses.

Brides Priced.

To us it seems a curious whim on the part of our ancestors of the eighteenth century that in their marriage announcements they should so often choose and with such seeming complacency to enlighten the world with regard to the amount of fortune received with the brides. Here are two cases in point: "Mr. James Coutts of Jeffry's Sq., merchant, to Miss Peagrum of Knightsbridge, £30,000." "W. Smith, gentleman, of the 2d Troop of Horse Guards, to Mrs. Ann Gardiner, a maiden lady, aged, 'tis said, near 70, with a fortune of £20,000."—Chambers' Journal.

Webster's Tiresome Habit.

Senator Hoar in his "Reminiscences" says that Daniel Webster had a tiresome habit in his public speeches of groping after the most suitable word after this fashion: "Why is it, Mr. Chairman, that there has gathered, congregated; this great number of inhabitants, dwellers, here; that these roads, avenues, routes of travel, highways, converge, meet, come together here?" When the speech was printed all the synonyms but the best one would be left out.

PILL TRADE MARK IMITATED.

Druggist and Clerk Are Held in Bail for Court.

Charged with infringing upon the trademark of Carter's Little Liver Pill Company, Joseph T. Griffith, a druggist at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Vine streets, was held in $500 bail for Court this afternoon by Magistrate Jermon, and at the same time Griffith's clerk, Joseph C. Fore, was held in $800 bail for Court on the same charge, and also for selling certain articles the sale of which is prohibited by law.

The men were arrested this morning upon warrants issued by Magistrate Jermon at the instance of Brent Good, No. 139 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York, and Charles C. Orcutt, No. 12 Jumel Terrace, New York, representatives of the Carter Company. They stated that the latter had spent $3,000,000 in advertising and getting their label known, and did not purpose to permit others to reap the benefits.

The label in question is a small one containing a large letter L, and the one used by Griffith is an exact copy, except that it does not contain Carter's name.

The prosecution showed how easily the imitation product could be palmed off on the would-be purchaser of Carter's pills, owing to the similarity of the labels, and held that it was evidence of a deliberate attempt to deceive.—Philadelphia Telegraph, Jan. 27, 1904.

Gratitude Well Expressed.

Sault St., Marie, Mich., Feb. 8th.—Mr. C. L. Smith, painter and decorator, whose home is at 309 Anne street, this city, makes the following statement:

"I was laid up with some kind of pains. Some said it was Lumbago, others Sciatica, and others again Rheumatism. A few of my friends suggested that it was lead poison, but whatever it was it gave me a great deal of pain, in fact, almost completely crippled me. I had to use two canes to walk about and even then it was a very painful task.

"A friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I began the treatment. After I had used the first box I was able to throw away one of the canes and was considerably improved. The second box straightened me up so that I could go about free from pain without any assistance and very soon after I was completely cured, well and happy, without a pain or an ache. Dodd's Kidney Pills seemed to go right to the spot in my case and they will always have my greatest praise."

"I am doing my best to convince George that I am economical." "What have you done?" "I have worn the same dress twice."—New Yorker.

Fibroid Tumors Cured.

A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors. Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought to Mrs. Hayes.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all ovarian troubles; tumors; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt.

Mrs. Hayes at her above address will gladly answer any letters which sick women may write for fuller information about her illness. Her gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so genuine and heartfelt that she thinks no trouble is too great for her to take in return for her health and happiness.

Truly is it said that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine; don't forget this when some druggist wants to sell you something else.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Moonshiners.

Moonshiners are scarce in Minnesota, but John. W. Vars, chief deputy internal revenue collector, has just run down a man who is alleged to be the genuine article. Mr. Vars returned to St. Paul from arresting A. T. Lannegraff of Greenbush, Roseau county, charged with operating a "still" without a license.

About two weeks ago two men, farmers residing in the vicinity of Greenbush, died suddenly. Examinations showed that death was the result of imbibing too freely of an intensely strong whisky which contained more than the average amount of alcohol. This discovery aroused suspicion there was illicit distillery going on and the officials of St. Paul were notified.

Suspicion led to an investigation, and a few rods from the home of Lannegraff there was found buried in the snow a home-made still which looked as if it had been in service for several years.

Rabbits Mowed Down.

Abram Wister, a farmer who lives near Cannon Falls, learned that a large number of jack rabbits were in the habit of visiting an open spring on his place to get a drink. To get to the spring they had to cross a strip of ice thirty feet wide, and while drinking, to stand on the ice immediately about the spring. In a circle around the open water and extending out about ten feet from it Mr. Wister scattered salt which thawed the ice on the surface and kept it thawed, tho the temperature was thirty degrees below zero. When the rabbits came to drink their feet were wet by the water on the surface of the ice, where the salt was, so that when they stepped on the clear ice beyond the salt they froze fast in a moment and stayed in that position until Mr. Wister rapped them on the heads and mowed them loose with a scythe.

Features at St. Louis.

The star features of Minnesota's dairy exhibit at the St. Louis exposition will be a statue in butter representing Father Hennepin discovering the Falls of St. Anthony. It will be done by John Daniels, who made the butter model of the new state capitol exhibited at Buffalo. Mr. Daniels is already at work modeling the statue, using a room in one of the state fair buildings as his studio. The statue will be shown in a glass case in the dairy building.

North Dakota will have a similar feature for its exhibit, an equestrian statue of President Roosevelt in butter, representing him as a North Dakota rancher.

An Old Reminder.

Isaac La Bissonniere, a pioneer resident of Minnesota, has about completed a model in miniature of the old log chapel of St. Paul from which that city took its name. The chapel was the first house of worship constructed on the site of St. Paul and was erected in 1841. It was small and crude, but answered the needs of the time. La Bissonniere formerly resided at Osseo, and later moved to St. Paul. He was familiar with the old chapel and his model is said to be true in all details. When completed it will be presented to the State Historical society.

Better Lard.

Less lard is adulterated with tallow and cotton seed oil than ever before in the history of the dairy and food commission. The department has just finished analyzing 76 samples of lard collected in various parts of the state, and only one sample was found adulterated.

A year ago, a large per cent of the samples analyzed by the commission was illegal. Tallow and cottonseed oil were the most common adulterating substances. In 1901 250 samples were found adulterated out of a total of a 1,000.

After the Lockups.

D. A. Lindsey, agent of the state board of control, sent circulars to authorities in charge of the lockups of the state calling their attention to the law requiring them to keep the lockups in a sanitary condition, fireproof and provided with a register containing the names of the prisoners. There are 450 lockups in the state, and all those that are unfit for use or unsafe from lack of fire escape facilities will be condemned.

Oil Fees.

Fenton G. Warner, state oil inspector, has reported for 1903, fees collected amounting to $29,732.25. The expenses of inspection were $27,667.45, leaving $2,064.80 in the fund. Under the law, this fund cannot be used for any other purpose than inspection. The oil inspection is a police regulation, and the state has no right to derive revenue from it.

News Notes.

The January receipts at the state prison twine plant amounted to $22,735.98.

The members of the city council of Moorhead have pledged themselves to vote for the passage of an ordinance authorizing the levy of $1,500 per year for the maintainance of a public library in that city.

Twenty-one academic students of the state university have been informed that their work has not been up to the required grade and that in consequance their presence at the "U" is no longer desired.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP.
RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA.

"The world of medicine recognizes Grip as epidemic catarrh."—Medical Talk.

LA GRIPPE is epidemic catarrh. It spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper, the masses and the classes are alike subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip got you? Grip is well named. The original French term, la grippe, has been shortened by the busy American to read "grip." Without intending to do so a new word has been coined that exactly describes the case. As if some hideous giant with awful Grip had clutched us in its fatal clasp. Men, women, and children, whole towns and cities are caught in the baneful grip of a terrible monster.

The following letters speak for themselves as to the efficacy of Peruna in cases of la grippe or its after effects.

After Effects of La Grippe Eradicated by Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Fred Weinberger, Westerlo, Albany County, N. Y., writes:

"Several years ago I had an attack of la grippe which left my nerves in a prostrated condition. Then I had another attack of la grippe which left me worse. I had tried three good physicians but all in vain. I gave Peruna a trial. In a short time I was feeling better and now I am as well as anyone."—Mrs. Fred Weinberger.

Hon. James R. Guill of Omaha.

Hon. James R. Guill is one of the oldest and most esteemed men of Omaha, Neb. He has done much to make it what it is, serving on public boards a number of times. He endorses Peruna in the following words:

"I am 68 years old, am hale and hearty, and Peruna has helped me attain it. Two years ago I had la grippe—my life was despaired of. Peruna saved me."—J. R. Guill.

A Relative of Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Silas S. Lincoln, who resides at 913 I. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., has the honor of being third cousin to Abraham Lincoln. He writes:

"I had la grippe five times before using your medicine. Four years ago I began the use of Peruna, since which time I have not been troubled with that disease. I can now do as much work at my desk as I ever could in my life. I have gained more than ten pounds in weight."—S. S. Lincoln.

Pe-ru-na Not Only Cured La Grippe but Benefited the Whole System.

Miss Alice M. Dressler, 1313 N. Bryant Ave., Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"Last spring I suffered from la grippe and was partially cured, but the bad after effects remained through the summer and somehow I did not get strong as I was before. One of my college friends who was visiting me asked me to try Peruna and I did so and found it all and more than I had expected. It not only cured me of the catarrh but restored me to perfect health, built up the entire system and brought a happy feeling of buoyancy which I had not known for years."—Alice M. Dressler.

An Actress' Testimonial.

Miss Jean Cowgill, Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y., is the leading lady with the Aubrey Stock Co. She writes the following:

"During the past winter of 1901, I suffered for several weeks from a severe attack of grippe, which left a serious catarrhal condition of the throat and head.

"Some one suggested Peruna. As a last resort, after wasting much time and money on physicians, I tried the remedy faithfully, and in a few weeks was as well as ever."—Jean Cowgill.

A Southern Judge Cured.

Judge Horatio J. Goss, Hartwell, Ga., writes:

"Some five or six years ago I had a very severe spell of grippe, which left me with systemic catarrh. A friend advised me to try your Peruna which I did, and was immediately benefited and cured. The third bottle completed the cure."—H. J. Goss.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus O.

Willing to Take a Chance.

A pious citizen has a 15-year-old son who does not promise to be exactly "a chip off the old block." Not long ago the father discovered to his sorrow that his boy and several others of the neighborhood had a habit of matching nickels. The wrathful parent led the erring lad to the time-honored attic, where hangs a certain strap. The boy didn't have any agreeable impression of what was to come, and, on the ground that it is only the first plunge that counts, he called out: "Say, dad! I'll go you heads or tails for two lickings or none!"—Chicago Chronicle.

A WOMAN'S MISERY.

Mrs. John La Rue, of 115 Paterson Ave., Paterson, N. J., says: "I was troubled for about nine years, and what I suffered no one will ever know. I used about every known remedy that is said to be good for kidney complaint, but without deriving permanent relief. Often when alone in the house the backache has been so bad that it brought tears to my eyes. The pain at times was so intense that I was compelled to give up my household duties and lie down. There were headaches, dizziness and blood rushing to my head to cause bleeding at the nose. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills benefited me so much that I continued the treatment. The stinging pain in the small of my back, the rushes of blood to the head, and other symptoms disappeared."

DOINGS OF A WEEK

What Has Happened Throughout the Civilized World.

A WEEK'S NEWS CONDENSED

A Complete Review of the Happenings of the Past Seven Days in This and All Foreign Lands.

GIVEN IN THE PRESS DISPATCHES

CONGRESS AT WORK.

Daily Proceedings of the Senate and House Briefly Told.

Chaplain Hale in his opening prayer in the senate on the 8th referred to the Baltimore fire. Senators Hopkins and Clay spoke in support of the Panama canal treaty. The bill granting assistance to the proposed Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland, Ore., was passed. In the house a bill was introduced appropriating $1,000,000 for the relief of sufferers from the Baltimore fire. The proposed loan of $4,600,000 to the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis was discussed.

The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was passed by the senate on the 9th and the Panama question was further discussed. In the house the entire session was devoted to consideration of a resolution unseating Mr. Howell (dem.) and seating Mr. Connell (rep.) from the Tenth Pennsylvania district, but no action was taken.

The major portion of the time of the senate on the 10th was devoted to the Panama treaty. The nomination of Thomas N. Jamieson as naval officer, Chicago, was confirmed. In the house the Connell-Howell election contest from the Tenth Pennsylvania district resulted in voting to seat Mr. Connell (rep.), who was sworn in at once.

In the senate on the 11th it was decided to vote on the Panama treaty before February 23. A bill was introduced appropriating $1,100,000 for the construction of a building in Washington for the geological survey. In the house the amendment to the urgent deficiency bill appropriating $4,600,000 for the St. Louis exposition as a loan was passed and the report of the naval affairs committee on the naval appropriation, carrying a total of $96,388,038, was received.

DOMESTIC.

Secretary Hay issued a note to England, Germany and France inviting them to join with the United States to protect the integrity of the Chinese empire.

Four persons were killed in a collision at the Southern railway crossing at Waterloo, Va.

Burglars wrecked the interior of the Millerstown (Pa.) bank and got $500.

Four men were crushed to death at Steubenville, O., by the caving in of a pile of iron ore at a mine.

Twenty persons leaped from the third-story windows of a burning factory building in Brooklyn, N. Y., and five were fatally injured.

The Citizens' National bank, of McGruder, Tex., closed its doors with liabilities of $134,603.

Bandits dynamited the safe of a bank at Ravia, I. T., and secured $1,700.

August W. Machen, the central figure in the postal trial in Washington, took the witness stand and denied all the charges preferred against him.

James McDonald, a teamster, was arrested at Bedford, Ind., on suspicion of being the murderer of Miss Sarah C. Schafer.

W. I. Buchanan, United States minister to Panama, reached New York and said he did not expect any trouble on the isthmus.

After a run of ten days the Bank of Dunn, N. C., a state institution, closed its doors.

Winsor T. White, of Cleveland, O., has been made president of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers.

Baltimore decided to ask for federal troops to patrol the fire-swept district, as the militiamen are needed by their employers in the effort to save business. Mayor McLane decided not to ask for outside aid at present.

Secretary Taft told the house committee on insular affairs that slavery had been abolished in the Philippines by legislative action taken there.

Charles F. Gould, aged 55, editor of the Evening Bulletin, fell dead while sitting at his desk in Evansville, Ind.

Ice gorges in the Susquehanna river were causing great damage at Wilkesbarre, Pa., and other places.

Paul Misik, convicted of the murder of Charles O'Brien, was hanged at Hartford, Conn.

The Equitable national bank of New York city closed its doors, with deposits of $395,273.

A banquet forty feet under Jackson boulevard, in the Illinois Telephone company's tunnel, was given by the latter to 1,200 guests in Chicago.

Two of the three great buildings of the Corn Products company were destroyed by fire at Oswego, N. Y., causing a loss exceeding $1,000,000.

Owing to a shortage of $57,500 in the cashier's accounts the savings department of the Wolfboro (N. H.) Loan bank closed.

James McDonald, under arrest at Bedford, Ind., charged with the murder of Miss Schafer, collapsed when taken to the scene of the crime.

The Iowa antitrust law has been declared unconstitutional by Judge Pratt, of the Waterloo district court.

Cattle raisers and shippers of the west charge railroads with conspiracy and with making freight rates excessive.

President Roosevelt issued a proclamation, insisting that the citizens of the United States maintain strict neutrality in the Russo-Japanese war.

August W. Machen in the postal trial in Washington concluded his testimony and the defense announced that it rested its case.

In a fit of insanity at Fort Dodge, Ia., Miss Hulda Nelson killed her mother, a wealthy widow, and then committed suicide.

Harlan W. Whipple, of Chicago, has been elected president of the American Automobile association.

Two children, aged three and five years, of John E. Butler, were cremated in his home at Superior, Wis.

Continued cold weather is a bar to spring trade in the west.

Charles E. Kruger was hanged at Greensburg, Pa., for killing Constable Harry Bierer on July 9 last.

At Syracuse, N. Y. the American exchange national bank closed its doors with liabilities of $500,000.

Three students were expelled from McAllister university at St. Paul for hazing another student.

Twenty-five independent tobacco manufacturers formed a league at a Boston meeting to fight the alleged combine.

The South Carolina legislature has established a state department of commerce and immigration to secure desirable settlers.

Secretary Hay's note regarding the integrity of China makes Washington the center of the world's diplomacy regarding the Russo-Japanese war.

Baltimore will gain a more modern b[illegible] ness district through the fire, ac[illegible] ing to the plans now being prepared. T[illegible] banks have resumed operations and g[illegible] progress was made in clearing the st[illegible].

A Great Northern passenger train at Pennock, Minn., collided with a freight train and four persons were killed.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

Henry W. Oliver, of Pittsburg, capitalist, steel master and politician, died at the age of 64 years.

Erastus Wiman, once a famous promoter, died poor on Staten Island, N. Y., at the age of 70 years.

Philip Keifer, a wealthy retired manufacturer, died in Dayton, O., aged 102 years.

The Iowa convention to select delegates to the national democratic convention will be held in Des Moines on May 4.

John A. Roche, mayor of Chicago from 1887 to 1889, died suddenly of heart disease, aged 6[illegible] years.

FOREIGN.

Sixty Japanese transports were landing troops along the southern and western coasts of Corea, with the intention of occupying Seoul. The main body of the fleet has sailed in the direction of Port Arthur. The Japanese have seized several Russian merchant vessels at Masampho.

Fifty workmen were killed by the caving in of an embankment on the Warsaw-Vienna railroad in Russia.

The steamer New York was fired on while trying to land a cargo in port at San Domingo and United States warships were on the way to punish the republic.

The Austrian Peace society has sent a cablegram to President Roosevelt requesting him to intervene in the Russo-Japanese conflict.

The Japanese government has issued an official statement setting forth its position in the present trouble with Russia. The independence and integrity of Corea is the point on which the mikado has insisted.

A passenger train on the Chinandiga Vieja railroad in Nicaragua was derailed and 25 persons were killed.

Fourteen persons were killed and more than a score injured in a railway collision near Sand Point, Ont.

Japanese troops occupied Seoul, the capital of Corea, and seized Masampho. An important bridge on the Manchurian railroad was blown up, cutting off Russian communication with Port Arthur, and three volunteer fleet steamers, carrying 2,000 Russian soldiers, were captured. The czar issued a declaration of war.

The destruction of four Russian battleships and three cruisers and disabling of two Japanese warships off Port Arthur was reported at Tokio. The bombardment of Port Arthur was still going on.

Japan won her first naval engagement with Russia. In a midnight attack two Russian battleships and one cruiser were beached, two lesser vessels disabled, and in another attack two additional war ships were destroyed. Ten Russians were killed and 46 wounded in the engagement. The Japanese lost neither men nor ships. Thousands of Japanese troops were landed in Corea and are marching on Seoul and Russian troops are also advancing.

Russia faces trouble in the Caucasus and has called to arms 40,000 reservists, while Europe, fearing trouble in the Balkans, is on the alert.

Advices say that the powers of the world are indorsing Secretary Hay's plan and that the integrity of China is assured, no matter how the Russo-Japanese war results.

Venezuela has recognized the republic of Panama.

The emperor of Japan, in a formal declaration, declared war against Russia and charged the Russians with insincerity and trickery during the negotiations.

LATER.

France gives official notification of her adhesion to Secretary Hay's note on China.

The rumor is revived that the Vladivostok squadron abandoned and wrecked Hokodats, but the source is unreliable and statement is not regarded as probable. All else regarding this squadron is speculation.

William J. Lemp, president of the Lemp Brewing company, St. Louis, committed suicide at his residence by shooting himself in the temple with a revolver.

The wives of the workingmen of Omaha are going to take a hand in the labor question hereafter, and to a certain extent they will be found fighting their own husbands. They have decided to oppose strikes and lockouts.

When leaving Port Arthur the British steamer Fu Ping was fired upon by Russians. Three Chinese members of the crew were wounded. The Russians afterward apologized for firing on the vessel. The Fu Ping, upon its arrival at Wei-hai-wei, filed a protest with the British commissioner.

Fire at Topeka, Kas., burned out five establishments, causing a loss of $400,000.

Heavy rains in California give assurance of good crops.

Five bandits entered the Colonial club, a gambling house at San Francisco, and held up all the inmates and proprietor, securing several thousand dollars in money and valuable jewelry.

The bank at Martinsburg, Neb., was wrecked by robbers, but no money secured. The bandits escaped after a running fight.

The Chinese government has proclaimed neutrality in the Russia-Japan war.

Frank Jones, said to be a notorious outlaw, was killed by a sheriff's posse in northwestern Montana.

At Des Moines, Ia., Dick Palmer was sentenced to ten years in prison for stealing a ham. It is his sixth sentence.

Germany is said to have notified Russia that Baltic fleet cannot use the Kiel canal.

Baltimore will not ask for outside aid, but may float a municipal loan.

At Gowrie, Ia., Mrs. Gustave Nelson, a wealthy widow, killed her 26-year-old daughter and committed suicide. She was insane.

Near Grinnell, Ia., L. E. Buck lost 37 head of cattle, 8 horses and 23 sheep by fire.

King Oscar is considering the mobilization of the Swedish army, anticipating complications likely to arise from the Japan-Russian war. The king, it is said, has decided to postpone his trip to Abbazia.

Several hundred tons of beef on the American steamer Korea, owned by James J. Hill, which sailed from Honolulu Feb. 8 for the Russian port of Vladivostok, will probably be seized by the Japanese on arrival at Nagasaki as contraband of war.

In the third Japanese attack on Port Arthur four Russian cruisers were sunk. This is regarded as the practical annihilation of the Russian fleet in the Yellow sea. When the final onslaught was made by the Japanese, three of their torpedo boats were, according to the latest reports, sunk and their crews drowned.

An avalanche of ice and snow fell from an adjoining hill into the roof of the Viroqua (Wis.) insane asylum, with the result that the roof was crushed like an egg shell.

A Russian torpedo transport accidently strikes a mine at Port Arthur and is blown up. Four officers and about a hundred men were killed.

Dynamite and more than 3,000 detonators are found concealed in trunk of Austrian arriving at Liverpool from Pittsburg.

Albion Beck, a banker at Warsaw, Ind., shot himself in the head after swallowing carbolic acid, death resulting within a few minutes. Continued sickness is the cause assigned for the cause.

The Japanese think China will abandon her position of neutrality.

GRIM WAR A REALITY IN THE FAR EAST.

Japanese Torpedo Boats Attack the Russian Squadron Off Port Arthur—Many of the Czar's Vessels Disabled—Troops Are Captured.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—An official dispatch received here says that Japanese torpedo boats have attacked the Russian squadron in the outer roads at Port Arthur, and that three Russian ships were damaged.

In addition to torpedoing the Russian battleships at Port Arthur, the Japanese have destroyed two others of the czar's ships, one of these being the American built Variag.

Confirmed.

London, Feb. 11.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister here, has received official confirmation from Tokio of the destruction at Chemulpo of the Russian first-class cruiser Variag and the third-class cruiser Korietz.

Three Transports Captured.

A special dispatch from Tokio says that the Japanese have captured three Russian transports having on board 2,000 troops.

Bombardment Renewed.

A dispatch from Port Arthur says the Japanese fleet returned there Tuesday afternoon and again bombarded the Russian fleet and forts, but that it soon withdrew. The losses to the Russians, the dispatch says, was small. During the firing a Japanese cruiser grounded.

Bridge Blown Up.

London, Feb. 11.—Japanese engineers, disguised as Chinese, are reported to have blown up a railroad bridge on the Manchurian railroad, killing 30 Russians. Two Russian telegraph lines in Manchuria have been cut. This information indicates that Japan has lost no time in attacking Russia's railroad communication, with the design of isolating Port Arthur and Dalny. It is understood that hundreds of Japanese engineers, disguised as Chinese coolies, have been in Manchuria for weeks waiting for the signal to attack the Russian railway. Advices from Kwar-Ting, Manchuria, say that 10,[illegible] armed Chinese, unofficially recognized as government troops, are operating in the district, and are expected to attack the railroad guards when they hear of the Russian disaster.

Deals Another Blow.

Chefoo, Feb. 12.—The Japanese fleet renewed the bombardment of the Russian fleet and forts and of Port Arthur at two o'clock this morning (Friday), and sunk three Russian cruisers, captured seven warships and chased others. Many shells were thrown into the city itself and a number of buildings, among them the Russian bank, were destroyed.

A Successful Dash.

The story of the latest battle at the Russian stronghold again shows the dash and courage of the Japanese. An unofficial report from Port Arthur says four Russian battleships and three cruisers were sunk, and many other smaller cruisers damaged. Two Japanese warships, probably protected cruisers, dashed in between the entrance to the harbor and the Russian fleet on Wednesday, despite a galling fire from the czar's men. This was done in an effort to drive, if possible, part of the Russian fleet into the open sea, where a battle could be fought away from the protection given by the forts on both sides of the Russian stronghold.

While the two cruisers attacked from the inside, the rest of the Japanese fleet, with torpedoes and shells, attacked from the outside. Several of these torpedoes took effect, and it is thought they were responsible for the sinking of the seven ships.

The Russians refused to send any of their ships into the open, and at last Admiral Togo signaled the two Japanese cruisers to rejoin the fleet. This they did, but they are reported to have been seriously damaged while running the Russian gauntlet.

While in details of the fight the reports differ, none is received without the specific statement that a majority of the Russian fleet has been put out of commission, either wholly or temporarily, by the heavy fire of the mikado's gunners.

China May Help.

Tientsin, Feb. 12.—China is organizing a force of 300,000 Boxers, which is to be poured into Manchuria to harass the Russians in the rear.

Japanese Port Bombarded.

London, Feb. 12.—The Tientsin correspondent of the Standard cables it is rumored that five Russian cruisers from Vladivostock bombarded Hakodate, Japan, on Tuesday.

Hakodate is on the island of Hokkaido, the most northern of the three Japanese islands. The harbor there is excellent and the town, containing about 56,000 inhabitants, is well and regularly built. There is a Japanese naval school there.

Is Denied.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 12.—The ministry of marine declares there is absolutely no foundation for the report that the Japanese made several attempts to land at Port Arthur. It is officially announced that no news has been received here of the fight at Chemulpo or the blowing up of a bridge on the Manchurian railroad.

Japanese Losses.

London, Feb. 12.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of Reuters Telegram company cables that the naval headquarters staff there announces that in the fight at Port Arthur six Japanese ships were slightly damaged and 50 Japanese were killed and 150 wounded.

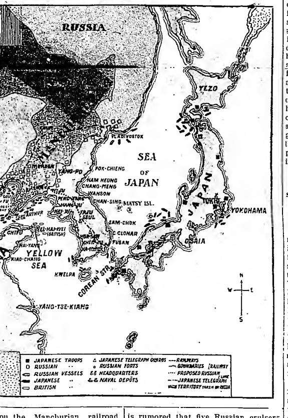
Signs Neutrality Proclamation.

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Roosevelt signed the proclamation declaring the neutrality of this government in the Russo-Japanese war Thursday afternoon.

Edward Declares Neutrality.

London, Feb. 12.—King Edward, at a council held at Buckingham palace Thursday afternoon, signed a proclamation declaring Great Britain's neutrality during the war between Russia and Japan.

SEAT OF THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.



SECRETARY HAY'S NOTE.

Attitude of the Various Nations on the Suggestions to Limit the Area of Hostilities.

Washington, Feb. 13.—"To Russia and Japan, the Washington government suggests the propriety of limiting hostilities within as small an area as possible and of respecting the neutrality and administrative entity of China, that China may be free from disturbances and foreign interests there from menace."

This is the substance of the note addressed by Secretary Hay on February 10 to the St. Petersburg and Tokio governments. On February 8 in a note to Germany, Great Britain and France, Mr. Hay invited those powers concurrently to address Russia and Japan with the same suggestion, and on February 11 this invitation was extended to Italy, Austria-Hungary, The Netherlands, Denmark, Spain and Belgium.

Germany was the first to respond, with a prompt acceptance of the invitation and the promise that she immediately would address the two combatants.

Great Britain was heard from next, expressing adherence to the principle laid down in the note, but withholding formal acceptance pending an answer to an inquiry, whether the "administration entity" of China involved Manchuria.

Japan was heard from quickly with the answer that she would act readily on the suggestion of the United States if a similar promise could be obtained from Russia.

Italy, Austro-Hungary and The Netherlands expressed sympathy with the idea and promised an answer after consultation with other powers. There is reason to believe that Spain and Belgium also will accept the invitation. Russia thus far has been silent and the attitude of France is one of hesitation.

This is the situation at this time. Meantime it is learned that Germany is addressing the combatants with a note in substance the same as that of Secretary Hay.

Regarding the attitude of Great Britain it has been a matter of some regret to the officials here that as the principle is one for which the British government has stood in the past, so stalwartly for it, should hold up formal acceptance of the invitation until it has learned further details. On the highest authority it can be stated that there are no details to the secretary's note, as it would be manifestly impossible to hope for concurrent action by so many powers upon any but the most general lines. That the officials of the Washington government could have had in mind the neutrality of Manchuria is declared on the face of it to be absurd. Manchuria is recognized by this government with Corea to be the natural theater of the war and for this reason primarily is the suggestion made that hostilities be restricted.

HANNA ON THE VERGE.

Sick Senator Has a Chill, Collapses, and His Hold on Life Is Slight.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Senator Hanna is passing through the climax of his illness and on Friday afternoon it was feared he was dying, but later he rallied strongly and there is again some hope that he yet may win the forlorn fight. The odds are much against his recovery, but the sturdy physique of the man aided by oxygen and powerful stimulants brought him through Friday afternoon when he was sinking rapidly, and possibly may again. It is now a question how long the climax of the fever will last and how many and severe will be any further acute attacks, for Friday's spell was so severe that another probably would witness the end.

Friday's acute attack came in the form of a chill about two o'clock and not long afterward Senator Hanna passed into unconsciousness not to return again until around six o'clock. His pulse at this time ran up to 130 and was so feeble it was not perceptible at the wrist. Three hours or so later, however, he had shaken off the attack to so great an extent that Dr. Osler, the Baltimore physician in attendance, came from the sick room at 9:35 o'clock and said there had been a decided improvement and that the patient's pulse was much stronger and had fallen nearly 20 points.

ARMY MEN HELD BACK.

President Decides Not to Send the Regulars to Guard Baltimore.

Washington, Feb. 13.—At the cabinet meeting, after a long consideration of the resolution adopted by the Maryland legislature, calling for troops for duty in Baltimore, it was decided not to comply at this time with the request. Prior to the cabinet meeting Brig. Gen. Riggs, as a special messenger from Gov. Warfield, formally presented to the president the resolution adopted by the legislature. He conveyed at the same time Gov. Warfield's personal statement that the troops were not needed. This presented an anomalous situation, and the cabinet determined not to send troops at this time.

Date Changed.

St. Louis, Feb. 13.—At the request of the Indiana World's Fair commission Indiana day at the exposition has been changed from September 15 to September 1.

There is no complaint about changeable weather this winter, as it is about 30 degrees below zero all the time.

It seems that Justice Collin's management are not going to allow ex-mayor Ames tell the people about the debt of gatitude he owes the judge for his right to be at liberty to tell it.

The old time splendor of Mississippi River steamboating is to be revived between St. Paul and St. Louis during the season of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition next summer by the Exposition Transportation Company, recently organizied in St. Paul.

Where are we at? Bob Dunn is making a campaign, because he saved the state $80,000 by refuseing to pay bounty for manufacturing beet sugar, and representative Simon's wants to be elected agin, because he put in all his time, in the last legislature trying to pass another one.

The bill of Steenerson's to open the Red Lake Indian reservation to entry has passed both houses of congress and the land will undoubtly be ready for the homesteader this season. There will not be any delay by the Indians refusing to ratify, as they are satisfied with the present law.

THE FIRST GUN

There is begining to be some discussion about who is to be the nominee of the republican party, for the differant county offices, of Clearwater, Red Lakk, and Polk counties. It is is [illegible] important [illegible] the tax payers [illegible] good honerable men elect[illegible] county [illegible], but this is the main question for us to consider when we cast our vote [illegible] next primary election.

When the 61 62 and 63 Legislative districts of Minnesota are [illegible] of, is all the assistance [illegible] get from the state for drainage, and the central portion of the state are heartily in sympathy with us. Now our position in the next campaign, is to see to it, that we nominate, and elect men to the next legislature, that will devote their time and energy to your best interest to drain the wet lands of the northern part of the state, instead of trying to pass a suger beet bounty law, that never could in any way benefit the residents of his district.

JAPAN THE BEST.

Japan in the east, is fighting the battles of Western Europe. Let Russia win in the presant conflict, and brake the heart of Japan, and Russian's interest in Eastern Asia will take care of themselves, leaving her free to carry out her long-cherished purpose of absobing Asia and, as some believe, Sweden and Norway as well. So long as success attends the Japanese, the greater nations of Western Europe, where the balence of power would be seriously impaired by any further aggrandizement of Russia may adhere to their declarations of neutrality. So with the United States. But if defeat comes to the brave little soldiers of mikado, it is to be hoped that means may be found to unite all in a demand that the czar's forces halt.—Pioneer Press.

If Japan can go as swift a pace on land as they have been going on the water, for the past two weeks, they don't need any help to make the Russian bear hunt his hole, and pull the hole in after him, as their victories on the sea have something of the appearance of of the Americans over Spain.

A Hideous Monster

The Octopus Is the Most Repulsive Inhabitant of the Sea.

A Fishing Crew's Battle With a Devilfish—Its Enormous Size and Great Strength.

The waters round the Newfoundland coast are infested by huge octopi, and many a fishing boat that never returns with her hardy crew owes her disappearance to the encircling tentacles of this strange and most repulsive inhabitant of the ocean depths. Occasionally dead devilfish are washed ashore after a storm, and recently one was found on the shore near Cape Race which, as it stretched its sixty feet along the strand, was thought to be the sea serpent at last. More recently one attacked a fishing schooner in Placentia bay but was beaten off by the crew with axes and knives though not until it had grasped one man with its long, sinuous arm and nearly drawn him overboard, the tentacle being severed by a [illegible] and remaining on board as a trophy of the fight after the creature had been forced to retreat.

Until comparatively recent years there was [illegible] scientific skepticism [illegible] this octopus. But then an encounter between one and a Newfoundland fishing crew enabled the world to become certain of its existence. Off St. John in June, 1888, some fishermen saw a floating object which they took to be wreckage. Rowing toward it, the bowman dug his gaff into it, when, to the horror of the crew, the creature displayed vigorous signs of life. Rapidly it disengaged its enormous bulk into its component members, erected its slimy tentacles many feet in the air and flung them over the boat, which at the same time it attacked with its gigantic parrot-like beak.

The men sat paralyzed with terror until they saw the boat being dragged under water, when they aroused themselves and tried to beat off the repulsive creature. One man caught a tentacle and sought to throw it from the boat, but instantly it wound round him and was dragging him overboard. His comrade was next caught by two smaller tentacles, while a second long arm enveloped the boat. A boy in it sat crouched with fright until he saw his father in danger, and then, grasping an ax, he brought it down on the tentacle and severed it. Next he cut off a second, when the creature retreated into the depths of the sea. The next day the octopus drifted ashore.

This specimen had a body 20 feet long, with two tentacles 40 feet in extent by 40 inches around and twelve shorter tentacles 10 to 12 feet long by 16 inches around. The extreme length from tip of tail to extremity of tentacles was 60 feet; between the tentacles stretched out 80 feet. The total weight was about 1,200 pounds. The body was a sort of flabby, jellified mass, like a conserve of cornstarch, and rounded in form like a barrel or tube, terminating in a triangular fin or tail.

In the upper part of the body the eyes were set and below them the mouth, a beak-like protuberance of strong bone, both extremities being as sharp as steel needles. The tentacles were tough and sinewy as leather ropes, the under surface being covered with a double row of suckers. These were about an inch in diameter, with fine, sharp teeth around their horny edges and a movable membrane which when pressed into an object and retracted at the will of the animal created a vacuum. Then the sharp teeth would sink into the flesh of the victim, and the sucker would establish a hold from which escape would be impossible except by cutting off the tentacle or killing the octopus. Each tentacle has about 200 suckers and each smaller arm 100, so the total is about 1,000, which gives the fish an almost resistless power.

OLD TIME BASEBALL.

IT WAS NOT SCIENTIFIC, AND FEW RULES WERE OBSERVED.

The Batter Was Known as the Paddleman, and the Pitcher's Object Was to Throw a Ball That Could Be Hit—"Bringing In the Side."

Time will not turn back in its flight, but the mind can travel back to the days before baseball or at least to the days before baseball was so well known and before it had become so scientific. There were ball games in those days in town and country, and the country ball game was an event. There were no clubs. The country boy of those days was not gregarious. He preferred flocking by himself and remaining independent. On Sunday afternoons the neighborhood boys met on some well crossed pasture, and, whether ten or forty, every one was to take part in the game. Self appointed leaders divided the boys into two companies by alternately picking one until the supply was exhausted. The bat, which was no round stick, such as is now used, but a stout paddle with a blade two inches thick and four inches wide with a convenient handle dressed on to it, was the chosen arbiter. One of the leaders spat on the side of this bat, which was honestly called "the paddle," and asked the leader of the opposition forces, "Wet or dry?" The paddle was then sent whirling up in the air, and when it came down whichever side won went to the bat, while the others scattered over the field.

The ball was not what would be called a "National league ball" nowadays, but it served every purpose. It was usually made on the spot by some boy offering up his woolen socks as an oblation, and these were raveled and wound round a bullet, a handful of strips cut from a rubber overshoe, a piece of cork or almost anything or nothing, when anything was not available. The winding of this ball was an art, and whoever could excel in this art was looked upon as a superior being. The ball must be a perfect sphere and the threads as regularly laid as the wire on the helix of a magnetic armature. When the winding was complete the surface of the ball was thoroughly sewed with a large needle and thread to prevent it from unwinding when a thread was cut. The diamond was not arbitrarily marked off as now. Sometimes there were four bases and sometimes six or seven. They were not equidistant, but were marked by any fortuitous rock or shrub or depression in the ground where the steers were wont to bellow and paw up the earth. One of these tellurial cavities was almost sure to be selected as "the den," now called the home plate. There were no masks or mitts or protectors. There was no science or chicanery, now called "headwork." The strapping young [illegible], embryonic teachers, presidents and premiers were too honest for this. The pitcher was the one who could throw a ball over the "den" [illegible] few could do this. His object was to throw a ball that could be hit.

The paddleman's object was to hit the ball, and if he struck at it—which he need not do unless he chose—and missed it the catcher, standing well back, tried to catch it after it had lost its momentum by striking the earth once and bounding in the air—"on the first bounce" it was called—and if he succeeded the paddleman was "dead," and another took his place. If he struck it and it was not caught in the field or elsewhere in the air or "on the bounce," he could strike twice more, but the third time he was compelled to run. There was no umpire and very little wrangling. There was no effort to pounce upon a base runner and touch him with the ball. Any one having it could throw it at him, and if it hit him he was "dead"—almost literally sometimes. If he dodged the ball, he kept on running until the "den" was reached. Some of the players became proficient in "ducking; dodging and side stepping, and others learned to throw the ball with the accuracy of a rifle bullet.

No matter how many players were on a side, each and every one had to be put out, and if the last one made three successive home runs he "brought in the side," and the outfielders, pitchers and catcher had to do all their work over again. The boy who could "bring in his side" was a hero. No victorious general was ever prouder or more lauded. Horatius at the bridge was small potatoes in comparison. He was the uncrowned king. There were no foul hits. If a ball touched the paddle ever so lightly, it was a tick, and three ticks made a compulsory run. The score was kept by some one cutting notches in a stick, and the runs during an afternoon ran into the hundreds. If the ball was lost in the grass or rolled under a Scotch thistle, the cry "Lost ball!" was raised and the game stopped until it was found.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

What a Lie Did.

The madness of suicide as a relief from mental anguish was vividly illustrated years ago by an incident which occurred in an Italian town. Moretti, a tailor, was sent to prison on a charge of fraud. His sweetheart called upon the police officer to ask how long Moretti was likely to be confined and was told that it would be probably for many years. The policeman had been instigated to say this by the girl's mother, who disliked the match. Overwhelmed with grief and thereby driven to despair, the poor girl put an end to her life by poison. A few days later Moretti was released from custody, the accusation against him having been proved false. He returned home to find his affianced bride a corpse. Frenzied at the sight, he, too, destroyed himself. The lie wrought a double tragedy.

A Clever Fish.

The salmon seems to be gifted with much intelligence, or "hereditary foresight," as it is occasionally called, which is more particularly acute when danger signals are abroad, says William C. Harris in Field and Stream. They have been known, when congregated in the upper pools, to become frightened by poachers approaching them with net or spear and to immediately dash down stream to a distance of thirty miles in one night, not stopping until they had reached pools so deep that they could not be taken with the appliances of the poacher. They seemed to know that if they went higher up the stream their doom was sealed. [illegible] coming from the sea in schools and entering the estuary they have [illegible] with an old leader at the head of the school, the rest forming a triangle about two and a half feet below the surface of the water, and on such days, guided by the old patriarch, they would swim around the fishermen's nets, never approaching them nearer than ten or twelve yards.

Standing an Egg on End.

Any fresh egg can, without being [illegible], be balanced on either end by any one possessing patience and a steady hand.

In order to save time the egg should be placed for a short time on the end upon which it is desired to balance it, so as to allow the yolk to settle; then both forearms of the person making the experiment should be rested on the edge of the table and the egg should be taken between the three fingers and thumbs of both hands and slowly turned around until the center of gravity is found. This experiment may at first require a little time, but after a little practice it will be found very easy to do. It would be well to try it first on the tablecloth and then on the bottom of a plate.

It is conceded, of course, that the present century is far more advanced than that of Columbus; so it is only to be expected that different ideas should have been formed, even as to the balancing of eggs.

The Literal Truth.

Dunns—What do you mean by sending me word that you were not in? Debts—I didn't. I sent you word that I was out. Dunns—Well, and what did you mean by that? Debts—Exactly what I said. I am out of cash.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Amplifying Him.

First Guest (at banquet)—Is this diamond backed terrapin? Second Guest—That's what the caterer calls it. First Guest (tasting it)—Well, he's a prevaricaterer.—Chicago Tribune.

Sentence Suspended.

"Her voice was tried by a famous singing master."

"Was it found guilty?"—Princeton Tiger.

Getting in debt is like sliding down a greased pole; getting out is like climbing the same pole.—Augusta (Ga.) Herald.

Grotesque.

Irate Husband—If I'm to believe what you say, why on earth did you marry me, madam?

Wife—I remember, I had at the time quite a craze for collecting grotesque curios—Chinese and Japanese hobgoblins and such like—and you were the only man to match my collection.

A Real Absent Minded Man.

The most absent minded man was not the man who hunted for his pipe when it was between his teeth, nor the man who threw his hat out of the window and tried to hang his cigar on the peg—no, but the man who put his umbrella to bed and went and stood behind the door.—Ex[illegible]

Customs of Colliers' Wives.

The wives of north country colliers observe a very touching and pathetic custom when an accident occurs in the pit. Directly it is known to the wife of a collier that an accident has happened in the pit where her husband works and that his fate is uncertain she throws open the house door, and, however inclement the weather may be, she keeps the door open and a candle burning in the window, night and day, till the man is brought home, dead or alive. In some cases the door has remained open and the candle alight during several weeks.—London Chronicle.

Dogs as Collectors.

Dogs with collecting boxes attached to their collars are comparatively common in Europe. It may not, however, be generally known what large sums they earn for the charities they represent. It is stated in the Animal World that one which used to beg for a hospital in Ireland collected in five years nearly $15,000. He had a special banking account, which was submitted periodically to a chartered accountant.

Philosophy.

STAGE LIGHTS.

Their Various Uses and the Names by Which They Are Known.

Lights play an important part on the stage of the modern theater, and they have many uses. The spot light, for instance, is employed to cast a circle of light upon the stage where a single person is to be brought into especial prominence. It consists of an arc electric light inclosed in a cylindrical hood about the diameter of a stovepipe and provided at the open end with a condenser lens for the purpose of concentrating the rays upon a small area.

A flood light is an arc in a rectangular box painted white upon the inside to serve as a reflector. It is supposed to flood the stage with light; hence its name.

Bunch lights are clusters of gas or incandescent lights either arranged within a reflector or exposed naked. They are used back of a scene behind doorways, where light is needed off the stage to represent the illumination of that part of a dwelling not shown. For the same purpose "strip" lights are used—rows of incandescent lights fastened to a strip of wood provided with a hook, by which it may be hung to the back of a scene when required.

"Side" lights are incandescent lights arranged on either side of the proscenium arch. Sometimes they are built within the arch or they are arranged to be swung outward when the curtain is raised.

The footlights are familiar to all, and the "border" lights are those hung over the stage directly above the scenery, shutting off the top of the stage. These are arranged in a trough like an inverted "U" to cast their light down upon the stage. These are practically all of the lights used upon the stage of a house, though magic lanterns are employed at times for the simulation of water effects, moonlight ripples and lightning. The old fashioned calcium, using the oxyhydrogen gas, is so seldom employed in the modern theater as to call for no comment.

California produces more oranges and lemons than any other state in the Union.

The United States mint at San Francisco is the largest institution of the kind in the world.

For many years past San Francisco has been and still is the leading whaling port of the world.

The glory of California's flowers is practical. The state produces more honey than any other.

California produces more English walnuts than all the other states, and they are of better quality.—Exchange.

A Home Thrust.

There is a good story told about the late Henry Bergh. While walking about the streets of New York city one morning he saw a teamster whipping a balky horse.

"Stop that, you brute," he exclaimed, "or I'll have you locked up inside of five minutes! Why don't you try kindness on the animal? Don't you suppose a horse can be reached by a kind word the same as a human being?"

"I b'lieve ye're right, sor," replied the teamster, a quick witted Irishman, who, with all his faults of temper, was not a bad man at heart, "an' if a harse has feelin's, sor, don't ye s'pose his dhriver has too? Thry a koind wor-rd on the dhriver, if ye pl'ase."

The stern face of Mr. Bergh relaxed into a smile, and in the better understanding that followed the horse forgot that it was balking and started off in a trot.

SYLVESTER PETERSON Register.

Peppis, Peepies, or What?

A correspondent (an American, we presume) writes to ask how he shall pronounce the name of the excellent diarist we occasionally quote. "Do you," he asks, "call Pepys 'Peppis' or 'Peepies' or 'Chumley' or what?" Even among contemporary London talkers there is disagreement, but the question should be settled by one Mr. James Carcasse, whom Pepys kindly took in his boat to view the great fire and who returned the compliment by a somewhat virulent set of verses in his volume "Lucida Intervalla."

Get thee behind me, then, dumb devil, be gone,
The Lord hath Ephthatha said to my tongue.
Him I must praise who open'd hath my lips,
Sent me from navy to the ark by Pepys.

The rhythm is dreadful, but the rhyme is conclusive, and the man who rowed in the same boat with the diarist called him "Pipps."—London Chronicle.

[An accepted American dictionary authority also gives Peps as the correct pronunciation of his name.—Ed.]

They Hunger For Praise.

"Praise is sweet," remarked a certain toiler, "yet is seems to be against the rule of many business houses. Perhaps they fear you'll demand a raise if they compliment your work. Why, even a man friend of mine, who is engaged in window decoration, says he wants to be told if his work is satisfactory. He dreams of it all night when it doesn't give him a nightmare, and he works at it all day. He longs to be told when it is effective, but he has to be content with the fact that, as he puts it, he'd be fired if it were not satisfactory. As for me, I design these doll dresses and other dainty things and also arrange them for display. I long for praise when I feel that my labors have been crowned with success. But, alas, my firm also pursues the clam policy—perhaps it is the best policy—in spite of the fact that I'd work the skin off my fingers to try to exceed my best work if only that were praised."—Philadelphia Record.

Sensitive Horses.

The horse does not like a nervous, fidgety, fussy or irritable man. He is too nervous and irritable himself. "Why is it," one teamster was heard to ask another, "that Phin's horses are always gaunt? Phin feeds them well." "Yes," was the reply, "but he's like a wasp around a horse." A well known owner of race horses, not at all a sentimental person, recently made an order forbidding his employees to talk in loud tones or to swear in the stable. "I have never yet seen a good mannered horse," he says, "that was being sworn at all the time. It hurts the feelings of a sensitive horse, and I'll keep my word good to discharge any man in my employ if I catch him swearing within the hearing of any horse in this stable."—Country Life in America.

A Story of Brahms.

A rather celebrated composer asked to be allowed to play his very latest composition to Brahms, and did so with tremendous vigor, the perspiration streaming down his face as he pounded the piano. Brahms at the end of the performance picked up a sheet of the manuscript and, feeling it between his finger and thumb, enthusiastically exclaimed: "I say, where do you get your music paper? It's first rate."

Not Fatal.

No Matter What Doctors Say—We Know That Heart Trouble in Many Cases Can Be Cured.

There are seven main features of heart disease, viz.: (1) Weakness or Debility; (2) Rheumatism or Neuralgia; (3) Valvular Disorder; (4) Dilation; (5) Enlargement; (6) Fatty Degeneration; (7) Dropsy.

Documentary evidence will prove thousands of so-called "incurables" have been absolutely cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Patients often have no idea their disease is heart trouble, but ascribe it to Indigestion, Liver Complaint, etc.

Here are some of the symptoms: Shortness of breath after exercise. Smothering Spells. Pain in Chest, left Shoulder and arm. Discomfort in Lying on one side. Fainting Spells. Nervous Cough. Swelling of Feet and Ankles. Paleness of Face and Lips. Palpitation. Nightmare. Irregular Pulse.

A Scathing Retort.

An English lawyer who had been cross examining a witness for some time and who had sorely taxed the patience of the judge, jury and every one in the court was finally asked by the court to conclude his cross examination. CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON, OF OHIO.

Hon. David Meekison is well known, not only in his own State but throughout America. He began his political career by serving four consecutive terms as Mayor of the town in which he lives, during which time he became widely known as the founder of the Meekison Bank of Napoleon, Ohio. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the State.

Only one flaw marred the otherwise complete success of this rising statesman. Catarrh with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp, was his only unconquered foe. For thirty years he waged unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Peruna came to the rescue, and he dictated the following letter to Dr. Hartman as the result:

> "I have used several bottles of Peruna and I feel greatly benefited [illegible] from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if [illegible] a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison, ex-Member of Congress.

[illegible] catching cold is upon us. [illegible] cough and the sneeze and nasal twang are to be heard on every hand. The origin of chronic [illegible] dreadful [illegible] is a cold.

[illegible] is the way the chronic catarrh [illegible] begins. A person [illegible] takes cold, [illegible] hangs on longer than usual. The cold generally starts in the head and throat. Then follows sensitiveness of the air passages which incline one to catch cold very easily. At last the person has a cold all the while seemingly, more or less discharge from the nose, hawking, spitting, frequent clearing of the throat, nostrils stopped up, full feeling in the head and sore, inflamed throat.

The best time to treat catarrh is at the very beginning. A bottle of Peruna properly used never fails to cure a common cold, thus preventing chronic catarrh.

While many people have been cured of chronic catarrh by a single bottle of Peruna, yet, as a rule, when the catarrh becomes thoroughly fixed, more than one bottle is necessary to complete a cure. Peruna has cured cases innumerable of catarrh of twenty years' standing. It is the best, if not the only internal remedy for chronic catarrh in existence.

But prevention is far better than cure. Every person subject to catching cold should take Peruna at once at the slightest symptom of cold or sore throat at this season of the year and thus prevent what is almost certain to end in chronic catarrh.

Mrs. A. [illegible], Cartersville, Ga., writes:

Mrs. A. Snedeker.

"I saw that your catarrh remedy, Peruna, was doing others so much good, that I thought I would try it and see what it would do for me. My case is an old one and I have none of the acute symptoms now, because I have had the disease so long that I had none of the aches and pains, but a general rundown condition of the whole body—sore nose and throat and stomach. I had a good appetite but my food did not nourish my system. I had come down from 140 to about 75 pounds in weight. I now feel that I am well of all my troubles."—Mrs. A. Snedeker.

Send for free book on catarrh, entitled "Winter Catarrh," by Dr. Hartman. "Health and Beauty" sent free to women only.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Moose and Deer.

The deep snows of the present winter make it one of the hardest for years on deer and moose. The deer are beginning to yard in the north and will come out of the rigors of the winter weak and emaciated. The same thing applies to moose, but, if anything, they will be even poorer than the deer.

Moose feed on swamp grass, now buried beneath two feet of snow in most places, and on poplar sprouts and twigs. Before they can get at this food it is necessary for them to paw away the snow. In the spring they are often so weak they can walk only with difficulty, and many will die from the unusual exposure, just as the range cattle of the west.

Both deer and moose are falling a frequent prey to bands of timber wolves. Deer are comparatively an easy prey, but the hungry timber bandits encounter an enemy worthy their mettle when they assail a monarch bull moose. They are well aware of this fact, and when they find one that is weak from hunger they dog his footsteps day and night until he falls a prey to their constancy. In open battle they will kill a wolf with a single stroke of their hoofs.

A cruiser of the Beltrami Timber company recently came upon a moose standing in the middle of a small slough, knee deep in the snow. At a safe and convenient distance around him was stationed a pack of eight wolves. How long the moose had been surrounded is a question. A few shots from the woodman's Winchester dispersed the band. The moose was so weak that it gained the shelter of the underbrush nearby with difficulty.

Reminiscent.

Many articles reminiscent of the pioneer days when Fort Snelling was an outpost of civilization have been discovered by the workmen remodeling the old tower and removing old buildings preparatory to erecting new structures.

Among these articles is an old hammer, evidently used in laying the floor of the tower when that structure was used as a prison. It is the kind formerly used to hold whiffletrees on ox-wagons, and has a sharp-pointed handle to be used for prying purposes.

Other articles found under the floor were an agate and an arrow head, and fragments of old military clothing worn a century ago, which crumbled to the touch. Two old tin lanterns, such as London watchmen carried in the old days, were also found, and the iron doors of the tower prison have been preserved by Capt. C. M. Schofield, constructing quartermaster, as relics of dead and gone generations. A brass key stamped "1820," was also among the "finds."

Close Call.

Dan Patch, record 1:56¼, the $60,000 champion pacing stallion owned by M. W. Savage, had a narrow escape from death by fire in Mr. Savage's stable at 2600 Portland avenue, Minneapolis.

Blinded by the dense smoke and showered with water from the hose directed by the firemen the king of the track was led from his stall by Judge C. B. Elliott, Mr. Savage and Charles Plummer, the caretaker.

The famous horse did not seem to be injured in the least by his exposure to fire and water and altho excited and nervous after the ordeal.

Republican Convention.

Robert Jamison, chairman of the republican state central committee, has issued the formal call for the state convention to be held at Minneapolis, March 17, for the purpose of electing four delegates-at-large and four alternates to the national convention in Chicago, June 21. The call requires county conventions to elect delegates to the state convention Tuesday, March 15.

Rough House.

It was a strenuous life for the university sophomores at the "U" when they attempted to hold their class party in the armory despite the frantic efforts of a mob of 150 freshmen to break up the party. The battle that resulted from the attempt lasted over an hour and proved one of the hottest ever held at the institution.

Blood and water flowed freely. Snowballs and chairs filled the air and clothing was torn in shreds. Hats, caps and collars went to ruin and it is believed that in at least two cases bones were broken.

News Notes.

Great Northern surveyors are working on the Pelican Rapids line, which was abandoned long ago after considerable work had been done.

It is learned that the Wright & Davis interests of Michigan are to return to Minnesota to operate more extensively than ever in the pine timber industry.

The sash and door factory of L. C. Berg, St. Anthony Park, was damaged by a fire which originated in the boiler room. The factory is located at 2270 Hamaden avenue. The loss is placed at $300.

An explosion of gas at Rice street and University avenue, St. Paul, tears up the pavement.

The last ten of a bunch of twenty-five complaints against saloonkeepers and druggists were filed in Mankato. They are charged with selling adulterated or bogus blackberry brandy or port wine. Most of them have paid fines of $25 apiece.

An exhibit of the handiwork of inmates of the state insane hospitals and other state institutions is being planned by the state board of control for the Louisiana purchase exposition.

R. W. Dering believes he is the pioneer of Itasca county pioneers. Fourteen years ago he shot two caribou on the present townsite of Little Fork.

Three Doctors' Opinions.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Physicians have accepted Dodd's Kidney Pills as the standard remedy for diseases of the Kidneys and kindred complaints. R. H. Dunaway, M. D., of Benton, Ill., says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Diabetes after everything else had failed and I was given up to die. I have since prescribed them in my regular practice for every form of Kidney Trouble and have never as yet known them to fail."

Jesse L. Limes, M. D., St. John, Kansas, says:—

"I prescribed Dodd's Kidney Pills for the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McBride of this place who suffered from Epileptic fits following Scarletina; results were miraculous; I have never seen anything like it."

Leland Williamson, M. D., Yorktown, Ark., says:—

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I know of for all forms of Kidney Disease. I believe in using the remedy that relieves and cures my patients, whether ethical or not, and I always prescribe Dodd's Kidney Pills and can testify that they invariably accomplish a permanent and perfect cure of all Kidney Complaints."

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture

gives to Salzer's Oats its heartiest endorsement. Salzer's New National Oats yielded in 1903 from 150 to 300 bu. per acre in 30 different States, and you, Mr. Farmer, can beat this in 1904, if you will. Salzer's seeds are pedigree seeds, bred up through careful selection to big yields.

	Per Acre.
Salzer's Beardless Barley yielded	121 bu.
Salzer's Home Builder Corn	300 bu.
Speltz and Macaroni Wheat	80 bu.
Salzer's Victoria Rape	60,000 lbs.
Salzer's Teosinte, the fodder wonder	160,000 lbs.
Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass	50,000 lbs.
Salzer's Pedigree Potatoes	1,000 bu.

Now such yields pay and you can have them, Mr. Farmer, in 1904.

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N.Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered misery for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restful sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief but finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me, I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me.

"I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put aside all other medicines and to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MISS NELLIE HOLMES, 540 No. Division St., Buffalo, N. IN PRAIRIE LAND.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

MOOSE JAW, Assiniboia.

Farmers' Review, Chicago, July 22, 1903.

"Most of the prairies in the United States have ceased to exist. Man has broken them up with orchards, forests and farm buildings. But in Western Canada the prairies still stretch grandly from horizon to horizon as yet unmarred by the hand of man, save where the iron road has been laid. To a city man there is something deliciously restful about the vast grassy solitudes.

"Numerous clumps of trees mark the course of the Assiniboine River, which keeps in sight of the railroad for some distance.

"Grass is one of the notable things about all the landscape of Western Canada. It is a remarkable fact that the entire length of the Canadian Pacific railway from its eastern terminus to the Rocky mountains is over plains where grass grows. The sage brush appears at some points, but never to the exclusion of grass. There is thus not a mile of this country that cannot be used for some agricultural purpose—either for tilling or ranching.

"Moose Jaw is a town of over 2,000 inhabitants and one of the most important places in Assiniboia, being the center of a very good farming country and a great grain and stock shipping point.

"Near Moose Jaw agriculture and ranching go hand in hand; for near the town was seen a herd of beef cattle several hundred in number. On another side was seen a good sized herd of dairy cows, the property of the citizens in the town.

"In riding over the prairies we saw many good fields of alfalfa. The great need of the country is timber, which grows readily where planted, as was demonstrated by the shelter belts on some of the farms, and the trees on the residence lots in the town.

"Stories were told the writer of men who last year cleared from their wheat crop more than the land on which it was grown originally cost them. This is easy to believe in view of the large crop and high price for wheat last year.—Henry F. Thurston."

A Professional Nurse tells her experience with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Montague, Mass.

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

Gentlemen,—I heartily wish those who are suffering from backache and disturbed action of the kidneys would try Doan's Kidney Pills. As was the case with me, they will be more than surprised with the results. I have been troubled for years with my spine. I could not lie on either side. Spinal cramps would follow, and words could not explain the agony which I would endure. While in these cramps I could not speak or move, but by making a great effort after the cramp had left me I could begin to speak and move a little, but my whole back was so sore and lame that I could not even have my back bathed for some time. My nerves were in a terrible state. I would rather sit up at night than go to bed, dreading the cramps and the terrible backaches. I consulted physicians, but got only a little relief for the time being. Seeing your advertisement, my mother urged me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. After using one box I was better, and have ever since been on the gain. I have no backache and no cramps now, and I feel like a new person. My nerves are better and I know my blood is purer. Words cannot express my thanks to you for what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. In my work as professional nurse I have a chance to recommend them; and they did me so much good that I will do so on every possible occasion.

DOINGS OF A WEEK

What Has Happened Throughout the Civilized World.

A WEEK'S NEWS CONDENSED

A Complete Review of the Happenings of the Past Seven Days in This and All Foreign Lands.

GIVEN IN THE PRESS DISPATCHES

CONGRESS AT WORK.

Daily Proceedings of the Senate and House Briefly Told.

No business was transacted in the senate and house on the 17th out of respect to the memory of Senator Hanna, the members of both houses attending the funeral services in the senate chamber.

The senate in executive session on the 15th agreed to vote on the ratification of the Panama canal treaty on February 23. The agricultural appropriation bill, carrying $6,072,380, was reported and the conference report on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill was agreed to. In the house Mr. Shafroth, of the First district of Colorado, voluntarily relinquished his seat, acknowledging that his election had been tainted with fraud, but declared that he was in no measure responsible for it. A resolution was passed seating Mr. Bonynge, the contestant.

Senator Foraker made formal announcement in the senate on the 16th of the death of Senator Hanna, the usual resolutions were adopted and adjournment was taken as a further mark of respect. In the house the death of Senator Hanna was announced, the senate resolutions were adopted, and as a further mark of respect an adjournment was taken.

The time in the senate on the 18th was occupied in discussing the Panama question. In the house bills were introduced providing for the expenditure of $1,000,000 for building a harbor of refuge for lake shipping at Waukegan, Ill., and for an appropriation of $50,000 for transportation, pay and expenses of members of state militias attending rifle practice encampments. The fortification appropriation bill was passed.

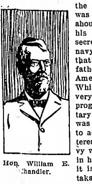
FATHER OF THE NAVY

Chandler and Not Whitney Is Entitled to the Title.

CREDIT DUE TO THE LATTER

He Pushed the Original and Added Greater Plans for the Building of Modern Warships—As a Society Leader.



Hon. William E. Chandler.

Washington.—Now that William C. Whitney is dead there is a revival of the fiction which was prevalent about the time of his service as secretary of the navy to the effect that he was the father of the new American navy. Whitney was a very efficient and progressive secretary and did what was in his power to advance the interests of the navy which he had in his keeping, but it is a great mistake to imagine that he had anything to do with the inauguration of the system under which the navy has grown during the past 20 years.

The real father of the new navy was William E. Chandler, who was secretary of the navy under Arthur, who was afterwards a United States senator for 12 years and who is now at the head of the Spanish treaty claims commission. Secretary Chandler created a commission of experts who traveled through Europe acquiring information upon which to base a report for a complete reorganization of the navy on modern principles. He took their report and put it into practical effect, by securing from congress the necessary appropriations and laying the keels for modern men of war.

Under Chandler's regime the Boston, the Chicago, the Atlanta and the Dolphin were constructed and those ships are still in commission and doing effective service. They formed the nucleus of the navy as it exists to-day.

It was Chandler who sounded the doom of the old-fashioned wooden vessels which up to 1880 had constituted the American navy and which had become a mockery and a mark. He had to overcome a great deal of opposition in carrying his progressive ideas into effect and he has never yet received full credit for what he did; but the credit is bound to come sooner or later.

Credit Due Whitney.

Hon. William C. Whitney.

Whitney is entitled to credit for not reversing Chandler's policy on the incoming of a democratic administration and for not recommending a suspension of the work on the new ships and a suspension of the large appropriations necessary for the expanding service. He was a big, broad, progressive business man and it is fortunate that he came on the scene as he did, for his policy committed the democratic party to the idea of a modern navy, thus making it a national instead of a party affair. Had a narrower man become secretary at that time the development of the navy might have been set back for years.

Those who remember Whitney as secretary will recall his enthusiasm in the new ships and the models which used to fill every available space in the office at the department which he occupied.

Whitney occupied the big reception room at the department which is now used for exhibition purposes and from which lead the offices of the present secretary and assistant secretary. He had a high desk at which he used to stand while at work and where he was accustomed to receive ordinary callers with whom he did not care to carry on a long conversation. It was easier for him to dismiss a troublesome visitor in this way than if he had received him in a room by himself. Whenever he really wanted a serious talk with anybody he would ask them into his inner office.

Whitney was capable of accomplishing a great deal of work in the course of a day. He never seemed to be hurried and he had a capacity for turning details over to subordinates, reserving for himself only the broader questions of general policy. He was extremely popular with everybody in the department and he was one of the most efficient secretaries the navy ever had.

Revolutionized Society.

The Western Millionaire.

Perhaps Whitney's greatest claim to remembrance in Washington, however, was his revolutionizing the social life of the capitol.

Before he came to Washington with the first Cleveland administration society in Washington was a comparatively simple and inexpensive affair. It was provincial and some of the swell entertainers of to-day might think it bucolic. Whitney was the first to introduce entertainment on a lavish scale. He bought the house of former Secretary Frelinghuysen on fashionable old I street, spent a great deal of money in modernizing it and built a ball room in the rear which was the finest thing of the kind in Washington and which still remains about the best thing of the kind about the capital. He gave entertainments to which he invited all official Washington and everybody else who was worth while and upon which he lavished money without stint. There had never been anything like it here before.

It was at one of these entertainments that Mrs. James Brown Potter, then a society leader, made a national sensation by reciting "'Ostler Joe"—a poem which would not attract any great amount of attention nowadays, but which was thought then to be decidedly risque.

To the first Cleveland administration through Whitney belongs the distinction of starting Washington on the career of social extravagance which has been growing more pronounced ever since.

There is a great deal more money here now than there was then. The western millionaire has invaded the town with his ostentation and garishness, but there has never been anything more sumptuous than the entertainments which Whitney used to give. It was he who inaugurated the cabinet dinner as it now exists.

Hanna's Many Interests.

Senator Hanna.

Senator Hanna has a larger correspondence than any other two senators put together. This comes partly from his position as chairman of the republican national committee and partly from his business connections.

In order to carry on his correspondence he keeps three offices running here in Washington and a separate force of clerks in each, all under the general supervision of his private secretary, Elmer Dover.

One office is at the capitol in his committee room. There the strictly legislative business is carried on. Senator Hanna has not been in this committee room since it was assigned to him. It is too far from the senate chamber to be convenient for him to drop in, and such people as he sees at the capitol he takes into the Marble room back of the senate chamber, where he can sit at his ease on one of the divans and talk to his heart's content.

Another office is at the Arlington hotel, on the same floor with the Senator's apartments. Here is where Dover reigns and here is where the most important personal and political business is attended to.

In the McLean building, just across the way, is still another office, which is devoted to miscellaneous work and where three or four clerks are employed.

Senator Hanna has more different kinds of business to attend to than almost any other man in public life. He does not let go his grip on his affairs in Cleveland while he is in Washington, but keeps a close watch on everything. His enterprises there are complicated and extensive, including ships and opera houses. His position as chairman of the national committee is sufficient to keep one man of ordinary capacity busy and besides, all this he does as much work and as hard work as any of his fellow senators in purely legislative business.

Assistant Secretary Ryan of the interior department objects to the clause in the Steenerson Red Lake bill, which provides that lands can be sold for no less than $4 an acre at private sale, because prospective purchasers may conspire to not pay any more than $4 an acre for any of the land, and the poor indians would be the looser. An argument of that kind may sound all right down in Washington and no doubt Secretary Ryan is sincere in his opinion, but if he should visit northern Minnesota when one of these reservations is opened, and watch the rush of the prospective settler for land, He would come to the conclusion that there [illegible] they may benefit in "having neighbors" as they [illegible] not [illegible] far enough [illegible] to give him that 160 acres of land that you [illegible] yourself.

BABY STOLEN BY A [illegible]

Enraged Simian [illegible] Mother When She Went to the Rescue of [illegible]

There is one adult monkey [illegible] who will never again enjoy [illegible] dom of the cocoanut groves or [illegible] at will among the fragrant orange [illegible]. Jocko is condemned to lifelong captivity, an iron chain around his neck and a strong staple holding him fast to a post in the ground.

His alleged crime was the kidnaping of the six-month-old baby of Mrs. W. A. Johnson of Tampa. The woman herself caught him with the child in his arms, and a desperate struggle ensued. The mother was victorious.

It may be said in defense of the monkey that he made no attempt to injure the child, but he seemed fascinated by its soft white beauty, caressed it and fought to retain possession of it. The monkey belongs to a neighbor, C. H. Marsh.

Mrs. Johnson's children, aged six and eight years, were playing in the yard, and the baby was sleeping on a cot in a front room on the second floor of the house. The children in the yard had never seen a monkey and called to their mother to look at the "funny dog" jumping about among the trees. A moment later she was aroused by the screaming of her baby.

"My heart almost stopped beating," said Mrs. Johnson. "I rushed to the second floor, threw open the door of the room in which I had left Dorothy asleep and saw a sight that made my blood run cold.

A COMIC TRAGEDY.

The Audience Was Ready, but the Show Was Tangled Up.

John Banvard, who afterward became famous as the painter of a great panorama of Mississippi scenery, set out in his boyhood, in the early 'thirties, to travel down the "Great Water" in a flatboat with a number of companions. They built their boat on the Wabash and were to pay their way by exhibiting dioramic views in the cabin at landings. Unfortunately the candlelights were not then shining through the sycamores along the Wabash, and before the adventurers reached a settled region they ran out of provisions. In the woods they could find nothing but papaws, luscious at first, but quickly cloying.

For two days, wrote the sixteen-year-old Banvard, we had nothing whatever to eat but those awful papaws. The very sight or memory of one made me shudder. Then, on a joyful, sunny afternoon, we approached Shawneetown, Ill., on the Ohio river, where we were advertised to exhibit. As we came in we could see on the bank a crowd of people. Some carried chickens, some eggs, some yams, some potatoes, some "side meat" (bacon) and some cornmeal. Our dinner was in sight; for all those things were intended as payment for admission at the door, and all were "good."

Our stomachs hungered, and our mouths watered for the feast; but, alas, we were too eager. Working our boat toward land, we ran upon a reef and stuck fast. Every effort to set us free failed. Darkness came on, and before our eyes our "house" disbanded and went home, carrying our supper with them.

Discouraged and forlorn, we turned to our bag of papaws for what consolation we could find and then went to sleep. In the night we floated free and at daylight were in the woods again eight miles below those luscious provisions. That was one of the most awful tragedies of my life.—Youth's Companion.

DOMESTIC NEGLECT.

The judge and spectators in a Kansas City courtroom laughed when a husband testified that his wife gave him only "mechanical kisses."

Then the lawyers devoted many minutes to the question, "What is a mechanical kiss?" They decided that it was a salutation given only through a sense of duty, and then they laughed some more.

[illegible] They might have called it a tragedy.

With most women affection [illegible] as strongly in [illegible] in youth. [illegible] joy to them.

Some [illegible] [illegible] is often a specimen of selfishness. Once it was a privilege to press a loving kiss on the lips of a wife at the door when leaving in the morning, again as a warm greeting that always [illegible] the homecoming at night.

And one morning the man forgot the caress and lost himself in business. And a shadow fell on a romance, and the woman wept. She tried to be brave and sensible. She tried to laugh at the silly fear that he didn't care for her. She assured herself a hundred times that it was such a little thing, and that it was natural for him to forget and that it was unreasonable for her to expect the joy of the honeymoon through life. She wiped away her tears and resolved to hide her grief and be kind, loving, patient.

And the man never knew. Perhaps some day he went into court and complained that he had been the recipient of "mechanical kisses." Domestic neglect isn't always confined to lack of food and clothing. Cruelty doesn't always take the form of physical abuse. When men learn to think, when they remember that the little attentions often [illegible] the difference between joy and sorrow in a woman's life, there will be more real happiness in the world.—Milwaukee Journal.

After [illegible] for a little while many people's feet get very tender and uncomfortable. If you are troubled in this way, try this plan: Put ivy leaves next the soles of your feet inside the stockings. Cut out the hard center rib, lay the leaves as smoothly as possible, draw your stockings carefully over so as not to disarrange them, and see that your shoes fit just comfortably. For walking in warm weather this is an excellent plan and prevents the feet from getting tender.—New York News.

The Lightning Changes We Make.

Great is the human makeup, and great are its chameleonlike qualities in the way of expressing feeling. Writers from time immemorial have taught us what to expect from the different colors that flit across our countenances, and, of course, writers are never wrong. Here are some of the lightning chromatic changes that we all have grown to recognize, and there are several [illegible] yet to be heard from:

A man turns green with envy, yellow with hatred, purple with rage, scarlet with anger, white from fear, pink from excitement, saffron from sickness, black from torture, red from heat and blue from cold.

Sometimes, too, he is "cold as steel," "hot as fudges," "cool as a cucumber," "a warm proposition," "hard as brass," "soft as mush," "smooth as a board," "a rough customer" and "a slick article." Then again he is "good as wheat," "sound as a rock," "strong as an ox," "weak as a cat," "slippery as an eel," "sly as a fox," "mean as a snake," "poor as a mouse," "hungry as a wolf" and "dry as a fish."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Physical Culture.

It is a mistake to think that excessive physical exercise is beneficial. The opposite is the fact. As some one has said: "Man is not constructed to be a running and leaping animal, like a deer or cat." To emphasize bodily development above the mental development is a step toward resumption of the life of the savage and lower animals. Physical culture is a desirable thing, but, as in everything else, the extremes are to be avoided. A person may have too little bodily exercise and may also have too much or violent exercise. Wanted Bread; Had Courage.

One day, riding along the road, General Gordon came upon a regimental prayer meeting, which was very impressive. The men were kneeling or standing with bowed heads about the chaplain, who was praying in a voice of wonderful compass.

The general checked his horse and removed his hat and waited for the end of the prayer. The chaplain asked the Lord to give the men of Lee's army supreme courage to meet the great crisis that had come upon them, fortitude to bear new privations and troubles, strength to fight against the pursuing enemy. Just then a tall private rose from his knees and shouted to the chaplain: "Pray for bread, chaplain; pray for bread! We have courage to spare, but to fight we must have something to eat. Pray for bread!" This broke up the prayer meeting.

The Coster's Curl.

Many east London barbers, who have been journeymen in many west end establishments, declare that young costermongers and barmen, with the peculiar rolling curl that protrudes from under the cap or bowler, are far more particular about their hair than the sons of the aristocracy in general. This same curl, standing forth from a surface of hair that seems to have been flattened, is not achieved without much trouble. Scores of these young dandies of the east subscribe to a "toilet club" and have weekly attention given to their distinguishing curl in a manner that might be expected of a patrician beau.

Women at Shooting Parties.

Lady "stalkers" are numerous in Scotland, and three or four peeresses have placed quite a large number of splendid "heads" to their credit. The woman who can shoot well and understands the rules regulating sport is always welcome among the members of a shooting party in the covert, and at a moderate range befitting her twenty bore she can be relied upon to bring down the birds as neatly and dexterously as her male neighbors.—Scottish Field.

Huxley on Men.

Professor Huxley once wrote to Mrs. W. K. Clifford about men: "They are very queer animals—a mixture of horse nervousness, ass stubbornness and camel malice, with an angel bobbing about unexpectedly like the apple in the posset, and when they can do exactly as they please they are very hard to drive."

Wedded In a Bunch.

According to an old Breton custom, all the marriages of the year take place on one day. After the legal wedding has been performed the couples take their stand in a row behind the high altar of the church, and behind them sit their fathers and mothers, and so do their cousins and their uncles and their aunts, all arrayed in their brightest colored raiment and the whitest and stiffest of coiffes. The scene in the church is picturesque beyond description. They go through the ceremony in unison. The moral support it must give to the timidest bridegroom!

Three In Chinese.

Religious superstition asserts itself in Chinese architecture, and the universal sacredness of the numerals three and nine is shown in the arrangement of temple doors. There is a triple gateway to each of the halls of the imperial palace, and the same order prevails at the Ming tombs. The Temple of Heaven has a triple roof, a triple marble staircase, and all its mystic symbolism points [illegible] to three or its multiples.

Disappointment.

"I hope," said the ducal bridegroom anxiously, as he boarded the Cunarder with his American bride, "that your diamonds are safe in your bag."

"My dear," replied she, "I am not the first of our family to marry into the British nobility. My aunt married a duke. My diamonds are safe at home in papa's vault."—Town Topics.

Sir Roger de Coverley.

Ralph Thoresby, writing in 1717 of the family of Calverley of Colverley, Yorkshire, says: "Roger was a person of renowned hospitality, since at this time the obsolete tune of 'Roger a Calverley' is referred to him. He was a knight and lived in the time of Richard I." This passage carries the date of the origin of the tune back to about 1190. The Spectator in a description of Sir Roger, now called "de Coverley," says, "His great-grandfather was the inventor of the famous country dance which is called after him."

A Matter of Doubt.

A minister in a certain city said: "My brethren, the collection will now be taken for my expenses for a trip, for I am going away for my health. The more I receive the longer I can stay." The largest collection ever made in that church was taken. And now the question under discussion is whether the size of the collection was a compliment to the preacher or much the reverse.

Maxims For All Purposes.

"Remember, my son," said the prudent man, "that a penny saved is a penny earned."

"That's so," replied the reckless youth. "The trouble with me is that I am always getting hold of the wrong proverb. I was thinking, 'Nothing venture, nothing have.'"—Washington Star.

The Terrible Boy.

The Mother—Eunice, was there any kissing in that pantomime you and the others were rehearsing in the parlor last evening? The Daughter—Why, of course. Herbert and I had to kiss, but it was in pantomime.—Johnny—No, it wasn't, mamma. I heard it!—Chicago Tribune.

So Unsentimental.

May—Jane behaves like an old married woman already. Maud—Why, you can't get her to go anywhere without him. May—No; but she can call him up without kissing the phone.—New York Times.

Quickness Is Relative.

The careful American observer soon finds that the standard of quickness is to be determined in England, as everywhere else, by the point of view. People who go slowly on new ground may turn out to be quick enough when wholly at home with any particular line of thought.

How odious and complicated, for instance, seems to an American observer the computation of pounds, shillings and pence! It seems strange that any nation should consent for a day to employ anything but a decimal currency. Yet with what lightning rapidity does a London bookkeeper make his computations! What a life of tedious formality seems that of an English house servant! Yet there was no slowness of intellect in that footman in an earl's family who, when his yonng lord fell over the banisters and the next of kin called to ask if the elder boy was hurt, answered promptly, "Killed, my lord!" thus accomplishing in an instant the transfer of the title appertaining to on earl's eldest son and heir only.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson in Atlantic.

A Precious Manuscript.

There is now in St. Petersburg the oldest known MS. of the New Testament in Greek, saved from destruction by the merest chance many years ago. Crossing the hall of a convent at the foot of Mount Sinai, Constantine Tischendorf saw a bosketful of parchment leaves on their way to be burned. Two baskets had already gone, he was told, and all that he could secure for himself was a small bundle of odd leaves. But the monks, now interested in the "waste paper," saved the rest from the fire, and nine years after, on a return visit to the convent, Tischendorf found that the stewart had, wrapped in a red cloth, "a bulky kind of volume," which proved to be the whole of the New Testament, with parts hitherto unknown, and parts of the Old, which had long been sought. He begged the volume for the czar, and today it lies, well preserved in spite of its 1,500 years of age, among the treasures of the Russian capital.—London Mail.

Testing a Horse's Eyes.

The unsuspecting farmer is often "bit" by the professional horse trader in having a horse with defective sight palmed off on him. The trader makes a John L. pass at the horse's eye with his fist, and the force of the air causes the horse to bat or blink his eyes, though he may be totally blind in one eye and weak in the other.

If the farmer will blindfold one of the animal's eyes and make gentle passes at five and ten feet from it, he can tell how strong the animal's sight is in that eye. Then blind the examined eye and go through the same process with the other.

This little hint may save you getting the "small end" of a swop.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

Asked by the Duke of Somerset to define "the most desirable life," Disraeli answered, "A continued grand procession from manhood to the tomb."

Not Fatal.
No Matter What Doctors Say—We Know That Heart Trouble in Many Cases Can Be Cured.

There are seven main features of heart disease, viz.: (1) Weakness or Debility; (2) Rheumatism or Neuralgia; (3) Valvular Disorder; (4) Dilation; (5) Enlargement; (6) Fatty Degeneration; (7) Dropsy.

Documentary evidence will prove thousands of so-called "incurables" have been absolutely cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Patients often have no idea their disease is heart trouble, but ascribe it to indigestion, Liver Complaint, etc.

Here are some of the symptoms: Shortness of breath after exercise. Smothering Spells. Pain in Chest, left Shoulder and arm. Discomfort in Lying on one side. Fainting Spells. Nervous Cough. Swelling of Feet and Ankles. Paleness of Face and Lips. Palpitation. Nightmare. Irregular Pulse.

"I have great faith in Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and speak of its merits whenever opportunity presents. I can now go up and down stairs with ease, where three weeks ago I could hardly walk one block." One year later—"I am still in good health; the Heart Cure did so much for me, that I find it a far greater medicine than you claimed it to be."—S. P. YOUNG, D. D., 637 North Pine St., Natchez, Miss.

Grows In the Clouds.

So far as is known, the highest elevation at which flowers are found growing is 17,000 feet above sea level. The homely little plant which has the distinction of being the loftiest grower in the world is found on the upper slopes of the Himalayan mountains, near the line of perpetual snow. The season during which vegetation may appear above the surface in this region is less than four months in length.

A Soothing Retort.

An English lawyer who had been cross examining a witness for some time and who had sorely taxed the patience of the judge, jury and every one in the court was finally asked by the court to conclude his cross examination. Before telling the witness to stand down he accosted him with this parting sarcasm:

"Ah, you're a clever fellow—a very clever fellow. We can all see that."

The witness leaned over from the box and quietly retorted:

"I would return the compliment if I were not on ooth."—"Personalia."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

INTERESTING TO AMERICANS.

Western Canada Will Soon Become the Supply Depot for Wheat for Great Britain.

During the past year about 50,000 Americans went from the United States to Canada. Most of these settled upon farm lands, and the writer is informed by agents of the Canadian Government that the greatest success has followed the efforts of nearly all. To their friends on this side of the boundary line the fullest assurance is given of the prosperity that is in store for them. There will always be a splendid market for all the grain, cattle and other produce that can be raised in Western Canada, and with the advantages offered of a free homestead of 160 acres of land, and other lands which may be bought cheaply, an excellent climate, splendid school system, educational advantages of the best, what more is required. The husbandman gets more return for his money than in any other country in the world.

On the occasion of Sir Wilfred Laurier's visit to the Corn Exchange, London, Eng., Colonel Montgomery, V. D., made several important statements. "The function (he said) which you have just been assisting in connection with a kindred association has doubtless shown you the importance of the provision trade of Liverpool in its relationship with the Dominion, and the enormous possibilities of the future development of that trade. Well, the grain trade of Liverpool has interests with Canada no less important than those of the provision trade. When it is borne in mind that 80 per cent. of the breadstuffs of this great country has to be brought from abroad, you will readily appreciate with what great satisfaction we view the large and steadily increasing supplies of grain which are annually available for export from Canada, and I challenge contradiction when I say that of the wheats we import from Russia, India, the Pacific, and the length and breadth of the United States, none gives more general satisfaction, none is more generally appreciated, than that raised in the Province of Manitoba. We cannot get enough of it, and it is no exaggeration to say that there are before us dozens of millers who hunger for it. This is not the time to enter into statistical questions, but we look forward with confidence to the time at which, with the present rate of progress, the Dominion of Canada will have a sufficient surplus of wheat to render this country independent of other sources of supply. I think I may, with justifiable pride, remind you that this is the chief grain market of the British Empire, and through its excellent geographical position, as well as through the enterprise of its millers it is now the second milling center in the world."

Wasn't Seasick Anyhow.

In crossing the ocean a father and son both became very seasick. The father recovered quickly, but the son was so exhausted with the attack that he sank into a state of apathy from which it seemed impossible to arouse him. The steamer physician, thinking he would try a sudden shock, said: "I have bad news for you. Your father is dead." The son, raising his expressionless eyes to the doctor, replied: "Lucky man!"

Got the Right Kind.

Gainesville, Texas, Feb. 22nd.—Mrs. L. E. Burton of 507 Glad street, this city, writes the following letter:—

"I have been awfully troubled with my Kidneys. I was in a bad fix and had been doctoring with the Doctors, but was getting no better. I tried a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills and I found they did me lots of good. I had a slight return of my trouble and I went to the Drug Store and called for Dodd's Kidney Pills. They said there was no such pills. I told them there was. They said they had the best pills that were made and persuaded me to try a box of another kind, not Dodd's. As I needed some medicine, I bought a box, but they did me no good, so I went elsewhere and got the real Dodd's Kidney Pills, and very soon was completely cured. I took a box up to the Drug Store and showed them that there was such pills and asked them to order some, but as I haven't needed any more I haven't called to see whether or not they got them."

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Thompson, of Lillydale, N. Y., Grand Worthy Wise Templar, and Member of W. C. T. U., tells how she recovered from a serious illness by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am one of the many of your grateful friends who have been cured through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and who can to-day thank you for the fine health I enjoy. When I was thirty-five years old, I suffered severe backache and frequent bearing-down pains; in fact, I had womb trouble. I was very anxious to get well, and reading of the cures your Compound had made, I decided to try it. I took only six bottles, but it built me up and cured me entirely of all my troubles.

"My family and relatives were naturally as gratified as I was. My niece had heart trouble and nervous prostration, and was considered incurable. She took your Vegetable Compound and it cured her in a short time, and she became well and strong, and her home to her great joy and her husband's delight was blessed with a baby. I know of a number of others who have been cured of different kinds of female trouble, and am satisfied that your Compound is the best medicine for sick women."—MRS. ELIZABETH H. THOMPSON, Box 105, Lillydale, N. Y.

Thousands upon thousands of women throughout this country are not only expressing such sentiments as the above to their friends, but are continually writing letters of gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham, until she has hundreds of thousands of letters from women in all classes of society who have been restored to health by her advice and medicine after all other means had failed.

Here is another letter which proves conclusively that there is no other medicine to equal Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with poor health for over seven years, not sick enough to stay in bed, and not well enough to enjoy life and attend to my daily duties properly. I was growing thin, my complexion was sallow, and I was easily upset and irritable.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I procured a bottle. A great change for the better took place within a week, and I decided to keep up the treatment.

"Within two months I was like a changed woman, my health good, my step light, my eyes bright, my complexion vastly improved, and I felt once more like a young girl. I wonder now how I ever endured the misery. I would not spend another year like it for a fortune.

"I appreciate my good health, and give all the praise to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. M. TILLA, 407 Habersteen St., Savannah, Ga.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Next Fair.

The board of managers for the state fair held an all-day session at the fair grounds, and revised the premium list and authorized numerous improvements to the buildings on the grounds. Several thousand dollars more will be spent in premiums next fall in addition to the sums spent in former years. The committee appointed to revise the premium list and the report was made, and, with few changes, the report was adopted.

One new feature will be introduced next fall in offering premiums on agricultural exhibits from Ramsey and Hennepin counties. This innovation was made at the request of the Grower's Association of St. Paul and the market gardners of Minneapolis. Additional premiums have been offered for the horticultural exhibits. An increase was made in the premiums offered in every department of the cattle, sheep, swine, horse and poultry exhibits.

A new racing program was also adopted, in which more than $3000 will be offered as prizes in addition to the sums expended for that purpose last year. Heretofore there have been two $5,000 purses offered and ten $1,000, making $20,000 in all. The new racing program will offer two $5,000 races as formerly, and two $2,500 races have been provided, and in addition to these there will be eight $1,000 purses.

Repairs will be made on many of the old exhibit speed barns, which were built in 1885. The speed barns will receive new roofs and will all be painted. Two of the machinery sheds will be painted and new roofs will be put on them.

To Poultry Raisers.

"The only way the growers of produce and poultry raisers can protect themselves against unscrupulous wholesale dealers is to insist on being paid for their product before it leaves their control," said Secretary A. C. Clausen of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

"If the producers of these things as a class would refuse to ship them until they got their money, the dealers would have to send agents into the country to buy at the farms. The farmer would get less than the fancy quotations sent out, but he would be ahead in real money."

"The commission probably receives more complaints against the unscrupulous methods of dealers in produce and poultry, the so-called commission merchant, than against all the railroads in the state."

A Sad Case.

While attempting to frighten two employes of his father, Fred B. Watson, aged seventeen, 381 Ferdinand street, St. Paul, was struck over the head with a piece of iron by David Parker and killed at mid-night.

Parker gave himself up to the police and is being held until the coroner's report is announced.

Watson was a son of D. W. Watson, who conducts a livery barn at St. Anthony avenue and Ferdinand street; in the barn [illegible] asleep, David Parker and [illegible] Jenkins. Fred B. Watson and his brother, Clinton E. Watson, thought to have some sport with the men by frightening them, and crawling into the basement intending to alarm them by creeping up on them.

Words of the State.

Few people realize the amount of dry goods and clothing purchased by the state board of control every quarter for the inmates of the state institutions.

The dress goods, flannel, sheetings and skirtings alone, arranged in strips a yard wide, would extend twenty-one miles. The dress goods are enough to make dresses for 1,000 inmates, reckoning ten yards to a dress. The sheetings would cover 4,000 six feet square.

Taxes Paid.

The state received $50,000 royalty on 201,000 tons of ore taken from the Pool mine at Hibbing. This is the first year the mine has been operated.

The great mine at Buell paid $10,000 on 40,000 tons and the Oliver at Virginia $1,500 on 0,000 tons. The state also received a minimum royalty of $1,200 on eight mines not in operation. The steel trust pays the minimum royalty to hold them for future operation.

A Fine Fur.

Po-ka-na-ga, a Chippewa Indian living at Pine Point, on the White Earth reservation has a fox skin which he will take to the twin cities and expects to get $150 for the fur.

Po-ka-na-ga discovered that when he was away from home, a fox made regular visits, and he set a trap and the animal was caught in the house. It is a red and silver gray skin and the Indian was offered $25 for it there, but as he sold a black fox skin in the twin cities for $150 he will start for there at once with his booty.

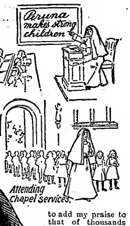
SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH

RELY ON PE-RU-NA TO FIGHT

CATARRH, COUGHS, COLDS, GRIP

Peruna for coughs and colds in children.



SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH

Use Pe-ru-na for La Grippe and Winter Catarrh.

IN EVERY country of the civilized world the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs.

Whenever coughs or colds, la grippe or pneumonia make their appearance among the children these Sisters are not disconcerted, but know exactly the remedies to apply.

With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease these wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never-failing safeguard.

Sisters of St. Joseph, of the Deaf Mute Institute, 1849 Cass Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"We appreciate Peruna very much. It certainly does good work with catarrh and also with colds and la grippe. We have faith in Peruna and have inspired many others with same. We do not like to be without it. It has certainly kept us from being very sick. It did a world of good last winter for our little ones. Thanking you for your kindness to us and our afflicted ones, we remain, yours gratefully,

SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH."

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after farther use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured." Sisters of Charity.

This young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat, with good results as the above letter testifies.

From a Catholic Institution in Central Ohio comes the following recommend from the Sister Superior:

"Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr. Hartman's Peruna as an excellent remedy for the influenza of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character.

"We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then Peruna has become our favorite medicine for influenza, catarrh, cold, cough and bronchitis."

Another recommend from a Catholic Institution of one of the Central States written by the Sister Superior reads as follows:

"A number of years ago our attention was called to Dr. Hartman's Peruna, and since then we have used it with wonderful results for grip, coughs, colds and catarrhal diseases of the head and stomach.

"For grip and winter catarrh especially it has been of great service to the inmates of this institution."

SISTERS OF CHARITY

All Over the United States Use Pe-ru-na for Catarrh.

A recommend recently received from a Catholic Institution in the Southwest reads as follows:

A Prominent Mother Superior Says:

"I can testify from experience to the efficiency of Peruna as one of the very best medicines, and it gives me pleasure to add my praise to that of thousands who have used it. For years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, all remedies proving valueless for relief. Last spring I went to Colorado, hoping to be benefited by a change of climate and while there a friend advised me to try Peruna. After using two bottles I found myself very much improved. The remains of my old disease being now so slight, I consider myself cured, yet for a while I intend to continue the use of Peruna. I am now treating another patient with your medicine. She has been sick with malaria and troubled with leucorrhœa. I have no doubt that a cure will be speedily effected."

These are samples of letters received by Dr. Hartman from the various orders of Catholic Sisters throughout the United States.

The names and addresses to these letters have been withheld from respect to the Sisters but will be furnished on request.

One-half of the diseases which afflict mankind are due to some catarrhal derangement of the mucous membrane lining some organ or passage of the body.

A remedy that would act immediately upon the congested mucous membrane restoring it to its normal state, would consequently cure all these diseases. Catarrh is catarrh wherever located, whether it be in the head, throat, lungs, stomach, kidneys or pelvic organs. A remedy that will cure it in one location will cure it in all locations. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Billion Dollar Grass.

When the John A. Salzer Seed Co., of La Crosse, Wis., introduced this remarkable grass three years ago, little did they dream it would be the most talked of grass in America, the biggest, quick, hay producer on earth, but this has come to pass.

Agr. Editors wrote about it, Agr. College Professors lectured about it, Agr. Institute Orators talked about it, while in the farm home by the quiet fireside, in the corner grocery, in the village post-office, at the creamery, at the depot, in fact wherever farmers gathered, Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass, that wonderful grass, good for 5 to 14 tons per acre and lots of pasture besides, is always a theme worthy of the farmer's voice.

Then comes Bromus Inermis, than which there is no better grass or better permanent hay producer on earth. Grows wherever soil is found. Then the farmer talks about Salzer's Teosinte, which will produce 100 stocks from one kernel of seed, 11 ft. high, in 100 days, rich in nutrition and greedily eaten by cattle, hogs, etc., and is good for 80 tons of green food per acre.

Victoria Rape, which can be grown at 25c a ton, and Speltz at 20c a bu., both great food for cattle, also come in for their share in the discussion. [K. L.]

WASHINGTON LETTER

Timely and Interesting Gossip from the National Capitol.

INTEREST IN EASTERN WAR

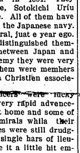
The Hero of Chemulpo Is a Graduate of Annapolis—The Tantalus Club to Be Perpetuated — Japan Copies American Policy.

Admiral Uriu.

Washington.—Admirel Uriu, whose splendid victory at Chemulpo hes given him a piece with Dewey and Sempson emong the great neval commenders of this generation, is not unknown in Washington. Like Dewey end Sempson he is a graduete of the United States nevel ecademy at Annapolis, where ha completed hia course in 1881. Ha aerved there for four years and then want to the British military achool at Greenwich, ao that his greet achievement may properly he attributed in some degree, at any rate, to his Anglo-Saxon treining. His wife, who ia a Japanese, ia a Vasser graduete.

There are aeveral nevel officers in Washington who knew Uriu at the ecademy and who heve run up ogainst him on occasions since that time. A classmate of hia was Joseph H. Leonard, naval conatructor in the United States navy. He says that three Japanese boys entered the academy in 1877 end were gredueted in 1881. They were Yasuka Serate, Sotokichi Uriu end Yinoske Inouye. All of them have mede fine records in the Japanese navy. Serata died en admiral, juat e year ego. Both he and Uriu distinguisbed themselves in the war between Japan and China. At the ecademy they were very religious; both of them were memhers of the Young Men'a Christien ecsociation. The Japanese officers were lucky enough to receive very rapid advencemant when thay got home and some of them were reer edmirals whila their American classmates were still drudging along with the single hars of lieutenants. Thia made it a little hit emherrassing for the American neval officers who met their old Japanese friends while touring on the Asietic station, but they indulged freely in Saku and champagne, called each other hy their old academy nicknames and lived over the old days together. Uriu was the most dignified of the lot.

The Tantalus Club.



Congressman Powers.

The Tantelus club is to he given a new lease of life. Sam Powers, its founder and president, does not intend that the organization in which he hes taken such pride shall go out of existence when he leaves congress; for he has aonounced in advance that he will not he a candidate for reelection and thet he is going home to Boston to make money while the spirit is yet etrong within him. It has been a costly luxury for Powers to he a member of the house. His professional income is three or four times as greet as his selary as e member of congress, end while ha has been in Washington he has spent not only his $5,000 salary, hut a goodly proportion of the money he had saved while practicing law. But even though Powers ahandons Washington, his memory will still linger. To have been the founder of the Tantalus club is in itself a distinction which raises Powers far ahove the level of the ordinary member of the house.

At home in Boston Powers had regarded himself as something of a man. He was populer, prosperous and was supposed to have a political future. When he was lucky enough to he elected to congress, he had glowing ideas of whet he would accompliah in Washington, hut he had heen here only a week or two before he discovered that there ia nothing of less conaequence in the national capitol than a new memher of the house of representatives. He talked around a little among tha new men end found that many of them hed come to a aimilar conclusion. Then he had en inspiration. He organized all the new members on the republican side into a club. The idea was to have a dinner every little while at which the youngsters who were unable to get recognition at the capitol could throw themselves a little and raise themselves out of the dull level of mediocrity.

That was the origin of the Tantalus club. Powers was made president by unanimous consent, for there has never been anything like the formality of an election. It goes without saying that the dinners of the Tentalua club wers a tremendoua success.

Now, in order to perpetuate it, Powera has maneuvered so thet all the republican memhera of tha house new to the present congresa shell he eligibla to memberahip. They have ell filed applications and thera will he a dinner pretty aoon at which ell of them will he present and duly initieted. Thua the club will be in e poaition to perpetuete itself through succeeding congressea.

Follow America's Lead.

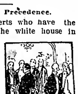
Secretary Moody.

Secretary Moody ia the happiest man in Weshington just at present. He is rejoiced that the Japenese navy should have won so signal a victory et the very beginning of tha war with Russia. This ia not heceuse of any apecial aympethy for Jepan, elthough feeling emong all public men in Weahington ia exceedingly friendly to the islend empire, hut solely on professional grounds. Japan for the lest few yeers has heen pursuing e nevel policy exactly in eccordance with that which Secretary Moody hes insisted ahould he puraued by tha United States. The Japenese nevy has spent money in meneuvera, has used up powder and haa worked its officers to the limit of endurance. The result wes shown et Chemulpo.

Now that ia exactly whet Secretery Moody has heen doing with the American navy et the risk of aevere criticism hy the economists in congress end of some ridicule hy tha opposition newspapers. So he regards Jepan's victory over Russle as a complete vindication of the programme which ha hed edopted.

Russia for the last few years has pursued a policy directly contrery to thet of Japan. Its nevy has heen suhordinated to the army, thera has hcen en ehsence of discipline and generel slovenliness in control. Russia has heen peying only half es much for ermor pletes es we have been paying ond the result is shown in tha celerity with which its hettleships yielded to the Japanese attack. Altogether the situation is one which is especlelly gratifying to the men who have the destinies of our navy in their keeping.

Question of Precedence.



The Diplomats Disposed Of.

The society experts who have the sociel doings of the white house in their charge have at last come to an understanding on the hurning question of precedence. Mr. Adee, the assistant secretary of state who has devoted a long life to the study of questions of this kind, and Maj. McCawley, the social aide of the president, whose main husiness et present is to wrestle with the question of who ahall go in first to dinner, have put their heads togathr and have arrived at a very gratifying conclusion.

It seemed a little hard thet such distinguished dignitaries as the chief justice of the supreme court, the apeaker of the house of representatives, the edmiral of the navy and the lieutenent general of the army should ha compelled hy the rules of aocial precedence to wait in line at the white house reception until a miscellaneous collection of ambassadors and diplomats had been ushered into the presence. It is no wonder that the supreme court justices who were the firat to run up against the edict of the social arbiters should file an indignant protest. So Adee and McCawley got into conjunction nnd evolved a scheme hy which everyhody will he aatisfied.

At the reception given in honor of the diplomatic corps, the diplomats will head the line. Nohody objects to that. At the other three receptions, that to the judiciary, to congress and to the army and navy, the diplomats will not he in line et all. They will form a little group hy themselves in the oval of the hlue room in front of the door, where the president standa and they will watch the procession go hy. Thus they will he honored apectators end they will not interfere with anyhody. Everybody will be satisfied and the game can go on.

FORCES OF COREA JOIN THE JAPS.

ORDERS FROM GOVERNMENT TO THE STANDING ARMY ARE FORMALLY ISSUED.

Japanese Say the Harbor at Port Arthur Is Blocked—Russians Fleeing from Dalny—Mikado Troops Are Landing.

Seoul, Feb. 27.—The Corean government has decided to order the Corean troops to join the Japanese in the field. The standing army now consists of about 17,000 men with European methods. In 1896 it was taken in hand by a Russian colonel with three commissioned and ten non-commissioned officers, who retired, however, in 1898. A royel bodyguard of 1,000 men was formed and has been well drilled, and periodically a draft of well trained men ia transferred from it to other regiments of the standing army.

Says Harbor Is Blocked.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The Japanese minister has received the following cablegram from the Japanese minister for foreign affairs, dated Tokio, Friday:

"Before dawn on the 24th instant four old ships under escort of torpedo boats proceeded to the mouth of the harbor of Port Arthur where they were sunk with success in order to close it. The officers and crew of the vessels returned safely. No official report has es yet heen received from the admiral commanding the squadron, but there is no doubt that the squadron itself is all safe."

Russians Fleeing.

Shanghai, Feb. 27.—The Russian retreat from the J[illegible]vasion of the Liaotung pe[illegible] has commenced. Dalny, 50 [illegible] north of Port Arthur, is being evacuated. The Russians declare they have mined the breakwater, the docks, the wharves, and the railway to prevent the Japanese from using them.

[illegible]

Russia has only five months' supplies at Port Arthur. The authorities declare they mean to defend Port Arthur and that Russia will fall back with the rest of her troops from Dalny to the Yalu, and, it pressed, will go even to Harbin, and fight for two years.

London, Feb. 27.—Estimates based on the Burleigh dispatch from Shanghai are that already an army of about 150,000 Japanese soldiers has been borne to its destination, or, rather, destinations, for it is evident the transports have not all shaped the same course.

Fleet Is Safe.

Tokio, Feb. 27.—Not one of Japan's squadron was put out of commission in the attack on Port Arthur on the night of the 23d. The entire squadron was sighted off Shantung on Wednesday, the following dey, and all the ships were intact. They were proceeding rapidly, and none seemed to be disabled in eny way.

Banks Resume Business.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 24.—The banks in this city resumed business Tuesday in all their branches for the first time since the fire. Under Gov. Warfield's proclamation the enforced payment of protestable paper has been suspended from February 6, thus making it necessary for all who have matured obligations to take care of them before the close of banking hours. The Baltimore stock exchange will not resume until Wednesdey.

Scaffold Fell.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—James Byron was killed, two other men were severely wounded and 19 had narrow escapes from heing crushed beneath ten tons of lumber shortly after noon yesterday when a monster scaffold, reaching from the main floor of the new post office building to the top of the large done in the center of the structure, a distance of 170 feet, collapsed.

Tornado in Oregon.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 27.—A tornado struck the little town of Mount Tabor, a few miles east of Portland, Friday, and demolished two houses, besides damaging a number of other buildings. There were several narrow escapes, but so far as learned no one wes seriously injured. The wind was accompanied by hail of unusuel severity.

Fire in Pennsylvania Town.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 27.—Fire Friday destroyed the business portion of the town of Nicholson, situated on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Weatern railroad, about 20 miles west of here. Seventeen buildings, all of them framo structures, were burned, ceusing a loss estimated at $40,000.

Four Lumbermen Drowned.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 27.—The opening of the lumber season here was signalized by the drowning of four men and the narrow escape of two others. A large raft of lumber struck a dem at Campbell's shoals, 14 miles above Knoxville, and as a result the men were drowned when it broke up.

The merger issue has failed to gain much strength since Dunn's last statement of his views on the governors duty to enforce the laws of the state, and while he is not our first choice for the nommination of the Republican party for our next governor, we can not see where, or how we could gain anything by being unjust to Mr. Dunn.

Crookston people are begining to prepare for the spring floods, which they are sure to get when the snow melts After they are dammaged a few thousand dollars, this spring, they may be in favor of joining the farmers of this part of the country, in an effort to get the head waters of the Clearwater river turned into the Mississippi river and prevent the disastrous floods of yearly occurrence.

After many moons, the opening of these towns on the Red Lake diminished reservation is now assured, for the President has signed the bill, passed through House and Senate, which, authorizes the sale, subject to the homestead laws of the United States, of the eleven townships in tracts of 160 acrs. at public auction to the highest bidder. It shall be sold for not less than $4 an per acre, one fifth of the price to be paid down and the balance in five equal annual installments, the land forfited with payments made in case the conditions are not fulfilled.

A Pocket Handkerchief.

In a book which has been published on that never failing topic, the vagaries of the English language, the strange meaning of the word "pocket handkerchief" is described.

A "kerchief" (couvrechef) means a small piece of cloth made to put on the head, so that a "pocket handkerchief" means literally a small piece of cloth to cover the head, to be held in the hand, to be put in the pocket.—London

Genius finds its own road and carries its own lamp.—Willmott.

HEROIC REMEDIES.

Whipping Was Prescribed at One Time For Insanity and Fits.

Ill health is a bad thing at any time, but 150 years ago it was made more terrible by the remedies in use. Bloodletting, of course, was a simple affair. A writer in Macmillan's Magazine says that everybody was bled twice a year—in the spring and autumn. The barbers were the surgeons and, like wise men, adapted their prices to their patients.

A gentleman who so indulged himself as to go to bed to be bled was charged half a crown and his fine lady half a sovereign. Certain days were unlucky for bloodletting, and nothing would induce the barbers to operate on these occasions. Serious diseases seem to have been beyond the medical skill of the day. Villages and towns simply drove out the infected from their midst.

Among remedies herbs of course played a great part. "For salves," runs an old notebook which had a great vogue, "the country parson's wife seeks not the city and prefers her garden and fields before all outlandish gums." Sage was held a very great medicine. It was even asked in Latin, "Why should any one die who has sage in his garden?" If any one had a disease of the mouth, the Eighth Psalm should be read for three days, seven times on each day. As a remedy it was "sovereign."

For insanity or fits whipping was prescribed. Little wonder that mortality was great. In old days in Wessex, England, persons with infectious diseases were confined in the lockup and whipping was deemed too good for them. Should the sick be loud in lament, the watchman kept them quiet by this popular discipline, and one town has upon its records, "Paid T. Hewkins for whipping two people that had the smallpox eightpence."

Fortunately the spirit of this age is different from that.

"THE SLEEPLESS ARCH."

Old Hindoo Principle the Basis of All Modern Bridges.

Although the building of great arches of masonry dates beyond the ancient Roman civilization, the principle that gives strength to the massive stone bridges of today is the same that built the bridges of the Roman empire.

The history of bridge building is, to a large degree, the history of the arch, whose efficiency lies in the truth of the old Hindoo saying that "the arch never sleeps" because each separate section of which it is [illegible] the keystone [illegible] constantly [illegible] its immediate neighbors [illegible] finally reaches the firm foundation upon which the structure is erected.

To secure a perfectly unswerving foundation, therefore, the [illegible] nature of the earth, and not infrequently [illegible] of the structure [illegible] [illegible] ground.

It was [illegible] inability to solve the problem of a trustworthy foundation that led the ancient Hindoos to distrust the arch, arguing that the sleepless activity that held it together was equally active in tearing it to pieces.

Not only is the modern bridge builder skilled in setting his structure on a firm base, but thoroughly acquainted with the time honored materials for his work, to say nothing of new materials, and an important part of his student training in such modern schools as the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is devoted to methods of testing materials during construction that would have surprised and delighted even the most accomplished of the ancient Roman engineers.

Hurrying Up the Baby.

A correspondent sends us an extract from a poem which recently appeared in a South African paper, thinking we shall approve of its sentiments. We do, we do. The inspired verse is entitled "Making a Man" and begins:

Hurry the baby as fast as you can,
Hurry him, worry him, make him a man;
Off with his baby clothes, get him in pants,
Feed him on brain foods and make him advance;
Hustle him, soon as he's able to walk,
Into a grammar school, cram him with talk;
Fill his poor head full of figures and facts,
Keep on a-jamming them in till it cracks.

A Bargain Hunter.

It was a pleasant looking Irishwoman, says the Philadelphia Ledger, who walked into a store and asked the price of the collars she had seen displayed in the window.

"Two for a quarter," said the clerk.

"How much would that be for one?"

"Thirteen cents."

She pondered; then, with her forefinger, she seemed to be making invisible calculations on the sleeve of her coat.

"That," she said, "would make the other collar twilve cints, wouldn't it? Just give me that wan."

FAMOUS FOR FAT.

Daniel Lambert, Who Died In 1809, Got Too Obese to Wabble.

The fame of Daniel Lambert as a champion growing fat man in England, if not in the world, still remains unrivaled. Lambert was born at Leicester in 1770 and died in 1809 at Stamford. The grandson of a celebrated cockfighter and addicted to sport throughout his life, his dimensions were not extraordinary, and his habits were not different from those of other lads until he was fourteen years old. When twenty-three years of age, however, he turned the scale at thirty-two stone, and, although he is recorded to have been then able to walk from Woolwich to London, at the time of his death, in his fortieth year, he had attained the prodigious weight of fifty-two stone, or 728 pounds, and was more or less helpless. He was a modest man, and when he had achieved physical greatness fame was thrust upon him. He was for a long time unwilling to be made a show of, but he gained a more than local reputation, and people traveled from far to see him, resorting to various devices in order to be allowed to do so. At length the prospect of profit overcame his resolution, and for four years before his death he exhibited himself in London and in the provinces.

He was apparently a man of some wit, for once, before he permitted the public to gaze upon him, an inquisitive person had gained access to his presence by pretending to be a fellow sportsman interested in the pedigree of a mare, whereupon Lambert promptly replied, "She was bred by Impertinence out of Curiosity." Before the days of Daniel Lambert, Edward Bright of Malden was a well known fat man, although his name no longer lingers as a household word. He died in 1750 at the age of thirty years, weighing forty-two stone and seven pounds, and is stated to have been an active man till a year or two before his death, when his corpulency so overpowered his strength that his life was a burden and his death a deliverance. Both Bright and Lambert seem to have been genial, good humored fellows and very popular among those who visited them. Indeed popularity seems to be the lot of the corpulent in fact as well as in fiction. The heroes of fiction, however, have the advantage in the matter of lasting glory, and the names of Daniel Lambert and the fat boy of Peckham sink into insignificance beside those of Falstaff and the fat boy in "Pickwick."—London Standard.

Applied Science.

When James Russell Lowell was minister to England he was guest at a banquet at which one of the speakers was Sir Frederick Bramwell. Sir Frederick was to respond to the toast "Applied Science." It was long after midnight when the toast was proposed, and several speakers were still to be called. Rising in his place, the scientist said:

"At this hour of the night, or, rather, of the morning, my only interest in applied science is to apply the tip of the match to the side of the box upon which alone it ignites and to apply the flame so obtained to the wick of a bedroom candle."

A moment later Lowell tossed a paper across the table to him bearing these two lines:

Oh, brief Sir Frederick, would that all could catch
Your happy talent and supply your match!

A Pair of Misers.

Mr. and Miss Dancer were reputed the most notorious misers in the eighteenth century. The manner in which this couple were found after death to have disposed of their wealth was even more strange than could have been their method of acquiring it. The total value was £20,000, which was thus disposed of: Two thousand five hundred pounds was found under a dunghill, £500 in an old coat nailed to the manger in the stable, £600 in notes was hidden away in an old teapot, the chimney yielded £2,000 stowed in nineteen different crevices, and several jugs filled with coin were secreted in the stable loft.

England's Magna Charta.

That shriveled parchment, the charter of English freedom, was saved, it is said, by the veriest chance from the scissors of a merciless tailor. Struck by the great seals attached to a piece of paper the tailor was cutting up, Sir Robert Cotton stopped the man and gave him fourpence for the document he would have destroyed. It is now in the British museum, lined and mounted and in a glass case, the seal a shapeless mass of wax and the characters quite illegible.—London Mail.

Said Maid to Mistress.

"Where have you been, Jane?"

"I've been to a meeting of the Girls' Friendly society, ma'am," was the maid's reply.

"Well, what did the lady say to you?"

"Please, ma'am, she said I wasn't to give you warning, as I meant to. She said I was to look upon you as my thorn—and bear it."—New Yorker.

Willingness.

"But would you die for me?" persisted the romantic maiden.

"I would," replied the frank and elderly suitor. "Even now I am using a high priced preparation warranted to restore hair to its original color."—Detroit Free Press.

QUIT WHINING.

A Plea For the Cheerful Soul [illegible] Lives to Be Happy.

There isn't anything in the world more disagreeable than a whining person. [illegible]

He whines if it is hot. He whines if it is cold. He whines at this, he whines at that, he whines at everything. [illegible] whine, whine, whine.

[illegible] a habit he has fallen into. There is nothing the matter [illegible] generally an idle [illegible] a lazy one. What he [illegible] to be set to work—a real [illegible] mental or physical—some [illegible] will interest him and engage his whole attention, and he will not have time to whine.

We know two women. One of them does her own housework and takes care of her horse besides. She is happy and singing all the day long. The keyboard of her life sounds no whining note It is a pleasure to be with her, a good, wholesome tonic to watch her.

The other woman is so situated that she does not have to work; [illegible] to do but to amuse herself. [illegible] no zest in life, no interest in anything. She is a bunch of selfishness and whines at everything. Whining has become such a habit with her that her most casual remark is tinged with a whine. She is miserable herself and makes everybody else in her presence miserable. She is a weakling, a parasite, a drag, a heavy weight, on somebody all the time.

Get the whine out of your voice or it will stop the development and growth of your body. It will narrow and shrink your mind. It will drive away your friends. It will make you unpopular.

Quit your whining. Brace up. Go to work. Be something. Stand for something. Fill your place in the universe. Instead of whining around, exciting only pity and contempt, face about and make something of yourself. Reach up to the stature of a strong, ennobling manhood, to the beauty and strength of a superb womanhood.

There is nothing the matter with you. Just quit your whining and go to work.—Medical Talk.

No Reptiles In Newfoundland.

Everybody knows that there are no snakes in Ireland, but very few know that Newfoundland is just like Ireland in that respect, and there is no record that Newfoundland had a St. Patrick to drive the snakes off either. There is plenty of game in Newfoundland, but not a reptile of any kind—snake, toad, frog, lizard or even turtle. Another queer thing about the province is that while some wild animals are abundant there no one ever saw a squirrel, porcupine, mouse or lynx anywhere within its boundaries. This is all the more singular because the adjoining provinces of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton have all these animals and many kinds of snakes and other reptiles.

The Story of a Discovery.

How many valuable inventions have been the result of pure accident, while in other cases men have puzzled their brains with study for a lifetime and brought forth nothing!

It happened one night that a big starch factory on the banks of the Liffey, near Dublin, took fire, and great puddles of starch and water were left outside.

Some calico printers who had been out all night and were quite tipsy came along toward morning, and one of them stumbled into one of the puddles. He found it so sticky that all his clothes stuck to him so fast that he had to stay in bed next morning till his wife soaked them out.

The man knew from his trade that the starch and water had formed a very powerful and valuable gum. He went back to the place of the fire and investigated, and the result was the discovery of the adhesive gum now used in sticking postage stamps and which has made many rich. But temperance lecturers need not know it.—Boston Globe.

A Vivid Imagination.

A furniture dealer tells a little story that shows how some people are constituted. A lady ordered an elegant easy chair of a peculiar kind. It was made and sent to her house. She examined it carefully and critically, finally remarking that it suited her exactly, with one exception—it was too soft. She sent the chair back to be made a trifle harder. It was returned to the shop and put aside. Nothing was done to it. After a lapse of about a week the chair was sent out again. The lady again examined it and now found it too hard. She was sorry, but when she paid so much to get an article for her own comfort she wanted it just right, so she sent it back to the shop for another change. The chair was again put aside for a week or ten days and sent out for the third time without the least alteration. This time it was just right. She took the chair, paid for it and was sorry it had not suited her at first. The poor woman never knew that the chair had not been changed a particle.

Deceptions of Wild Birds.

Falcons, hawks—the largest species—can compress their features and look very slim if they think it necessary to do so. As to the owls, they can hump up into any position they think most suitable. It is useless to look for these self preserving traits in any of the family kept in zoological collections, for the birds are so accustomed to see large numbers of people passing and repassing or standing in front of them that they treat the whole matter with perfect indifference. They know that at a certain time their food will be brought them and that they are otherwise perfectly safe. Then the raptores in a wild state have a bloom on their plumage like the bloom on a bunch of grapes which is not often seen when in captivity.

An Elephant Story.

An elephant train was on its way from Lucknow to Seetapore, and one elephant, becoming lame, knelt down and refused to go on. The elephant next in the column stopped of its own accord and when driven on turned back and began without instructions to remove some part of the load. Instances of aid rendered by birds to others in distress may also be found, showing that the instinct of sympathy exists and takes form in action when the causes of the sufferings are such that the fellow bird can understand and see its way to remedy.—London Spectator.

Novel Funeral Instructions.

Curious instructions as to the manner of her burying were left behind by an old lady at Stockport, England. Her funeral, she directed, should be attended by six of the best horsed coaches Stockport could provide, and another direction was that after the interment the funeral party should repair to the best Tory hostelry in Oldham, there to be served with the best repast the house could afford, which was to be supplied by a Tory landlord and served by Tory waiters.

Brought Him Back to Earth.

He—What name shall I invent for thee, dearest—what appellation that in a single word can express all my soul's desire, oh my heart, all my passion, all— She (exceedingly unromantic)—Well, John, what's the matter with Jane? As a name it's always been good enough for me, and I thought it ought to be good enough for you.

Covered the Case.

Old Practitioner—Well, how did you succeed with your first diagnosis? Did you profit by my advice? The Young Doctor—I think I did, sir. I told the patient that he was suffering from a combination of liver, stomach, heart, lung and brain trouble. O. P.—Good! No chance of a mistake there.

Willing Acquiescence.

"You must not expect me to give up my girlhood's ways all at once," said the happy bride.

"Oh, I won't," he replied. "I hope you'll keep right on taking an allowance from your father just as if nothing had happened."—Exchange.

An Ex-Convict.

Jolkley—I once heard a man say that he would rather be an ex-convict than anything else he could think of. Polkey—The idea! How eccentric! Jolkley—Not at all. The man was in the penitentiary for life.

Quickness is Relative.

The careful American observer soon finds that the standard of quickness is to be determined in England, as everywhere else, by the point of view. People who go slowly on new ground may turn out to be quick enough when wholly at home with any particular line of thought.

How odious and complicated, for instance, seems to an American observer the computation of pounds, shillings and pence! It seems strange that any nation should consent for a day to employ anything but a decimal currency. Yet with what lightning rapidity does a London bookkeeper make his computations! What a life of tedious formality seems that of an English house servant! Yet there was no slowness of intellect in that footman in an earl's family who, when his young lord fell over the banisters and the next of kin called to ask if the elder boy was hurt, answered promptly, "Killed, my lord!" thus accomplishing in an instant the transfer of the title appertaining to an earl's eldest son and heir only.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson in Atlantic.

A Precious Manuscript.

There is now in St. Petersburg the oldest known MS. of the New Testament in Greek, saved from destruction by the merest chance many years ago. Crossing the hall of a convent at the foot of Mount Sinai, Constantine Tischendorf saw a basketful of parchment leaves on their way to be burned. Two baskets had already gone, he was told, and all that he could secure for himself was a small bundle of odd leaves. But the monks, now interested in the "waste paper," saved the rest from the fire, and nine years after, on a return visit to the convent, Tischendorf found that the steward had, wrapped in a red cloth, "a bulky kind of volume," which proved to be the whole of the New Testament, with parts hitherto unknown, and parts of the Old, which had long been sought. He begged the volume for the czar, and today it lies, well preserved in spite of its 1,500 years of age, among the treasures of the Russian capital.—London Mail.

Testing a Horse's Eyes.

The unsuspecting farmer is often "bit" by the professional horse trader in having a horse with defective sight palmed off on him. The trader makes a John L. pass at the horse's eye with his fist, and the force of the air causes the horse to bat or blink his eyes though he may be totally blind in one eye and weak in the other.

If the farmer will blindfold one of the animal's eyes and make gentle passes at five and ten feet from it, he can tell how strong the animal's sight is in that eye. Then blind the examined eye and go through the same process with the other.

This little hint may save you getting the "small end" of a swap.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

Asked by the Duke of Somerset to define "the most desirable life," Disraeli answered, "A continued grand procession from manhood to the tomb."

Not Fatal.

No Matter What Doctors Say—We Know That Heart Trouble in Many Cases Can Be Cured.

There are seven main features of heart disease, viz.: (1) Weakness or Debility; (2) Rheumatism or Neuralgia; (3) Valvular Disorder; (4) Dilation; (5) Enlargement; (6) Fatty Degeneration; (7) Dropsy.

Documentary evidence will prove thousands of so-called "incurables" have been absolutely cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Patients often have no idea their disease is heart trouble, but ascribe it to Indigestion, Liver Complaint, etc.

Here are some of the symptoms: Shortness of breath after exercise. Smothering Spells. Pain in Chest, left Shoulder and arm. Discomfort in Lying on one side. Fainting Spells. Nervous Cough. Swelling of Feet and Ankles. Paleness of Face and Lips. Palpitation. Nightmare. Irregular Pulse.

"I have great faith in Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and speak of its merits whenever opportunity presents. I can now go up and down stairs with ease, where three weeks ago I could hardly walk one block." One year later.—"I am still in good health; the Heart Cure did so much for me, that I find it a far greater medicine than you claimed it to be."—S. D. YOUNG, D. Grows in the Clouds.

So far as is known, the highest elevation at which flowers are found growing is 17,000 feet above sea level. The homely little plant which has the distinction of being the loftiest grower in the world is found on the upper slopes of the Himalayan mountains, near the line of perpetual snow. The season during which vegetation may appear above the surface in this region is less than four months in length.

A Scathing Retort.

An English lawyer who had been cross examining a witness for some time and who had sorely taxed the patience of the judge, jury and every one in the court was finally asked by the court to conclude his cross examination. Before telling the witness to stand down he accosted him with this parting sarcasm:

"Ah, you're a clever fellow—a very clever fellow. We can all see that."

The witness leaned over from the box and quietly retorted:

"I would return the compliment if I were not on oath."—"Personalia."

DOCTORS FALL IN LINE.

Practicing Physicians recognize the unfailing reliability of Doan's Kidney Pills by Prescribing them for Backache, Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Disorders—a tribute won by no other Proprietary Medicine. Four cases cited from "Notes of His Practice," by Dr. Leland Williamson, of Yorktown, Ark.

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N. Y. YORKTOWN, ARK., Mar. 1, 1904.

Gentlemen:—I have been engaged in the practice of medicine in this section for ten years. This is a very sickly climate, on the Bayou Bartholomew, near the Arkansas River. It is particularly malarious and miasmatic; we meet with many and various abnormal conditions of the human family, prominent among the cases in which I have been called upon to prescribe is kidney disease. Many of these disorders manifest themselves by pains in the back, often extending to other parts of the body; sometimes headache is present, caused by uræmic or chronic uric acid poisoning, soreness in region of kidneys, cloudy, thickened and foul-smelling urine, discharges of pus or corruption; inflammation of the kidneys, extending to the bladder, is caused by excess of uric acid and decomposition of urine. Hemorrhage is sometimes met with, caused by high state of inflammation or congestion.

There is no class of diseases a doctor is called oftener to treat than the variety of kidney diseases, in many of which the patient will have chills or rigors, followed by fever, a result of the kidneys failing to eliminate the uric acid poison from the system. Such cases require the kidneys restored to their natural functions, then the poison and foreign substances are removed—shock to the nervous system averted, and natural health restored.

I have, for some time, been using Doan's Kidney Pills in these many manifestations and with uniform success, curing most cases. I can further say that even in hopeless cases where they have waited too long, Doan's Kidney Pills afford much relief and prolong life. I can recommend the pills in conditions of excessive or deficient secretion of urine, as also in convalescence from swamp-fever and malarial attacks, as verified by the following cases in my practice.

CASE 1.

THOS. ORELL, Bear Ark., age 60. Pain in back for several weeks, then chills, irregular sometimes, severe rigors, followed by fever. Gave good purgative of calomel and podoph, and Doan's Kidney Pills. After taking four boxes of the pills, patient up and enjoying good health for one of his age.

CASE 2.

MRS. SMITH, Tarry, Ark., age 29, mother of four children. Had female complaint and kidney trouble, manifest by pain in back and urine irregular; sometimes very clear, changing to cloudy, and with much sediment on standing in chamber. Gave local treatment for female complaint and prescribed Doan's Pills; after using six boxes she regards herself as cured.

CASE 3.

BROWN EAKS, Wynne, Ark., age 21, had severe case of malarial hœmataria, or swamp fever. Gave necessary liver medicine, calomel and podoph, and morph.-sulph., to relieve pain, and ordered Doan's Pills for the high state of congestion and inflammation of the kidneys. Recovery resulted in two weeks. Prescribed Doan's Kidney Pills, to be continued until the kidneys were thoroughly strengthened and all pain in back subsided.

CASE 4.

ELIJAH ELLIOTT, Tarry, Ark., age 34. Pain in back and legs and headache. Uric-acid poisoning. Prescribed Doan's Kidney Pills. After taking several boxes pain subsided—urine became normal, or natural, and patient able to resume his work.

These are a few of the typical cases in which I have used Doan's Kidney Pills. In a great many instances I use them alone with curative results, while with some others indicated remedies are associated.

I believe that by the judicious use of Doan's Pills many serious complications are arrested and many hopeless and incurable cases of Bright's disease prevented.

I have often found that one box of the pills is all that is required to effect a cure, but in some cases I continue their use until all symptoms are entirely absent and the cure effectual and permanent. Yours truly,

Dr. Leland Williamson.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Eggs and Poultry.

Minnesota is not generally considered a poultry and egg state, yet poultry and eggs are seventh in the list of farm products. The shipments from Minnesota points in 1899, according to the United States census reports, were valued at $7,364,856. It would have required a train more than twenty miles long to haul the egg shipments alone.

Wheat, amounting annually to $50,601,948, heads the list of Minnesota farm products. Then follow the dairy products, animals sold, oats, hay and corn. Eggs and poultry are next. Then comes barley, valued at $7,220,739, and flaxseed, valued at $5,898,556. Still the average citizen does not consider eggs and poultry as important a product as flaxseed.

With the settlement of Minnesota the production of poultry has increased rapidly. Compared with Wisconsin, Minnesota makes an excellent showing, altho it is still considerably behind Iowa, the banner egg state of the union.

The number of chickens in Minnesota in 1870 is given at 2,258,385; Wisconsin, 3,855,726; Iowa, 8,539,774. In 1890 Minnesota had 4,744,211, Wisconsin 6,173,812 and Iowa 21,928,273. The figures for 1900 show a still large increase except for Iowa, altho in that year poultry less than three months old was not counted. Minnesota had 8,142,603, valued at $2,274,048; Wisconsin had 8,447,549 valued at $2,410,714, and Iowa 20,843,347, valued at $6,535,464.

Outlaw Dogs.

There are two outlaw dogs in Duluth upon whose head a price is set. One is described as a bulldog and the other as a wooly-looking creature, and they travel together, killing dogs they run across, without the slightest regard to pedigree.

The highest priced dog killed by the murderous canines is rated at $100, and was owned by Dr. H. V. Goetlebus. A dozen other dogs have been killed by the fierce brutes and individual rewards are offered for them, dead or alive.

Several dogs have been severely injured, but escaped with their lives. The strange dogs are operating in the eastern half of the city in the best residence districts. They will be killed on sight.

We Won Again.

Dairy Commissioner McConnell has received word that Minnesota butter makers took first and second place in the first of the series of six national scoring contests, conducted by the National Creamery Butter Makers' association, and the dairy division of the department of agriculture. H. C. Haasen, of Smith Mills, ranked first in the country on this test, with a score of 97, and H. A. Goetseb, of Money Creek second, with 96½.

This contest was held in Chicago. The next one will occur there, and the last four will be at the St. Louis exposition, the highest average in these four getting the exposition medal.

Socialists.

The nomination of state officers by the Socialists in the state convention hall occupied the attention of the delegates during the greater part of the session.

Following is the complete ticket: Governor, J. E. Nash, Minneapolis; lieutenant governor, O. E. Lofthus, Shelly; secretary of state, J. E. Carlson, St. Paul; state treasurer, C. E. Keith, Mankato; attorney general, G. W. Downing, Fergus Falls; railroad and warehouse commissioner, C. C. Talbott.

Children escaped.

The Crosby Mine boarding house, located at Nashwaak, a small mining town, has been destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $6,500.

The two children of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Draper, who conduct the boarding house, were left alone in the building by the temporary absence of their mother. One of the children amused himself by raking coals out of the stove to the floor, which ignited. The children, realizing their danger, left the house for a place of safety. The fire found its path and the building was soon consumed.

Wild Geese.

A flock of fifty wild geese alighted in a swamp near the state fish hatchery. Executive Agent S. F. Fullerton stated that at dark the geese remained in the swamp and apparently had not decided whether to go on North or to turn back to the South.

The geese came from the South. The arrival of geese it is believed usually indicates the approach of spring. Mr. Fullerton said he had never before observed geese coming from the south at this time of year.

WESTERN CANADA'S RESOURCES.

Farming Very Successful.

By Western or Northwest Canada is usually meant the great agricultural country west of Ontario, and north of Minnesota, North Dakota, and Montana. Part of it is agricultural prairie, treeless in places, park like in others, part in genuine plains, well adapted to cattle ranches; part requires irrigation for successful tillage, most of it does not. The political divisions of this region are the Province of Manitoba and the territorial district of Assiniboia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Athabask. At present, however, the latter is too remote for immediate practical purposes.

The general character of the soil of Western Canada is a rich, black, clay loam with a clay subsoil. Such a soil is particularly rich in food for the wheat plant. The subsoil is a clay, which retains the winter frost until it is thawed out by the warm rays of the sun and drawn upward to stimulate the growth of the young wheat, so that even in dry seasons wheat is a good crop. The clay soil also retains the heat of the sun later in the summer, and assists in the early ripening of the grain. It is claimed that cultivation has the effect of increasing the temperature of the soil several degrees, as well as the air above it.

Western Canada climate is good—cold in winter; hot in summer, but with cool nights. Violent storms of any kind are rare. The rainfall is not heavy. It varies with places, but averages about 17 inches. It falls usually at the time the growing crops need it.

The department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, has agents established at different points throughout the United States who will be pleased to forward an Atlas of Western Canada, and give such other information as to railway rate, etc., as may be required.

That agriculture in Western Canada pays is shown by the number of testimonials given by farmers. The following is an extract made from a letter from a farmer near Moose Jaw:

"At the present time I own sixteen hundred acres of land, fifty horses, and a large pasture fenced containing a thousand acres. These horses run out all winter and come in in the spring quite fat. A man with money judiciously expended will make a competence very shortly. I consider in the last six years the increase in the value of my land has netted me forty thousand dollars."

A Limit to the Division.

During a recent session of the house of representatives Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, arose in his place and intimated that the gentleman who had the floor was transgressing the limit of debate.

"I thought it was understood," said the offending member "that the gentleman from Ohio divided his time with me."

"True," responded Mr. Grosvenor, simply, "but I did not divide eternity with you!"—N. Y. Tribune.

Many a rich father has discovered that it is easier to get a daughter off his hands than to keep a son-in-law on his feet.—Philadelphia Record.

The Most Common Disease.

Yorktown, Ark., Feb. 29th.—Leland Williamson, M. D., a successful and clever local physician, says:

"There is scarcely another form of disease a physician is called upon so often to treat as Kidney Disease. I invariably prescribe Dodd's Kidney Pills and am not disappointed in their effect for they are always reliable. I could mention many cases in which I have used this medicine with splendid success, for example, I might refer to the case of Mr. A. H. Cole.

"Age 31, greatly emaciated, some fever, great pain and pressure over region of Kidneys, urine filled with pus or corruption and very foul smelling and passed some blood. Directed to drink a great deal of water, gave brisk purgative and Dodd's Kidney Pills. The pills were continued regularly for three weeks and then a few doses every week, especially if patient felt any pain in region of Kidneys. Cured completely and patient performed his duties as farm laborer in four weeks."

Dr. Williamson has been a regular practitioner for over twenty years, and his unqualified endorsement of Dodd's Kidney Pills is certainly a wonderful tribute to this remedy.

Behavior is a mirror in which everyone displays his image.—Goethe.

TORTURING, DISFIGURING

Humors, Eczemas, Itchings, Inflammations, Burnings, Scalings and Chafings Cured by Cuticura.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt by the testimony of the civilized world.

ALABASTINE the Durable Wall Coating, Won't Rub Off;

WHY?

Because it cements to, and is not stuck on the wall with decaying, animal glue, as are the various so-called "wall finishes," which are kalsomines sold under fanciful names.

You can apply Alabastine.

ALABASTINE

The Only Sanitary and Permanent Wall Coating

ALABASTINE is not a disease-breeding, hot water glue wall finish, furnishing a lodgment and harbor-ground for disease germs; it is a natural, rock-base composition, in white and many exquisitely beautiful tints; in powder form, ready for use by simply mixing with cold water. Anyone can brush it on.

ALABASTINE cements to walls, distroys disease germs and vermin, and never rubs off or scales. Other wall coatings, under fanciful names, and usually mixed with hot water, are unhealthful kalsomines, stuck on the wall with glue, which soon rots, nourishes germs of deadly disease, rubs and scales, spoiling walls, clothing and furniture. When it is necessary to refinish, the old coats must be washed off—an expensive, nasty, disagreeable job, making the rooms damp and unfit to live in.

When walls are once coated with Alabastine, succeeding coats may be applied, year after year, without washing the walls, thus saving great expense and annoyance.

Hot and Cold Water Kalsomines Have No Merit

Some dealers try to sell them, buying them cheap, and trying to sell on Alabastine's demand until such time as their customers learn of the imposition.

THEY ARE WORTHLESS PREPARATIONS

If you cannot buy Alabastine of your hardware, paint or drug dealer, refuse all imitations, and write us. We will tell you where you can get Alabastine without delay, or sell it to you direct. $500.00 GIVEN AWAY. Write for particulars.

Leaflet of dainty tints, hints on decorating, and our artists' up-to-date ideas on beautifying the home, Free. Buy Alabastine only in packages, properly labeled.

CONGRESS AT WORK.

Daily Proceedings of the Senate and House Briefly Told.

The architectural changes made in the white house were the subject of a large share of the discussion in the senate on the 29th ult. In the house discussion of the District of Columbia appropriation bill drifted into political matters. A bill was introduced authorizing $10,000,000 for improvement work in the Philippine islands.

Senator Gallinger introduced a bill in the senate on the 1st increasing the salary of the president to $75,000; vice president, $15,000; speaker of the house, $12,000; members of the cabinet, $15,000 each; senators and members of the house, $8,000 each. The bill requiring the use of American vessels in transporting government supplies was passed. In the house general debate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill was ended. A resolution was introduced amending the constitution by limiting the number of representatives in congress after 1911 to 200, each state to have at least one.

The bill for the regulation of Philippine shipping was again the principal subject of consideration by the senate on the 2d. In the house the entire day was devoted to consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

The senate on the 3d, while technically engaged on the naval appropriation bill, discussed a wide range of subjects, including the policy of the United States in the Philippines and the Russo-Japanese war. In the house a letter from Grover Cleveland was read denying that he entertained a negro at luncheon in the white house. The District of Columbia appropriation bill was passed and the Indian appropriation bill was considered.

TALK OF WASHINGTON

TIMELY COMMENTS FROM THE CAPITOL OF THE NATION.

WORK OF CLEVER WOMAN

Accomplishments of Mrs. Arthur Powell Davis — Monsieur and Madame Jusserand of the French Embassy.

Washington.—One of the cleverest women in Washington is Mrs. Arthur Powell Davis, whose work is known throughout the maritime world. In this short sketch, I can only tell of a few things she has done. For 16 years she has calculated the ephemeris of the sun for nautical almanac published every year by the United States government. Every ship that sails the sea uses the figures this mathematical genius makes, and she has never made an error in them! She secured the position through a most difficult civil service examination, in which graduates of Yale and Harvard and other universities participated. Finally, all left the room defeated by the difficulty of the problems except the fair, young girl who was then Miss Elizabeth Preston Brown, of Virginia. She won the place over all competitors and holds it still by virtue of merit alone. A problem in higher mathematics pleases her as much as a new novel interests most women. She computed the development of the perturbative function, and made other special computations in connection with Prof. Simon Newcomb's "Tables of the Sun" and his tables of the different planets.

MRS. ARTHUR POWELL DAVIS.

She calculated the orbits of several comets, which were published in the Astronomical Journal and Sidereal Messenger.

She visited Europe with Mr. Davis a few years ago and found her reputation was well known abroad. Both were recipients of many courtesies from distinguished scientists and the nobility of Europe. They visited Windsor and Warwick castles by special invitation.

Monsieur Jusserand, ambassador to the United States from France, thinks Americans attach too much importance to their Anglo-Saxon origin and neglect their Celtic ancestry. He is a man of rare accomplishments and is an acquisition to the national capital, both from a literary and social standpoint. He speaks English fluently, having served in a diplomatic capacity at the court of St. James a number of years.

JEAN JULES JUSSERAND.

The affairs pertaining to the building of the Panama canal and the press of business the world's fair is giving M. Jusserand more work to do than his predecessor had for some years. France is making a brave show at the exposition. She remembers Napoleon "signed away an empire" when he sold the Louisiana Purchase territory. There will be many Celtic visitors to our shores within the next few months. The American descendants of French settlers, Huguenots, Acadians, refugees from France during the reign of terror and others, who will greet unknown kinsmen at the fair. This influx of well-to-do and frequently distinguished foreigners to our shores will give the diplomats and consuls accredited to our country extra work.

Madame Jusserand is a beautiful woman of the best French type and makes a charming hostess at the legation. Washington has been fortunate in regard to many of the foreign ladies who preside over the homes of the diplomatic corps stationed here. One very popular chatelaine was an American woman, Miss Elverson, the daughter of a wealthy newspaper man of Philadelphia. She married Monsieur Paternotre while he was French minister here and entertained elegantly at her father's splendid villa on the heights of Georgetown. The Paternotres left here for the court of Madrid, where the American wife of the ambassador became at once popular.

Many of the foreign female contingent complain that our capital is dull compared with the gay capitals of the old world, especially on Sundays! Across the water, the fun starts immediately after mass Sunday morning. Theaters and concerts are in full blast during the afternoon and the cafes do a big business. They have special singers and a band of music, psalms and hymns are not on the programme! It was perhaps to pander to the tastes of our foreign distinguished population that the congressional library and Corcoran gallery of art throw open their doors at noon Sunday!

Crowds throng both buildings during the entire afternoon of Sunday and they are not all foreigners by any means! In fact, it is about the only time the government clerks have for enjoying the advantages offered by both institutions and they make the most of it. The librarian of congress had to put an extra force of clerks on Sunday afternoon, and it is sometimes almost impossible to elbow your way through the crowds in the main galleries of the Corcoran art gallery. The theaters, too, are frequently opened here on Sunday evenings for the rendition of an oratorio lecture or sacred concert. In a few years it looks as if the diplomatic corps will cease to complain that Washington is "dull and provincial."

American nurses are going to the seat of war to care for the Japanese sick and wounded. The Japanese minister has received a cable message from his government accepting the offer made by Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, of Washington, D. C., to take to Japan a party of trained nurses who have seen field service in the camps and hospitals of the United States army. No one is eligible to join the party except graduate women nurses who have been in the army.

DR. ANITA NEWCOMB MCGEE.

The first party will sail early in March and proceed to Osaka, Japan, the port on the Inland sea, which is the base to which disabled troops will come when sent home from the battlefield. There they will place themselves under the orders of the military authorities to be sent wherever they are most needed. All may be together or they may be divided into different parties. There is in Japan a large official Red Cross organization which furnishes immense quantities of supplies to the army, and the American nurses will work side by side with the members of that society.

Nurses are neutrals in war, under the international treaty of Geneva, and as a matter of international courtesy, which is welcomed by the Japanese government in terms of highest appreciation, it is believed that the expedition will widely interest the American people.

Innumerable tenders of services of all kinds have been made to the Japanese, but all have been declined except this one offer of American nurses.

Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, who is at the head of the movement, and will take the first party to the war district, is a native of Washington. She is president of the Society of Spanish War Nurses. She was appointed acting assistant surgeon of the United States army in 1898, and is the only woman who ever held such a position. She was assigned to duty in the surgeon general's office, in charge of the army nurse corps, which she organized. When congress approved this work by making the nurse corps of trained women a permanent part of the army the pioneer stage was passed, and she resigned December 31, 1900, and has been engaged in literary work since until she took up the present project.

It is not at all surpriseing to see a struggle for nomination to office on the republican ticket, this year, as candidates are expecting an easy ride to election on Teddy's band wagon November.

Russia is proceeding very deliberately in her war with Japan. The bear evdently expect a long siege. Russia will geathered an immence force at the scene of of battle, hopeing to win by overwelming numbers.

It is amusing to the country editor that has never tasted the joys of a pull at the public printing crib, to watch the snarls of the old Polk county printing "gang", when they meditate on on the fact that they are no longer the only ones that can do the county-printing.

The new instructions from the general land office, to the affect that parties making final proof outside the land office must have their evidence examined by a government inspector, before the Recievors reciept is issued, has created alarm among some of the applicants that have made final proof before United States Commissioners. There is no occasion to fear the frown of the government officials, if you have resided upon and cultivated the land for five years, and have [illegible] nesses, as it is not the purpose of your Uncle Same to deprive you of a home, but to give you one.

Singular Creature.

One of the most singular looking creatures that ever walked the earth or swam the waters under the earth" is the world famous man faced crab of Japan. Its body is hardly an inch in length, yet the head is fitted with a face which is the exact counterpart of a Chinese cooly—a veritable missing link, with eyes, nose and mouth all clearly defined. This curious and uncanny creature, besides the great likeness it bears to a human being in the face, is provided with two legs, which seem to grow from the top of its head and hang down over the side of its face.

Brides Who Perch In Trees.

Among the Lolos of western China it is customary for the bride on the wedding morning to perch herself on the highest branch of a large tree while the elder female members of her family cluster on the lower limbs armed with sticks. When all are duly stationed the bridegroom clambers up the tree, assailed on all sides by blows, pushes and pinches from the dowagers, and it is not until he has broken through their fence and captured the bride that he is allowed to carry her off.

Her Sorrow.

One of the closest friends of Princess Mathilde was Count Benedetti, the French ambassador whom the king of Prussia was said to have insulted at Ems. Her words on hearing of his death, after he had been her intimate counselor for more than forty years, are worth recalling. "Alas," she said, "now there is no one left who will dare to contradict me."

She Understood.

Mr. Misfit—It's no use trying to explain things to a woman. She can't understand scientific terms. No, there is— Mrs. Misfit—Oh, yes, I can, Charles! Heredity is what a man blames his father and mother for, and environment is what he blames his wife and children for!—Chicago Record-Herald.

DOUBLE RESURRECTION.

Each of the Generals Thought That the Other Was Dead.

General Barlow of the Union army fell wounded and, it was thought, dying during the first day of the battle of Gettysburg and within the Confederate lines. General Gordon, cantering by, saw him and recognized him. Dismounting, he approached the prostrate man and inquired what he could do for him.

"I am dying," said Barlow. "Just reach into my coat pocket, draw out the letter you find there and read it to me. It is from my wife."

Gordon read the letter.

"Now, general," said Barlow, "please destroy that letter. I want you to notify her—she is in the town over yonder—what has happened to me."

"I will," replied Gordon.

He sent for Mrs. Barlow, giving her safe conduct through the southern lines, and then rode away, certain that Barlow's death was a question of only a few hours at most.

But Barlow did not die. His wife came promptly and had him removed to the town of Gettysburg, where she nursed him so faithfully that he recovered.

Many years passed until one night both generals were guests at a dinner in Washington. Some one brought them together and formally introduced them. Time had altered the personal appearance of both.

"Are you any relation to the General Barlow who was killed at Gettysburg?" asked Gordon.

"Yes; a very near relation," answered Barlow, with a laugh. "I am the very man who was killed. But I have been informed that a man named Gordon lost his life in battle later on. He saved my life at Gettysburg. Are you any kin to that man?"

"I am he," was the reply.

Both heroes laughed as they gave each other a heartier handshake.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED—

You will try to make others happy.

You will not be shy or self conscious.

You will never indulge in ill natured gossip.

You will never forget the respect due to age.

You will think of others before you think of yourself.

You will not swagger or boast of your achievements.

You will not measure your civility by people's bank accounts.

You will be scrupulous in your regard for the rights of others.

In conversation you will not be argumentative or contradictory.

You will not forget engagements, promises or obligations of any kind.

You will never make fun of the peculiarities or idiosyncrasies of others.

You will not bore people by constantly talking of yourself and your affairs.

You will never under any circumstances cause another pain if you can help it.

You will not think that "good intentions" compensate for rude or gruff manners.—Success.

Jewelry and Magic.

Finger rings, earrings, bracelets, brooches and other articles of personal adornment originated not from the æsthetic sense of our remote ancestors, but from their belief in magic. Even civilized men today sometimes entertain a superstitious regard for small stones and pebbles of peculiar shape or color and carry them about as charms. The Greeks and Asiatics used stones, beads and crystals primarily as amulets and cut devices on them to enhance their magical power. The use of such stones as seals was secondary and may at first have been for sacred purposes only. When a primitive people first find gold they value it only for its supposed magic and wear nuggets of it strung with beads.

Derivations of Some Common Words.

One remembers how on the 15th of June, 1215, King John signed the great charter of the constitutional freedom of Britain and how after he had signed it he flung himself in a burst of fury on the floor and gnawed the straw and rushes with which the floors of those days were strewn. Now, what was "charta?" Originally nothing more or less than a sheet of papyrus strips glued together as writing paper. So it is to the Egyptian reed that we owe our "charters," "charts," "cards," "cartes" (blanche and de visite), our "cartoons" and our "cartridges."—London Chronicle.

Accurate.

"Sir," says the Boston reporter, "our office is informed that your purse was stolen from you last night. Is there anything in it?"

"Not by this time, doubtless," answers Mr. Emerson Waldo Beeneeter, relapsing into an attitude of perturbed meditation.—Judge.

Advanced.

"You say that Lord Fucash's social position has improved since he married a rich American girl?"

"Yes, indeed. Formerly he was only a nobleman, but now he belongs to our heiresstocracy."—Exchange.

Particular.

"What sort of money will you have, Mrs. Mumm?" asked the cashier when that lady presented a large check for payment.

"Sterilized," replied Mrs. Mumm.—Life.

Winter.

Yeast—When we get real cold weather, they say we are getting a taste of winter. What is the taste of winter? Crimsonbeak—Why, it's when it is bitter.—Yonkers Statesman.

A COMIC TRAGEDY.

The Audience Was Ready, but the Show Was Tangled Up.

John Banvard, who afterward became famous as the painter of a great panorama of Mississippi scenery, set out in his boyhood, in the early thirties, to travel down the "Great Water" in a flatboat with a number of companions. They built their boat on the Wabash and were to pay their way by exhibiting dioramic views in the cabin at landings. Unfortunately the candlelights were not then shining through the sycamores along the Wabash, and before the adventurers reached a settled region they ran out of provisions. In the woods they could find nothing but papaws, luscious at first, but quickly cloying.

"For two days," wrote the sixteen-year-old Banvard, "we had nothing whatever to eat but those awful papaws. The very sight or memory of one made me shudder. Then, on a joyful, sunny afternoon, we approached Shawneetown, Ill., on the Ohio river, where we were advertised to exhibit. As we came in we could see on the bank a crowd of people. Some carried chickens, some eggs, some yams, some potatoes, some "side meat" (bacon) and some cornmeal. Our dinner was in sight, for all those things were intended as payment for admission at the door, and all were "good."

Our stomachs hungered, and our mouths watered for the feast; but, alas, we were too eager! Working our boat toward land, we ran upon a reef and stuck fast. Every effort to set us free failed. Darkness came on, and before our eyes our "house" disbanded and went home, carrying our supper with them.

Discouraged and forlorn, we turned to our bag of papaws for what consolation we could find and then went to sleep. In the night we floated free and at daylight were in the woods again eight miles below those luscious provisions. That was one of the most awful tragedies of my life.—Youth's Companion.

DOMESTIC NEGLECT.

The judge and spectators in a Kansas City courtroom laughed when a husband testified that his wife gave him only "mechanical kisses."

Then the lawyers devoted many minutes to the question, "What is a mechanical kiss?" They decided that it was a salutation given only through a sense of duty, and then they laughed some more.

They didn't go far enough. They might have called it a tragedy.

With most women affection lasts. It burns as strongly in old [illegible] as in golden youth [illegible] it is a world of joy to them.

Some men forget. They grow careless. Carelessness is often a species of selfishness. Once it was a privilege to [illegible] wife at the door when leaving in the morning, again as a warm greeting that always marked the homecoming at night.

And one morning the man forgot the caress and lost himself in business. And a shadow fell on a romance, and the woman wept. She tried to be brave and sensible. She tried to laugh at the silly fear that he didn't care for her. She assured herself a hundred times that it was such a little thing and that it was natural for him to forget and that it was unreasonable for her to expect the joy of the honeymoon through life. She wiped away her tears and resolved to hide her grief and be kind, loving, patient.

And the man never knew. Perhaps some day he went into court and complained that he had been the recipient of "mechanical kisses." Domestic neglect isn't always confined to lack of food and clothing. Cruelty doesn't always take the form of physical abuse. When men learn to think, when they remember that the little attentions often mark the difference between joy and sorrow in a woman's life, there will be more real happiness in the world.—Milwaukee Journal.

For Tender Feet.

After dancing for a little while many people's feet get very tender and uncomfortable. If you are troubled in this way, try this plan: Put ivy leaves next the soles of your feet, inside the stockings. Cut out the hard center rib, lay the leaves as smoothly as possible, draw your stockings carefully over so as not to disarrange them, and see that your shoes fit just comfortably. For walking in warm weather this is an excellent plan and prevents the feet from getting tender.—New York News.

His Promotion.

"Pa," said little Johnny, "teacher is thinking about promoting me."

"How do you know?"

"From what she said today."

"And what was that?"

"She said if I kept on I'd belong to the criminal class."

Two Statements.
